The never-stop railway has a fleet of 88 cars which can carry 20,000 passengers an hour. Its speed varies from little more than zero at the stations to 24 miles an hour in open. Starting at Wembley Park Station, we travelled by way of the Palace of Engineering, the main section of the Pleasure Park, the coal mine, Indian Pavilion, Grand Band Stand and British Government Pavilion and turned near the stadium. The round trip covered about 1½ miles.

After having this trip we took a visit to King Tut's tomb. Natives were in charge and one guided us through the tomb, explaining the different things. The tomb contained replicas of the famous golden bed, the magnificent thrones, the alabaster vases, and the many other interesting discoveries which were made in the Luxor tomb. Great care had been taken to reproduce the spirit of the actual tomb, and the lighting effects combined with the stillness and beauty of the interior, made us realize what this great discovery has meant.

This completed our day's visit to Wembley, but I told you near the first that I was going to tell you about Canada last; as I think it wise to keep the best till the last. I believe that almost every one who has visited Wembley will agree with me that Canada has the best exhibit.

Canada has wrought marvellously at Wembley; no country has approached the exhibition with a greater determination to express a message with the maximum of emphasis and coherence. Her exhibit occupies nearly six acres.

Her story is told in mural decorations, in panoramic pictures, in an extensive series of wonderful photographs arranged along the walls, and in a picture of the great wheat belt of the western prairies, with which model railways are cleverly associated. Naturally agriculture was the outstanding feature. In the main court of the pavilion was a wonderful scheme of decoration carried out in grains and grasses, which proclaimed the keynote of Canada's endeavor.

Two separate pavilions house the C.P.R. and C. N. Railway companies, and tell the story of their marvellous conquest of prairies and mountain, their movement in aid of the pioneer, the generous offers they make to settlers. In these pavilions are shown the facilities for travel and sport in Canada, as well as the natural attractions and the resources of the Premier Dominion.

Two cinema theatres show films of every feature of Canadian life, and huge electrically lit maps of Canada give some idea of the world-wide activity of these companies.

There is in the Canadian Pavilion a court devoted entirely to the display of the Dominion's mineral possessions, among which stood unique the Keely silver nugget, weighing 2½ tons, and worth approximately twenty thousand dollars. This is enclosed in a glass case and was very attractive.

A great section devoted to manufacturers reminded me of the Dominion's aspirations to become one of the world's great industrial nations, and her products showed a variety and finish comparable to any to be found in the home country. There was machinery of all kinds, motor cars, iron and steel products, pulp and paper, wool, rubber products, and silk, to mention but a few. In furniture and office equipment, Canada excelled. There were four rooms furnished entirely with Canadian-made articles, which gave an excellent example of quality and taste. Tinned fish, meat and other foods, of course, occupied a prominent place.

The forestry section was both important and impressive. The lumbering industry and the great news print business were set out with all necessary detail. Our fisheries were displayed very attractively, as was also the fruit. All sections of the dairy industry were shown in a manner both instructive and taking to the eye. A life-size model of the Prince of Wales, and his horse, with a typical Canadian homestead as a background, made entirely in butter, was very attractive.

There was a relief map of the whole country showing the development of water-power in the Dominion, and the power that awaits development.

Perhaps the prevailing note of the Canadian Pavilion was one of complete optimism. Something of the spirit of even temper, hopefulness and good fellowship that is in Canada has found its way to the Canadian Pavilion at Wembley. The fashion in which the true Canadian atmosphere was taken over to Wembley was indeed startling. Any one who knows our fair Dominion at all will recognize this as soon as he sets foot within the pavilion walls.

As I beheld the marvellous exhibit of Canada and thought seriously of my native land occupying in its vastness 27 per cent. of the total area of the British Commonwealth of nations, with less than 2 per cent. of its population, I was filled with admiration and thankfulness. It must have been visible to those around me, for as I stood with my father, mother and sister discussing Canada, and drawing, or trying to draw, comparison with other parts of the Empire, we were suddenly aware we were the centre of attraction as we were being asked to come over to the office and sign our names in the visitors' book. We were presented with mementoes and received the congratulations of the attendants, who said they knew we were Canadians as soon as we came into the building. We asked, how did you know we were Canadians. The answer was, you are all so glad and happy looking and are enjoying life just as is natural to Canadians, and which does not apply to the vast majority of the crowds. I surely felt like singing "O Canada" and "The Maple Leaf Forever," with thanks to God for the privilege of being a Canadian.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

Rub on Good Old Musterole

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Colds are merely congestion. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, it does the work without the blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief. 40c and 75c, at all druggists.

GOVERNMENT WILL MEET ON DEC. 9TH

LONDON, Nov. 15. — (Canadian Press). — It is anticipated that a speech from the Thone at the opening of Parliament on December 9th will indicate the Baldwin Government's intentions with regard to housing, trade revival, unemployment and foreign affairs, and an inquiry concerning the food prices and perhaps some suggestion of national insurance against ill-health and unemployment.

With regard to the housing problem, the Government, it is understood, will assure trade unions that its schemes for providing more housing accommodation for the people will embrace a period of at least fifteen years, which, it is anticipated, will mollify unions towards admission of diluted labor, or at any rate extension of apprenticeship system and promotion of semi-skilled laborers.

Regarding the proposed inquiry as to food prices, there are indications that this question will be looked into at a very early period by a Royal Commission and the question of prices will be explored with reference to the Imperial aspect thereof. An economic committee may be appointed to consider the marketing of Empire produce with the object of seeing primarily how food commodities of the Dominions can best be brought more prominently before the attention of the consumers in the Mother Country than is the case at present.

PRE-HISTORIC ELEPHANT

LOS ANGELES, November 15. — The collection of fossilized bones at the Los Angeles museum, belonging to sundry animals that lived more than 30,000 years ago, was augmented recently by the lower jaw and a gigantic molar of a Columbian elephant, a type of prehistoric creature of which fragmentary remains have been discovered only once before in southern California.

The specimens were unearthed at a depth of 60 feet in a gravel pit. The face of the molar, which is nearly eight inches long, is covered with thick plates of enamel, while the jaw bone, which had been broken off, has a length of 18 inches. Both tooth and jaw were petrified. Their original owner lived in the Pleistocene period, in the opinion of Dr. W. A. Bryan, director of the museum.

"THE BOY IN THE BUSH" THRILLER

D. H. Lawrence Departs From Psychoanalysis in Latest Book.

AUSTRALIAN TALE.

D. H. Lawrence, the distinguished Englishman who adopted Taos, N.M., has stepped out of his role as psycho-analyst to write a really distinguished novel in which the complex clinics play second fiddle.

It is "The Boy in the Bush" (Seltzer) in which Lawrence collaborates with M. L. Skinner and it is a far departure from the Lawrence of "The Lost Girl,' "The Sea and Sardinia" and "The Rainbow." It is the same Lawrence who wrote "Sons and Lovers," but become more assured and settled.

The book has all the elements of a good swashbuckling, fast-moving story: fights, feuds, loves, lusts, etc and yet because of the incessant swing from the objective story to a subjective one it escapes being the commonplace adventure tale or a mere piece of literary job work.

Briefly the situation is this: an English boy of "wild" tendencies is sent by his family to an Australian cattle station where he becomes part of a pioneer Australian family and shares the primitive wild life. Conquest of rough virgin country leads to steadier communal life and then the inevitable restrictions upon individual freedom. In this device is rounded the cycle of most race development.

This is not a book for the sentimental or unsophisticated reader. The passions become as primitive as the country and its background and there are elemental scenes and events given in all their blunt and primal dress.

In drawing the Ellis family and "the boy" Lawrence has done a distinguished piece of writing.

The habits of the "mollbuzzer" and the "bunko steerer' 'alike are intimately pictured in "Keys to Crookdom" (Appleton, by George C. Henderson, probably one of the most elaborate and complete volumes on crooks to be written. It differs from ordinary crookology in that here each type of criminal is shown in action and actual scenes from life are fitted into the chapters.

Henderson, for some years a reporter in Oakland, Cal., has had the aid of August Vollmer, famous "scientific chief of police' and his data has been contributed by a doezn police authorities. It is absolutely authoritative and besides its value to writers, policemen newspapermen and criminologistse presents to the layman a clear picture of the types of crook and the habits. There is in an appendix, a dictionary of crook slang which is most complete.

Quite a different volume of the "crime school" is the maiden volume of Richard E. Enright, New York's commissioner of police and noted crime expert. It is "Vultures of the Dark" (Brentano), and is an authentic mystery story dealing with the running down of a great crime organization preying upon fashionable New Yorkers. It is a real thriller.

Still another type of crime tale is contained in "D.C.I." (Doubleday, Page), written by Major C. E. Russell who was provost marshal at Bordeaux during the war and who tells real life thrillers from the chapters of the Department of Criminal Investigation.

"Why, oh why doesn't someone revive The Chatterbox?" demands one surveyor in running over the new childrens' books— this being children's book week. The nearest approach is a second edition of "Joy Street' (D. Appleton), a fine collection from such excellent writers as Walter de la Maire, A. A. Milne, G. K. Chesterton and Hugh Walpole. The illustrations are varied and many quite good. This should be a popular Christmas book.

DAUGHTER WINS

and that she feared she would try to kill herself. Hoping to get her daughter home before she did anything rash, the mother started for Lynbrook immediately. Madeline drove ahead in her coupe, while her mother and Mr. Herring followed in the sedan.

Lost Daughter In Jam.

The mother kept close behind her daughter's car until they reached Hempstead. It was then getting dark, and the daughter succeeded in taking advantage of a traffic jam to speed so far ahead of her mother that the latter entirely lost her track.

Stopping several times in Hempstead and Mineola to try to find some trace of her daughter, Mrs. Haverstroh was finally seized with a premonition of what, it later transpired, actually did occur. Accordingly, she gave up the plan of searching alnog the way and decided to get home as quickly as she could. When she arrived night had fallen. There was no trace of her daughter's car about. Mrs. Haverstroh ran upstairs and looked in the drawer of her husband's chiffonier, where he usually kept his revolver. It was not there.

Mr. Haverstroh about this time telephoned from New York. When he heard his wife's story, he called a taxicab and drove to Lynbrook. He reached home just as Police Captain Chadwick was entering the house. The policeman told Mr. Haverstroh that his daughter had shot herself with his pistol in her automobile at Pearl Place and Duncan avenue, two blocks from her home.

Miss Haverstroh left no note nor did she make any statement to her mother to explain her action. Her parents and the authorities were mystified as to what her motive could have been. The police said they would make an investigation to try to establish the motive.

The young woman's father said that she had always seemed to be happy. As far as he or her mother could tell, she appeared to have everything to live for. He showed photographs of his daughter in her automobile and at the beach, surrounded by friends, to show that she was usually cheerful and contented. She was not engaged, he said, although five years ago she had broken an engagement because her parents disapproved of her fiance. This affair, he said, had nothing to do with her suicide.

Miss Haverstroh had an appointment to go to the movies on Saturday night with Jack Hartman, son of the Police Chief of Freeport, and another appointment to go motoring with him Sunday. She went to the movies and to supper with Hartman last Wednesday night, but her parents said the young man was nothing but a friend, and had nothing to do with whatever might have been the girl's motive for self-destruction.

Miss Haverstroh was regarded in Lynbrook as unusually attractive and vivacious. She had a fair complexion with dark hair, which she recently had bobbed.

The Affair at Flower Acres

by CAROLYN WELLS

©1924 by NEA Service Inc.

Very grave talk was in progress, and as Zizi entered Nan was saying:

"I must stand by my confession, Mr Wise. I must insist that I shot my husband. I hope a jury will not deal with me too severely, for I assure you I was tortured beyond the lot of most women. I never loved Mr. Raynor. I was tricked into marriage with him—I consented to it to save my father's honor and reputation, and, too, to save my brother from knowledge of our father's guilt—as I supposed. Then, when I learned that my father had never been guilty at all, but that my husband had lied to me—can you wonder at my hatred of him? Also, remember that he was a drug addict—and that when denied the morphine he craved, he became a veritable fiend. I felt I must try to save him from the inevitable fate of such indulgence, so I honestly tried. But it was all too much for me. I almost lost my mind—perhaps I did lose my mind——" The sad face looked suddenly brighter, as if in hope that a mental unbalance would help to exonerate her.

"No, Mrs. Raynor, you haven't lost your mind——" and Zizi came in and slipped into a seat next to Nan, and took her white hand in her own two little brown ones. "You're all right, mentally, morally and physically. Penny, here are the overshoes.'.

The detective took them, and without a word, turned them over to look at the soles. A single nod of his head showed Zizi that he now knew all, that whatever was the story the rubbers told, it was final and complete.

But the effect on Nancy Raynor was as disastrous as it was unexpected. She turned perfectly white, she trembled like a leaf, and had Zizi not flung an assisting arm round her, she would have fallen from her chair.

"Those are my husband's—those are Mr. Raynor's overshoes!" she exclaimed.

"Are you sure?" asked Wise.

"Of course, I'm sure. He bought them about a week before he died. They are a new model—he had never worn them."

"This" and Wise held up the right one, "this is the overshoe that made the footprint on the floor of the sun room."

"Yes"—Nan almost choked—"I—I wore them—I put them on——"

"The mystery is a mystery no onger," Wise said slowly. "I know who wore this rubber and who sho. Douglas Raynor—but it was not Mrs Raynor."

"It wasn't Orry," Nan cried out. "I asked Dolly Fay if he was wearing rubbers that night and she said no. She was on the bridge with him——"

A great light broke upon Zizi. So Nan had been trying to shield her brother. How had she come to suspect him?"

But Wise was speaking.

"I will tell you—I must tell you all I know," he said. "But I have given my word to your brother, Mrs. Raynor, that when I learned the identity of the murderer, I would tell him first of all. You may as well be told now that Mr. Kent also confessed to the crime in order to save you, as Mr. Finley did. But since you didnt do it, these two gentlemen have no necessity for such heroism."

"Orry confessed," said Nan, her eye wide with wonder. "To save me! Bless him!"

"Yes, he said if you were not to be accused, he had no confession to make—but if you were, then he would shoulder the crime himself. And I promised to tell him when I found out the truth."

"And you have?" Nan spoke in an awed whisper.

"And I have. Zizi, go yourself to Mr. Kent. Ask him to come here."

Zizi went and returned quickly with Orville Kent.

He entered the room, white-faced and agitated but walking with a firm step. He glanced first at his sister, and seemed glad to see her in the protecting arm of Malcolm Finley.

"You found the rubbers?" he said, as he saw them on a small table.

"Yes," Wise said, "and they tell the story of the crime. I promised you, Kent, I'd tell you first of all. Need I do so?"

"No," Orville Kent returned. "I'll tell myself. I shot Douglas Raynor. You knew it, Nan—I think you have known it all along. I think you saw me that night. But you don't know why. Not to rid the world of a beast and a brute—although he was those. Not to save my sister from a life of terror and agony with a drug fiend, though he was that. Nor to set my sister free to marry the man she loves and who loves her—though I rejoice to know that will some day be possible. But here is the true reason why I shot Douglas Raynor. I saw Nan putting tablets into his tea or coffee. Time and again I saw her do this. And always furtively, stealthily, with a glance around to see if any one noticed. Then I saw Raynor begin to show symptoms of poisoning—of arsenical poisoning. I went to a strange doctor in the city and learned that they were the symptoms of arsenical poisoning beyond all doubt. I knew what Nan suffered; I saw the brute treating her more and more shamefully, and I was forced to the conclusion that my sister, unable to stand it any longer, had succumbed to temptation to rid herself of him. I did not blame her—not for a minute—but I wanted to save her from being a murderer—so I shot him for her. That is all."

Kent sat quietly, not twitching his fingers or moving his hands now, but like a thoughtful, determined actor who had finished his part.

"There is no more," he said, after a pause. "I am not sorry—I rather hated to own up—and shouldn't have done so except in case of suspicion of an innocent person. Had there been more talk of an intruder, had the household been exonerated and the matter left unsolved, I should have kept silence, for what I did was not murder—one cannot murder a beast. It was just retribution for that man's awful fraud on my sister—I only learned of that lately. But, as I said, my motive was not murder—it was to save my sister—as I thought—from being a murderer. Imagine my feelings when I learned that she had not given him poison at all—but helpful medicine. However, the deed is done. Now, Nancy, darling, don't feel bad about it—forget it all when you can. Marry Finley, and let the years to come make up for all you have suffered. I made a mistake—and for that mistake I atone."

A quick motion of his hand, so quick that it even eluded Wise, who had been watching for it, and Kent had conveyed to his mouth a capsule of deadly and instantaneous poison.

After all, it was better so. He must have been convicted—his motive, though born of his affection for his sister, would have seemed quixotic in the eyes of the law, and even if he had escaped capital punishment, long imprisonment would have been a worse fate for Orry Kent.

Finley led Nan away at once, and Wise called the household servants to assist him in the necessary procedures.

"How did you size up the rubber so quick?" Zizi asked him. "I half thought they were Gannon's."

"I knew from the very first it had to be Kent," Wise said, slowly. "But I didn't know his real reason. I thought, of course, he just removed Raynor to save his sister from further unhappiness. I see now how that really high-minded man could bring himself to do it. It was partly brotherly devotion and partly a slight twist in his not quite normal mind, that gave him the heroism needed. As to the rubbers, when I found a tiny speck of green paint on the print on the floor, and when I learned that the little bridge had been painted not so very long ago, I couldn't help linking that up with Kent. Then, we had no proof that he was on the bridge at seven o'clock. As a matter of fact he wasn't. Dolly Fay's watch was fast, and Kent knew it. He'd been watching his chance; he took advantage of Dolly's statement about the time, and utilized it for his own alibi. He came up to the house fully five or ten minutes before seven, entered the sun room and shot Raynor and dropped the pistol and went out again. Then he removed the overshoes——"

"Dolly said he didn't wear any when he was with her," Zizi objected.

"He did, though. Those slip-on affairs show so little that she didn't notice them. He removed them after the shot was fired, and hid them, probably in the shrubbery. Later, he hid them in Gannon's closet, which was a capital place—if my little Zizi hadn't been clever enough to look there. Ever since, Kent has been waiting to see if his sister should be really accused and as soon as she was, he was ready.

"When he did confess, I knew he was really telling the truth, but I pretended to think he was making up in order to test him out. He said at once that if Mrs. Raynor was freed from suspicion he would not confess, but if she were accused he was ready to avow the crime. A strange being, Kent."

"What made you first think of Kent?" asked Zizi, thoughtfully.

"First, I think, when he said he walked up from the bridge admiring the sunset. There was no sunset at the time he pretended to come up—at seven. I looked up the weather records most carefully. I knew he lied about the sunset, or else he had come about ten minutes earlier. At seven every vestige of sunset after-effects had faded from the sky. Then next, Miss Turner said positively that when Kent came in, a little after seven, he didn't look toward Raynor at all, but only at his sister. Now, however solicitious for Mrs. Raynor he may have been, he would most certainly have glanced toward the dead man—except that he had seen him before So I knew that the sight of the body on the floor was not a surprise to him. From then on, I've only been trying to prove it up—or prove myself mistaken."

"Which you were not—which you never are," said Zizi, with an affectionate smile for the chief she so adored.

* * * * * *

Kent's hopes were fulfilled. A year or so later, far from the beautiful but no longer desirable estate of Flower Acres, Nancy Finley put her hand in that of her husband and set forth on a happy and tranquil life journey with him.

"Deary Orry," she said, softly, "his martyrdom made possible my present happiness."

"As your martyrdom was for the happiness of him and your father."

"Yes, dear, and now it is all past, and we owe it to their memory as well as to our own two happy selves to forget the past and live only in the radiant present and the rosy future."

THE END.

WILDCAT MARSDEN WILEY'S CREATION, IN SLANG CLASSIC

'The Prowler" is Collection of Short Stories Recently Issued—Other New Books.

COAL MINE STORY.

It took a long time for the very literary essayists to discover the art that lies behind vaudeville clownery comic strips, jazz bands and the like.

Then, one day, Dilbert Seldes wrote the "Seven Lively Arts" and told New York what every vaudeville goer and comic reader in the rest of the country had known for years. New York learned with amazement that stars of its funniest revues were commonplace vaudeville names about the "provinces."

All of which is by way of preface to a prediction—some day the very literary critics are going to discover Hugh Wiley's "Wildcat Marsden" and Will James' cowboy stuff and realize that here are contributions, not only to the American folklore and background, but to the slang idiom of the time.

For years "the four-leaf wildcat" has been rambling his good-natured, darkey way through Wiley's short stories. Now he appears in a new volume of tales, "The Prowler" (Knopf), in which effort of plot invention often becomes too apparent, but in which something like justice can be done the character.

Here is fabulous tale-telling of the Paul Bunyan school, with a character that could be interpreted in a full chapter of symbolism; the complete fatalist and futilist are combined in the "wildcat"; fate breaks things for him, in spite of himself; he is the minstrel man, the swashbuckler, Al Jolson, and all stage impersonations of the negro put together. His combination of made-to-order slang and hifalutin rhetoric are great stuff.

Will James in "Cowboys—North and South" (Scribners) does a true-to-life job with the cowboy, giving to posterity his picturesque vernacular and background.

"Shackled" (Brentano), by Achmed Abdullah, is far and away the most colorful writing in many a week. No sheiks and nautch gals, we warn you. Rather a well-born Arab girl, whose father wishes her to marry none but a descendant of the "prophet." This man does not present himself. The father dies penniless and she has only herself to sell. A family conference decides that she is to be educated, but this she resents because education is thought in her land to be only for the poor working classes. Her tutor brings the heart complications that draw the story to a most cororful crisis.

Sooner or later someone was bound to write the story of the conflict of Germanic and American bloods in an Anglo-German at the time of the World-War, and Robert E. McClure has done it in "The Dominant Blood" (Doubleday, Page). The mother is Teuton, the father is American, and the result shows in some admirably written scenes of his adolescence and childhood. He is surely an uncomfortable combination—although this surveyor has seen many such mixed ones who took it in no manner so hard. We understand that Booth Tarkington has referred to it as "a big, fine piece of work," and who are we—?

Jack Bethea, for some years managing editor of the Birmingham Post, is an other newspaperman to turn novelist his first work being "Bed Rock" (Houghton, Mifflin), which, the survey is told, already has been sold to the movie. The scene is laid in the coal mine belts where the young hero decides to come up from the ranks by wedding the daughter of the company president. This he succeeds in doing, but the girl learns his motive; her love turns to hate, and there is melodrama to burn in the strike excitements that take place before he has "fought his way back."

London, Ont.—The cause of oratory and rhetoric is not altogether lost in this matter-of-fact age; if the spreading of the formal debate as a winter pastime from college halls to church parlors any indication of the trend among young people. Among the Methodist young folk of London there is announced a series of twenty-five such debates, lasting through six months and embattling nine churches. Toronto is said to boast over thirty teams in its Methodist debating league. These fall and winter schedules may never its Methodist debating league. These produce much press copy but they may train orators and future politicians.

"FULL OF HORSE SENSE"

Some Animal Attributes on Our Zoological Language.

"Full of Horse Sense," said a placard advertising a racing journal. Why horse sense? Obviously because the paper deals with horses. But there is in the use of the expression a double meaning, for "horse sense" is a phrase synonymous with "plain and robust sense."

Thinking in this direction, I was led to wonder how many popular words and phrases we have directly adopted from the real or imaginary attributes of animals.

Our Zoological Language.

To describe persons as asses, monkeys, pigs, or bears is to accuse them of stupidity, mischievousness, filthiness, or surliness. These are crude and obvious insults, but there are other more subtle references to animals in our ordinary everyday speech.

When a rowdy assembly is called a bear garden, little intelligence is needed to find out the habits of a bear, and if a quarrelsome married couple are said to lead a cat and dog's life, the result of tying together a dog and a cat can easily be imagined. That a monkey can fly into a fierce rage is evident from our use of the phrase about "getting one's monkey up," while the angler's supposed habit of improving on the actual size of his catches has led us to describe anything that doesn't seem quite true as fishy.

Probably the first man to describe an obstinate friend as pig-headed was a man who had tried driving a pig to market, and friends who had bitter experience with mules in the army tell me that the height of obstinacy in a man can best be described as mulish.

Many years ago, when lions were on show at the Tower, London, a popular pastime was to go to see the lions. Very gradually the term began to be used in a jocular way for famous people, and so now "a lion" may be any one very much in the public eye.

Two Slandered Innocents.

Sheep and sogs seem to be the most maligned of all animals. Why does the proverb declare that "Two shrews are better than one sheep?" Is it justice to the sheep to call a fool a sheepshead, or a shy man sheepish? And why is the human blackguard the black sheep of the family?

Are black sheep more dissipated than the rest of the flock, or does the reason lie in the fact that they are rarer than white, just as blackguards are rarer than ordinary people?

The dog is the faithful friend of man, yet a very cheap thing is said to be dog cheap, a churlish man is doggish, a mean dwelling is a dog hole, to go to the dogs is to go to ruin, dog parsley is another name for fool's parsley, and a dog trick is an ill-natured trick.

A bulldog, by the way, is not so called because he has the characteristics of a bull, but merely because the bulldog was the breed used in the old sport of bull-baiting.

Proverbial Phrases.

Anything which causes much inconvenience and expense to the owner is said to be a white elephant. It was the custom of the rulers of Siam to present a sacred white elephant to courtiers whom they wished to ruin. The gift of the Emperor could not be neglected, and the upkeep of the elephant usually proved too big a strain on the finances of the recipient.

Crocodile tears are affected and hypocritical tears, and the expression originated with the belief that a crocodile always wept over the hard necessity of killing and eating its victims.

A very amusing fable is responsible for one of our very useful phrases. The story goes that on a sailing ship were several animals. Amongst them were two sailors' pets, a cat and a monkey. One day the monkey saw some chestnuts roasting on the fire, but found they were too hot for him to seize. Accordingly he picked up the cat and used its paws to draw the chestnuts out of the fire. Hence any one who is the dupe or tool of another is said to be a "cat's paw."

COLD WEATHER HERE.

Nearly Down to Zero Over the Week End—Getting Milder.

In Peterboro the thermometer went down to within nine degrees of zero during the night. The weather started to get get cold on Sunday and the low water mark was reached during the night. Milder weather is promised by the weatherman.

It was 41 degrees above the deadline in Toronto at 8 o'clock Sunday morning. At 8 p.m., the mercury had slipped to 20 degrees, and was still slipping. To-day it will remain low; perhaps it will go much lower; and to-morrow according to signs it should climb again, though to what heights the weatherman would not commit himself.

A deep depression over the great Lakes brought in the cold wave from the north. The depression has moved easterly to the St. Lawrence valley however, and within 24 hours the temperature will rise, says the weatherman The cold was reported last night as being general over Manitoba and Ontario; west of Manitoba milder weather prevailed.

OLD STYLE HOME BEST, SAYS WOMAN

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Nov. 17. —The old-fashioned home, maintained for the family group and not as a 'scientific sanitary machine," surpasses all modern schools for the proper training of the young, according to Miss A. L. Marlatt, Director of Home Economics of the University of Wisconsin.

Miss Marlatt made the statement in an address before the twenty-fourth annual convention here of the New Jersey Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers' Association.

"The picture memories of boarding-houses, crowded apartments or the publicity of hotel life," she declared, 'are not those that induce the younger generation to dream of a home life of their own. We may defend such places on the ground of less expense, reduction of labor problems, possible reduction of housing costs, but, educationally, they are as arid as the desert of Sahara. The memory of the time when mother allowed the child to be the first assistant in the preparing and serving of food is one that we cannot lightly forego for the coming generation, even though to-day we are tending to become expert can-openers rather than expert makers of jellies and jams and preserves.

"Home," she said, "should be a place where the movie has a rival in the fun of home games and home companionship; where the radio may be heard, but not to the exclusion of family story telling and conversation, and where good music is always found and jazz has its due place, but not in the centre of the stage."

Miss Marlett also urged that all members of the family share in the household work, so that the mother may not be "tied to the wheel of things," and that "father be not oppressed with demands for expensive amusements."

The prevalence of moving pictures which create false moral standards and evil desires will cause irreparable injury to the youth of the land unless parents intervene, according to Mrs. Charles R. Bacon of Haddonfield, chairman of the Better Films Committee of the association.

"The character of a great majority of the fims," she said, "is worse than a year ago. In fact, an investigating body reported them to be worst in twelve years."

MENUS FOR A FAMILY.

Breakfast—Stewed prunes, cooked cereal, with thin cream, broiled bacon diced potatoes warmed in cream sauce, brown bread toast, grape jelly, milk, coffee.

With the exception of the ham and crackers and cheese a four-year-old child may eat any of the dishes mentioned on the menu for the day.

His bacon should be broiled until crisp.

The Scotch broth is "hearty" and nourishing and makes up for the lack of meat, particularly since eggs were included in the luncheon.

Creamed Celery, Poached Eggs on Toast

Two cups diced celery, 1 1-2 cups milk, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 4 poached gges, 4 squares hot buttered toast.

Cook celery in as little boiling water as possible to prevent burning until tender. Melt but er, stir in flour and slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Add celery, salt and pepper. Any water clinging to the celery should be used with the milk in making the sauce. Pour creamed celery over hot toast, drop a poached egg on each piece and serve very hot.

Baked Pears.

Four large pears, 4 teaspoons lemon juice, 4 tablespoons sugar, butter.

Wash pears and cut in halves. Remove cores. Put in a deep buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with sugar and put half a teaspoon lemon juice in each cavity. Dot with butter. Pour three or four tablespoons boiling water into dish to prevent burning. Cover dish and bake two or three hours in a slow oven. Any juice that cooks out of the pears should be poured into the cavity left by the core. For a "dressy" dessert serve pears masked with whipped cream and garnished with maraschino cherries.

Graham Cookies.

One and one-half cups graham flour, 1-2 cup bread flour, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 egg, 1 cup brown sugar, 1-2 cup milk, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup chopped raisins, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon.

Cream butter and sugar. Beat egg well with milk. Mix and sift baking powder and bread flour. Add to graham flour with salt and cinnamon. Add dry ingredients to sugar alternately with milk and egg. Add raisins and drop by spoonfuls onto a buttered and floured cookie sheet. Bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

The style may differ. It may reflect a present-day design, or, like our illustration, it may be a Louis XV. period. Whether a grand, an upright, or a miniature upright grand, it is enough that it bears the time-honored name of Heintzman & Co., Ltd. The name is historic in the piano world, and whatever the style, it is always a Heintzman & Co. quality, and the tone is inimitably a Heintzman tone.

BURNS PUNCH BOWL

The Bowl Was Pawned and Sold for $100.

The British Museum may not literally be an "unexpected place" wherein to meet associations with Burns, but the common Burnsite is apt to get a surprise when he stumbles on the poet's punch-bowl in that shrine of things serious, rich and rare, writes a correspondent of the Glasgow Herald. The bowl of black Inveraray marble, 9 inches across by 4½ high, having a half-inch silver brim, inscribed "Come to my bowl, come to my arms, my friends, my brothers—Burns," was the work of Robert Armour, brother-in-law to the poet. To the British Museum it came in 1858, together with about 170 songs of Burns in MS., by request of Mr. Archibald Hastie, director of the East India Dock and M.P. for his native town of Paisley. The bowl has an eventful history. Gilbert Burns presented it to Alexander Cunningham, at the sale of whose effects it passed to one Cochran for $74. Mr. Hastie was runner-up. Cochran kept a tavern near the Lyceum, where the bowl circulated, and became of the number of things common, no offer to purchase by Mr. Hastie availing. At last to him entered one day Cochran, exclaiming excitedly—"It's in jeopardy! The bowl! The bowl!" The poor bowl had been pawned, and this was the last day for redemption. Mr. Hastie could have the $40 ticket for $20. He paid, and was speedily on his way to the north-east end of Lower Eaton Street, Pimlico. Mine Uncle was grieved; he had visions of personal ownership. So the relic passed to circulate among distinguished gatherings at Mr. Hastie's for a quarter of a century, and thence to the British Museum, there to be for ever dry.

YOUTH FOUND DEAD

WINNIPEG, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Believed to have succumbed to hunger and exhaustion, the body of an 18-year-old youth was found Saturday by a section foreman in an unoccupied Canadian National Railway station at Lake Francis. No clues have been obtained as to the identity of the boy.

According to H. Morrison, merchant at Lake Francis, the youth with a knapsack and .22 rifle had been noticed walking along the railroad tracks late Friday afternoon, but at that time had shown no signs of distress. Provincial police are investigating.

A POLITICAL ROW.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—(United Press).—Premier Poincare as the tool of Russia and the world war might have been avoided, according to opinion in extracts from notes of the late Georges Louis, French Ambassador to Russia in 1913, published to-day by the Radical newspaper Oeuvre.

Emotion has been aroused by the publication, and France may be treated to another stirring post-war scandal. Poincare announced he would publish the letters of Pichon and Jules Cambon, proving L'Oeuvre's charges untrue.

The press points out that Germany will rejoice over the publication of the Louis notes. Nationalist newspapers declare it is a pro-German move.

FIRE DESTROYS HOME.

OMEMEE, Nov. 17.—Last evening about six-thirty o'clock the house, barns and outbuildings on the farm of Mr. George McBrien, about three and a half miles north-east of Omemee, were destroyed by fire. An overheated stovepipe in the house is believed to have been the cause. Outside of the stock which were driven out of the barn, everything was lost, including a large crop of grain. The wind was blowing in the direction of the barn, and in spite of everything that was done to save the rest of the buildings, they were destroyed. A small amount of insurance was carried. The barn was one of the best in the neighborhood.

RUSTY.

Rust will destroy 2,500 million dollars worth of iron and steel this year in our country, estimates W. J. Overbeck, official of du Pont Company of Chicago.

The mineral resources of the world are being gradually destroyed by corrosive action of the air and by friction.

As for the present, we'd never have boom business if everything weren't constantly wearing out and having to be replaced by the new.

BECAME DEMENTED

Fort William Man Tore Padding Off Special Cell.

DULUTH, Minn., Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press.)—Screaming and tearing off his clothes, a man, said by the police to be Ralph L. Anderson, was locked in a padded cell at police headquarters here Friday night after having driven here from Fort William in a taxi-cab. The car driver told the police his fare had hired him to drive to Two Harbors, but arriving here Andrews bade him continue to Duluth. Nearing Duluth, Andrews, who until then had appeared to be quite rational, became violent, the driver declared. Andrews ripped off his clothes and tore the padding from the walls. He was placed in a straight jacket on Saturday. The police are uncertain what disposition will be made in his case.

Following a long period when the neck has been less than nothing, a single Directoire revers proves quite sufficient without its mate or a collar.

THE double-breasted closing, which allows you to look upon your waistline as high, low or normal, depending on which row of buttons you elect as your exact equator, and the large revers are two of the Directoire styles that you hear so much about this season. High flat crowned hats and standing turnover coat collars are also in the Directoire note. This particular Directoire frock is very new but not extreme, for the plaits ease the narrow silhouettes and suggest a low waistline at the sides. It can be made in satin, serge, silk crepe, kasha, etc.

DUTCH COURAGE

Various Forms Are Used in Different Ways.

The question of the origin of the phrase "Dutch courage" seems to have been worrying a writer in an English contemporary the other day. He wanted to know why the Dutch, especially, should be singled out for association with a term so suggestive in its use of unnatural bravery or fortitude, when, as our long and numerous conflicts with that people during the seventeenth century proved, they were by no means lacking in courage, which was not only not uncertain, but for us, many a time, uncomfortable as well. The origin of the term "Dutch courage," indeed, seems to be due mostly to that very period and the animosity engendered in our forbears by those struggles with the peoples of the Netherlands two centuries ago. When Waller wrote of the wine and brandy "from which their courage grows," he was trying to find something unpleasant to say of a too capable enemy. There is a typical illustration of the use of the phrase in Kingsley's "Westward Ho!" as follows:—"Pull away at the usquebagh, man, and swallow Dutch courage, since thine English has oozed away."

But—"Dutch courage" is far from being the only term of the kind which perpetuates this seventeenth century feeling against the Hollanders: it has come down to us in a whole catalogue of variations, all of which are intended to suggest the artificial, the spurious, or the make-believe element in association with the descriptive adjective, "Dutch."

In military parlance, which was copied into everyday speech, they used to speak of a weak or a sham defence as a "Dutch defence." Fielding, in "Tom Jones," makes one of his characters say, "I'm afraid Mr. Jones maintained a kind of Dutch defence and treacherously delivered up the garrison without duly weighing up his allegiance to the fair Sophia." The association of drink with artificially stimulated fortitude has a less unpleasant variation in the old term "Dutch bargain"—or "wet bargain," which was used to denote a deal completed over a drink. But the spurious element crops up again in "Dutch gold," a term used to describe imitation gold articles, even though these had never seen the Netherlands. There is a form of auction known as "Dutch auction," at which the auctioneer starts with a high price and comes down until he meets with a bidder, in opposition to the ordinary style of auctioneering.

Sailors have a nautical term, "Dutch talent," which, being interpreted, means any bit of seafaring work which, while it may answer the purpose, is not done in clever, ship-shape fashion, Wand defined by seamen as "main strength and stupidity."

Landsmen, as well as seamen, also have a phrase, "To talk like a Dutch uncle," which just means talking with great and kindly severity and directness, as if with the authority and unsparing frankness of an uncle from whom one has great expectations. "To beat the Dutch" is another phrase once in very common use to express an opinion of something which was very strange and surprising, or excelling anything ever before known or heard of.

In some parts of England the hooded crow is called "Harry Dutchman." Friends who were not always welcome guests were referred to in an aside as "Dutch cousins." Adulterated white lead is described as "Dutch white" in trade terms.

These examples by no means exhaust the catalogue of "Dutch" allusions in everyday speech.

DAY OF THANKS AT CHURCH OF SACRED HEART

15th Anniversary of Dedication Celebrated on Sunday —Bishop O'Brien Assisted.

CHILDREN SING

The third cycle of five years since the dedication and opening of the church of the Sacred Heart was closed and folded up with the solemn celebration on Sunday of the fifteenth anniversary. Large congregations assisted at the three morning masses, the first two of which were marked by communion of virtually all the members of the parish.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien returned for the day to the scene of his last pastorate in the priesthood, the first four years of the administration of the church having been under his charge with Rev. J. V. McAuley as curate. Rev. Father McAuley came in from Ennismore for the Vesper devotions in which he took part.

In the preparations for this anniversary Rev. J. J. O'Brien, the parish priest, had requested that it be observed as a special day of prayer and thanksgiving, and every detail contributing to that end evinced the fullest response by the parishioners. Bishop O'Brien sang the pontifical high mass and also officiated at the vesper service. The altar decorations of chrysanthemums, the special music by the choir, the adoration of the Blessed Sacrament throughout the afternoon, all blended into the solemnity of the day's offices of thanksgiving.

The Children's Choir.

A feature of the music was the singing of the children's choir during the High mass and vespers. Their unison tone was of ethereal beauty, the soprano voices of both the girls and boys flowing together almost as one voice of liquid purity. Their enunciation was remarkly clear as their hymns floated out above the congregation, carrying distinctly to very part of the church. The precision of their singing was another commendable quality which with its melting sweetness and obvious naturalness and the absence of any suggestion of being forced were features that reflected highly upon the successful training they received from the Sisters of St. Joseph, who are applying the ward system with results that are being splendidly realized. The children's choir created an atmosphere as of a dim cathedral, an effect that would admit of closer approach to objective reality if desired. The development of the children's choir has been an advancement of the past year. It is undoubtedly due to the personal interest of Bishop O'Brien and Rev. Father J. J. O'Brien, to their affection for the children and their appreciation of such devotional music as was heard on Sunday. The co-operation of the parents, the children and the Sisters who have charge of teaching the music has helped to achieve the present success.

Bishop O'Brien's Address.

"It gives me great satisfaction in being present with you today," said Bishop O'Brien, addressing the congregation at the conclusion of the High Mass. "I have been coming here for eleven years to join with you in thanking God for the great blessings and graces you received in each successive year. It has become a tradition of the parish to celebrate this day by a general communion. Father O'Brien has told me of the magnificent crowds at communion at the early masses, many returning to this mass, all of which shows the wholeheartedness of your thankgiving to God for the blessings which you have received in and through this church during the last year. I unite with you in your good dispositions, and I pray with you for your spiritual and temporal welfare."

Bishop O'Brien said it was a beautiful sight to see the whole parish in the love and worship of God. If the world needed one thing more than another it was that spirit of religion: that looking to God for divine guidance and power and looking to Him for our last end. That was the real meaning of religion, our union with Almighty God. The world was doing its best to get away from Him, to get along without Him. Some men who assumed the duty of trying to guide the nations during the last six years had tried to get along without God's help, but events of these years had shown that it was impossible for the world to get along without Him.

"We look to God for the graces and blessings we need in this life," His Lordship continued. "What a wonderful thing it is that we have Holy Communion. It seems a foretaste of heaven itself. It certainly is a guarantee of heaven. 'He that eateth Me the same shall live by Me.' What more do we want? And as we grow older do we not feel that there must be something else to look for than the things of this world, that there is something better for us, that Almighty God has created for us that which is better than the world can give us, that nothing else will satisfy the yearning of our souls. It is all expressed in the beautiful words of St. Augustine—"Thou hast made us for Thyself O Lord, and our hearts are not at peace until they rest in Thee."

Bishop O'Brien referred to the large number of communions in the parish during the year and said the people were taking thereby a sure and certain means of grace. "This is the Bread that cometh down from heaven. If any man eateth this Bread he shall live for ever" he quoted.

His Lordship referred gravely and touchingly to the sudden death of Fergus Crough, one of the boys of the parish, who was instantly killed Saturday afternoon at the C.N.R. crossing on George and Romaine Streets corner. While everyone sympathized deeply with the bereaved family they had a great consolation in the knowledge that their son had attended mass on Saturday morning and received Holy Communion. He was in fact a daily communicant.

"One of the first thoughts of any Catholic on hearing of the accident was 'I wonder if he had time to make an act of contrition?'—No there wasn't time. What then? When I heard from Father O'Brien that Fergus Crough was a daily communicant, that he had received Holy Communion on the very day he was killed so suddenly, I thanked God for I felt certain that his soul had been received into the kingdom of heaven. There is not a person here who doesn't feel satisfied of the salvation of that boy's soul."

The intention of the prayers of the Sacred Heart League for November, as given by the Pope, was for the increase of the communion of children. This meant, said Bishop O'Brien, that the vicar of Christ asked that all parents may be more inspired to lead their little ones frequently to the altar. Some parents were indifferent about this, and many would doubt the wisdom of God's church in urging that they get up morning after morning to receive communion.

Bishop O'Brien spoke of the death of Joseph Picard, Senior, "that dear old soul who was so interested in this church, and who was a father to the altar boys. He was a daily communicant, and was often here to serve mass with me. I hope that he is to-day in heaven, receiving the reward of his love and devotion to God in the Blessed Sacrament."

After all would life be worth living without eternity? With all our worries and pains and illnesses what a miserable existence this would be if it simply terminated in death. But we know from the word of God and from the assurance of our souls that we were made for eternity. Let us take the resolution to yield more to the will of our Divine Lord, and to make more use than ever of this church during the coming year. Come here as often as you can, even daily communicants, as was Fergus Crough."

"May his sweet little soul be in heaven to-day singing the praises of the sacred name of God, even as those children in the choir before me sing to Him."

The sermon at Vespers was preached by the Rev. J. R. O'Brien, of the Redemptorist Order, Toronto. It was an eloquent extension of the text, "Behold this is the House of God and a gate of Heaven," emphasizing the indispensible place of the church in the spiritual life of the people.

SHORT MODEL POPULAR.

In spite of the popularity of the long and three-quarter-length coat suit there are many women who prefer the shorter models and for such women here is such a one. It is of gray wool, banded with mole and with metal ribbon for giving a little color and dash. The lines are distinctly youthful and becoming.

THEY WOULDN'T MOVE

The landlord tried to eject them, but the Gypsies who had leased this Chicago place refused to move. So the landlord engaged bricklayers to close up the doorways and windows in an attempt to scare the Gypsies out. The din from within, however, brought police to the scene. The bricklayers were ordered to leave.

FERGUS CROUGH BURIED TO-DAY

INQUEST CALLED.

Little Fergus Crough, the thirteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Crough, whose life was crushed out by a train on Saturday afternoon, lay in his coffin today with a smile on his face that gave no evidence of his awful death. He was buried at 8.30 in St. Martin's Cemetery, Ennismore, the funeral taking place from Sacred Heart Church.

The accident was witnessed by several people, among them being the boy's little companion, James Maloney, 10 years old; Vincent Chouinard, 13 years old, and Mrs. Aloioi Bigras. They say that Fergus Crough was playfully catching at the steps of the freight cars as they passed when he slipped and fell under the wheels. Several cars had passed over him before the screams of James Maloney and a lady reached the rear-end brakeman, Harry Gist, who applied the brakes.

The young victim of the tragedy was a bright member of grade four in Sacred Heart School, and it was remarked only last week that he was growing over with the spirit of boyhood.

The train was manned by Conductor Harry McCabe; engineer J. Gilchrist; fireman Harry Tamlin; brakemen William Gillespie and Harry Gist, all of Lindsay. It is understood that none of them saw the accident occur, and Gist, who was riding in the caboose, was the first to know of it.

The inquest, which is practically indispensible in cases of railway accidents, will be held on Wednesday evening, according to orders given by County Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young.

TO SKATE AT ST. JOHN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—The international outdoor ice-skating championships for 1925 were awarded to the New Brunswick Skating Association at St. John, N.B., by the International Skating Union at its annual meeting here yesterday. The date for the event has not been fixed, but it is likely it will be held some time in February.

FATALLY INJURED.

Edmund Temple Had Skull Fractured in Car Accident.

TORONTO, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Edmund Temple, aged 21, son of H. P. Temple, of Ash-Temple Dental Supplies Company, Limited, was fatally injured yesterday afternoon, and Miss Dorothy White sustained a fractured collar-bone when an automobile driven by John Wilson, in which they were riding, was struck by a motor car owned by C. D. Dyke on Yonge Street, near Thornhill. Temple died in the office of Dr. Wesley, Thornhill, a short time after being admitted.

Wilson's car was proceeding north on Yonge Street, when at a point where the Metropolitan tracks cross the street, the car skidded and turned on the icy road, showing its side to the south-bound vehicle. The impact was such that Wilson's car was hurled over, and Temple was thrown out, his head striking the hard ground with such force as to fracture his skull.

MRS. HARDING WEAKER.

MARION, Ohio, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Pres).—Mrs. Florence Kling Harding, who has been seriously ill at the home of friends here for the past several weeks was weaker Sunday although she had a comfortable night, a bulletin issued by her physician, Dr. Karl Sawyer, said.

"Did He Leave Any Insurance"?

The first question asked by George Castle's friends when they heard of his tragic death in an automobile accident, was quite a natural one.

A grief-stricken young widow, two wide-eyed, wondering children, a little home partly paid for—here were proper enough reasons for the solicitous query of true friends.

And George Castle had—no insurance.

If your death came shortly would your widow be left in this position? Would she, after the first paroxysm of grief had passed, face long years of want, with dull despair crowding loving memory from her heart.

HOW WE CAN SOLVE THE HIGH COST OF EDUCATION

(By Max Weiss, the Peace Farmer)

To solve the high cost of education and to give those less fortunate children that haven't got the means, a chance, I propose to build a high school and university that will maintain itself. With enough agriculture land so the teachers and pupils can grow their own living necessities. With their own flour mill, woollen mill, tannery etc., with all the different industries, their own bank, newspaper, theater just like a little town. And then divide their education into two hours work, two hours, mental teaching, half an hour music or sports etc., At meal time file in like you do in the army with the exception that all get the same. This way the pupils will learn how to work as well as to study. It will bring each pupil into every one of the different trades or arts and this way they will pick out the trade or profession which they are most suited for. It will take out that dreary stuffing of the day's system. It will make it more interesting to teachers and pupils. It will help to take that rotten class difference (between town and country, manufacturer or labor) out. Besides it will be a great encouragement for home industries. It will bring out a broader minded practical intelligent man. A proper training for a peace army.

Men, that had their hearts bled white,
Bled white like snow, like Christ's,
Those that can see and think like him
Bring peace to war and strife.

Christ could not only tell the people nice things on Sunday, but he could tell the people how easy they could reduce their taxes and high cost of living.

Those smart alecs that think they have to continuaily extract the honey from the bees (to make them more industrious), forget that there are too many at that job. They don't know that God has already provided men with something that gradually makes the produce more. That as a man's family gradually increases or the population grows bigger he has to produce more work and intelligence. Men are supposed to feed and raise children and not golden calves.

When Christ farmed out the reason why Martha was working so hard and worrying them, he knew why the most of those mothers are killing themselves with too much work and worry. And ignorance is the cause of the high cost of living and the golden calf.

And when Christ wer back among the rocks to make a living, he did not forget to pick up suitable rocks to break that crust of ignorance which is around our preachers. He could not help but see the scars of that beast in any mother's face, and every time he saw it it made his heart bleed more, and raised his hatred against ignorance. The more his love grew to the people the more his hatred grew against ignorance.

When Christ found out who he really was, when he learned to know himself, when he found out that all men are God's sons, and all women his daughters, he began to feel the tremendous power of God. Christ's teaching was and is nothing else but common sense. Our sleeping shepherds, our preachers, seem to be perfectly unaware that the real Christianity, in other words, common sense is coming and bringing relief to the world. It is beginning to fall just like snow, first here and there a little white star until the world is covered with that white blanket for the real Christmas—a big mass of real Christs and Christians. All over the world can you see or hear the naked truth, that powerful weapon being raised. The world is like a big grind stone, and if you don't use the daily grind to polish you physically and mentally it will grind you into next to nothing; and if you keep away from the daily grinding a crust of ignorance will envelop you. That is the reason our preachers grew so ignorance; they did not know that just brain work alone without the necessary physical work is just as destructive as hard physical exercise without the necessary mental grinding. If you can see what the present really is then you can read the past and know the future, too. Reading the Bible without realizing that we are doing the same thing over again is ignorance. That wars and the high cost of living are only the product or result of ignorance. And all we have to fight is ignorance and not the people. Our newspapers are doing a tremendous part in educating the people. You might think the papers are confusing; well so is the Bible, if you cant read or understand it.

Not until men succeeded in making it real disagreeable to everybody did they try to make it agreeable to everybody. Not until a man knows how he can make it disagreeable for everybody does he find out how he can make it agreeable for everybody. Only the real bad boy knows where the nicest flowers bloom, and how to get them, and that there is a reasonable price you have to pay.

Christ's crucifixion was the price he paid for that flower, and you can find out the same way, that we all live forever; you can have the same live assurance. The crucifixion is only internally and after he got over it he came back to kill that animal Ignorance. Not with force can you make a man or country pay. France found that out. The more force she applied applied the more common sense—Intelligence—did Germany employ. You can't squeeze anything out of a lemon that is already squeezed out. And if Fritz and John can't pay Buffalo Bill. And if they all want to be paid up it is up to them all to create a condition so Fritz will be able to pay.

If our preachers failed to keep the people from falling into ignorance it was only their own fault. Just because they did not feed the salt did their people fail to drink. Just because their seed was not ripe enough, not properly matured, did it fail to grow. Just because their yeast was too old did their bread fail to rise. If they failed to make the people understand that the Almighty Father is our spiritual father, our mental father, and besides the big spiritual father, we have a big physical father, the sun and a big physical mother, the world or mother earth. That all the men and women of the whole world are God's children. And if he loves them all that we should not be so narrow minded and not love them all, too, regardless of nationality or color of skin. And so are the different religions only different degrees of education of intelligence.

If you say you are Christians, why don't you make your kings, presidents and princes your war lords, your clerical, industrial and labor leaders of all christian nations come together for one Christmas. Make the French war lords kiss the German war lords, make all the different nations forgive each other. Have them all parade arm in arm, the French tiger and the German ex-Kaiser leading the parade. Collect the big Christ family for one Christmas and make it a real worth while celebration and after the festival make a real peace conference where honest labour of all Christian countries are represented and not just a few financiers and diplomats. The necessity of free trade and what shall we feed the golden calf can be discussed openly.

The bread and wine that you all remember in your churches has more than one meaning. Both bread and wine are the fruit of honest labor and means that Christ represented honest labor. He is a poor dog that always is barking up the wrong tree.

Not until you accomplish this will you have honored your fellow heroes. Only in this way can you wipe out that black mark of disgrace before God and His creations. Instead of your ten commandments, try this one, try to be honest with yourself and if you succeed you'll be honest with others too. Your brain is only the worm of your still, that produces your mind or spirit. Your body and your mind or personality are two distinct, separate parts; one dies and other lives forever. And instead of accumulating money you can accumulate intelligence or spirit that lives. Martha and Mary are the same. Martha is what the ignorant people made out of her and Mary was her spirit or mind, i.e., words what she really was. To produce spirit or intelligence you live to keep your head (your worm) cool. Common sense works just like ice. Just the same as we made it nearly impossible to be honest, so we can make it nearly impossible to be crooked.

Charging too much is just as stupid as paying too much, with the happy thought giving is better than taking. Real Christianity or intelligence don't bring poverty. If you knew that we all could live in plenty and all could have lots of fun. Then you would not be so narrow-minded. If you had been preaching temperance or profitting you might have done thoroughly. Not with prohibition, not with a club, only with intelligence can you keep order.

THE CARTHUSIAN MONKS HAVE NO 'FLU, PNEUMONIA OR TUBERCULOSIS.

The above facts show what a vital thing is proper food. These monks living their simple life within monastery wall., in Surrey, England, have been practically disease free for many years, save such diseases as are incident to old age.

Not many months ago 'flu prostrated the entire district in which the monastery is situated, yet not a single case developed among these monks. The national health authorities investigated and attributed their immunity from disease to their simple diet of whole grains, milk vegetables, and fruit.

Dr. Robt. G. Jackson of Toronto, Editor of the Dietic Age of New York City, has long claimed that most of our diseases are due to the refinement or denaturing of our chief foodstuffs, the grains, aided by white sugar. He has invented Dr. Jackson's Roman Meal, a natural grain food made from whole wheat, whole rye, flaxin and bran, to compensate for the deficiencies of white flour, and refined "ghost cereals." Plenty of Roman Meal, milk, vegetables and fruits will work wonders in the health of the Canadian people. Dr. Jackson was himself a wreck at 55, when he invented Roman Meal, but at the age of 65 his physique is better than that of nine out of ten men regardless of age, thanks to the wonderful body building properties of Roman Meal. Used persistently it will do as much for anyone. At grocers.

TRIAL POSTPONED.

OSHAWA, Nov. 17. — (Canadian Press).—The trial of Alvin Sarles on a charge of criminal negligence, resulting in the death of B. C. Clifford here some months ago was to-day postponed to December 9, when it will be heard at the Criminal Assizes. Clifford's death was due to his heart being displaced when a compressed air tube was placed against his body.

ARTICLE No. 6

If there is one thing about auction that is certain and undisputed, it is the fact that no perfect system of bidding has been or is likely ever to be invented. Almost any system if clearly understood by partners and intelligently played, will produce good results. The only difference between systems of bidding lies in the difference in the skill of the players advocating the different systems. The only thing that makes one system preferable to another is the fact that it is more easily understood and applied by the average player. The writer has known of many match games between experts advocating different systems and as a rule such matches have been more or less even. And it is very lucky that there is no perfect system of bidding. If there were, the game would soon lose its fascination and charm. No one likes to feel that the other fellow knows as much as he does and if the bidding were perfect, no one could put anything over.

What really makes auction so fascinating, however, is the uncertainty. Every bid, practically, is in the nature of a speculation or a gamble for there is no guarantee that the cards will not be so distributed that your bid, no matter how sound, cannot be made. For example, suppose you bid one heart, holding ace, king, queen to five and an outside ace. No one will say that such a bid is unsound under any system and yet you are doubled and lose 300 points. There were seven hearts in one hand against you. A bad break, but no one can say you made a bad bid. Here's another hand. The dealer bid one spade and second hand held the following:

Hearts — Q, J, 9, 8, 6, 4, 3
Clubs — 8
Diamonds — K, Q, J, 6
Spades — A

and correctly bid two hearts. The dealer's partner doubled and defeated the contract 300 points, holding the remaining six hearts. These are bad breaks, of course, but show what happens even to the soundest of bids. Here's the other angle—winning by bad bidding. The dealer held a strong no-trump hand but only two little spades. Instead of bidding one no-trump he bid two spades and was doubled by second hand. He then bid two no-trump and made three odd. Second hand and his partner had a set up spade suit but failed to lead it because of the dealer's bluff bid. A fine example of winning by bad bidding.

Hearts — 10, 7
Clubs — 7
Diamonds — A, K, Q, J, 10, 7, 5
Spades — Q, 8, 4

bid two spades on the theory that the dealer's partner, if he held a stopper in the spade suit, would undoubtedly bid two no-trump. It happened just as second hand had planned. The dealer's partner bid two no-trump, second hand doubled and defeated the contract by two tricks, making seven diamond tricks right off the reel. These examples of winning by bad bidding are given as a warning. Never try stunts of this kind for there's nothing in such bidding. If you win once, you are encouraged to try again and you cannot help but lose out in the long run. Learn some system well and understand it thoroughly. Once you have mastered it, stick to it and you will get results. The system you may choose is immaterial but the application is everything. Let your partner know what he can expect of you and don't disappoint. Be dependable first, last and all the time.

Answer to Problem No. 3

Hearts — K, 8, 7, 3, 2
Clubs — None
Diamonds — None
Spades — A, 10

Hearts — Q, 6	Y	Hearts — 9, 5
Clubs — K, 10, 4, 2		Clubs — 8, 7
Diamonds — None	A	B Diamonds — 10, 4, 3
Spades — Q	Z	Spades — None

Hearts — None
Clubs — A, Q, 5
Spades — 9, 5, 4, 2

There are no trumps and Z is in the lead. How can Y-Z win five of the seven tricks against any defense? Z should lead the deuce of spades and Y should allow the queen to hold the trick. If A leads the six of hearts Y should play the king and lead the deuce of hearts, forcing A back in the lead. Z should discard the five of clubs. A must then lead a club on which Y should discard the ace of spades so that Z will now win the balance of the tricks. If A leads the queen of hearts at the second trick, Y should let him hold the trick and Z should discard the five of clubs. Now if A goes on with the hearts, Y will win every other trick. If A shifts to a club, Y should discard the ace of spades as before and Z will then win the remaining tricks. It's a clever and tricky little problem.

CONSERVATIVES IN CONVENTION TO-DAY

Preliminaries Disposed of To-day — Party Leaders Present.

TORONTO, November 17. Canadian Press. — J. L. MacNicol of Toronto, and J. A. LaMarr of Montreal, were appointed chair and secretary respectively of the Liberal-Conservative National Convention which opened here this morning. Delegates from every province in the Dominion attended. Preliminary speeches and appointment of a special committee to draft a proposal for organization of a national organization, occupied the morning. The convention adjourned early to permit of the delegates assembling at luncheon as the guests of the Ontario Conservative Association.

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen was given an ovation when he entered the conference chamber. Mr. MacNicol, as temporary chairman, called the meeting to order and gave a brief outline of the movement which had resulted in the convention being called. Each province had approved the proposal for such a convention, and had sent delegates vested with authority to speak for various provincial organizations in the deliberations which were to decide whether a National Association of the Liberal-Conservative party should be formed or whether a national committee should first be named to proceed in a more leisurely fashion with the work of organization.

A committee was appointed to consider proposal for National Association consists of two delegates from each of the Western and Maritime Provinces and four delegates each for Ontario and Quebec.

Speeches weer made this morning by Hon. L. G. Belley, E. A. D. Morgan and M. A. Landy, representing Quebec, R. L. Maitland, George Cruise, Saskatchewan, and Dr. M. R. Blake, for Manitoba.

Mr. MacNicol, in his remarks also declared that Ontario suggested that steps might be taken to build up the Conservative press in Canada, on a larger scale than had existed since the days of the Union government.

A fund for provincial organization in a general way, apart from special purposes of elections, was also suggested by Ontario.

DISASTROUS QUAKE.

Official Statement—310 Killed—Dozen Villages Destroyed.

ART ASSOCIATION.

Interesting Address By Mrs. G. S. Cameron and Miss Alice Price.

An interesting meeting of the Women's Art Association was held on Saturday afternoon at the Conservatory, when Mrs. G. S. Cameron gave a talk on Switzerland and Miss Alice Price described her visit to British Exhibition at Wembley.

Mrs. Cameron knows Switzerland quite intimately, having been at school there as a girl and having paid a visit to that country last summer. She described Lausanne, a city of schools and education, having some ten thousand students from all countries of the world; its famous marketplace and cathedral and steep cobble-paved street, Lucerne was also described, a tourist resort with modern hotels fitted with every convenience for tourists, shops with embroideries, wood carvings and clocks and watches of all descriptions for which Switzerland is famous. Mrs. Cameron's description of her ascent of the Jungfrau, after her visit to Interlaken, was most vivid, giving her hearers an impression of reality that took them in fancy to the sunny slopes of the Alps with their vineyards, ascending the mountainside in queer little trains, that take the traveller to the higher levels, with their grazing herds and little Swiss chalets clinging to the mountainside.

Mrs. Cameron described the Swiss people as being very industrious, patriotic, and with a great appreciation of music of the better type. They are also especially noted for their extreme cleanliness. Each canton or county speaks a different dialect, of French, German, Italian or English.

Miss Alice Price gave an interesting paper on her visit to Wembley after which Mrs. A. L. Amys sang "There's a Land," accompanied by Mrs. G. C Evans. An earlier solo by Mrs. Amys was one of Teresa del Riego's lovely compositions, "Sink, Red Sun."

Tea was served, the hostesses being Mrs. H. Fortye and Mrs. D. Mulholland, assisted by Mesdames W. Sangster, G. Porter, R. A Brown and Miss Edna Borbridge.

AVIATOR IS SAFE

Did Not Leave Station in Yesterday's Storm.

TORONTO, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Fear that Captain Roy Max well, chief of Ontario Government Aviation Service, had been lost in yesterday's storm, were set at rest this morning, when it was found that he is still at Air Headquarters here. Through misunderstanding at Sault Ste. Marie, it was understood that he had left for that city. Actually he did not set out at all.

LARGE DECREASE IN BREAD GRAIN

A Shortage of 401,000,000 Bushels of Wheat and 173,000,000 Bushels of Rye Is Reported.

OTTAWA, Nov. 17. —(Canadian Press)—The world has estimated the bread grain shortage of 574,000,000 bushels comprising of 401,000,000 bushels of wheat and 173,000,000 bushels rye. For Europe alone there is an estimated bread grain shortage in comparison with last year, of 340 million bushels. This comprises a decrease of 172,500,000 bushels of wheat and 167,000,000 bushels of rye. The estimate is based on official retruns to the international institute of agriculture at Rome, from all important countries of the world except Russia and shows an increased deficiency as compared with previous estimates.

"Recent estimates of European requirements", says T. K. Doherty, commissioner of the Institute of Agriculture, "have ranged from 600 to 650 million bushels of wheat."

GERMANY IS MOST FAVORED NATION

France and Belgium Are On Verge of Patching Up Their Enmities With Germany.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 17. — (United Press). — The most-favored-nation agreements between Belgium and Germany are about to be signed, according to the newspaper Libre Belge. France already is negotiating with Germany for an economic understanding, and thus the two continental countries which have fought Germany the hardest and hated her the most are on the point of patching up their enmities to the extent of a commercial accord.

From other sources it is reported that Belgium will incorporate several reservations in the proposed trade agreement. It is feared that many Belgium industrial interests might be crippled by unrestrained German competition, and it is to guard against such a contingency that the suggested reservations would be included in the accord.

That Belgium considers the granting to Germany the "most-favored-nation" status does not mean that Germany will be granted trade facilities or tariff preferences above those accorded to other nations with which Belgium may treat.

4 CHIMNEY FIRES.

High Winds Were Cause Of Busy Day For the Firemen.

The high winds yesterday, and the first real touch of winter, that compelled the keeping of large fires in the furnaces and stoves, were the cause of four chimney fires.

9.28 p.m., 184 Brock street.

No damage was done in any case. The fire chief wishes to make it known to the citizens of this city that it is not necessary to send in an alarm from a box for a chimney fire. When a box is pulled it calls out all the apparatus as well as all the men, and this is not necessary for a chimney fire. A telephone call is all that is necessary.

YOUNG AVIATRIX FELL.

Ethel Dare, 28, Plunged to Death When Life Belt of Parachute Snapped.

CASSOPOLIS, Michigan, November 17. — Ethel Dare, the 28 year old aviatrix, plunged a thousand feet to her death here on Saturday, when her life belt snapped as she leaped from the wing of a speeding aeroplane to make the usual parachute drop.

The body, turning and twisting in grotesque fashion as it fell, landed on the edge of the fair grounds field where a huge crowd had gathered to witness the performance.

Captain S. E. Cole, a former British aviator, was in charge of the machine from which Miss Dare made her death leap.

Her body was horribly mangled.

Miss Dare's home was in Chicago, and the body was sent there.

DISPUTE OVER AMBROSE SMALL ESTATE SETTLED

TORONTO, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Pres).—What may prove the concluding chapter in the dispute over the estate of the late Ambrose Small, theatrical magnate and millionaire was settled in Chamber of Mr. Justice Lennox this morning when His Lordship granted order to counsel for sisters Florence and Gertrude Small, directing that two thousand dollars be paid into court on their behalf by Capital Trust corporation and Mrs. Theresa Small. It was generally agreed that there was no reason existing now why the original order made in the spring should not be obeyed.

Acting for the Capital Trust Corporation, N.W. Rowell, K.C., explained that the delay since spring was necessitated by reason of litigation against the estate by other parties. The costs for all parties will come out of the estate.

INFORMATION ON BONDS IS GIVEN THE ROTARIANS

Harry Goss, of Toronto, Discusses Financial Matters at To-day's Luncheon.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.

Speaker Shows How Large Financial Concerns Have Put Assets Into Bonds.

The development of the bond market in Canada and an interesting discussion of the value from an investment standpoint of Government and municipal bonds were featured in an address before the Peterboro Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon at the Empress to-day by Harry Goss of Toronto, whose remarks were followed with keen interest by the Rotarians.

The speaker who was introduced by Rotarian Reg. H. Turner, dealt with his subject under various heads, where Canada used to get her money how she gets it now, where her bonds have been disposed of and where they will likely be disposed of in future.

Mr. Goss showed that in 1913, 75 per cent of the money used by Canada came from England whereas just now Canadians absorb a very large percentage of their own bonds. English money might, however, be shortly expected in the Canadian market for the pound sterling was climbing and before long Canadians would have to compete with English money for their own securities.

The speaker showed how highly Canadian government and municipal bonds were regarded by the banks, insurance companies, fraternal societies and trust companies of Canada, by giving the large per centage of their assets these organizations had invested in such bonds.

Naturally Mr. Goss said he regarded Canadian government and municipal bonds as the safest investment in the world and the speaker gave his hearers some advice as to the nature of bonds to be purchased and as to the trading of securities and other points of the same nature, advising them to give bond salesmen a good recepition, as it was quite likely they would have something of value to offer.

Mr. Goss's address was much enjoyed by the members.

The club decided to send a delegate to the conference on crippled children's work which is to be held in Toronto on November 21st. A member of the crippled children's committee will represent Peterboro Rotary at the gathering.

FIREMAN HAD 3 FINGERS FROZEN

Fur Coats and Galoshes Made Their First Appearance on the Street This Morning.

Yesterday's cold spell threw a scare into a good many citizens of this city, and a number of men made their first appearance this morning with heavy winter fur coat on, while spats were common on streets this morning, and an odd pair of overshoes and galoshes were out for the the first time this season. The lowest the thermometer reached last night was 9 above zero but the stiff breeze made it seem much colder.

Frozen hands and ears are a common thing with the firemen in the winter time but their first nip of frost was felt last night by the teamster of the ladder waggon, who had three fingers frozen on the trip to the corner of Brock and Ceorge streets, at 9.28 p.m.

EMPLOYMENT BRIGHTER.

Canadian Employment Service Reports Show Less Unemployed.

OTTAWA, Nov. 17. — (Canadian Press).—Reports from the employment service of Canada indicate that at the beginning of October the percentage of unemployment among the members of trade unions was 5.9 as compared with 6.5 per cent. at the beginning of September, and with 2.0 per cent. at the beginning of October last year. The returns from employers of labor show that the trend of employment was upward at the beginning of October, when 771,932 persons were on the pay-rolls, as compared with 765,422 in August.

SMALL FIRE ON SHERBROOKE ST.

While Thawing Out Pipes With Lighted Paper, Owner Set Fire to Burlap Bags.

The thawing out of water pipes was the cause of a small fire this morning that might have meant the loss of a house on Sherbrooke Street, had the Fire Department not arrived on the scene in time to check the flames. Some water piper under the woodshed of 549 Sherbrooke Street were frozen up by last night's cold spell, and the owner this morning, in an attempt to thaw them out with burning paper, set fire to some burlap bags that were near the pipes. No damage was done, but Fire Chief Gimblett warns the citizens that the use of lighted paper or open flame of any kind should not be used. He says the proper way to thaw out pipes is to pour boiling water on them. This is not only a quicker way but is absolutely safe. The alarm was received at the Fire Station at 8.34 a.m.

HAD CLOSE CALL.

Canoeist Would Likely Have Been Drowned Had Ship Not Picked Him Up.

LONDON, November 17. Canadian Press. — How narrow was the escape from death in the stormy English channel, on Friday night, of the Canadian canoeist, P. C. Smythe of Toronto, who in attempting to paddle from London to Rome, and the resolution he shows, by his determination to try again to cross the channel, are revealed by the story of the master and crew of South Goodwin light house, which picked him up, when he was in danger of drowning.

Shortly before midnight, they state, they spotted him drifting in the moonlight in an exhausted condition. The craft was awash as it came alongside the light ship, and when Smythe tried to stand up he overbalanced and fell into the sea.

They fished him out and hauled him and his canoe aboard. They sat him by the fireside and served him hot grog, and put him to bed.

Smythe told the seamen that he was five miles off the French coast when strong eastern winds forced him back toward the English shore. He lost his compass, his clothing, money and other articles, and had eaten all his food, the only thing remaining being a pint of water. If he had not reached the lightship he must have been drowned.

CARS IN COLLISION.

Lindsay Fire Department Truck Lost a Wheel.

LINDSAY, Nov. 17.—A rather serious collision occurred on Kent Street last night when the fire truck and a car came together at the corner of Kent and Lindsay Streets. The truck was proceeding to a chimney fire when it crashed into the auto, driven by Mr. Archer, of Bobcaygeon Road. The car was reduced to a pile of junk, while the motor truck lost a wheel and sustained other damages which put it out of commission. Geo. Preston, one of the firemen, had the ligaments of his arm severely strained. The driver of the car escaped unhurt.

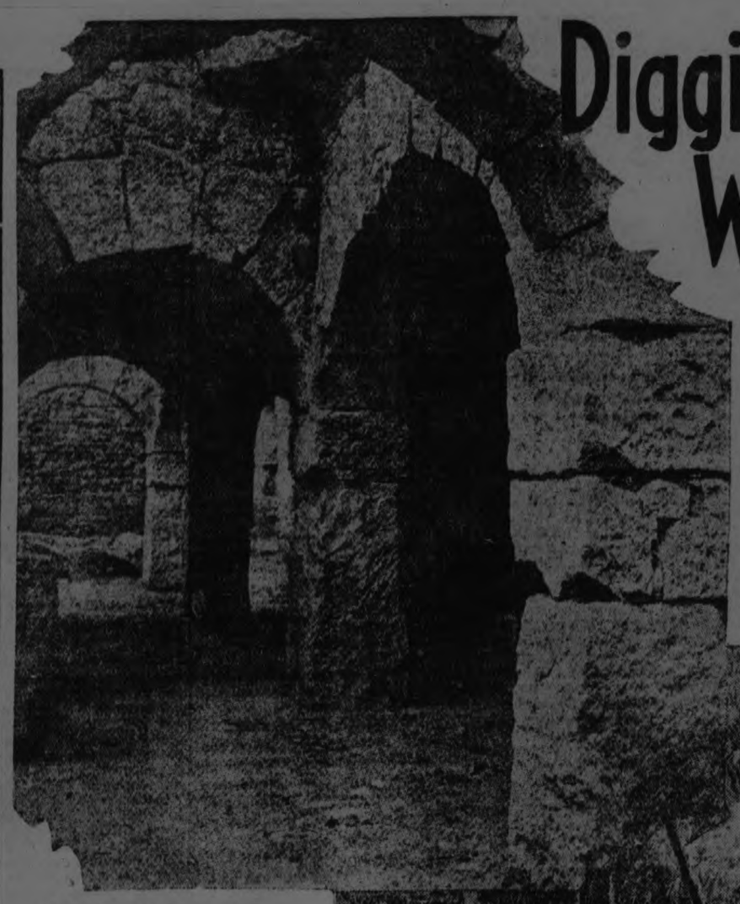
And Where the Vandal King, Genseric, Turned Harems Into Dungeons for the Empress Eudoxia and Her Beautiful Daughters



These Majestic Roman Arches, Recently Unearthed in North Africa, Were the Main Entrance to the Gorgeous Subterranean Palace Which Nero and His Courtiers Used as a "Summer Resort."

BRITISH archeologists, digging near the modern city of Tunis, on the north shore of Africa, have unearthed the remains of a magnificent subterranean palace—the first of its sort ever found—which was built by the Romans as a "Summer resort,"—a sort of ancient Deauville—at the height of their debauchery and glory.

They built it deep down in the cool earth to escape the fierce rays of the sun, with winding passage-ways leading to superb underground banquet halls, baths, kitchens and dungeons.

Some of the big rooms, in which the fountains played, and which were magnificently ornamented with paintings, tapestries and mosaics, had windows looking out on sunken gardens, also below the level of the earth but open to the sky, in which wild moonlight bacchanals were held.

Some of the rooms of the palace are still in an excellent state of preservation, and tell a story of luxury and refined wickedness which no modern city or watering place can equal.

Nero himself, most cruel of all the Roman Caesars, occasionally repaired to the underground palace in Africa to participate in feasts and saturnalias and revels, the like of which Rome itself never saw.

Surrounded by courtiers, flatterers and boon companions, with the infamous Poppaea at his side—the beautiful woman to please whose whims Nero had murdered both his wife and mother—he steeped himself in the monstrous vices and cruelties which Suetonius and other historians of the time describe.

The Empress Eudoxia, Who Was Held Captive in the Underground Palace by the Cruel Vandal King, Genseric.

Seated drunken at the banquet table, Nero had himself crowned with vine leaves and worshipped as an immortal god, while Christian virgins were brought in and sacrificed in his honor.

While the revelers drank and sang paeans of praise and bowed down to Nero, captives were dragged from the dungeons, first made drunken and then tortured for his amusement.

The subterranean palace was used for banquets and revels by subsequent emperors of the decadence, including Diocletian, Theodosius and Valentinian.

But the time was soon to come when this same secret palace which had been the scene of the triumphs and orgies of cruel Roman emperors and queens was to witness a poetic vengeance of a most appalling kind.

The Romans held Africa as a province from a time before the birth of Christ up to about the year 439 A. D.

At that period there arose in Eastern Germany a nation, or rather a set of tribes, called the Vandals, who threatened and finally conquered Rome. One of their great leaders was the Vandal king, Genseric, lame, cruel, vicious, an able military leader, filled with a bitter and lasting hate toward the Romans.

Recently Unearthed Ruins of One of the Chambers in the Underground Palace in "the Decadent Deauville of the Ancient World."

Not content with laying waste Italy, Genseric led a horde of eighty thousand Vandals through Spain, by ships to the North Shore of Africa, and conquered the entire province, driving the Romans out.

The Roman capital in Africa was Carthage, the great city which Rome had captured from the Carthaginians centuries before, almost on the exact site of the modern Tunis, and consequently within a mile or two of this superb subterranean palace which had been the scene of so many imperial orgies.

Genseric, the Vandal king, made it his own. He moved in with his retinue, and learned the history of its secret underground chambers.

When he discovered how emperors and empresses had filled its dungeons not only with Christians but with captive members of his own race, to be brought out like animals and martyrized for their cruel amusement, he conceived a savage and terrible vengeance.

At that time the Emperor Valentinian III was on the throne of Rome. His empress was Eudoxia, a proud, insolent and beautiful patrican lady, who had two equally beautiful grown daughters.

The lame and hideous Vandal king, who had meanwhile become the greatest pirate leader of his time, terrorizing the whole basin of the Mediterranean from his headquarters near Tunis, got together a fleet of ships, loaded them with his cut-throat followers, and set sail for Rome.

While his other marauders were looting the city, Genseric, followed by his own chosen band, broke into the palace. He didn't take the trouble to murder Valentinian, the emperor. He didn't even bother to look for him. But he dragged the queen and her two daughters nude, by the hair, from their royal couches, loaded them with chains, and took them back as slaves to Africa.

The three unhappy women were thrown into the black dungeons, and Genseric gave a mighty banquet in the brilliantly lighted adjoining hall to celebrate his home-coming.

The tables were turned at last.

A few more centuries, and the old subterranean palace was buried and forgotten—the entrances choked with sand, the surrounding country desolated.

Now, at last, it has been dug up again, revealing its hidden secrets to the archeologists. The palace, as they have discovered, was a series of connecting suites, each called a little "palace" in itself. They were named from mosaic pictures on the walls, and include the Hunting Palace (or Palace of the Bear), the Fishing Palace, the Palace of Amphitrite, and the Palace with the Portrait of a Roman Lady.

They were made as luxurious and comfortable as any palace above ground; everything that could make life pleasant and easy was introduced, and the relics give a splendid synthetic picture of the luxuries of those far-off times.

The apartments were arranged with the special object of preventing the dwellers there from feeling the heat of Summer, and in order to increase the coolness, trees were planted in the sunken courtyards, so that fresh air came in, and a subdued light filtering through the thick green leaves which no direct rays of the sun could penetrate. At the entrances to the sleeping apartments little fountains of water continually played to cool the air as it entered.

The excavations are not yet completed, and it is believed that further digging will reveal additional works of art and may, as well, throw more light on the history of the secret palace where Nero played, and where later the Vandal king dragged the Roman Empress Eudoxia and her daughters to be his slaves.

P.C.I. Eastern Champions - Thistles Win Gordon Cup - McGill Defeats Varsity

P.C.I. RUGBY SQUAD WIN EASTERN ONTARIO INTERSCHOLASTIC RUGBY FOR FOURTH SUCCESSIVE SEASON

Carl Brown's Youngsters Defeated Kingston Collegiate on Saturday by 15-11 and Captured Round by 28-16 — Smashing Offensive in First Quarter Gave Peterboro a Comfortable Margin.

BOOKOUT AGAIN S TARRED FOR P.C.I.

Was Big Factor in Defensive and Offensive Work—The Whole P.C.I. Team Pla yed Splendid Game — Kingston Rally in Second Period Netted 9 Points.

By F. D. C.)

Coach C. S. Brown's Peterboro Collegiate rugby crew cleaned up the Eastern Ontario section of the Interscholastic O.R.F.U, for the fourth season in succession on Saturday morning when they defeated Kingston Collegiate Institute at the Richardson Stadium, Kingston by 15-11 in the second game of the home-and-home series, winning the round by twelve points.

By periods the score was 7-0, 13-9, 15-10 and 15-11.

The P.C.I. twelve will be drawn against one of the Toronto winners in the semi-final round which means that local fans may look forward to a great battle here Saturday.

The victory in Kingston was clean-cut.

K.C.I., strengthened by the presence of McKelvey, Vokes, Laturney and Lovett who were absentees in the first game here on Thanksgiving Day, were confident not only of a win on Saturday but of pulling down the eight point margin of the garnet and grey squad.

They forgot to take into consideration the fact that Bookhout was only in the first game for fifteen minutes.

The sturdy half, who is the Warren Snyder of the local crew went the full distance Saturday and made up for the addition of four new men to the Kingston line up.

Petes Got the Jump.

Peterboro upset the calculations of the Eastern students by opening an offensive from the first whistle that carried them through for a total of 13 points before K.C.I. could score, the result being that midway through the second quarter the visitors were 21 points in the lead on the round.

They played fine football in that smashing early attack.

The ball carriers were picking the openings in the line, the linesmen saw to it that the holes were there and Quarterback Pogue with fine judgment was mixing the plays nicely, the score sheet showing how well his plan of attack succeeded.

K.C.I. were not beaten, however, without a stern struggle.

Rallying after Peterboro's second touchdown, the blue and white team suddenly came to life and with a series of cleverly worked plays staged an attack that yielded them nine points before half time.

At the resting spell they were confident of ultimate victory but the Peterboro crew, sent out to play defensive football and keep possession of the ball as long as possible in the second half, followed instructions so successfully that the bulk of the play was in the centre of the field and the teams could add but two points each to their half time total, leaving the Petes with a four point margin on the game and a lead of 28-16 on the round.

Bookhout Starred.

Bookhout was the best man on the field. The P.C.I. half not only ran half the length of the gridiron for the Petes first touchdown, contributed two other spectacular dashes for thirty yards, smashed through frequently for smaller gains, and played a whale of a game on defence, but he also did all of P.C.I.'s punting and did it so well as to astonish some of the Kingston experts who saw the game. He got great height and distance to his kicks, more than once driving the oval for fifty yards and in the second half it was these long punts, coupled with the good tackling of the Peterboro wings, that destroyed all Kingston's hopes of pulling the game out of the fire.

Every man in a garnet and gray sweater, however, contributed to the success of the squad. Pogue, the young quarter back handled the team splendidly and his own work was of great assistance. Cole who divided the backfield work with him when a kick was looked for caught well and generally gained when handed the ball. Up in the front the line was fine, going either way. Rye's plunging was as effective as usual, and Ebbs the other middle wing was called on frequently and made good. Killaly and Craw, the regular insides, were a tower of strength and the former converted both Peterboro touch downs like a veteran. The flying squad, Chess, Outram, Wood, Fraser and Henry, the latter who was painfully hurt on Thanksgiving Day being used only in the last period, tackled splendidly and were down fast under every kick. Yelland at snap did not make a bad pass all day, supplied a barrel of "pep" and on defence was a thorn in the side of K.C.I. Nealy and Amys, the only subs, in addition to Henry, who got into the game held their own nicely.

Kingston's Best.

Kingston's star was not the much-heralded McKelvey but Buck the diminutive half back. The youngster judged Bookhout's long punts with unerring precision and he caught everything without the semblance of a fumble. And when he got the ball he was a slipoery bird to pull down, doing some great dodging and side stepping. Big McKelvey was of little use as a ball carrier but was of great help on the defence. He and the Kingston punting and got lots of distance but his kicking was very inaccurate and Bookhout outbooted him even against the wind. Vokes at middle wing showed goot football ability but spoiled his work by his tactics and poor control of his temper. Of the rest of the Kingston crew, Vince the flying wing, Harkness, Lovett and Laturney were probably the most prominent.

The Peterboro youngsters were obviously in better condition. During the last period nearly every play saw a Kingston man stretched out, and time had to be taken out frequently.

The Kingston students had a rooters' club going strong with a couple of cheer leaders in charge. The first slashing attack of the Peterboro team took a lot of the enthusiasm out of the cheering section however.

The line ups:

Flying wing—Vince.

Kingston C.I.—

Halves—Lovett, Buck, Harkness.
Quarter—Boyd.
Snap—Joliffe.
Inside wings—McKelvey, Trowbridge.
Middle wings—Vokes, Conley.
Outside wings—Laturney, Edgar.
Subs—Day, Saunders, Gibson, McCartney, Gray, Guy.

Peterboro C.I.—

Flying wings—Cheu, Outram.
Halves—Cole, Bookhout.
Quater—Pogue.
Snap—Yelland.
Inside wings—Killay, Craw.
Middle wings—Rye, Ebbs.
Outside wings—Wood, Fraser.
Subs—Henry, Neal, Amys, Martyn, Goheen, Morrison.
Referee—Sweeney Davis, Toronto.
Umpire—Ernie Broderick, Toronto.

First Period.

The Petes had the benefit of a light breeze in the first period. McKelvey kicked off for Kingston, Cheu getting the ball. Bookhout gained six yards on two plays and then booted to Lovett who was downed by Wood at centre. Kingston gained their yards on a kick by Vokes and an extension run but the P.C.I. line held them on the next two plays and then blocked McKelvey's kick getting the ball at centre. An offside gave them ten yards then Outram and Cole rammed through for four yards each and Pogue shot through for first down. Ebbs made two more and Bookhout six carrying the ball to Kingstons thirty-yard line where Killaly was pulled back to attempt a field goal. He failed to raise the ball, however, and Buck got away for the nicest Kingston run of the day, reaching centre before he was downed.

K.C.I. lost ten yards for interference and were forced to kick, Cole taking McKelvey's punt at Peterboro's 40-yard line. McKelvey was fenced for scragging. The Petes made eight yards on two plays but were held on the third and Kingston got possession.

They failed to gain on two plunges and then Vokes was penalized leaving them two men short. On the third down the Peterboro wings broke through on Buck and when he tried to kick as he was being tackled the Kingston half only succeeded in dribbling the ball along the ground. Bookhout made a spectacular pick-up on the run and was through the Kingston crew heading for the goal line before they realized what had happened. Bookhout outfooted his pursuers and ran firty-five yards for a try. Killaly converted neatly. P.C.I. 6, Kingston 0.

A forty-five yard punt by Bookhout after the kick off kept the play in Kingston territory. The Petes held and McKelvey kicked into touch at centre. Rye plunged for nine yards and Bookhout went around the end for fifteen more. Cole, however, dropped the ball on the next play and Kingston recovered at their own 40-yard line. Outram and Yelland broke through and smothered two plays in succession and McKelvey kicked to Cole at centre.

Ebbs and Pogue made seven yards on two plays and then Bookhout punted 40-yards into touch-in-goal for a single. Peterboro C.I. 7, Kingston 0.

Kingston made a forward pass in trying an extension run on their first down and Peterboro got the ball at K.C.I.'s quarter. They made their yards on the first play just as the quarter ended.

Second Quater.

On the second down Bookhout plunged for five yards and then kicked across field, Kingston recovering the ball at their twenty-yard line. They could not gain and McKelvey kicked into touch at centre and the Petes started a march for a touchdown. Bookhout slammed through for six on a line plunge and on the next play, a clever fake buck, went round Kingston's right end for twenty-five yards. Rye crashed the line for nine yards and Pogue went through centre for eight more putting the ball on Kingston's nine-yard line. K.C.I. were offside on the next play and were penalized half the distance to their goal line, the ball being snapped a little over four yards out. Pogue made half the distance and then Cole ploughed through for a try. Killaly's converting kick was a beauty. Peterboro C.I. 13, Kingston 0.

Kingston Wakes Up.

Then Kingston started to come. After the kick off the Petes were penalized for interference and Bookhout punted to Buck. Failure to give yards on the play cost P.C.I. the ball, Kingston getting posession at P.C.I.'s 20-yard line. They were held on two line plays and then tried an onside kick which was successful when Cole and Pogue collided behind the line and Harkness dropped on the loose ball for a try. McKelvey converted easily. Peterboro C.I. 13, Kingston 6.

The Limestone students played their best football of the day for the rest of the period. Using a cleverly masked delayed criss-cross play which the Petes found difficulty in deciphering they made their yards three times in succession, carrying the ball to Peterboro's 40-yard line. There they were held and forced to kick, McKelvey kicking into touch at the 10-yard line. Peterboro lost on downs and K.C.I. got possession at the Petes 20. Buck tried to drop a field goal but kicked low and Cole diverted the ball behind his line and then with the Kingston wings on top of him kicked into touch-in-goal, a heady play that saved a try, although it gave K.C.I. two points, the play being called a safety touch as Cole was outside his goal line when he first touched the ball. Peterboro C.I. 13, Kingston 8.

Kingston continued to press and held P.C.I. for downs getting possession at the Peterboro 30-yard line. Buck's good attempt at a goal from the field missed by a small margin but Pogue was downed for a rouge.

Peterboro C.I. 13, Kingston 9. Half-time was called a few moments later.

The Second Half.

Both teams showed a much stiffer defence in the last half and it was difficult to gain either through the line or around the ends. The result was little scoring and nothing like the spectacular feature of the first half. In fact it was usually two bucks and a kick, a style of game that exactly suited P.C.I. with their comfortable lead and Bookhout outpunting McKelvey.

After the Petes kicked off McKelvey plunged for three yards and then punted, Kingston getting the ball at the Petes 40-yard line when Cole fumbled. K.C.I. could not gain and McKelvey kicked over the line to Pogue who took no chances on the bounding ball, kicking it over the deadline.

P.C.I. 13, Kingston 10.

The Petes put the ball in play at their quarter and Rye made nine-yards on the first play. Bookhout circled Kingston's right end for a thiry-yard gain. K.C.I. held and Bookhout boomed a long punt to Buck who was downed at Kingston's 15-yard line. When McKelvey kicked after K.C.I. had made yards his wings failed to give yards and it was Peteboro's ball 30-yards out. Bookhout hoisted a high one over the line to Buck for a rouge. Peterboor C.I. 14, Kingston 10.

A little later a forward pass by K.C.I.'s half line gave Peterboro posssession 35-yards out and Bookhout slammed over for another rouge. P.C.I. 15, Kingston 10.

Play was around mid-field for the rest of the period, in fact for practically the balance of the game. P.C.I. were holding the ball as long as possible, using two plays and then a long punt by Bookhout and these tactics kept Kingston at bay. The result was that K.C.I. were able to score but a single point in the last period, a nice run by Lovett putting them close enough to the Peterboro line for McKelvey to kick over to Pogue who had to rouge after a gallant attempt to get out. Peterboro C.I. 15, Kingston 11.

It was the last point of the game and there were no outstanding plays before the final whistle.

McGILL SOCCER VICTORY.

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—The Intercollegiate soccer match resulted in a win for McGill, the final score being McGill-4, R.M.C. 0.

CUP TIE RECORD

Nine Hours of Football Played Without a Decision.

LONDON, Nov. 17.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—The early rounds of the football association cup tie on Saturday curtailed many fixtures in the Northern and Southern sections of the third division. The biggest surprise of the contests was the defeat of Bournemouth by Yeoville to the tune of 3 goals to 2.

London Caledonians drew with South end United three goals to three.

Leyton and Ilford met for the third reply on Saturday in the third round of qualifying cup by the score again resulted in a draw of three all. This was after extra time had been played. The teams have now played nine hours of football without a definite result. This is an English cup tie record.

M'GILL BREAKS LOSING STREAK

VICTORY EARNED

MONTREAL, Nov. 17. — Unrestrained joy reigns on the campus at McGill for on Saturday the Red and White tamed the University of Toronto squad, defeating the old-time rivals in the closing intercollegiate rugby battle of the season 13 to 8. The win broke the losing succession of the local university and sent them into a tie with 'Varsity for the second and cellar position in the series, each having won a game, while Queen's went through with an unbroken record.

The curtain descended on a game which, for good, hard-fought rugby, has not been equalled locally to this season. And it did not lack thrilling moments as the tide of battle first favored the Red and White—then 'Varsity and finally McGill again, when with the score 8 to 6 against them in the final period, they rallied and evened the tally on two kicks for rouges. Three minutes were remaining when Herbie Murphy spiralled a high punt at Pequegnat. The 'Varsity half dropped the ball at his feet 15 yards in front of the last chalked-line. Ney Gordon, McGill flying wing, got his toe to the leather and dribbled over the line and fell on the ball for the winning touchdown.

McGill's long awaited hour had arrived. The rooters went wild with delight, while the players themselves tore around the field in a frenzy of joy. Alex. Moore, snapback, was so enthused he forgot every rule of rugby and let the ball touch the ground, thus losing a chance at a convert. But nobody but a small coterie of 'Varsity supporters cared. To the majority of the 8,000 spectators the victory proved almost as exciting as if the title had been at stake.

The real hero of the day was Captain "Bones" Little. The McGill leader was playing his final rugby game, and there could have been no more fitting performance than the manner in which the sturdy half-back concluded his athletic career. All season McGill has seemingly lacked a drop kicker. Saturday, Little emerged as the player and his two field goals in the first period provided the necessary incentive to send the team back on it's triumphant march His line smashing was a big factor in the win, while his defensive play and his generalling of the team were equally important factors. He was carried shoulder high to the field house after the struggle had ended.

THISTLE DEFEATED CAN. WOOLLENS IN G. N. GORDON SOCCER CUP FINAL; 30 MINUTES OVERTIME PLAYED

Both Teams Lined Up as Advertised—Curtis Was Injured —Williams Opened Scoring—Woollens Finished With an Unsuccessful Bombardment.

PETE HUTTON GOT WINNING GOAL

Mitchell Equalized on Resuming, Then Richmond and Hodgson Evened Up the Score—Blowers Injured With the Ball—Both Goalkeepers Brilliant.

Between four and five hundred spectators witnessed the Thistles win the Gordon Cup from the Canadian Woollens at the Oval on Saturday afternoon by the score of three goals to two, after an extra thirty minutes play, when "Pete" Hutton scored the winning goal. All the spectators were pleased with the spendid exhibition by the players who participated. It was a real cup-tie battle from the beginning to end and anybody's game until the finish. Referee Clark handled all decisions in a faultless manner.

Keen and Fast Opening.

From the very outset, the Woollens applied the pressure, Mitchell having one fine shot blacked while Hillman accounted for another at the other end. Clark went careering down the wing where he was neatly tackled by Dawson, then Blowers returned with a terrific drive over the bar. From the goal-kick, Burgess made tracks for the Woollens area. He circumvented the defense to go close in on the goal, where Chambers stopper his progress.

Curtis Injured.

Quick as a flash, play was at the other end, a shot by Sayers and a header by Mitchell brought the Thistles goal-keeper into action as he was tested to the limit, at last, being injured against the upright when making a clearance. After the trainer's attention he resumed. Carmichael made a splendid opening for Burgess who was adjudged offside. He went right back again to be beaten by the full-back, "Wag" trapped the punted ball, slipped it along to his left winger who gained a corner that Chambers headed clear.

William's Opened the Scoring.

The Woollen's right wing wrought havoc down in the corner which compelled the Jags, whole defense to come down into their goal to prevent them equalizing when Clark dropped a beautiful centre across. Carmichael gained possession to beat three men in succession and sending the right-wing away on the run. Hutton received the pass and lifted the ball over to Williams who gently tapped it into the net as the goal-keeper had no chance.

Continued Bombardment.

This goal enlivened matters in favour of the Woollens as the Thistles dropped out of the picture with a one goal lead. Then followed a great bombardment of the Thistles goal. A foul against Dawson for handling about proved costly when Blowers swizzed a volley past. This was followed up by shots from all quarters being rained in, and a number of them luckily blocked. Truth to tell, Curtis was in all of his unbeatable moods between the sticks as he made the snappy clearances just as half-time was announced. Half-time, Thistles, 1; Woollens, 0.

HALF-TIME.

On resuming, Williams put past. Then a foul against a Woollens player was held by Blowers who went down into Thistles territory to test Curtis. This was followed up by two unfruitful corners that Anderson relieved with a punt. It was sent back again to Gaskill who let drive for goal and grabbed in the nick of time by a Jag goal-keeper. From the goal-kick, the ball landed to Richmond who handled. Chambers came forward to rattle the free-kick past.

Mitchell Equalized.

The ball went back to the Woollens end where Hillman robbed the Thistles of a goal when he picked one from in below the bar from Richmond's headed. A corner was cleared by Woollens, that left Sayers in possession on the wing. He went down into the corner to send across an accurate centre that rolled across the Jag's goal-mouth that Curtis tapped around the post, as Gaskill was upon him. Clark placed a beauty that Hotston cleared. Mitchell lying well out got control. He swung the Sphere out to Sayers who raised the ball over the defences head. The centre-man got it when touching the ground, to gain the equalizer, with a shot that went into the net as Curtis tipped the sphere upwards. From a football standpoint, the exhibition of soccer was of a perfect order, each team giving their best at all times.

Goal Each in One Minute.

The Thistles attacked and the forwards all had a try and a fruitless corner after Hillman had stopped a miraculous effort from the foot of Richmond on the inside corner of the upright. A Woollens raid was nullified by "Wag" Hotston when Mitchell was breaking through on his own. He shot the ball across to Burgess. The left-winger got the better of Cridlend on the run and keeping the ball close on his toe went down on to the goal-line where he carried the play until the necessary touch left "Hughie" to do the rest with a tap into the net. From the centre-kick, Clark and Gaskill made shot around the corner post. At the other end Carmichael along with Richmond had the same vile luck as the ball rolled in the goal-mouth. No sooner did this happen, then Thistle's luck was with them when Joe Gaskill hit the inside of cross-bar for the ball to bounce up and down until Curtis fisted clear. Play was on the touch line when THE BEST game ever played in local soccer annual ended in the Thistles favour by three goals to two. Thistles, 3; Woollens, 2.

Presented the Cup.

After the game, Mr. Gordon, M.P., in a very characteristic speech presented the cup to Thistle's. He remarked upon the sportsmanship shown by both teams and said "such clean, healthy exhibitions of the real British sport as he had witnessed should not fail to encourage the game, thereafter, he handed over the cup. Three cheers were given all around.

The Teams.

Canadian Woollens: — Hillman, goal; Cridland and Chambers, backs; Read, Monkman and Blowers, half-backs; Clark, Gaskill, Mitchell, Hodson and Sayers, forwards.

Thistle's:—Curtis, goal; Anderson and Rae backs; Hotston, Carmichael and Dowson, half-backs; McPhail, Hutton, Richmond, Willianms and Burgess, forwards.

NOTES ON THE GAME.

Every person interviewed concurred the universal opinion of the spectators "The best game ever played in the city in soccer annual" and it is such exhibitions that will get the crowds.

Ex-President of P. and D.F.A. "A well contested game and one of the best I've ever witnessed."

Throughout the game a new innovation was produced when "Doug" McPhail, along with his singing choir entertained with the latest hits." They always rendered "Aon't going to score no more."

Two referees in the persons of Referees' Russell and J. L. Howarth were emphatic in their requests that the Woollens were the better team but spectators cannot agree with them when they stand on the line and criticise another "knight of the whistle." "Oh that we could see ourself as others see us."

The Woollens players were the first persons to congratulate the winners. After the game, Mr. Kitney, had the coffee ready for the players which was much enjoyed.

Referee Clark, when interviewed, remarked:—"It was a pleasure to referee that game. My decision was never questioned at any time."

Only on one occassion had a spectator to be cautioned and that was when Referee McKinley acting as linesmen, did not like the caustic remark of Downes, a Woollens player, standing on the line as a spectator, when Curtis was knocked cold against the upright.

This is the second time that the Woollens have lost the Gordon Cup in the final by a small margin. The Quakers defeated them.

The one and only C.G.E. team of 1921 were the first winners of the trophy. Quaker Oats 1922. The C.W.V.A. 1923.

Bobby Carmichael the Thistle centre-half played throughout the ninety minutes wrapped up in four yards of adhesive plaster, which was applied by Dr. Marshall before the game. When the Dr. was interviewed by the Examiner he elicited the forgoing information and stataed his ribs were broken. It was the players request to play.

NOTRE DAME TEAMS GETS ITS REVENGE

Rockne's Unbeaten Collegians Wipe Out Score With Nebraska.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press). — The vengeance of Notre Dame over Nebraska by 34 to 6, and the unexpected rise of the Northern Lights of Minnesota over Illinois were the great events of Saturday's mid-western football.

The 20 to 7 victory of Minnesota was called a reversal but it really was a reversion. Minnesota reverted to its early season form when it was considered as one of the several strongest teams.

Grange and his team-mates were as great in defeat as in victory, neverquitting until they were carried out crippled. Some of these Illini entered the game bearing black and blue marks they had sustained in the Chicago battering of last week.

The power of this year's big ten teams from first to last is shown by the fact that the final games next Saturday can give the championship to anyone of four, Chicago, Michigan, Illinois or Iowa.

Chicago, with three wins and two ties, has the best chance, having only to win from Wisconsin to take undisputed title. Michigan, Illinois and Iowa have lost one each, while Illinois and Iowa have records further marred by one tie. Their championship prospects depend not only on winning their own games but on upsets of their rivals. Michigan plays Iowa, while Illinois meets Ohio.

"RED" GRANGE OUT

Brilliant Illinois Rugby Player Hurt by Heavy Tackles.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17. — (Canadian Press).—Harold ("Red") Grange, rated as outstanding football star of the United States for the 1924 season, will not play in another game this season. This was established last night from the University of Illinois, after the extent of Grange's injuries received in the Minnesota upset Saturday, had been determined.

Grange suffered torn ligaments in his left arm and shoulder when viciously tackled. X-ray pictures of the injury revealed that a small bone in the shoulder also had been wrenched loose. Physicians said that at least eight weeks would be required for the damage to heal.

LADIES' BALL LEAGUE.

First Games Played at the Y. W.C.A. on Friday.

The first games of the Peterboro Ladies' Basketball League were played in the Y.W.C.A. gym on Friday evening. Mr. Bert Cowan refereed for all the games. The first game was between the Y.W.C.A. and the Westclock, with a resulting score of 34-2 in favor of the "Y" team. The second game between the Normals and Quakers was defaulted by the Quakers to the Normals. The next teams to play were the De Laval vs. Otonabee, with a score of 36-12 in favor of the De Laval, and the final game between the Woollens and the Bell Telephone resulted in a score of 28 to 4. The Woollens, however, had not their full team, and had to borrow extra players in order to make a game. Therefore the Bell Telephone won by default.

The playing of all the teams was interesting and brilliant. Mrs. Maguire of the "Y" team did some splendid shooting for the basket. Miss Gertrude Kirn of the De Laval proved an exceptionally good forward. Both teams showed good combination. The Otonabee team promises to become a good team. All the teams are getting into working order and promise to become very good teams.

Mr. G. N. Gordon sent regrets at not being able to be present to open the League. The cups presented by Mr. Gordon and Mrs. E. E. Harvey were on exhibit and will be competed for again this year.

After the games the players adjourned to the Green Room and enjoyed refreshments and a social half-hour. Mrs. Harvey poured coffee, and the "Y" girls assisted in serving.

MADE OTTAWA TRIP.

McGaughey Will Likely Pay the Maximum Penalty on December 5th.

LINDSAY, Nov. 17.—Leslie Frost returned from Ottawa on Saturday, where he interviewed the Department of Justice on behalf of Fred McGaughey, who was sentenced to be hanged on December 5th for the murder of Beatrice Fee. He has very little to say regarding the result of his mission to the capital, but hinted that there might probably be a stay in the execution for a few days. The Department of Justice intimated to Mr. Frost that if he had any new evidence bearing on the case which he would like to submit they would review. The general opinion among members of the legal profession in Lindsay, as well as the jail officials, is that the sentence will be carried out on the date set.

HEADS USED IN SCORING GOALS

Eight Players Pulled the Hat Trick in Saturday's English League Games.

CORNER-KICK RULE

LONDON, November 17. — Some remarkable scoring feats were witnessed in league football on Saturday. No fewer than eight players registered the hat trick in acquiring goals, something of a record in English football.

The following were the men who each registered three counters: Davies of Cardiff City, in the game against Bury, the latter going down by 4 to 1.

Ruddlendin of Swindon Town, Queen's Park Rangers, were defeated in this game which was characterized by frequent scoring, the Rangers responding with three goals to Swindon's five.

Hammerton of Rotherham, notwithstanding Hammerston's magnificent efforts, Rotherham was taken into camp by Wiganboro to the tune of 4 to 3.

Scottish League.

In the Scottish league, Barkley of St. Mirren was the hero of the battle with Aberdeen when he accounted for all three of the Paisley team's goals against two by their opponents.

McInally of Third Lanark duplicated the trick against the Heart of Midlothian, who also counted a couple of tallies.

That some new legislation is needed with regard to the recent ruling regarding the scoring of a goal direct from a corner kick, was manifest in the Everton-Arsenal match on Saturday. This last amendment to the playing rules was authorized this season and provides that a player taking a corner kick may score a goal without the ball touching another player. Chedzoy of Everton, saw a loop-hole in this rule, and on Saturday he took advantage of it.

Taking a corner kick, instead of kicking the ball to the goal mouth as is usually done, he took the ball along close to the line, got into centre from close range, and shot. The referee did not interfere with this play, consequently Rutherford of Arsenal copied the tactics, and dribbled the ball in from the corner flag, almost to the goal mouth. Neither attempt was successful.

The development of these new plays will be watched closely, since neither Chedzoy or Rutherford infringed any rule in making them.

Nothing now prevents the backs from waiting on top of the corner kicker and impeding the kick.

Goalie Injured.

In the game with West Bromwich, West Ham's goal tender, Hampson, sustained a severe concussion, and had to be carried off the field. He was replaced by Earle, who proved a capable custodian.

Crystal Palace were lucky to defeat Bradford City so largely. Whitworth scored their third goal from a penalty awarded for a foul by Walker, who was ordered off the field.

Two penalties for handling the ball were awarded to Southampton against South Shields. Rawlings missing the first. But Parker secured points from the second.

In the Queen's Park Rangers-Swindon match the referee was forced to retire on account of illness and one of the linesmen replaced him.

GREAT ATHLETE, REAL MAN

Presenting Baseball's Greatest Idol and His Boss, Mrs. Walter Johnson.

MR. AND MRS. WALTER JOHNSON

Johnson is eager to purchase a Coast League franchise and retire from the majors. The fans are anxious for him to make the deal. He would be a great attraction for that organizaiton.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

STETSON'S "UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" COMPANY.

When Leon W. Washburn's production of the original Stetson "Uncle Tom's Cabin" appears in the Grand Opera House, for two days, with matinee on Saturday, commencing on Friday, November 21, local theatre-goers will have an opportunity of judging for themselves just what a really first-class "Uncle Tom's Cabin" organization really is. This is the recognized paramount "Tom" show of the country, and for many years it has been recognized as the leader of its class.

No play ever written is better known to all parts of the world, to all classes of people, than "Uncle Tom's Cabin," not even the plays of the immortal Shakespeare, for the play of slavery days has been presented in every village and hamlet in this broad country. It is estimated that there has never been a day during the past seventy-two years that it has not been touring the country in one section or another.

Mr. Washburn has successfully solved the problem of combining the old and new "Uncle Tom's Cabin" into a big spectacular play that leaves out nothing worth retaining, in either the straight or circus method. All the worthy features of the old landmark are retained, while the thread of the story has been cleverly reconstructed, making it more coherent, this with the introduction of a host of high-class vaudeville stunts, thoroughly in keeping with the drama, goes far towards making an enjoyable evening's entertainment; you will see a performance just a little better than you thought the best.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" was first produced at the old Troy Museum, in Troy, N. Y., in 1852. It was presented in England for the first time at the Manchester Theatre, Manchester, in 1853, and in Paris at the Theatre Comique on January 18, 1854. Translations into Italian, Portugese and German quickly followed, and in the last few years it has found its way into moving pictures, where it will be preserved for generations to come, without a doubt, the most powerful play of all time.

RONALD COLEMAN, leading man in "The White Sister," appears with May McAvoy in "Tarnish" at the Capitol to-day and to-morrow.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"TARNISH" IS EVERY WOMAN'S LOVE STORY

Youth, love and romance are laid bare in "Tarnish," the George Fitzmaurice production which is being shown at the Capitol Theatre today and Tuesday. It is a First National picture, presented by Samuel Goldwyn.

"Tarnish,' which is an adaptation of Gilbert Emery's famous stage play, is a drama of real life. The photodrama delves so deeply into the human fabric that one is forced to choke back the lump that rises in the throat.

Two young people are in love—fine, vigorous young people—but the past of the young man suddenly turns up to besmirch his happiness. The young girl is shaken, tested, illumined. What next? The hero and the heroine work in the same office. The manicurist who provides the hero with a past is also engaged in philandering the heroine's foolish father. To top all of this, a gossipy neighbor who has been using the manicurist, sees the father entertain her and tells about it.

Thus the dramatic web is woven. And what a tangled web! Nevertheless, there are many delicious moments, moments of comedy, of pathos, of laughter and of tears. Withal, "Tarnish" is extremely delightful, well acted and sincerely directed by Mr. Fitzmaurice, and can rightfully be called "every woman's love story."

The prominent roles are in the capable hands of Marie Prevost, the vamping manicurist; May McAvoy, the charming heroine; Ronald Colman, the romantic youth, and such players as Norman Kerry, Harry Myers, Priscilla Bonner, Albert Gran and Mrs. Russ Whytall.

If you like real drama of everyday people, of youth and the flat next door, go and see "Tarnish" at the Capitol Theatre.

AT THE ROYAL.

FAMOUS BELASCO STAGE SUCCESS AT ROYAL, 'DADDIES'

With this zippy yell the Bachelors' Club is organized. Five college men swear they never will marry, no, never, never, under penalty of paying to the club $5,000 for a resignation.

Formed in Yale College, the Bachelors' Club progresses for quite some time without the loss of a member. It looks like a permanent institution until the club agrees to adopt some war orphans, one for each member; and this marks the beginning of the end for the Bachelors' Club. In the situations that immediately arise can be found the answer to that insistent question: "What is home without a mother?"

One bachelor finds that his orphan is a beautiful young woman of seven teen; another that his "orphan" is triplets. And each one of the foster fathers found out that raising children is a two-handed, upstanding affair, requiring — no, actually demanding the strong will and firm hand of the female of the species. Of course the result is inevitable. The Bachelors' Club breaks up by mutual consent, and five weddings give fine homes to deserving women and promising youngsters.

While "Daddies" is a comedy, it is the kind of comedy that everyone loves to see. It is filled with human interest, has a splendid little love story, and also has its purely dramatic moments. It would not be a Belasco production unless it had all the touches that make good entertainment.

"Daddies," the screen adaptation of David Belasco's famous stage play by the same name, is at the Royal to-day, to-morrow and Wednesday. It is the picture you have been waiting for. It's a screen classic, a clean, sparkling comedy transposed on the silver sheet by Mae Marsh, Harry Myers and a capable cast.

Eve ate the apple and learned all the local girls have to do, is see "Daddies!"

FAMOUS STADIUM USED IN MAKING LA PLANTE PLAY.

The nationally known stadium in Pasadena, California's "city of millionaires," where all the big football games between East and West are staged, was the scene where a pigskin fracas was recently filmed. This is one of the main incidents in "The Dangerous Blonde," Laura La Plant's Universal stellar feature, to be shown at the Royal Theatre next Thursday.

Gus Henderson, coach of the University of Southern California team, furnished his entire football aggregation, and a large part of the college membership for the scenes. The team was put through practice with Edward Hearn, impersonating a football hero. He played fullback, in one rough "re-take" after another. It had been several years since Hearn played on the gridiron.

When the "game" was over, after a couple of days of consistent "shooting," both the team players and the grease paint participants were weary. For two weeks Hearn carried aches and pains which testified to the effort of putting the human body through two full days of football.

In the story, written by Hulbert Footner, Miss La Plante is a college girl. College atmosphere is really only a small portion of the picture, but Director Hill believed in getting the "real thing," especially in the gridiron atmosphere.

JAZZ STIMULATION.

Mae Murray, whose newest Metro picture, "Mademoiselle Midnight," comes to the Royal Theatre soon, has no sympathy with those persons who believe jazz to be one of the evils of modern civilization.

"They always insist that jazz and intoxication go together," says Miss Murray. "They are right, jazz and intoxication do go together, but the stimulant is not liquor. The present-day dancing furnishes plenty of stimulation without the aid of alcohol."

In "Mademoiselle Midnight" the star is said to do a Mexican dance that is enough to stimulate anybody.

AT THE REGENT.

"YOLANDA" GIVEN HIGH PRAISE BY WILL HAYS.

Director-General of Film Industry Lauds Hearst for Production Achievements He Says Reflect Only Credit.

Will H. Hays, director-general of the motion picture industry, paid a remarkable tribute to William Randolph Hearst as the result of having witnessed the world premier of "Yolanda," the new Cosmopolitan superpicture in which Marion Davies is starring and which will be shown at the Regent Theatre to-day and for the next two days.

As the titular head of the film world, Mr. Hays is unquestionably in the best position to judge the value of achievements within the industry. He observes the purposes, the progress and influence of stars, producers and distributors. And his warm praise of Mr. Hearst is a sincere, heartfelt response to the latter's effort to make, through the Cosmopolitan Corporation, productions that will reflect the greatest credit upon the motion picture industry in America.

Mr. Hays was an unusually interested spectator at the initial presentation of Marion Davies in "Yolanda" at the Cosmopolitan Theatre, New York. He had remembered such beautiful and colossal productions sponsored by Mr. Hearst and his Cosmopolitan Corporation as "When Knighthood Was in Flower," "Little Old New York," in both of which Marion Davies starred; "Enemies of Women," "Under the Red Robe" and "The Great White Way" and his tribute to Mr. Hearst was a spontaneous welcome inspired by the beauty and magnitude of the latest cosmopolitan super-picture.

"I want to say right now that William Randolph Hearst is a great asset to the motion picture industry," declared Mr. Hays. "His pictures are clean and each succeeding production shows his earnest and conscientious efforts for better and still better pictures. I think it is remarkable that a man can accomplish so much in the two great fields—newspapers and motion pictures."

William Brandt, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of the State of New York, one of the most powerful and influential organizations in the entire industry, was also enthusiastic in his praise of the Cosmopolitan production. In a glowing tribute to Miss Davies he said: "In every new picture Miss Davies surpasses the acting of her previous picture.

Extravagant approval which ran the gamut of nearly every adjective of a laudatory nature in the English language for the production continues to pour into the Cosmopolitan offices. These, added to the unanimous approval of the metropolitan critics who witnessed the premiere of "Yolanda" have been most gratifying to Miss Davies and emphatically stamp the new photoplay as a triumph of cinema art.

MONTHLY MEETING.

The regular monthly meeting of the Dorothy Allan Park Studio Club was held on Saturday at eight o'clock at the Conservatory of Music. The vice-president, Mrs. N. D. Foote, occupied the chair. The minutes of the October meeting were read and approved. Miss Edwina Palmer addressed the meeting on "Aural Culture," which proved to be a helpful and inspiring discourse. Miss Mildred Greene delighted her audience with a piano solo, and fine vocal solos were rendered by the Misses Ida McBride, Alice Price, Helen Lytle and Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland. An excellent violin solo was also rendered by Stewart Widdess, a pupil of Miss Palmer. Accompanists for the evening were Mrs. Park, Miss Palmer and Miss Mildred Greene. At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served.

The December meeting will be addressed by the honorary president, Mr. R. Gliddon, on "Instrumentation of a Symphony Orchestra."

JAPAN'S NEW LAW.

Japanese Born in Foreign Countries Shall Lose Their Japanese Nationality.

TOKIO, Nov. 17. — (Canadian Press)—Imperial ordinance was published yesterday directing the enforcement beginning on December 1 of a law abolishing dual nationality of Japanese born in Canada, United States, Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Peru.

The revised law provides that Japanese born in foreign countries where birth gives citizenship, shall lose their Japanese nationality for birth, unless formal action is taken to preserve their rights to Japanese citizenship.

IN MEMORIAM

LAWSON— In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Rachel Law son, who died November 17th., 1923.

One year has passed our hearts still sore,
As time rolls on, we miss her more,
Her loving smiles, her welcome face,
No one can fill her vacant place.

Forget her, no, we never will,
We loved her then, we love her still,
Her memory is as fresh to-day
As in the hour she passed away.

Oh, how our hearts do wander
To the lone and silent grave
Where they laid our love one
Just one year ago to-day.

The happy hours we once enjoyed
How sweet their memory still
But death has left a vacant place,
The world can never fill.

Her weary hours and days of pain,
Her troubled night has passed,
Her ever patient worn out frame
Has found sweet rest at last.
Inserted by her daughter—
Mrs. Frank Houlihan.

IN MEMORIAM.

LAWSON.—In loving memory of my dear grandmother, Mrs. Rachel Lawson, who died on Nov. 17, 1923::

Just beyond the Jordan,
Just across its swelling tide,
There's a land of life eternal,
Through its vales sweet waters glide.

By the crystal river flowing,
Grows the tree of life so fair,
Many loved ones wait our coming
In the upper garden there.

We shall meet them some glad morning,
Resting by the waters fair;
They are waiting for our coming
In the upper garden there.
—Inserted By Her Grand-daughters and Grandsons.

IN MEMORIAM.

LAWSON.—In loving memory of by dear mother, Mrs. Rachel Lawson, who died November 17th, 1923.

"I loved her, yes, I loved her,
But Jesus loved her more,
And He has sweetly called her
To yonder shining shore.

The golden gates were opened,
A gentle voice said come,
And with farewells unspoken,
She calmly entered home.

Her weary hours and days of pain,
Her troubled nights are past,
Her ever patient, worn-out frame,
Has found sweet rest at last.

AN UNLUCKY NUMBER.

Peter Smith Will Have Two Reasons to Remember Nov. 13th.

KINGSTON, Nov. 17.—It looks as if the thirteenth of November is Peter Smith's unlucky day, it has just been learned here, on looking up dates that the former Provincial Treasurer who was brought here to serve a term of three years, was sworn in as Provincial Treasurer November 13th, 1919, and it was November 13th, 1924, he arrived at the prison to serve his sentence. At the prison this morning it was stated that he had not been assigned to any work as yet as he is still undergoing treatment in the hospital for a minor ailment. One report has it that he is likely to be given a job in the prison library.

PREVENTED FROM INSPECTING BANK

E. A. Kemp Gave Evidence This Morning in Trial of J. M. F. Stewart.

TORONTO, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—That he had been prevented from making an inspection of the foreign department of the Home Bank was the evidence given this morning by E. A. Kemp, formerly chief inspector of the Home Bank, at the trial of J. F. M. Stewart, Home Bank director, this morning. Mr. Kemp said he had just started the inspection of the foreign branch in 1923 when he was sent to Montreal by the general manager on other business, and the inspection had been made by another official. Later, on going over the books of the department with A. E. Calvert, he found a loss which he estimated at $130,000 in the foreign department.

Mr. Kemp also stated that he had never received instructions to make an inspection of the Toronto branch of the bank, from which most of the big loans were made.

FINNISH TRAPPER MANGLED BY BEAR

Body of a Waino Badly Torn To Pieces By Black Bear.

FORT WILLIAM, Nov. 17—(Canadian Press).—Further details of the death of a Finnish traper, A. Waino, killed by a bear seven miles from English River Station, are to hand with the return of Coroner Dr. Boyd with the body. Before the doctor reached the scene the bear, which was a monstrous black one, had been killed by a brother and two brothers-in-law of the dead man, who found the brute had returned to the body of Waino and was gnawing at the remains.

Flesh had been pulled from the body and the scalp torn off, while of the face nothing was left but the eyes. The first shot roused the animal to attack the three men, but the second shot dropped him in his tracks.

It was found that his face and neck were covered with porcupine quills, while may have accounted for the bear being in a dangerous and irritable mood. Waino's rifle was found with one shell discharged, while the lever had jammed in ejecting it, thus accounting for the man and bear having a hand-to-hand fight.

GOOD PROGRAMME.

Pupils of Mr. R. Gliddon Heard in Recital.

On Friday evening, at the Conservatory of Music Hall, an interesting programme was presented by the pupils of Mr. Rupert Gliddon. The selections were all exceptionally well rendered, with the careful attention to expression and limpid tone which characterized the work of Mr. Gliddon's pupils. The selections by three senior members of the class; the Misses Kathleen Sutton, Agnes Grant, and Elizabeth Webber, were particularly good, the rendition by Miss Grant of Beethoven's exact ing "Moonlight Sonata" being an outstanding number. The following programme was given: "Andante and Rondo Capriccioso', Miss Jean Anderson; "Sonata Pathetique," Miss Kathleen Sutton; Suite; "A Day in Venice", Miss Frances Turner; "Valse in A Flat," Miss Fannie Black; Second Mazurka, Miss Elsie Bennett; Scherzo, Miss Lena Dixon Sonata in A Flat, Miss Elizabeth Webber, Chopin Waltz in A and Polonaise by A. T. Millbank; "Moon light Sonata', Miss Agnes Grant.

LOST RACE WITH DEATH.

Mother of J. P. Morgan, International Banker, Died To-day.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press)—J. Pierpont Morgan, famous international banker, has lost his race with death. While the banker was dashing to her bedside from France on the Berengaria, his aged mother died in her home at Highland Falls to-day. Mrs. Morgan, who was past 80 years of age, had been ill several days. Her son was notified while he was in Paris last week and set out for home at once. Radio advices of the death were sent him aboard the Berengaria, it was said at the Morgan offices. He is expected to arrive in New York late Friday or early Saturday.

COMMENCING ON WEDNESDAY OF THIS WEEK EXAMINER WILL PUBLISH A NEW SERIAL

Commencing on Wednesday of this week, The Examiner will publish its new serial story, "The Thief of Bagdad," from the novel of the same name by Achmed Abdullah, based on the photoplay Fantasy of the Arabian Nights, in which Douglas Fairbanks is starred.

The story of the Arabian Nights, the tales with which Scheherezade beguiled the wakeful hours of her conquering lover, is familiar to most people. They remember the romantic fantasies that centred about the tales of the djinns and the story of Aladdin's lamp and the robbers of the "Open Sesame" cave.

A prefatory note by Douglas Fairbanks to the story says: "There is a touch of the fantastic even in the reason I made 'The Thief of Bagdad'—for it is reason impelled by the unseen. It is a tribute to the fineness that I believe underlies the workaday philosophy of men; a recognition of the inner forces that belie the sordidness of life.

"Imagery is inherent in the human breast. The brave deeds, the longing for better things, the striving for finer thoughts, the mental pictures of obstacles overcome and successes overcome, and successes won, are nearer to our real selves than our daily grind of earthly struggle.

"The Thief of Bagdad" is the story of the things we dream about; a tale of what happens when we go out from ourselves to conquer the World of Fancy. We set out to win our heart's desire: we confuse our enemies; we demean ourselves bravely; our success is complete; our reward is Happiness.

"I believe that this is the story of every man's inner self, and that every man will thus see it."

WEDDING BELLS.

WARTMAN—SUCEE

A very pretty house wedding took place at half-past seven o'clock on Saturday evening, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Moyers Sucee, 710 George street, when their only daughter, Myrtle Wilma, became the bride of Leonard Courtland Wartman, youngest son of Mrs. C. H. Wartman and the late Dr. Wartman, of Toronto. In the absence of Rev. W. H. Young, the ceremony was performed by Rev. A. J. Langford, pastor of Trinity Church.

The bride, who was unattended, entered the drawing-room on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Viola Benson of the staff of the Toronto Conservatory of Music. The ceremony took place against an effective background of banked palms, ferns and yellow chrysanthemums.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of pearl grey chiffon velvet, trimmed with fur, with silver head band, rope of pearls, and corsage bouquet of orchids.

The signing of the register was witnessed by Mrs. C. H. Wartman, Mrs. F. G. Bryan and Mr. C. C. Wartman all of Toronto.

During the ceremony, a vocal solo, "Louisa", was rendered in fine voice by Mrs. F. G. Bryan of Toronto, who wore black satin charmant, with roses.

Later, a buffet luncheon was served to the immediate relatives and friends of the bridal party, from a central table decorated with roses and smilax. Mrs. Sucee, mother of the bride, wore a gown of blue satin with pearl grey lace over-drape and corsage bouquet of lily of the valley. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. C. H. Wartman, was attired in black chiffon velvet, trimmed with jet, and wore orchid roses. Mrs. Alex. Robertson of Toronto, wore a gown of green satin draped with gold lace.

Mr. and Mrs. Wartman left on the 9.10 C.N.R. train for a honeymoon trip to Quebec and eastern points, the bride travelling in a coat of black silk marvella, with collar and cuffs of grey Thibet, black hat and black shoes and stockings. On their return they will reside in Toronto.

The young people were recipients of a large number of handsome and costly gifts. The gifts of the bridegroom to the bride were a sterling silver mesh bag and a fitted dress bag, to the vocalist a pair of sterling silver candleholders and to the pianist a string of carved ivory beads.

LEWIS—ARNOLD.

A pretty autumn wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Arnold Delaware Ave., Toronto, when their only daughter, Theora Kathleen was united in marriage to Mr. William Mansell Lewis of Miskawaka, Indiana, son of Mr. and Mrs David Lewis, Peterboro, Ont. The ceremony was conducted by Dr. A. J. Vining of College St. Baptist Church.

The bride who was attended by Miss Christine Kennedy of Fenelon Falls, entered the drawing room on the arm of her Father to the strains of the Bridal chorus from Lohengrin, played by Miss Helen Clark of Moulton College Staff.

The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. J. Harold Lewis of Peterboro, Mr. Eric Arnold and Mr John Arnold, brother of the bride usherd the guests to the drawing room, which was beautifully decorated with roses, crysanthemums palms and ferns.

The bride's gown was of ivory brocaded Swiss Crepe trimmed with seed pearls, and crystals. The court train was lined with peach georgette, and the veil of Brussels net which was caught into a Juliet cap with orange blossoms and pearls was beautifully embroidered. She carried a shower bouquet of ophelia, and maiden hair fern. The bridesmaid wore sunset chiffon taffeta trimmed with poudre blue ostrich, with which she wore gold brocade shoes and gold bandeau. She carried premier roses and maiden hair fern.

Mrs. Lewis, Mother of the groom wore a becoming gown of sand Roshanara crepe, small French hat of Black velvet and a corsage of Richmond Roses.

After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served in the dining room which was beautifully decorated with Ophelia Roses.

The happy couple left by motor for points east. The bride travelled in a dark brown French crepe dress, with hat and shoes to match, and a Russian rat coat. She also wore the gift of the groom, a solid white gold wrist watch set with sapphires. A unique feature of her wedding ring being that it was inset with diamonds.

On their return to Toronto, before leaving for Mishawaka, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis will be at home to their friends at 75 Delaware avenue.

OBITUARY.

MRS. ELIZABETH DUMMITT.

The death took place last night of Mrs. Elizabeth Dummitt, 68, widow of the late George Dummitt, who passed away thirty years ago. Mrs. Dummitt was a member of All Saints' Anglican church.

There are left to mourn her loss five sons, William of Peterborough, George of Haliburton, Fred, Harry and Ernest, all of Peterborough, and one daughter, Mrs. Harold Ephgrave, of Peterborough. One brother and two sisters also survive. They are Isaac Sedgewick, of Gelert, Mrs. M. Wilson of Lindsay, and Mrs. F. Curtis, of Toronto.

The funeral will take place from the residence of her son, Ernest, 26 Romaine street west, on Tuesday afternoon. Interment will be made in Little Lake cemetery, the service being conducted by Rev. J. D. Patterson.

THE LATE RALPH MERRICK.

The death took place suddenly in Springfield, Mo., on Thursday, the 6th of November, of Ralph "Pip" Merrick, at the age of fifty-one years.

The late Mr. Merrick was born at Merrickville, Ont., but moved to Peterboro with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Merrick, when three years old. His first business experience was with the late Edgcumbe Pearse, clerk and treasurer of the County of Peterboro. On leaving Peterboro he made his residence in the United States, where he has since occupied responsible positions with great credit.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife, who was Miss Maude McIntosh, of Spencerville; also two children, aged 15 and 12 years.

The funeral took place on the Saturday following his death to the Little Lake cemetery in Peterboro. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Blagrave, of St. John's Anglican church.

The pallbearers were all intimate friends of the deceased, and were Mr. Arthur Amys, Dr. C. H. Amys, Dr. Arthur Hammond, and Mr. Fred Hall.

The out-of-town mourners and friends in the city included Mrs. Merrick's brother, Mr. McIntosh of Montreal, Mr. W. D. Parker, of Ottawa, Dr. Edwin Wood, and Mr. R. H. Fortye, city.

The many friends of the late Mr. Merrick in Peterboro will regret to learn of his being so suddenly cut off in the prime of life.

Mrs. Merrick accompanied the remains to Peterboro, and when in the city was at the home of Mr and Mrs. R. H. Fortye

FRED KAZRES WAS SHOT BY BANDIT

Jumped on Back of Thug Nearest Him, But Was Shot By Another.

DETROIT, Nov. 17. — (Canadian Press).—Fred. Kazres, a resident of Hamtramck, a suburb, was shot and killed instantly here last night when he resisted three gunmen who entered the residence in the north part of the city, where Kazres and seven companions were playing cards. The gunmen lined their victims against the wall and began searching them.

Kazres jumped on the back of the bandit nearest the door, who shouted and one of his companions fired, killing Kazres. Others in the resident held down the man who was grappling with Kazres, but the other gunmen escaped. The bandit gave the name of John Eulowski, of Ford City, Ontario, when arrested. He is held on a charge of murder.

The most talkative character in all of Shakespeare's works is Hamlet, who has 1,589 lines to speak.

REGULATION OF OPIUM TRAFFIC DEMAND OF U.S.A.

American Representative at International Conference Gives Some Suggestions.

FIRST SESSION

Physicians Throughout the World Warned of Danger in Prescribing Narcotic Drugs.

GENEVA, Nov. 18. — (Canadian Press).—An international opium conference opened at Geneva Monday. After taking preliminary steps for organization under the presidency of Herluf Zahle of Denmark, the conference adjourned until this afternoon. This was to meet the convenience of those delegates who have not yet completed their work in connection with the preliminary conference and who desire to frame some kind of convention.

The international conference has received numerous petitions. One, from the International Medical Association of China, comprising chiefly British and United States physicians, declared that the habitual use of opium, morphine and heroin is unnecessary, deleterious and morally degrading. The association added the warning to physicians throughout the world that the greatest care should be exercised in prescribing narcotic drugs as it might lead to a habit worse than the disease itself.

Eliminate Traffic.

Various British organizations headed by the League of Nations Union, advised the conference that the British and Indian Governments should see to it that the exportation and importation of opium in connection with the eastern colonies is gradually reduced over a period of ten years, until it is prohibited altogether. Exception is made for opium required for medical and scientific purposes.

Alluding to the failure of the preceding conference, which was confined to countries having Far Eastern colonies, to elaborate an effective system for the suppression of the opium traffic in the Far East, Representative Stephen G. Porter, head of the United States delegation at the outset of yesterday's deliberations made it clear that something must be done in this direction. He gave notice that the delegation reserved the right to present some suggestions looking to regulation of the situation in the Far East. Thus he paved the way for later introduction of some plan of attaining suppression of legalized opium smoking within a definite period of years.

GENERAL WILLIAMS TARGET FOR BOMB

Throwing of Grenade May Follow His Announcement of War on Liquor.

TORONTO, Nov. 18.—(Canadian Press).—The Home of General V. A. S. Williams, Commissioner of Ontario Provincial Police, has been the mark for a hand grenade bomb and the city and provincitl police admitted last night that they are puzzled.

General Williams, when asked for details, pleaded to be excused from giving any information as it might interfere with the investigation under way to determine what connection the incident may have with the announced intention of the commissioner to make the Ontario Temperance Act a matter of serious business for those who engage in the bootlegging business.

It was said last night that General Williams was in his home, when he heard the report of the explosion, and on going out into the yard found unmistakable evidence of the throwing of a hand grenade bomb.

City Police on duty in the neighborhood also heard the report and accompanied General Williams in search of the immediate vicinity of his house.

DRIVER KILLED SIX

Newfoundland Youth Charged With Manslaughter on Trial.

ST. JOHN'S, N'd., November 18. —The trial of Leonard Reid, on the charge of manslaughter, arising out of the motor accident on the Topsail Road, in September, when six men were killed, commenced on Monday. The evidence of several witnesses were taken, including that of the two naval men who were present, and who recently returned here from their ship, H.M.S. Constance. The jury will be taken out to go over the scene of the accident and the case may be concluded to-day.

Two of the men killed were in a group of fourteen veterans of a Newfoundland Regiment, who were about to enter a bus when Reid's machine struck them. They were Captain G. J. Whitty, winner of the Military Cross and Lieutenant William King.

The automobile, after running into the crowd swerved down an embankment, killing four of its occupants. They were Lieutenant Commander D. P. O'Callaghan and Lieutenant Burroughs, of H.M.S. Constance; George Harrison of Chatham, N.B., and Clinton Duder, of St. John's.

SMALLPOX OUTBREAK

Six Deaths in Minneapolis Since Saturday—157 in Quarantine.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., November 18. — Six deaths from smallpox in Minneapolis since Saturday night, were reported on Monday night to the local health department, bringing the total deaths for the year here to 55. The number of cases in quarantine yesterday was 157 compared with 124 a week ago. The number of cases reported thus far for this year total 523. Nearly 1200 persons were vaccinated at the city hall here on Saturday and a like number applied on Monday.

There are nearly 150,000 persons in Minneapolis not vaccinated, Dr. E. Harrington, the health commissioner announced.

AMERICAN HUNTERS IN NORTH ONTARIO

Invasion This Season More Numerous Than Ever—Luck Varies.

COBALT, Nov. 18.—An unusually large number of hunters are in the bush throughout the district at the present time, but so far very few deer have been bagged. It is rare indeed that the moose has been the victim of the hunter's gun this year. Whether this is due to the scarcity of the animals or inexperience of the gunmen is not known.

From North Bay district where it is evident the game are more plentiful and the hunters more experienced, there is a different story to tell. Early in the week upwards of a hundred moose had been bagged and shipped from that point.

Some of the parties comprise as many as forty men. The Elmira Hunt Club, numbering thirty, are camped on Deux River, forty members of the James Hunt Club, Buffalo, are hunting on the French River, along with 30 members of the Ingersoll and Galt Club. Mr. Leeds a multi-millionaire, and party of eight from New York, have been up the Kipawa branch for a week, and when they return to North Bay this week-end they will take a trip to the gold and silver camps of the district.

There are more hunters in the bush this year in Northern Ontario from the United States than ever before.

ASK ABOUT SURPLUS

LINDSAY, Nov. 18.—At the recent meeting of the Board of Trade the relation of the Hydro Commission to the town of Lindsay was discussed at some length. There is a feeling among a great many of the citizens that the town is not getting a square deal in the matter of rates from the Hydro, and that the municipalities in the Central Ontario area are not partaking of the surplus which is credited to the operations of the Central Ontario Power System.

One speaker made the statement that the surplus which the Hydro enjoyed as a result of the operations of the Lindsay utility went to pay the deficits on certain utilities owned by the Hydro-Electric, such as the Peterboro Street Railway. Another speaker quoted figures to show that Peterboro enjoyed more favorable rates for domestic and industrial power than did Lindsay but his attention was drawn to the fact that the Electric City owned its distribution plant. It was further asserted at the meeting that on the occasion of a power shortage Peterboro profited at the expense of Lindsay.

The history of the power situation as it affects Lindsay is an interesting one. Some years ago the services of an engineer were secured to bring in a report relative to the possibility of developing power at Fenelon Falls. His report was not considered very favorable, and the scheme was dropped. Some time later a local company was formed for the purpose of acquiring Fenelon Falls water power for developing electrical energy. The services of an engineer were secured and he reported the possibilities for electrical development were very promising. The new company operated for a number of years under the name Lindsay Light, Heat and Power Company, and supplied Lindsay with power for street, industrial and domestic purposes. The company finally sold its rights to the Seymour Power Company, which controlled the Central Ontario system. Lindsay later had the opportunity of purchasing its distribution plant from the Seymour Power Company, but turned down the offer. Those who opposed the proposition at that time realize today that a serious mistake was made.

FRENCH WOMEN ABANDON ROUGE

Natural Complexions Return to Favor Due to Men's Preference.

LIPSTICKS, TOO

PARIS, Nov. 18.—Rouge, powder and lipstick manufacturers are aghast at the possibilities of the new "no camouflage" rage which has been followed by the abandonment of cosmetics by thousands of French women.

Natural complexions have returned to fashion. While a year ago heavy rouging, eyebrow plucking and other artistic beauty builders were absolutely necessary for smart women, to-day every chic function is crowded with women who have forsworn painting the lily, some even going to the extent of allowing their eyebrows to grow.

Fernand Van Derem, famous writer of feminine fashions, says:

"I have questioned hundreds of girls regarding the reasons for the change and they all claim that it is because husbands, fiances and lovers object to artificial complexions."

The announcement that Mrs. W. E. Corey, the former Mabelle Gilman, had given her beautiful Villegenis chateau to the Russian aristocracy for use as a home for children of poor, but noble, families needing country air, created a stir.

It was at this chateau that Mrs. Corey gave her famous dinners to Russian grand dukes just before the war, those parties ranking among the splendid fetes of social record.

CANADIAN EXPORTS FOR SEVEN MONTHS LARGER

While Imports Decline Considerably—October Trade Shrinks.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 18.—(Canadian Press.)—The grand total of Canadian trade for the month of October was more than four and a half million dollars less than in October of last year. For the seven months ending October 1924 Canadian trade was over forty-four million dollars less than in the same period last year, according to the monthly statement of the department of customs and excise.

Exports for October are ahead of the same month last year by more than three million dollars being valued at $103,202,462. Imports fell from $75,640,654 in October last year to $68,116,115 in October this year. For the seven month period exports are ahead of last year when the value was over $554,000,000, while for the same period this year, exports are valued at $585,384,416. Imports for the seven months ending October are valued at $465,275,567 and in the same period last year valued at $539,970,971.

WABI IRON WORKS BURNED.

NEW LISKEARD, Ont., Nov. 17. —Fire destroyed a portion of Wabi Iron Works here Sunday. The fire originated in the boiler room. The industry is the only one of its kind in the North Country and the temporary interruption will be keenly felt by the town of New Liskeard and the mining industry, as the company employed about 75 men and manufactured mining machinery and supplies of various kinds.

CANADA'S LOANS WELL SECURED

Post-War Credits to Foreign Allies Total About $45,000,000.

FRANCE REPAYS

LONDON, Nov. 18. — (Canadian Press). — Some interesting figures in connection with war and post-war credits granted to foreign allies by the Dominion of Canada have been gathered by the Canadian Press.

The total of these advances was practically $45,000,000, as follows: France, $5,887,000; Belgium, $6,930,000; Roumania, $24,000,000; Greece, $8,174,000.

Interest received from France amounts to over $1,500,000; from Belgium, over $1,250,000; from Roumania, $2,000,000; from Greece, $730,000.

This year France will repay, including interest, $5,657,000, and Belgium $2,278,000.

Canada at the end of this year will have received in cash 30 per cent. of her loans to foreign countries and will hold definite security for the remainder.

SECOND LAP OF BULL MOVEMENT

NEW PEAK PRICES

NEW YORK, Nov. 18—The stock market, having obtained its "second wind" over the week end after running at a furious pace in the ten business days following election, Monday bounded forward on the second lap of the "bull" movement which is founded on the speculative theory that a marked revival of trade is in prospect. Sixty issues were lifted to new peak prices for the year during the day's trading, which fell slightly short of 1,700,000 shares, with net gains of one to six points scattered throughout the list.

The average of twenty leading industrial stocks mounted to the highest level since the post-war boom was at its height in the early part of 1920, while the average of twenty leading railroad shares was at the highest point in over seven years.

The market hesitated slightly at the outset as professional traders held off to find out whether the public was going to "buy them" or "sell them." They did not have to wait long for an answer because buying orders began to pour into the market over commission house wires from all sections of the country. The tremendous demand for stock in the last fortnight has resulted in a sharp decrease in the "floating supply" with the result that some sharp advances took place in many of the popular speculative issues.

RENAULT TO MEET ROMERO.

NEW YORK, November 17.—Quintin Romero, heavy weight champion of Chile, signed articles here this afternoon to meet Jack Renault, the Canadian heavy weight champion, in a 10-round bout in Boston on December 5th.

TRIP TO RUGBY GAME WINDS UP WITH MARRIAGE

A COLLEGE YOUTH

Bride Kissed by Whole Chapter of Her Husband's Fraternity.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18. — Miss Elizabeth Collins, Buffalo society girl, got fooled Saturday. She came into Philadelphia secure in the belief that the trip was only for the purpose of seeing the Pennsylvania-Penn State football game. Instead, she was married. And she was kissed by the whole Omega Chapter of the Delta Sigma Pi fraternity at Temple University.

The bridegroom is E. Hallie Sutton, 24-year-old sophomore at Temple. In his double capacity as husband and member of Delta Sigma Pi he got two kisses. And Dr. Russell H. Sonwell, president of Temple, who performed the ceremony, collected an osculatory demonstration for himself, too.

The marriage was performed in the study of Dr. Conwell's home at 2020 North Broad street. It came after the most exciting morning the two young people ever had.

Pleaded in Reading Terminal.

At 7:48 Sutton met Miss Collins at the Reading Terminal. Right off the bat he proposed that they marry at once. She demurred. He pleaded his case in the crowded waiting room. Two hours later they got the license.

When Dr. Conwell entered his study, where the couple was waiting for him, he saw the Delta Sigma Pi chapter gathered in the rear of the room.

"Why the crowd?" he asked.

"Fine," he commented after explanations.

The simple ceremony proceeded without a hitch, although Sutton swallowed audibly a couple of times. After the magic "man and wife" words the clergyman said:

"Mr. Sutton, kiss your bride."

Sure enough, Mr. Sutton did. Then Dr. Cronwell continued:

"I will now take advantage of the holiest opportunity that comes to me as a minister."

Whereupon, he kissed the bride. That done, the minister turned to the fraternity brothers.

"Gentlemen," he said, "kiss the bride. If any one of you doesn't take advantage of this opportunity, I'll do it for him."

It was not necessary for the clergyman to do any pinch-hitting.

He begged, promised, stormed a bit and smiled cajolingly, and finally he got Miss Collins to say "Yes, but——."

The "but" was indecisive.

All kissed. Then Sutton accepted his cue.

"Come on in the waiting room for a moment. I've a real surprise for you," he said. "I want to tell you something before we go to breakfast."

Sutton selected an unoccupied bench in the centre of the commuters' rush. He took Betty's hand in his and said:

"This will come as a surprise to you, but I've made all arrangements for us to be married this noon."

"What!"

"I've made all arrangements."

Betty was a study. She was pleased and fussed and displeased and indecisive and * * *

"Oh! You must be fooling!"

"I'm not!"

"But how about mother?"

"What's your mother got to do with it? I'm marrying you, not her."

Then Sutton continued. "Listen, dear, I haven't slept for a week, I've been so busy arranging this wedding. Play square and go through with it."

"But how about your school?" Betty asked. Any spectator could see she was casting about for argu-

12,000 YEARS OLD

At Least Countess Says She Roamed Forgotten Atlantis Then—Insists She Was a Boy in Previous Incarnation.

COUNTESS ROSANKA

PITTSBURG, Nov. 18.—You would think she was still in her 20's —But Countess Electra Rosanka says she was alive thousands of years ago.

Why, 12,000 years ago in a previous incarnation, she insists, she was roaming the far-famed, but since long-lost, continent of Atlantis. Stranger yet, she was a boy then—a boy named Bailum Numinos.

Writes Books.

So sure is she about it all that she has written a 90,000-word book describing conditons of the time of yore.

The countess, the American-born wife of a Russian nobleman who died during the war, styles herself a psychic, mystic and philosopher. She is now in America, recuperating her fortunes in her former profession —singing.

"Atlantis," she explains, "lay between what is now Europe and America. All of the continents were shaped differently. Parts of the ocean beds have risen.

"And in 750 years this will happen again—only it will be America that will sink. From the bottoms of the Atlantic and Pacific will rise slimy beds, and evolution will begin anew.

Recalls Language.

"America will be destroyed for the same reason that Atlantis was sent beneath the waves 12,000 years ago. It will become over-populated. Its men and women of intellect will progress too far for divine intelligence and will stop what might become impious learning and wisdom."

As to her former incarnation being that of a boy, the countess says, "The soul is sexless. Every person who studies reincarnation knows that the soul comes back many times as man, many times as woman. In our own Scriptures the idea is expressed crudely. 'In Heaven there shall be no marriage or giving in marriage.'"

FRANK KELLOGG IN "MOOT" TRIAL

U. S. Ambassador Guest of Benchers of Gray's Inn—From Tudor Times.

GAVE JUDGMENT

LONDON, Nov. 18. — (Canadian Press).—Yesterday was "call day" at the Inns of Court, and last night Frank B. Kellogg, the United States Ambassador, was the guest of the "benchers" of Gray's Inn where he was called to the bar.

The proceedings included the interesting ceremony of holding a "moot" trial at which Mr. Kellogg had the honor of presiding over a suppositious case involving a British contractor's liability to carry out further deliveries of whiskey to a United States consignee after one of his consignments had been confiscated under the prohibition law.

After hearing arguments, Mr. Kellogg gave judgment based on the view of the British courts that British law could not sanction a violation of the laws of other independent states.

Lord Justice Atkin, in proposing a vote of thanks to the United States Ambassador, said that "moots" in Gray's Inn were of great antiquity, and from the time of Queen Elizabeth formed part of the regular training of barristers. Lord Bacon had listened to the arguments of students at the self-same table.

This occasion was unique in their history, continued the Lord Justice, and Mr. Kellogg in his judgment had applied the principles of common law reigning in both countries and proved the unity of the two English-speaking nations.

Mr. Kellogg, who wore the bencher's gown, in returning thanks, said it was the first time in 46 years at the bar that he had acted as judge.

FOURTH PREMIER IN FOUR MONTHS

FARMER IN SADDLE

MELBOURNE, Australia, November 18. — Canadian Press Cable via Reuters.—J. Allan, leader of the farmers' party, is now in the saddle as Premier of Victoria, and he has included in his cabinet the second last premier of Victoria, Sir Alexander Peacock, as treasurer.

Changes in the Victorian government have been kaleidoscopic. In a little more than four months there have been four premiers of the state. It is just a little over four months since H. S. W. Lawson was overthrown on a non-confidence motion in his government. Premier Lawson was succeeded by Sir Alexander Peacock as premier.

Then a few weeks ago Sir Alexander Peacock followed his predecessor on a similar motion of want of confidence, and G. M. Prendergast, Labor leader, stepped into Peacock's shoes as premier of Victoria. Last week Prendergast went the way the two previous Premiers had gone, a non-confidence motion moved by J. Allan, resulting in Prendergast's downfall.

TWO DEAD IN FIRE

Dozen Injured by Explosion On Gasoline Barge.

LINDEN, N. J., November 18. — Fire following an explosion on barge 44 of the Lambert Transportation Company of New York, while it was taking on a cargo of gasoline from the S. S. William Boyce Thompson of the Sinclair Navigation Company docked at Staten Island Sound here early last night, caused the death of at least two men, injury to probably a dozen more, and destruction of the two ships, containing 87,000 gallons of gasoline.

HOME PROBLEMS OF BRITAIN TO GET ATTENTION

Baldwin Proposes Inquiry Into Food Prices as a Guide to Government Action.

BREAD INCREASES

Dilution of Building Trades Labor Likely to be Opposed By Skilled Workers.

LONDON, Nov. 18. — (Canadian Press).—As already foreshadowed in Canadian Press cables, domestic problems will figure prominently in the Legislative programme of the Baldwin administration. The Government is credited with the intention of appointing a Royal Commission to investigate food prices, and Sir Philip Lloyd-Greame, President of the Board of Trade, has already conducted a preliminary survey of the position which he will submit to the meeting of the Cabinet on Wednesday. The Ministry, however, is being told by some of its supporters that a Royal Commission is a too cumbrous measure and that special business experts could, in a very short time, gather reliable information, sufficient to enable the Cabinet to formulate a line of action.

The bakers of Glasgow yesterday intimated that there will be another increase in the price of bread, and pointed out that the people of Edinburgh for some weeks have been paying more for their bread than the citizens of Glasgow. There seems to be no ground to doubt the assertion of the bakers that the continued increase in the cost of high level flour makes an increase in bread prices imperative. As for the consumers they are paying double the price for bread what they paid before the war.

The price of coal remains two shillings a ton more than the price last November.

Housing Problem.

Concerning the housing problem which is as acute as any which the Government has to tackle, Neville Chamberlain, Minister of Health, who has had long and practical experience in housing matters in the municipality of Birmingham, admits that thousands upon thousands of people are living in working-class houses to-day who do not properly belong to that class, not because they could not afford to pay for better accommodation, but because such housing accommodation is lacking.

Mr. Chamberlain is said to have decided to make an offer of generous terms to the building unions if they will permit the admission of semi-skilled labor. What the unions' rejoinder to such a proposal may be is gathered from the statement of the secretary of the building trades, Monday that the acceptance of other than skilled tradesmen creates a floating reserve of half-trained men who could carry on at a loss to the unions in times of industrial disputes. Besides, he adds, this dilution in the skilled ranks would be a new form of smashing the unions.

Unions' Attitude.

Against this argument it is asserted that the trades union operatives believe the present situation in housing in Great Britain offers them a certain and profitable livelihood for another twenty years and they are determined that nobody but the skilled tradesman shall share it.

Prominent Liberals throughout the country are appealing to the Government to discard party issues in tackling the housing problem and to treat the matter as a straight business proposition.

THE WEATHER.

Still a little colder this morning. Five above zero was the lowest point reached last night, and at which figure it stood as day was breaking. The planet Venus, above the eastern horizon in the early morning, is a beautiful object at the present time. Before long it will gradually rise later and later, and eventually appear in the western sky after sunset as an evening "star."—W. P.

NINETY TRANSPORT WORKERS WALK OUT

Officers, Organizers and Officials Object to Reinstation of C. H. Gosling.

LONDON, Nov. 18. Canadian Press —The question of reinstating the ex-Ministers of Labor Government in the positions they formerly held in the trade unions, has led to one of the strangest strikes in the history of the trades union movement.

Nearly ninety officers, organizers and officials of the Transport Workers Union have gone on strike as a protest against the action of the unions' executive in deciding to reinstate Harry C. H. Gosling as president of the union, the position he held before he became Minister of Transport in the late government.

The plea of the executive is that when the office became vacant, on Mr. Gosling entering the government, it had been decided to abolish it on the grounds of economy. This means that Mr. Gosling, who is now ill, loses his governmental salary of 2000 pounds a year, and gets no compensation, as the other ministers do, by resuming his former position.

Much secrecy is being observed, but the supporters of Gosling hint that personal reasons have actuated the executive, and insinuate that it is the intention of the executive to place Ernest Beavin, the secretary of the Union in complete control.

Secretary Beavin said late last night that the council had discussed the question and had sent a communication to Mr. Gosling, which would be satisfactory to him.

The secretary refused details, but the labor correspondent of the London papers, including the Laborite Daily Herald, understand that the communication invited Mr. Gosling to resume the presidency. It is believed therefore that the offending officials will withdraw their resignations and that the incident is over.

ORDER TO DIE OUT.

Four Vacancies In Order of St. Patrick.

LONDON, Nov. 18. — (Canadian Press).—His Majesty King George has decided that the order of St. Patrick shall die out. There are now four vacancies in the Order. His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught is Senior Knight, being created on his birthday in 1869.

Knights of the most illustrious Order of St. Patrick (K.P.) was established in 1788. Its ribbon is of sky blue, and its motto, "Quiss Separabit" (who shall separate). The most prominent of Irish nobility are members.

BURNED TO DEATH IN A PARSONAGE

Charred Body of Minister's Wife Found in the Furnace.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, Nov. 18th.—(United Press).—County authorities probed a murder today in the mysterious death of Mrs. C. V. Sheatsley, wife of a Lutheran, minister and capital university professor whose charred body was found in a bed of coals in the furnace of the parsonage. The Rev. Mr. Sheatsley told the authorities that he discovered the remains after noticing a odor of burning flesh in the house.

"She must have committed suicide," the pastor said in reporting to police headquarters.

Coroner Murphy and prosecutor King however declared they were unable to understand how Mrs. Sheatsley could have crawled into the bed of coals and a complete investigation was ordered. Mrs. Sheatsley's body was so badly burned the coroner said that it was impossible to determine whether she had bee attacked before her cremation.

A NATIONAL ASSET.

As the greatest transportation company in the world, the Canadian Pacific Railway has maintained a national service in the Trans-Canada Limited which is second to none and on the conclusion of the summer schedule of this crack train has transferred the equipment to the Vancouver Express which leaves Toronto every night at 10.10 p.m. on its trip across the continent, via Winnipeg, Calgary, Banff, Lake Louise, the spiral tunnel, Sicamous and parts of the Canadian Pacific Rockies famous throughout the world, on its way to Vancouver, where the travellers are unanimous in their praise of the service of the Vancouver Hotel. The Canadian Pacific also operates a steamship service to Victoria, the Meeca for winter tourists.

Not only does the Vancouver Express carry tourist and standard sleepers, but it also carries a compartment-observation car complete in itself, while a parlor car is added from Revelstoke to Vancouver.

Added to this national service is a feature service from Toronto to Montreal via the Lake Shore Line, which has been entirely reballasted with crushed rock and relaid with 100 pound rails, insuring a maximum of comfort for travellers at night as well as an absence of dust in daytime. Trains leave Toronto Union Station at 9.00 a.m. daily, 10.00 p.m. daily except Saturday, and 11.00 p.m. daily. Arriving at Windsor station, the traveller has the benefit of immediate facilities in the women's rest room, lunch room and barber shop, which cannot be duplicated in any other station in Montreal. An added convenience is offered those who wish to travel to Montreal from North Toronto, in the 9.45 p.m. train, daily except Saturdays, from Yonge street station.

Canadian Pacific agents will gladly make your reservations and supply you with any information you require. They are fully qualified to offer a "second to none" service to the public.

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY-SEVEN APPLICANTS FOR A POLICE JOB

Included in the List of Men Who Would Serve Campbellford as Chief of Police is John Brown, Formerly of Peterboro.

WEEDING OUT LIST.

Mayor A. J. Meyers, Reeve C. Davidson, Deputy Reeve Dorie, Councillors, Abernethy, Cole, Johnston, Kingston McDonald and Redden making a full council.

The Court of Revision composed Mayor Meyers, Reeve Davidson, Councillors Johnston, Kingston, and McDonald met first. There were two cases of appeal. Dr. G. A. Hay, V.S. asked for lowering of his business tax. After a very lengthy discussion by the Court, Assesor and Dr. Hay, Reeve Davidson, moved and Councillor Johnston seconded that the tax be left as it was.—Carried.

Mr. Chas. Dunk was given permission to state his case. Mr. Dunk claimed that he was assessed too high in comparison with some other properties and asked that it be lowered. After a short discussion it was decided, on motion of Councillors Kingston and McDonald that the assessment remain as it was in the first place. There being no other appeals, the Court adjourned after which the Council took up its business.

By-Laws Passed

The first business was the passing of several by-laws prepared by the Solicitor for the construction of sewers and water mains on several of the streets. The first one on Cock burn and Second streets, the rate of interest to be five and on half per cent. on motion of Councillor Cole and Deputy Reeve Dorie. The debentures will extend over a period of fifteen years instead of ten, on motion of Councillors Cole and Abernethy. The by-law carried.

In reference to the report of Market Street and Oliver Road, it was pointed out that there were not sufficient names on the petition in favor of the sewer in comparison with those against it. Nothing could be done.

After the readings of the by-law for Front and Major Streets and Oliver Road the by-law was declared passed, all being in favor.

The clerk read the names of the property owners on this part of the work and also the number of foot frontage and total cost for each one. The total for all for frontage for this sewer was estimated at two thousand five hundred and twelve dollars and fifty-one cents.

Moved by Deputy Reeve Dorie and seconded by Councillor Cole that the clerks report be accepted as read.—Carried.

For the by-law for Major street and Oliver Road, the votes were called. All voted yea. On motion of Deputy Reeve Dorie and Reeve Davidson, the work on Front street, Major street and Oliver Road will be done by the day under the Supervision of Councillor Cole the Superintendent of Roads and Bridges.

Councillor Redden asked that the Council help to pay the expenses of having a Surveyor come and give the lines on Kent street from Church street and on the Concession Line.

The council granted fifteen dollars for that purpose.

Police Vacancy.

The next item of business was the receiving of the applications for the position of Chief of Polie.

There are one hundred and fifty-seven applications. But the reading had to be postponed because Councillor Cole demanded a "notice of motion," and in spite of all arguments as to this meeting being for that purpose, he insisted on a "notice of motion."

But as there were two applicants from out of town present for that purpose, and one in town, Councillor Kingston and Reeve Davidson moved and seconded that these men be heard.—Carried.

Ex-Chief John Brown of Port Hope, was the first to speak. He told of his experience. He has had ten years experience in Scotland, several years in Peterboro, and also in Sudbury, before coming to Port Hope. He had his testimonials with him. His appearance and manner very favorably impressed some of the councillors but nothing further could be done but to hear those present. Mr. Cephas Dé Mill of Madoc, also made a personal application, as did Mr. George E. Hay of town.

With the permission of all the members of the council, Mayor Meyers appointed a committee of five to look over the applications and choose about fifteen of these, and submit them to the council at their next regular meeting on Monday, December 1, 1924, just two weeks from this meeting.

Councillor Kingston is the chairman of this committee. On motion of Reeve Davidson and Councillor McDonald, the Council adjourned.

Girl Run Over.

Marie Hollings, whose parents live on Raglan street, aws run over by a car on Monday after four o'clock, while crossing over from McArthur's butcher shop to Birk's drug store, on Tice street. She was cut around the head but in some miraculous way she escaped being crushed or having any bones broken. When there are so many cars, and children coming from school, great care should be taken by both the drivers and those who are crossing the streets, so that such accidents may be avoided.

Local Boy Bereaved.

Mr. Roy Bell, Balaclava Street, received word that his mother died on Monday about noon. Mrs. Bell who lives at Frankford has been ill for some time and her death was not unexpected. Mr. Bell left in the afternoon for Frankford, and will remain till after the funeral. The late Mrs. Bell leaves one daughter and two sons—Mrs. Will Bush of Frankford, Roy, of Campbellford and Arthur, of Rochester.

Born—In Campbellford, on Monday, Nov. 17th, 1924, to Mr. and Mrs. Front Street spent the week-end

Rev. Chas. Carpenter, Rector of St. Leonards church, North Toronto, preached two very able sermons, at Christ Church, on Sunday to large congregations both morning and evening. It is seven years ago since Mr. Carpenter was Rector of Christ Church in Campbellford. The choir with Rev. G. C. Clarke as Leader and Miss Maynard as organist, rendered some fine music and had a special anthem for the occasion Rev. Mr. Carpenter was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Maynard Queen Street, while in town.

Mrs. Chas. Macoun, of Seymour West, is in Toronto this week, attending the big convention of the Women's Institute, which is being held this week.

Mr. Wm. Bonney ,of Warkworth, brother of Messrs A. I. Bonney, Hastings Road, and E. J. Bonney, Victoria Street, of Campbellford, celebrated his eightieth birthday on Monday. His friends gave him a post card shower.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Adamson and two daughters Phyllis and Betty, Front Sareet, spent the week-end with friends in Peterboro.

Mrs. Henry Baker and son Billie, River Road, returned home from Peterboro, on Monday noon ,after beingg up to see Mr. Baker, who has been in the Hospital for nearly two weeks with a very sore eye. The doctor says he can not tell for a week whether he can save the eye or not, but has hopes that he may be able to do so. Mr. Baker has suffered a great deal. Much sympathy is felt for his family for he was the principal breadwinner.He has worked on Corporation work for several years.

WOLVES ATTACK APSLEY CATTLE

BEARS NUMEROUS.

That wolves are a menace to young stock at Apsley 35 miles north of Peterboro, and that bears are also more plentiful than for many years is the news brought back by Steve Fisher of this city and his son A. Fisher of Collingwood. These men have just returned from a deer hunt with a party that worked from Grassy Lake to Copper Creek, ten miles north of Apsley. They report that the howling of wolves disturbed their sleep at night.

Many sheep in that country have been killed and one night the wolves pulled down and ate a steer. On another occasion a calf was killed half a mile from camp.

Hunters at an adjacent camp had their hounds chased by the wolves, but managed to kill one of their pursuers. This party also got a mother bear and two yearling cubs.

CROWN PRINCE KEEPS HIS WORD FOR YEAR

He Has Refrained From Political Activity Since He Went Back to Germany.

OELS, Germany, Nov. 18.—It was just a year ago last Thursday that former Crown Prince Frederick William crossed the Dutch frontier into Germany, and Friday marked the first anniversary of his reunion with his family here.

The year has been an eventful one in Germany's effort at reconstruction, and the politicians have made many attempts to enlist the returned exile in party activities, but apparently without success. The former Crown Prince, who, under the laws of the Republic bears the title Prince of Prussia, has kept his word that he would live as a private citizen if permitted to return from the muddy little island in the Zuyder Zee where he passed five lonely years with only a few peasants and two old servants as companions.

Many rumors have been circulated as to his probable adoption of some calling aside from his work as gentleman farmer on his Oels estate, but these have all been denied. At one time it was insistently reported that he would become a dealer in agricultural implements, and there were rumors of his probable embarkation upon a banking career. There have also been suggestions that he might stand for election to the Reichstag, which would have pleased many large estate holders who have tried to induce him to appear publicly for the purpose of encouraging the extreme Nationalistic movement.

His eldest son has entered the office of a large exporting house in Hamburg and is apparently destined for a business career, but the father has confined his own activities to farming, with much horseback riding and occasional trips to Berlin, where he has limited his social activities to a small circle of pre-war friends.

LIBERAL MEETING.

W. E. N. Sinclair Has Called Meeting of His Supporters For Monday, November 24th.

TORONTO, Nov. 18.—(Canadian Press.)— Provincial Liberal leader W. E. N. Sinclair has called a meeting of his supporters for Monday, November 24th, the Prince George Hotel. There will be representatives present from each of 111 ridings and in addition, Liberal members of the Legislature will attend. These delegates constitute the Leader's advisory committee, and the meeting is called primarily for the discussion of organization work throughout Ontario.

SCHOOL CADETS ATTEND CHURCH

About Forty Members Paraded at Millbrook on Sunday.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 18. — About forty of the school cadets attended divine worship at the Methodist Church on Sunday evening, Lieutenant B. J. Dawson, officer commanding, and Captain R. Shaw being in charge. The inclement weather considerably lessened the number of other worshippers, but the showing of cadets was exceptionally good.

The choir rendered two selections, including an anthem, "I was Glad," and "Since I Gave My Heart to Jesus," Mrs. G. W. Sagles taking the solo in the first number.

The text from Luke xii., 48: "For unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall be much required; and to whom men have committed much, of him will they ask the more," chosen by Rev. F. W. Howard, was particularly appropriate to the occasion, the speaker presenting the call to the boys and young men of to-day for the profitable investment of a useful life from two standpoints. First, that Canada is a land of opportunity where immigrants come to mine, fish, farm, hunt, manufacture, preach, teach, practice a profession—everything, and find there is room and a chance to make good.

"The main use of the old Canadian stock is to lead, guide and uplift the millions who enter this Dominion, working the raw material into the men and women they should be." "Wealth is of no account unless it is backed by a sane, Christian citizenship. A fool at the wheel of an expensive car makes it into an instrument of death, and a wastrel, holding a fortune, is a menace to his community and to the nation."

God's way through all the ages has been, when a good people fails to make good, to give another nation their possessions, and use the lesser to develop His plan. "You boys may shape the destiny of Canada by a strong, persistent pursuance of high ideals."

Secondly, you are living in a great time. Sir Charles Beresford once said, after a world tour, "Nowhere is there so good a type of Anglo-Saxon citizenship as in Canada," and we are evidently intended of God to lead humanity, and be a determining factor in developing the end Divinity has ordained. God is justified in expecting a lot of you fellows."

"Empty your purses into your heads, and then empty your heads into your hearts, and you will reap a character that will shape destiny and be crowned with eternal blessedness." "To help assimilate the incoming races is a job for you, and this is only one of the big problems that must be solved either to-day or to-morrow. You may put rye flour in with the wheat, but you've got to make bread nevertheless."

Getting a living is an important thing, but the problem of living a life worth-while is far bigger than that, yet you can do this if you will, and you will unless you dodge, or shirk. It does not follow because cadets receive military training that they are to be soldiers. War is a crude way of contending with sin because sin is of the heart, and the latter remains unchanged when the foe is beaten. The only way to destroy our enemies is by the Spirit of God converting them into the type of character we shall be glad to call our friends. Spiritual warfare calls for spiritual weapons, therefore "Put on the whole armor of God" and take the sword of the Spirit which is the Word of God, for herein lies the only hope of solving the world's animosities.

"Enlist as a soldier of the Cross and you become a real man because in Him you live, and move, and have your being."

2 DEAD; 4 MISSING IN BIG HOTEL FIRE

Police Sergeant Disappeared In Attempt To Rescue Guests—Feared Dead.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Nov. 18. —(Canadian Press).—With a toll of two known dead and four missing, the fire which destroyed the Bothwell Hotel and its annex, formerly the Senator, last night, and for a time threatened many fine residences at the coast resort, was burning itself out today.

Nothing but part of the walls of the hotel remained and the casino on the famous steel pier was practically wrecked The loss is estimated at $1,500,000. One man, James Bennett, 80, of New York City, died shortly after midnight as a result of injuries received as he was being rescued from the flames, an unidentified women is known to have perished, and it is feared that at least three more guests of the Hotel may have lost their lives. Police sergeant James A. McMenamin, one of the most daring members of the Department, has not been heard from since he went into the Senator about 10 o'clock in an attempt to rescue some guests and it is feared that he died in discharge of his duty. About a score of persons, most of them firemen, were injured during the progress of the conflagration although none but Bennett suffered serious injury. The cause of the fire is still undertermined.

The burial grounds of China have always been held sacred, not to be distrubed under any circumstances. The result is that one-twentieth of the country is occupied by graves. It is now commencing to be realized that the living should have first consideration and the cemeteries are giving way to modern progress.

DOMINION WIDE BODY FORMED BY CONSERVATIVE CONVENTION

Eighteen Vice-Presidents Representing Each Province Appointed—Enthusiastic Gatherings.

QUEBEC SITUATION.

TORONTO, Nov. 18.—(Canadian Press), — The Liberal-Conservative Association of Canada was formed yesterday at a conference of representatives from Provincial Conservative organizations in all but New Brunswick of the nine provinces of the Dominion, assembled here at the invitation of Ontario Conservatives. Right Hon. Arthur Meighan was elected honorary president and was enthusiastically endorsed as leader of the party. J. R. MacNicol, of Toronto, was elected president; J. A. Lamarr, of Montreal, secretary, and Hon. Robert Rogers, of Winnipeg, treasurer. The latter tried to decline the nomination, but the gathering drowned out his protest with cries of "Good Old Bob," and no other name having been advanced for the post, Mr. MacNicol, as chairman, refused to permit Mr. Rogers to decline. The latter said that he was doubtful if he could fill the post, but whether he was active treasurer of the organization or not he would promise his best efforts for its success.

Eighteen vice-presidents, comprising one woman and one man from each province, were appointed. Provincial organizations will be asked to nominate members of the executive, which will co-operate with the Dominion committee for organization purposes.

Vice-presidents nominated were: British Columbia, Mrs. R. F. Green, Victoria, and R. L. Maitland, K.C., Vancouver; Alberta, Mrs. R. J. Russell, Edmonton, and Hon. R. B. Bennett, Calgary; Saskatchewan, Mrs. J. R. Wilson, Saskatoon, and Fred. Sommerville, Regina; Manitoba, Mrs. Brown, Winnipeg, and Major W. W. Kennedy, Winnipeg; Ontario, Mrs. H. A. Winnett, London, and L. B. Spencer, Welland; Quebec, Mrs. Henry Joseph, Montreal, and Hon. Rudolpe Monty, Montreal; New Brunswick, not appointed, owing to the absence of delegates; Nova Scotia, Mrs. Martha Scanlon, Halifax, and Frank Stanfield, Truro; Prince Edward Island, Mrs. Andrew Murphy and Arthur A. Alley, Charlottetown.

William Clydesdale, of Toronto, was named assistant secretary.

The decision to form a Dominion-wide association was formed after a special committee of twenty had conferred during the luncheon recess and drawn up three resolutions embodying the proposal for such an organization. All three were accepted and an alternative proposal, which was never more than tentatively suggested, for the Dominion committee to proceed through the successive stages of organization to such an association, did not come before the convention at all. When the committee's proposal was made in the afternoon it was adopted with one change, without discussion. This change making the number of vice-presidents eighteen instead of five was made to ensure each province having proper convenors for committee work.

One of most cheering phases of Federal political situations so far as Right Hon. Arthur Meighen is concerned is the manner in which Conservatives of Province of Quebec are making headway.

That was the tenor of the messages received yesterday by the big gathering of Conservative workers, when the delegates to the National Conservative Association were guests of Ontario Association at luncheon at King Edward Hotel, and when Hon. Mr. Meighen appeared as chief speaker.

There were two things in particular which pleased Mr. Meighen. One was the remarkable demonstration of loyalty and enthusiasm made by the three hundred workers who had gathered from coast to coast for the formation of a National Association, and the other was the support which the Conservative caus was gaining in Quebec. In dealing with the latter situation the Conservative leader remarked that some people were under the impression that the Conservative flag was very low in Quebec, but such was not the case.

THE COST OF ELECTIONS.

That a long campaign is not necessary to bring out a large proportion of the vote is evidenced by the British elections of December, 1923.

Although the campaign in the Motherland lasted but a few weeks, it is announced out of a total of 21,283,085 possible voters 14,523,398 marked their ballots, a percentage of 68.24.

That is a showing not equalled in Canadian political contests, despite the fact that the preliminaries here usually take much more time.

It is interesting to note the cost of these British elections.

The expenses of 1,446 candidates running for 615 seats were £982,340, at par of exchange about $4,774,000, according to an official statement just published under an Act of Parliament known as the Corrupt and Illegal Practices Act and transmitted to the Bankers Trust Company by its British information service.

The expenses were divided as follows: Agents, £124,631; clerks, £124,631; committee rooms, £52,647; printing and stationery, £436,411; public meetings, £58,529; personal expenses, £60,492, and miscellaneous, £82,334.

This works out at a cost of £679 per candidate for all purposes.

HYDRO ON A FLAT RATE BASIS.

Among the resolutions to be discussed at the United Farmers' convention is one calling upon the Provincial Government to place the Hydro-electric system upon a flat rate basis.

Fully sympathetic with the desire of the farmers to secure the benefits of a plentiful supply of power at as low a rate as possible as it is, the Examiner cannot see how a flat rate system can be justified.

It seems no more reasonable to say that customers living at a long distance from the source of power should be supplied with electric energy at the same price as those living near at hand than it would be to argue that the railway passenger rates should be the same from Peterborough to Toronto, for example, as they are from Peterborough to Lakefield.

The principle upon which the Hydro system was founded was the furnishing of power by a publicly-owned system at cost to the people, and it is only on such a basis that the organization can continue.

The supplying of power to the farms of Ontario is a development in the general interest, but in granting a substantial bonus out of the public treasury toward the cost of both primary and secondary construction the Ontario Government has gone as far in that direction as it is justified in going.

Certainly those municipalities whose vision and foresight were responsible for Ontario's publicly-owned power system would be the victims of a most indefensible breach of contract were a flat-rate basis to be substituted for the working plan now in use.

A NEW DANGER.

Reference has more or less frequently been made in these columns to the fact that the regulations in regard to the sale of firearms were elastic enough to cause an unnecessary menace to public safety.

These articles were based upon the general idea that careless handling of such weapons was responsible for many accidents—as undoubtedly it is.

But a new danger has arisen.

Not only is there the chance of a fatal shooting as the result of carelessness in using a good firearm, but there is the even more serious menace that is to be found in the careful handling of a poor weapon.

Several tragedies in Ontario have revealed the fact that firearms of a very inferior character are being imported into Canada, many of them from Germany, and finding a ready sale because of their cheap price.

An examination of three different types of these imported rifles has shown that they can be discharged in at least five ways without the trigger being touched at all—in fact, it is possible to discharge them by merely closing the bolt sharply or striking the butt upon the ground.

In addition, the weapons respond to a very light pull upon the trigger.

Any firearm that can be discharged so easily as these makeshift weapons should be forced off the market.

Reliable rifles are in themselves a danger when they fall into careless hands, but these new "jerry built" imported weapons are a source of danger no matter how carefully they may be handled.

WAR AND THE SCHOOLS.

One of the subjects that may be considered by Ontario farmers at their convention in Toronto next month is covered by a resolution that asks that all glorification of the war be removed from school books in Ontario, repudiates military training in the schools and condemns expenditure of monies by the Government for that purpose.

No one wants Ontario's schools to develop a military citizenship, but, frankly, there does not seem to be the slightest danger of any such result.

The small amount of military training in the schools does nothing more than help to give the boys a little exercise; certainly it does not produce fire-breathing militarists.

So that portion of the resolution seems to be tilting at wind-mills.

As for the rest of the motion, the Examiner is utterly out of sympathy with what it implies.

War should not be glorified, of course; it should be held up to the boys and girls of the Province as a fearful mistake, as something that must be avoided by the peoples of the earth.

But great deeds of valour were done by Canadians in the World War.

It is but fair to them that the new generations should be told of these things, and made to feel that because of the courage and the self-sacrifice of these men that Canada is a free country.

Most certainly our school books should see to it that the exploits of the Canadian army are not forgotten.

Ontario does not want her boys to grow up into war-loving citizens—but neither does she want them turned into namby-pamby, thin-blooded pacifists because they are considered not strong enough even to be entrusted to hear that in the days that are gone their fathers and older brothers answered the call of duty and won great fame for the land that sent them forth.

THE FOUNDATION OF TAXES.

With approach of municipal elections the old cry against taxation is resumed. People are shouting against mounting tax-bills, and candidates, reacting to the storm, are championing economy. As usual, everybody promises retrenchment.

Perhaps it would be beneficial if people, as a whole examined their consciences about the causes of taxation, says the Ottawa Journal. For if they did so they would have to admit that nine-tenths of our high taxes are due to public demands. Go over the list of last year's Council meetings; and what is found? Simply that half of the time was taken up in discussing—and usually granting—demands for new expenditures. Every day, week, month, delegations appear at City Hall. What is their object? In nine cases out of ten it is to get some new dip into the city treasury for something, or somewhere, or somebody.

"Our real trouble is that we regard the Government as a national, state or local Christmas tree. We want to pick something easy, comfortable and costly off its branches all the time. We have increased federal and state bureaus tenfold to do things for us most of which we should do for ourselves. But if we continue to keep all these things and create others, to help ourselves to governmental luxuries as well as necessities, how long can we pay the bills?"

Take, in the case of Ottawa, public playgrounds. Fifteen or twenty years ago it would have been regarded as absurd for the city to provide playgrounds for children. Today the public demands them. Or take public baths. Who would have thought them necessary, or desirable, at public cost, ten years ago?

Services of this kind cost money. So do improved streets, better sidewalks, increased police protection, more modern fire-apparatus, better lighting. So do a host of other things that Mr. Taxpayer demands today, but which our less heavily-taxed forefathers did without.

The cold truth is that we want to have comforts, and progress, and beauty, and improvements—without paying for them. It is about time we showed a little common sense about the matter.

JAPAN CHAMPIONS CHINA.

The persistent and systematic fashion in which Japan champions China at this time, whether before the League of Nations or the International Opium Conference, should come as no surprise to those who have been watching developments in the Far East since the war. Two or three years ago, Japan abandoned definitely and almost dramatically her mistaken war-time policy of trying to coerce China. She signified this change by voluntarily evacuating Shantung and making other concessions to Chinese feeling. She turned, indeed, a complete summersault, having found that the policy of pressure not only did not work but that it resulted in arousing even the patient Chinese to very costly resentment.

Ever since this change of policy, Japan has been wooing China. She has been chanting "Codlin is your friend, not Short"—Short being the white Powers which are always betraying a benevolent desire to guide the faltering footsteps of the oldest civilization on earth, with a neat commission on the fees. Any outside nation which proposes to really help China, without helping itself too generously at the same time, has a very easy record from which to make gains. China has had precious little disinterested help.

Japan, in endeavoring to win the confidence and friendship of China, has a vast amount of prejudice to live down. The Chinese never have had a very high opinion of their ambitious and active little neighbor off the coast. They despised her quite heartily until the first Chinese war. Then they learned that she was dangerous. Later, they saw that she could even beat back the hordes of great Russia with all their modern war equipment. This impressed that very small section of China which takes any interest at all in outside events, but did not win for the Japanese quite that amount of respect and awe one would have imagined. The Chinese reaction to this demonstration of military skill was merely that the quite properly despised "dwarfs" who lived in Nippon had fantastically thought it worth while to imitate the Western barbarians in their crude development of force and had naturally beaten them at their own game, which showed—if it needed the showing—that the Chinese could do it much more effectively if they ever were foolish and barbarous enough to try. And this motion might be right at that.

But nothing irritated and disgusted the Chinese more than that the Japanese should try to coerce them—them of whose scholarly civilization Japanese culture was but a poor imitation. It was true that the Japanese had at the moment the weapons that would enable hem to do so. But this affected Chinese feeling much as if a company of giants should suddenly find themselves held up in a dark alley by a diminutive thug who chanced to have a revolver. They might have to yield then, but that fact had no relation to the real strength of the parties.

China, of course, invokes other "weapons" in her defence, chiefly the boycott. This is a passive form of resistance which appeals to the Chinese mind, and which inflicted a great deal of damage on Japan. Many in China imagine that it was the true cause of Japan's unexpected surrender of Shantung; but European observers are more inclined to the opinion that the Japanese are playing much shrewder and far-sighted politics than that. And Japan's appearance in Geneva as the chivalrous defender of China bears out this latter theory.

* * * *

There is one feature of the case that will not be lost upon outside observers. When Japan throws her shield over China, it is a strong enough shield to protect China against allcomers. Careless writers talk about European or American intervention in China because of this or that local disturbance or menace to their interests. But all Europe and America could not interfene in China if China objected to intervention and if Japan supported her objection.—Montreal Star.

A THOUGHT.

A FOOL CANNOT

The trouble is, we all get excited before we start to think.

Anger is a sudden sentiment of displeasure and usually wears off with a few hot words. But how these "few hot words" reveal us to the world!

The daily disposition to get angry can be cured if you will only take time to watch others, who are making fools of themselves. The lesson should be enough.

If you have an explosive temper, you have about the most expensive human handicap.

When a pitcher gets angry, he loses the game. Let the lawyer lose his "goat" and he wins—defeat. When anger is in, real ability goes out.

In matters of love, the one with the truest affection will be more inclined to abandon an argument.

Put it this way: To quarrel with a superior is silly; to wrangle with an inferior is small; to fight with an equal is very doubtful; to get angry at the one you think a great deal of is at least disquieting and sometimes dangerous.

A fit of anger seldom pays, and after it is all over, how well we know it. The important thing is to be able to stop the fit before it gets started.

Nine quarrels out of every ten would never start if people would only stop to ascertain whether the difference is worth contending about.

There are folks who are never happy until they are unhappy, never satisfied until they can start a quarrel. They are alive with the microbe of antithesis, and eventually dead so far as their former friends are concerned.

One or two fits of anger a day result in resentment toward the world. "Resentment" is anger continued—continued until all common sense is lost and most of our friends are forfeited.

When choler shows in your countenance—when there is anger in your head or resentment in your heart, have guard rails put around you and place a sign near your desk: "Beware."

Anger supports the doctors, revenge supplies the funeral directors with "cases" and the jailers with jobs.

He that cannot rule himself will ruin himself.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Nov. 17.—The top on export steers this morning was $7.25 a cwt., the same as last week. From this prices ranged down to as low as $6.25 a cwt. Some good feeders were wanted for Glasgow and these cost from $5.50 to $6.75 a cwt. Export cows were bought up to $5 and export bulls at $4.50 a cwt. Prices of the export cattle were accepted as steady.

In the butcher cattle the only change was in the plainest of the killers, which were hard of disposal. Good quality handyweights sold around $6 and good mediums $5 to $5.25. One load of good medium heifers sold at $5 a cwt. Butcher cows and bologna bulls were all taken at steady prices. There was considerable activity in the stockers and feeders. D. Flanigan bought four loads of feeders for the London district at $5.50, and quantities of yearling stockers went out at $3.50 and $3.75 a cwt. Buying was active all through the market, but to-day's heavy offering will scarcely be cleaned up.

Calves are beginning to show a sign of weakness and few were able to get over 10½ cents a pound today. Good medium calves were 8 to 9 cents. Heavy calves sold in bulk lots at $4.75 a cwt.

The lamb market was steady, the average price on light lambs being 11½ cents, with a few choice bunches at 11 3-4 cents a pound. Heavy lambs were 10¾ to 11 cents. Choice sheep were steady at 7 cents.

Hogs were quoted steady at $8.75 a cwt. f.o.b. and there was a feeling that there might be some advance on this price.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Nov. 17.—The export trade in Canadian grain here to-day was reported very quiet owing to the somewhat limited demand from English importers. A moderate aount of business was done in cash grain, including sales of No. 2 Northern spring wheat at $1.72 per bushel, No. 3 Northern at $1.66 per bushel, c.i.f. Montreal, and about 150,000 bushels of all grades of Canadian Western oats were sold with No. 1 feed grade at 43½ cents per bushel over the Winnipeg November option and No. 2 feed grade at 1 cent per bushel under the same option, c.i.f. Montreal.

There was also some enquiry for re-cleaned standard wheat screenings which were offering at $26 per ton, c.i.f. Montreal. The trade in car lots of grain was quiet, but the tone of the market was firm. Ontario No. 3 extra malting barley at $1.09, No. 3 grade at $1.08. No. 2 white oats at 63 cents, No. 3 grade at 60 cents, and No. 4 grade at 58 cents per bushel, ex-track.

There was no further chance in potatoes, prices being about steady at the recent decline noted, but the volume of business was small. Green Mountains were quoted at 80 to 85 cents per bag, and Quebec varieties from 70 to 75 cents per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

There was a slightly better feeling in butter, which was attributed to some improvement in the demand for supplies of all grades for shipment to outside points; however, the advances were only fractional. There was no improvement in the demand from English importers for cheese and the volume of trade was small and the market was quiet with an easy undertone, but no further change in prices was announced.

A fair trade continues to be done in new crop beans. Prices were quoted at $2.65 and $2.75 per bushel.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Wheat underwent something of a set-back in price to-day after the announcement that the United States visible supply total had increased to nearly 100,000,000 bushels. The wheat market closed heavy, 3-8 to 7-8 cent. net lower December 1.53¾ to 1.53 5-8, and May 1.60½ to 1.60 3-8, with corn at 7-8 to 1¼ cents gain; oats 1-8 to 3-8 cent up, and provisions varying from 12 cents decline to a rise of 7 to 10 cents.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, Nov. 17.—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here to-day as follows:

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enchances its appearance a hundredfold.

Dont' bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application is becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

TRIP TO RUGBY

ments, perhaps a little afraid she might find a good one.

Presses His Arguments.

"That's all taken care of. I'm going to get a job. And my allowance will take care of you."

"Oh, I can't go through with it!"

Betty had a sudden fear. She appeared to be considering a little weeping. But she only considered it.

"You afraid?" demanded Sutton.

"No, but what would mother think?"

"Oh, bother! I'll send her a wire." Sutton reached for her luggage. "I'll check these and then we'll get the license," he said.

"But I'll have to go home. We can't be married this way."

The boy grew quietly argumentative. "Why do you have to go home?" he wanted to know. "Surely there's no need of it.

"I love you Betty and you love me. Isn't that enough? We've been engaged four years now and I'm tired of waiting. I'm lonely. Why, you don't know how much I've set my heart on our marrying to-day. I've even arranged with Dr. Conwell to perform the ceremony."

"But my family will be so cross!"

The boy tossed his head. "My family won't mind," he said, and the "my" was stressed. "They'll be proud to have you for a daughter-in-law."

He paused a moment for the compliment to sink in. It did. Betty smiled up at him.

"Let's get a license," he suggested.

"Why a license" demanded Betty.

"Well, that's the first thing we have to have."

Sutton started to the check room. There was confidence in his carriage. Betty appealed to her sister and her prospective sister-in-law.

"What would you do?" she asked.

The two girls, suddenly changed from spectators to participants, grabbed the opportunity. They told her to go through with the wedding. They pointed out that any one with half an eye could see Sutton was terribly lonely.

When Sutton returned from the bag-checking expedition he asked: "Will you go for the license?"

And Betty surrendered. "Yes, but——" she said.

Get Marriage License.

After breakfast, the party went to the Marriage License Bureau, where a good time was had by all. The couple took a place at the end of the line, arm in arm. Miss Collins snuggled a bit closer each time the linee "moved up one" until, when she and Sutton were at the license clerk's desk, any one one would have guessed they were sweethearts.

Betty answered all the clerk's questions in the usual firm voice and she was immensely interested in the red tape necessary for those who would wed in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. After Sutton paid his $150 the party left for his partment at 2012 North Broad street to await the hour of the ceremony.

In these quarters, consisting of a living room, bedroom, bath and kitchennette, the couple will live two years when Sutton will have completed his finance course in the School of Commerce. Then they'll go to the Orient for a honeymoon. At least, that's the way Sutton has figured it out.

The bridegroom is president of his class in the School of Commerce at Temple, in which there are about 400 members, and a member of the Owl Honorary Society to which campus leaders only are eligible.

CHARLES HANNA VISITS DELORO

Liberal Candidate in West Hastings By-Election Was Well Received.

HON. T. A. LOW SPOKE

MARMORA, Nov. 18.—A Liberal rally was held at Deloro Hall on Friday evening, November 14th in the interests of Charles E. Hanna, candidate for the West Hastings bye-election. Mr. F. A. Bapty, in the regrettable absence of Mr. T. E. Laycock assumed the duties of chairman. With a few general remarks the speakers of the evening were introduced to the audience. Mr. Bapty pointed out that whereas Deloro had seen little of the late member, they were indebted to him for resigning. Mr. Hanna had already become active in the interests of their village and due to his activities, an improvement in the mail deliveries would soon occur.

Mr. Hanna, in addressing the gathering, made a most favourable impression. He dealt very modestly with his municipal work in Belleville as he appealed for support.

Hon. T. A. Low received a warm welcome on rising to speak. He urged the return of the Liberal candidate at the coming election. He showed how Hon. James Murdock's action had been approved by one of the largest majorities ever recorded in the House. He also spoke of the endeavours of the Government to secure greater markets for Canadian goods. He cited the case of the Canadian Government Railways being brought into a more flourishing condition through the able management of Sir Henry Thornton. This appointment criticized by Mr. Meighen up and down the country was now being praised by the Ottawa Journal, a paper strongly in favour of Mr. Meighen and his policy. Hon. Duncan Marshall followed with a witty and pleasing speech. He ridiculed the Murdock charges and the attitude of Mr. E. Guss Porter concerning them. Continuing, he dwelt upon the Government's general policy and in conclusion besought all electors to give Mr. Hanna their vote and support in the coming election. The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem, Mr. Ross Hunter presiding at the piano.

The attendance was made up of employees of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Co. and farmers of the locality.

NEWS OF BETHANY

Interesting Programme Provided for Annual Fowl Supper.

BETHANY, Nov. 18.—The miniature winter of Thursday night and the resulting sloppiness of Friday were the means of keeping many away from the fowl supper held by the Ladies Aid of the Methodist church here on Friday night. "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good", however, for the many who were served were shown the real hospitality of the Bethany Ladies Aid, both in the liberal serving of hot fowl, potatoes, gravy, etc., which was followed by the usual pies, cakes, tarts, etc. and everything that goes to appease the appetite of a hungry man, as well as the real welcome which was extended by the ladies to all.

Added to this very satisfying menu was a good programme. The main feature of which was a play entitled "Tom's Fiancee", which proved to be a humorous mix up in girls when a new stenographer and the city son's fiancee arrived to meet the family on the same day. The part of the mother was able portrayed by Miss Priscilla Howden. Miss Hazel Jackson was true to life as the daughter of the house. Miss Jean Thorndyke was a scream in her first appearance as Toms girl. Miss Winnie Dawe retained a most dignified bearing throughout as the stenographer, while the little maid, Miss Marion Fallis did ample justice to the part of the maid.

Miss Lila Parsons of Omemee gave several songs in her usual good taste and Mr. George Nichols of Peterboro ably assisted with song and several catchy stories. While the Bethany male quartette composed of Misses Leslie Challice, Edward Bray, Douglas Driver and Otto Spencer elected rounds of applause and were forced to respond to an encore. Rev. Mr. Dafoe was the very capable chairman for the event. A motion extending a vote of thanks to Miss Parsons and Mr. Nichols for their services which were free gratis was made by Mr. A. Monk and seconded by Mr. J. Porteous, followed by a hearty clap of hands by the audience.

After the National Anthem the people adjourned to the basement where an auction sale of fowl, cakes and pies was held. Mr. A. Monk acted as auctioneer, the proceeds for the evening amounted to $175.00.

Rev. Mr. Fierheller was a visitor in Toronto on Thursday.

Mr. S. Jamieson spent Saturday in Peterboro.

Miss Violet Ryley of Toronto spent a few days last week the guest of her mother, Mrs. T. G. Ryley.

Miss Laura Morton was a Peterboro visitor on Friday.

Mrs. George McCarthy is spending a few days with relatives in Keene.

Mrs. Irvine is the guest of her son in Lindsay for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Moncrief of Omemee spent Sunday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. Cairns.

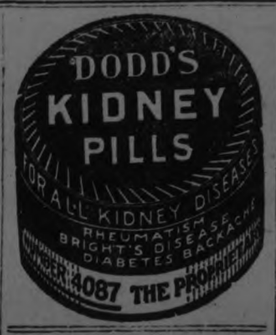
Mrs. W. Price who has been spending a few days with relatives in Peterboro returned home on Saturday.

Mr. Walter Rowland met with a painful accident last week, while engaged in plastering. He was unfortunate to have some plaster dron in his right eye, necessitating the services of a specialist.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Howden of Omemee were the guests of their daughter, Mrs. H. Bigelow, a few days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor of London are spending a few days the guests of Mrs. Taylor's brother, Mr. John Porteous.

The members of the Adult Bible Class of the Methodist church are holding a bazaar in the basement of the church on December 6th. All the articles offered for sale will be of a useful nature.



An ordinary suit weighs about 6 1-4 pounds. By using the thinnest materials or flannels, it can be brought down to 4 pounds. At the best, however, a man must carry ab out 8 pounds—for an ordinary pair of shoes will weigh 2 pounds and at least another 2 pounds would be added by all the other articles of dress.

HON. MEIGHEN TO SPEAK AT MARMORA

Conservative Leader Appears Wednesday Night at Porter Meeting.

MARMORA, Nov. 18.—Preparations for a big Liberal-Conservative rally in the district on Wednesday evening, November 19th, are being made. Speakers supporting the candidature of E. Guss Porter are the Hon. Arthur Meighen, Donald Sutherland, M.P., Hon. J. R. Cooke, M.P.P., and R. D. Ponton. A musical programme will be rendered. In all probability the meeting in the Town Hall, Marmora will be preceded by a short meeting in Deloro Hall.

Auction Sale.

Brisk business was done in the sale by auction of household effects and farming stock, the property of Mr. George Stanley, conducted by Mr. Fred Johnston on Saturday afternoon. Prices obtained for cattle were medium whilst for sheep prices were good. High prices were realized on articles of furniture. Favorable comment was heard on all sides on the manner in which the new recruit to auctioneering handled his third sale.

Tricked By Moon.

The rising moon o'er Eastern Marmora on Sunday evening about 9 p.m. when a cold wind was rising was mistaken by some anxious folk as a conflagration at a well-known farm. A little distance was covered before the mistake was detected. This goes to prove that moonlight can play tricks upon the imagination as well as moonshine.

Mr. and Mrs. John Simmons of Campbellford spent the week-end in town.

Through her brother having met with a motor cycling accident near Bannockburn, Mrs. Norman Kilpatrick is away on a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Lloyd of Bannockburn.

Mr. Louis Shannon after a long absence, is renewing acquaintances around town.

Mr. Michael O'Connor who formerly conducted a meat store here is back on a visit to relatives.

Mr. Martin Murray has returned home from the West after spending the summer out there.

BLACK SEA PORTS COLD TO RUSSIANS

Wanderers Can Find No Place That Welcomes Them.

VARNA, Bulgaria, Nov. 18. — (Associated Press).—Into the port of Varna there sailed the other day a schooner bearing a group of Russians seeking a haven. The Rumanian authorities looked them over and, for political reasons, bade them Legone without delay. Today the wanderers are headed for a Turkish port, but with little hope that they will be any more welcome there than they were here.

It was last March that the survivors of eight Russian families, Old Believers, 35 men, women and children, started from a little village near the Chinese frontier to seek refuge from hunger, epidemic and religious persecution. Painfully they made their way across the country by foot and in trains. At Cherson, on the Black Sea, they secured two schooners in which to continue their wanderings. One of the boats went down in a storm, with all on board. The surviving vessel came into Varna, after having been drive.. away from the Rumanian port of Mangalia.

Bulgaria refused the wanderers a haven because of recent difficulties with Soviet immigrants and emissaries.

MR. J. PERRY

Why Be Offensive With Bad Breath?

Mr. J. Perry of 792 DeKalb Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"I awakened each morning with an unpleasant taste and was often reminded by my wife that my breath was disagreeable.

"I tried perfumed tablets, mouth washes and other camouflages which gave only temporary relief.

"After consulting my dentist and finding my teeth in good condition, I confided in a friend, who suggested that possibly my trouble was constipation—faulty intestinal elimination. After taking a few doses of Carter's Little Liver Pills, my stomach and bowels were relieved, foul and impure gases eliminated.

"I now enjoy a wholesome breath as well as improved health. Carter's Little Liver Pills are small, easy to take, move the bowels in a gentle manner—without discomfort and distress."

LOANED THE CHIEF $2,000 AND THEN GOT A PROMOTION

DIDN'T WANT JOB.

MONTREAL, Nov. 18.—The police of Montreal are powerless to close apartment houses which are known to be the hangout of persons of loose character, and where immorality exists, because there is something wrong with the law, according to Inspector Egan, Chief of Detectives, who was the sole witness at the Judicial Inquiry yesterday.

The Chief added during his testimony that when many of the cases were brought to court one judge took a different view and rendered a different judgment to another, and that the police did not know where they stood. The only remedy against the evil, in the opinion of the witness, was to make continual raids in an effort to have the occupants of such houses discouraged.

Giving evidence yesterday, Inspector Egan denied having collected money from gambling house keepers and bookies, either directly or through the intermediary of Sergeant Archambault. He also denied having made any arrangement to collect such money and to share the proceeds with Chief Belanger.

He was colsely questioned as to a number of houses alleged to have been denounced to the police by Rev. Father E. Blanchard, but he denied that those houses had been denounced to him.

He admitted that his loaning of $2,000 to Chief Belanger was followed very shortly afterwards by his promotion to the position of inspector in charge of the detective office, which carried with it an increase in salary of $500 a year. There were two men senior to himself, Deputy Chief Leggett and Inspector Robert, and he had passed over their heads in becoming chief of detectives. He had told Chief Belanger, when informed that he was to be appointed, that he was not at all keen on the job.

FRANCE TO HEAL ITS WAR WOUNDS

Grants Amnesty To Maloney and Will Forget Caillaux Offenses.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—(United Press)—The Senate granted an amnesty to ex-Minister Malvey and indicated it would do the same for former premier Joseph Callaux, who was convicted of defeatist activity during the war. The Malvey Amnesty clause of the Chamber Bill was adopted by a vote of 195 to 62 ,immediately after a vote of 176 to 104 to retain the clause regarding amnesty for the premier.

Premier Herriot spoke in the Senate in support of the amnesty bill for Caillaux saying: "The Government has no intention to recall the entire affair. We would not suggest an amnesty for a traitor but there is no treason involved in the Caillaux case."

France must complete the work of pacification. The nation took measures thought necessary during the war when National Defence was the subject of utmost importance, but it is now time to throw a veil over what happened during the war. This act cannot weaken the country.

To-day's session were members of the body when it sat as a high court of treason and exiled Caillaux from Paris and other important cities.

PSYCHOLOGY IN NEW FIELD.

Taxicab Company Cuts Accidents One-Half By Testing Drivers.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Psychology has enabled a local taxicab company to reduce its accidents 50 per cent. by the discharge of 15 per cent. of the drivers after tests were made by Dr. A. J. Snow, psychologist at North-Western University.

Dr. Snow explained that the first test was a simple mental one, followed by electrical tests to determine whether the applicant is susceptible to becoming paralyzed with fear in the face of danger. Other tests determine whether the man likes to take chances for a thrill or has a mania for speeding.

TEXTILE WORKERS TAKE PAY CUT

WEBSTER Mass., Nov. 18.—The north village mills of the S. Slater & Sons Company, employing 650 operatives resumed operations today under at 12 1-2 per cent. cut in the wage schedule. When the cut was first announced five weeks ago with restoration of full time, the operatives after discussing the proposition decided they would rather have slack time than accept a wage cut and strike followed. President H. N. Slater then agreed to the old scale and part time.

DENIES PROBE DROPPED.

NEW YORK, November 17. — "Nothing is being covered up in the Dolan-O'Connell baseball scandal. Everything is being done that can be done," John A. Heydler, president of the National League, said to-day.

EXPENSES ARE HIGH

PARIS, November 18. — Cinematograph show proprietors are loud in their complaints against the high cost of carrying on their trade. Their principal expense, the hiring of a programme of films, as increased 30-fold since 1918.

In that year the principal expenses for a small establishment were 100 francs for hire of films a week, experienced operator 120 francs a month, a good first violin, 250 francs a month, taxes 380 francs. At the present time, however, the same entertainment costs 1000 to 3000 francs for hire of films a week, 800 francs a month, first violin 1200 francs, taxes, 4750 francs.

HUNTERS HERALDED BY STORIES OF EXPLOITS

Lakefield Nimrods Desert County for Parry Sound Woods.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 19.—As the hunting season advances the return of the hunters is heralded by tales of prowess and of splendid returns. Several local hunters have brought down deer and other game. The majority of hunters from Lakefield have deserted the county back woods and have gone into the Parry Sound district which is said to abound in game.

Where Light Needed.

As the long dark evenings are with us it appears that this is the time to urge that a light be placed near the railway station. Few villagers are as well served by street lights as Lakefield but in the heart of the village is this one dark spot which is forbidding and induces strangers to ask: "Why no light."

Mrs. J. C. Smith was the hostess of a delightful little bridge party at her home on Queen street on Friday evening. Mrs. O. A. Langley was the winner of the first prize and Mrs. H. J. Sutton won the consolation prize.

Miss Constance Stuart entertained a number of her young friends at a party in honor of her thirteenth birthday on Friday evening last. The young people spent a delightful time in games of various kinds.

Annual Entertainment.

Plans are being made for the annual Methodist Sunday School entertainment which was an annual affair for many years in the village. For the past few years it has been dropped but it is to be revived this year.

Series of Sermons.

Rev. Walter Cox began on Sunday evening a series of sermons on the prayer book which will be continued till Christmas and probably longer on Sunday evenings.

A shower for the Fair of All Nations which is to be held in December, will be held in the school room of St. John's Church on the afternoon and evening of Wednesday, November 26th.

Fair of Nations.

Plans are being made for the elaborate arrangements pertaining to the Fair of All Nations which is to be held in the Memorial Hall on December 11th, both afternoon and evening.

Lakefield Personals.

Miss Jean Ridpath of the Peterboro Normal School spent the week-end at her home in the village.

Miss Angela Osborne was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Batten at Hall's Glen for the week-end.

Mr. Gordon H. Grahame spent a few days in Montreal last week.

Miss Marling, who spent the past fortnight in the village with Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Marting, returned to Toronto on Monday.

Mr. A. M. Fitzgerald of Toronto spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Fitzgerald.

Mrs. Alex Spence of Young's Point was in the village on Friday last.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Charlton were in Peterboro on Wednesday last.

Mrs. O. A. Langley was in Peterboro on Wednesday.

Mrs. J. W. Todd was a visitor to Peterboro on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Hunter have returned from their cottage at Stoney Lake.

Mr. Harry Armstrong, who spent the summer in the Parry Sound district returned to the village last week.

Mrs. J. W. Todd was a visitor to Peterboro on Wednesday last.

Mrs. S. W. Sutton was in Peterboro on Wednesday.

MEXICAN FARMERS NEED MORE MONEY

Agricultural Future of This Country Is Menaced.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 18.—(Associated Press).—Discussion of a project for the establishment of agricultural and industrial banks to finance manufacturers and supply funds with which to develop lands which the Government is restoring to the peones under the existing agrarian laws, has been initiated by the permanent commission of the Bankers' Convention, called to outline a new banking system for submission to Congress.

Mexico's agricultural future is menaced and crop totals already have been greatly reduced, it was pointed out during the discussions, because many villlages and individuals who have been awarded lands have been unable to work them as a result of inability to buy machinery and finance themselves until their first crops are sold. Thus great districts, once productive, are now neglected and abandoned, notably in the State of Morelos, once one of the richest States in the Republic.

RUM TRADE OF LINDSAY DRUG STORES IN SLUMP

Provincial License Board Restricts Supply to Distributors.

LINDSAY, Nov. 18.—"Dry as the Sahara Desert' is the way a well-known citizen described conditions in Lindsay, owing to the slump in the liquor supply furnished local druggists by the Provincial License Department.

As a result of the investigation carried on a few days ago by Vice-Chairman Dingman, of the Provincial License Board, into wet conditions here, the department has put the clamp on the liquor supply furnished druggists and doctors. It has been announced that the local doctors are now only supplied liquor in six ounce quantities, and only forty-eight six ounce allotments per week. It is further announced that the druggists have received notice that they will receive a supply of 12 quarts only from the government dispensary in future. Heretofore they have received their supply from the druggists.

As a result of this drastic action there are a good many parched throats among those who received their libations by the drug store route.

NEWS OF NORWOOD.

LEAGUE WORKS AGAINST DRUGS

Strong American Delegation Present at Conference of League in Geneva.

INDIA HANDICAP.

By HENRY WOOD.

GENEVA, Nov. 18.—(United Press).—With a strong American delegation present, fully prepared to put up a hard fight for the adoption of American principles, an international conference convened here today, under the auspices of the League of Nations, for the suppression of international traffic in opium, cocaine and all harmful drugs.

The conference is the most important one ever summoned on this subject, far exceeding in the number of states represented and in the scope that it is expected to attain, the Hague conferences of 1912 and 1914 when the first international efforts were made for control of the opium traffic.

Just as the United States played the leading role at those conferences, she is scheduled to be the dominating factor in the conference that convened today, despite the fact that she is not a member of the League of Nations, to which the control of the opium traffic was entrusted by the Treaty of Versailles.

Stephen Porter, Chairman of the Congressional Committee on Foreign Relations, and who last year secured the adoption by the League of Nations of the American program as the basis principle of its world-wide fight on opium and harmful drugs, headed the American delegation. He was seconded by Edward Neville, chief of the Narcotic Bureau of the State Department, who during the past year, has participated in all of the meetings of the league's commissions that were entrusted with the preliminary work of the present conference.

Although the league as a whole has officially sanctioned and adopted the American program as the basic principle of the new international treaties against opium and narcotic drugs that the present conference is scheduled to launch, no secret is made of the fact that the American delegation will have a hard fight to see that its principles are embodied in such a way that they will really be effective.

India Handicap.

This is due to the fact that several of the leading powers represented have vast interests that conflict with the ideals which the American delegation insist must be attained. England, for example, while cordially in sympathy with the American program, is handicapped by the fact that India is one of the greatest opium producing and consuming nations in the world.

France, while also a cordial supporter of the American program, is opposed to the methods which America favors for making the program effective.

Holland has colonial possessions and dependencies that are amongst the leading producers of coca leaves from which cocaine and other derivatives are manufactured.

Finally, the United States, England, France, Germany and Switzerland which are the world's greatest producers of drugs derived from the poppy and coca leaves, have enormous chemical industries that are not at all keen about having their world-wide commerce in these drugs placed under Government control and outlawed.

The American program, which Congressman Porter has succeeded in having adopted by the league, provides that all use of opium, cocaine, morphine and heroin, except for medical and scientific purposes, shall be declared illegal, and that the world's production, both of the raw poppies and coca leaves as well as the manufactured derivatives, shall be limited to what is strictly necessary for the above purposes.

American Principle.

The American principle is that until all over-production of these drugs is stopped it will never be possible to prevent the surplus product finding its way into illegal commerce and unlawful consumption—in other words, into the hands of dope fiends the whole world over.

Statistics secured by the league to date show that the world's production at the present time of these drugs is easily ten times greater than the world's actual medical and scientific needs.

The conference which convened today followed a somewhat similar conference that met November 3 for the purpose of declaring illegal the production of opium for smoking purposes in the Pacific countries. Under the Hague convention of 1912 opium smoking in Pacific countries was not declared illegal, but the way was left open for prohibiting it later on. It was realized that it would be useless to try and make the American program effective by the present conference as long as this vast over-production of opium for smoking purposes was permitted, and hence the preliminary conference was held for the purpose of eliminating this aspect of the situation.

While this conference took the necessary steps to gradually reduce and wipe out opium smoking in the Pacific countries, or at least the production of opium for that purpose, no efforts will be made to prevent, for example, the production of opium in India for local consumption where it is drunk much the same as tea, coffee and wines in other countries.

THE CROSSWORD PUZZLISTS

(By Jeannette).

If you see him standing idly, at a crowded city crossing,
If his eyes are rolling madly and his fingers skyward tossing;
Do not p.t him down as foolish, and as ready for the nut-house,
Steer your car around him gently and forgive his strange condition.

If you stand bewildered, angry, while your time is onward spinning,
And the clerk behind the counter gives you cotton 'stead of linen,
If you can't, without much wonder, understand her strange abstraction,
Do not blame her overmuch, friend. Listen to the explanation.

In the factories, in the houses, on the highways and the byways,
You will meet them, wild-eyed, worried, muttering the strangest phrases,
They will catch you by the coat-tail, they will stand in groups around you,
Pleading for the proper letters, to fit in the puzzling sections

If you wish to gain a halo, and to have all people seek you—
Study up your dictionary. Let them know no puzzles snare you.
Tell them what is "yes" in Spanish, and just what an "X-syster" is,
"Elongated fish" are "eels," that simple, but is "merganser" so easy?

Never mock the puzzled puzzler. Do not say the craze is silly.
You will some day catch the same germ. It will seize you—willy-nilly.
Then your nights will be sleep-lacking, and your days be spent in wonder Whether "flood" just means "tornado?" and "a Pal of lightning" —"thunder?"

"Child's Eyelids Inflamed Stuck Together and Bled"

Mr. E. P. Kimball, Entwhistle, Alta., writes:

"Our little girl from birth was troubled with inflamed eyelids and in spite of several remedies, grew worse until at the age of sixteen months her eyes could not be opened after sleep without bleeding, a waxy discharge sticking the lids together and adhering with great tenacity. The child's grandmothers were consulted by mail, and both responded with a little sample box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. These were used as directed, and lasted until we could obtain a further supply from Edmonton. Improvement was very marked from the first application. The waxy discharge was easier removed and did not reappear. Inflammation subsided and has not returned."

WOLVES PLENTIFUL ALGOMA DISTRICT

Provincial Wolf Hunt Club May Be Formed in This District.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Nov. 18.—(Canadian Press).—The success of the Algoma hunters this year in shooting wolves has prompted the idea here that an organized Provincial wolf hunt, staged in this district, would provide unlimited sport and thrills for the hunters, and at the same time have the effect in decreasing the number of the pests, which the bounty of $15 is not accomplishing.

Already this week, Nosh Piche, of Sault Ste. Marie, and Albert Brechin, of Blind River, have shot wolves while deer hunting, and reports from all sections are to the effect that since the bounty was clipped wolves have become unusually numerous and bold.

The plan in its embryo state is to issue an invitation to Ontario sportsmen to participate in a huge wolf drive at the time of year when no other game is in season and when the wolves are locating deer yards.

It is felt that hunters would respond readily to the invitation.

MUSSOLINI FAVORS WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Expresses Hope It Will Become Law Before Year Closes.

ROME, Nov. 18.—The council of ministers yesterday approved the project of woman suffrage in municipal elections. Premier Mussolini also received a delegation from the Woman's Suffrage Federation, composed of representatives from various parts of Italy. He told the delegation that he hoped a woman's suffrage law would be presented to parliament and passed before the end of the year. The women left the premier highly elated over the cordiality of their reception feeling that their cause had been advanced more by the interview than anything since the suffrage movement was first initiated in 1863. The council meeting authorized the minister of the interior to present a bill to parliament providing for national protection and assistance to maternity and infancy.

The project of the minister of war for the re-organization of the army was approved in general. The cabinet will examine this project article by article at its next meeting.

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—Ernst Von Heydebrand, leader of the Conservative party in the days of empire and known as the "uncrowned king of Frussia," died today at the age of 74. He was a member of the Reichstag until 1918.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour Gassy Stomach and Acid Ingestion.

Doubtless if you are a sufferer from indigestion you have already tried pepsin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know that these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate or milk, but the pure Bisurated Magnesia, which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that provided you take a little Bisurated Magnesia immediately after a meal you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow and moreover, the continued use of the bisurated magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.

KINGSTON SHORT OF HYDRO POWER

City Must Secure More Power to Meet the Present Demands.

C. C. FOLGER'S ADDRESS

KINGSTON, Nov. 18.—C. C. Folger, general manager of the public utilities, gave the members of the Board of Trade an excellent account of the progress of the utilities during the past twenty years. Mr. Folger stated that the plant has continued to increase until at the present time the citizens of Kingston have a plant worth at least $3,000,000.

During the course of his remarks he told of the reduction in the cost of electric current to the consumer. In 1914 there was a rate of 5 cents and 2 12 cents, whereas at the present time the rate is 3 and 1 1-8 cents. In 1904 there were 597 kilowatt hours of power used in Kingston, and this jumped to 2 1-2 million kilowatts in 1914, and in 1923, 10 1-2 millions was the amount being used by the people of Kingston. He stated that there were 300 miles of copper wire in use by the electric light plant, and last year the salaries amounted to $48,000. There were 300 suspension arc lamps, 96 ornamental lights and 86 tungsten lights in use for the lighting of the streets.

Dealings With Hydro

Mr. Fogor gave a brief account of the dealings with the Hydro-electric Commission. In 1914 the city tried to make a deal with the Ceymour Power Company which was later taken over by the Hydro-electric, but was unsuccessful, but in 1916 the commission was very fortunate in closing a twenty-year contract with the Hydro, and this contract has still twelve years to run. He said that the city is getting 3,200 horse power from the Trent River development, about 200 horse power from Kingston Mills and an additional 400 is being made at the plant, which means at the present time there is being used in Kingston daily about 4,000 horse power. The contract which the city has with the Hydro is just like a user. It is allowed so many horse power and pays so much for it, and the city does not have to pay any overhead charges, etc.

"He referred to the question of the co-partnership with the Hydro and stated that the time had arrived when the city must make an agreement by which the city can secure more power to meet the growing needs of the city. The commission had been forced to turn down the Dominion Textile Company which wanted power to run its plaint, and also other manufacturing concerns for the reason that there is no available power.

[illegible] city was to forfeit the present agreement with the Hydro, which still has twelve years to run. It would mean that Kingston might have to pay more for power from the Trent River system. As Kingston is using about one-tenth of the power which is developed at this point, it would be called upon to pay one-tenth of the carrying charges, which means probably an increase it rates, but the city would get more power.

"On account of the lack of power the city has found it necessary to forbid the installation of any more electric ranges and heaters which use the current. There are 1,067 electric stoves in Kingston and 120 electric water heaters.

NATIONAL CONVENTION.

Scotland Wants Same Rule as Canada and Australia.

GLASGOW, Nov. 18.— (Canadian Press.)— National convention for the furtherance of Home Rule for Scotland was held here yesterday with seven members of the British house of commons in attendance. T. Henderson, labor member of parliament for Tradeston division of Glasgow outlined a scheme for empire parliament of all British nationalities and dominions in which Scotland would be included on the same basis as Canada and Australia. Meanwhile Scotland would manage her own affairs in her own territory.

ANNUAL INSPECTION.

Peterborough Rangers Complimented By Inspecting Officer.

The annual inspection of the Peterboro Rangers took place before Major-General J. H. Elmsley, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., G.O.C. Military District No. 3, accompanied by Lt.-Col. R. J. Brook, G.S.O.., and Captain F. Pilley, D.P.M., of headquarters Staff M.D. No. 3.

In the absence of Lt.-Col. F. L. Bradburn, M.C., the Regiment was commanded by Major W. Gordon Hall, assisted by Major G. G. Winterbottom, M.C., D.C.M., as second in command. There was a full turnout of all ranks authorized to train.

The inspection took the form of a tactical outpost scheme east of Nicholls Oval, followed by the general salute and march past in the Armouries. General Elmsley expressed himself as being pleased with the appearance and work of all ranks.

At the conclusion of the inspection General Elmsley presented Major W. Gordon Hall with the Colonial Auxiliary Forces Officers Decoration and long service medals, also to Bandsmen T. McBrien, R. S. Irwin and J. G. Irwin, the Colonial Auxiliary Long Service Medals.

CANADA NEEDS COMMON SENSE

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen Speaks at Liberal-Conservative Convention.

McNICHOL PRESIDED.

TORONTO, Nov. 18.—(Canadian Press).—With nearly one thousand delegates in attendance, the annual convention of the Ontario Liberal-Conservative Association opened here this morning, with J. R. MacNicol, its president, in the chair. The morning session was devoted to the reading of reports of the secretary and treasurer and to the address of Right Hon. Arthur Meighen. The Conservative leader spoke briefly on the national policy and progress which he found Conservatism was making in Canada. He believed that Canadian everywhere were beginning to discover that the departure from the Protectionist policy was jeopardizing Canada's business life and that the only safe road to follow was that of the national policy of Sir John A. Macdonald.

J. R. MacNicol, president of the Ontario Association, and president of the New National Association, was in charge. He outlined the organization work done in various parts of the province during the past year. J. Earl Lawson, treasurer, delivered his report, explaining that extra funds needed in connection with the national meeting yesterday were raised by the Ontario Association through the publication of a booklet, "Canada and Tariff." Mr. Lawson showed the balance on hand in the bank to the credit of the Ontario Association of $3,246, and, in addition, said that good debts due for advertisements in the booklet totalled $1,100.

Expressing his satisfaction with the outcome of yesterday's national conference of the Conservative leaders here Right Hon. Arthur Meighen addressed the Ontario Provincial convention of the party at its commencement this morning. His speech was brief, because the Conservative leader had to leave at noon for a speaking tour of the West Hastings riding.

In his recent tour of the West, Mr. Meighen said he had found the people not at all satisfied with the achievements of the present government. He made special reference to the taxation conference which he said had proved abortive, because the government disavowed the responsibility. The government, said Mr. Meighen, had taken away protection of which the national industry depended, and offered nothing in return. Canada needed not "an expensive shibboleth," or any new business nostrum, but it needed only to get back on to the "rock of common sense of the national policy" and to profit by the experience and tradition of fifty years of prosperity.

PEPALL WINS FIGHT.

He Will Not Be Deported To Canada From the United States.

TORONTO, November 18. — According to a Washington despatch, Andrew H. Pepall, who acted as emissary for Peter Smith, when he was the Provincial Treasurer of Ontario, in the purchase of bonds in Great Britain, has won his fight to avoid deportation to Canda, and will be allowed to stay in the United States.

On behalf of the Canadian authorities Pepall was arested in Los Angeles last May, when it was alleged that Pepall was involved in transactions for which former Provincial Treasurer Smith and Aemilius Jarvis, the bond broker, are now under sentence.

According to the despatch, Pepall has convinced the United States immigration authorities that there is nothing against him to justify his deportation or further bonding by that department.

TEN KNOWN DEAD.

Disastrous Gale Swept Atlantic Coast For 48 Hours.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Leaving in its path a mounting toll of death and disaster, the great gale, which for forty-eight hours held the Atlantic seaboard in icy grasp, appeared to-day to have swept out to sea.

Ten known dead, huge property losses to shipping and wholesale damage ashore was the toll in this section.

Scores of fishermen and rum-runners, caught in the gale, abandoned their sinking small craft and were rescued by coastguard cutters or police tugs.

AUTHORESS LEFT $150,000.

MINEOLA, L.I., Nov. 18.— The will of Mrs. Elizabeth Townsend, better known as Frances Hodgson Burnett, creator of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," who died at Plandome, L.I., Oct. 26 last, was filed for probate here Saturday. The document disposes of $100,000 in real and $50,000 in personal property.

A sister, Miss Mary Jordon, of Plandome, receives the contents of the home of the testatrix at Bermuda and all clothing belonging to Mrs. Townsend.

The will was made March 3, 1915. The residuary estate is left to a son, Vivian Burnett, "to use during his life as he may see fit." The son is also named executor.

MONTREAL PROBE OPENED TO-DAY

Lumbkins Club Incorporated Was Investigated This Morning.

MONTREAL, Nov. 18.—(Canadian Press.)—Lumbkins Club incorporated" local establishment behind Mount Royal, was investigated this morning at the opening of Montreals police probe and Walter Scroggie, its manager, told enquiry, that it was incorporated under the Quebec Charter, but that it had no license for the sale of liquor nor a permit for dispensing beer and wine Scroggie claimed he never had police protection.

When asked by Mr. Justice Coderere for the name of the Clubs president, the witness proiessed not to know it and when pressed, Leonce Plant, his counsel objected. He said it had nothing to do with the enquiry and the Quebec Liquor Commission is looking for the president in question.

His Lordship was determined to know the name and finally after much questioning, Mr. Plante told his client to tell the name, "but asked for the protection of the court."

Scroggie thereupon announced that the president was Alderman Gabias.

NEW PERFECT OF POLICE

PARIS, Nov. 18.—Since taking up his functions as Prefect of Police under Premier Herriot, M. Morain has been carrying on a vigorous campaign against all forms of vice which are likely to injure the reputation of the French capital.

"We don't want to be kill-joys or interfere with people's legitimate pleasures," said a high police functionary. "We want Paris to remain what it always has been—the gayest city in the whole world.

"But the Prefect wants that gayety to remain within the bounds of good taste, for which the French people are famed. He wishes all public places of amusement to be properly conducted."

Pursuing this policy the police have been recently raiding one place after another and making wholesale arrests of notorious characters both in Montmartre and the Latin Quarter, not even neglecting the underworld of Montparnasse.

One question which is occupying the closest attention of detectives but which, perhaps, is one of the hardest problems of all is that of obscene literature, drawings and photographs. Very considerable capital is interested in this undertaking, of which the profits are enormous. But the precautions taken were such that the detectives are running the delinquents to earth. Friday they discovered a stock of many thousands of obscene publications. Five motor trucks full, weighing in all more than twenty-five tons, were removed to the Prefecture. Saturday the police unearthed further depots of a similar nature.

Robert Wormington to Open Song Shoppe in Peterboro

Kingston Standard:—Mr. Robert Wormington, better known to his hundreds of friends in the city as "Bob," left on Sunday for Peterboro, where he will open up a Song Shoppe. Mr. Wormington has had considerable experience in this line of work and was one of the partners of the Melody Shoppe on Princess street. Mr. Wormington sold out his share of the business to his partner, J. L. Jerome, who has taken over the Melody Shoppe.

"Bob" was a well known musician and in addition to being in business was the leader of the Melody Shoppe orchestra which has met with great success. He was an expert saxaphone player and was formerly with the Christmas orchestra when it was regarded as the best orchestra in Kingston. His departure from the city is regretted by his many Kingston friends, who wish him the best of success in Peterboro where he will carry on his new business.

GIRLS HOLD RALLY.

A raally of the 'teen age Sunday school girls of the city was held at the Y.W.C.A. last night, when Miss May Gemmell of Toronto, Provincial Girls' Work secretary, was in charge. About thirty of the leaders of 'teen age girls in the city joined Miss Gemmell at supper, when a general conference wasa held, and the new course for leaders outlined. This course, promoted by the Girls Work Board in Toronto in a number of cities in the province, includes six meetings. It was decided to hold the meetings here on the first Wedesday in the month in the Y.W.C.A., the programme to be as follows: Supper at six o'clock, followed by a Bible reading; "Christ's programme," led by one of the ministers of the city, a discussion of problems, then a talk by one of the Girls' Work secretaries who will come in turn each month for the occasion.

This will be followed by a period of instruction in worship study for 'teen age girls, then a choice of a specialization course in Story Telling, or recreations, or Dramatization. The first meeting will be held on the first Wednesday in December, the 3rd.

At eight o'clock, a large conference of 'teen age girls was held, about one hundred being in attendance from the city. Miss L. Brownscombe, president of the local Girls' Work Board, prsided. Miss Gemmell took the chair and delivered an address on Story Telling, describing how best to tell stories to children or young girls in their own homes. Three or four stories were told as illustration, and the address was listened to with a great deal of enthusiastic appreciation by the girls present.

FREAKS OF FASHION ON FIFTH AVE.

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 18. — (United Press).—There is a type of woman in every town whom other women refer to as "upstarts." They are the startlingly dressed creatures who originate their own styles and go the fashion artists of the world one better. Certainly they cannot be called chic, but it cannot be denied that they obtain startling effects.

A fine day on Fifth Avenue brought out numbers of these fair would-be style leaders. Messenger boys follow behind them, grinning from ear to ear, women nudge each other, men snicker and say something smart, but unoriginal about "fool" women. Here are a few of the style atrocities encountered in one afternoon:

At 42nd street and Fifth Avenue a young woman wore a purple frock with stockings. She was a picture in purple with no relief. Her frock was a simple tunic model of duvetyne and followed the mode in line and color. Purple is popular this season, tunics are the vogue and short hems the newest word from Paris. Her hat was one of the wide brimmed affairs cut short in back and was made of the popular fushia toned purple velvet. Her shoes spoke the latest word—colored satin for street wear. But it is safe to say that no fashion writer offered purple as a satin shoe color for street wear! Stockings to match the shoe is a new note. Purple puts it on the blink, however. By combining certain style elements in a disastrous color tone one becomes a laughing stock.

Another miss wore a tan cloth frock with a circular flare at the hem. She also chose the Parisian short skirt and as she walked one could catch glimpses of her shapely knees. But—to be correct, the very short skirt must be a slender one. Full, circular hems if cut too short make one look like a child at the gaukey age. Her small hat was of tan felt and was cut so short in back that the newest bob—the V-shaped hairline at the nape of the neck—looked grotesque, for it formed a long, black wisp on her neck. Her handbag was one of the popular enormous sizes and as she was a small girl in an allmost knee-length dress, the bag extending beyond the hemline, seemed like a young suitcase.

An Elderly Flapper.

An elderly lady with bobbed hair had chosen the hair-do that looks as though the hair were pasted over the cheeks at the sides. Two grey wisps of hair were brilliantined and held flatly over her withered cheeks. How much better that style looks on a dark-haired young girl! Her shoes were the latest lizzard-skin and leather combination of the smart sports type and her short jacquette of leopard skin trimmed with a collar of black monkey fur would have been lovely on a younger person. Pinned on her fur collar was the season's latest whim, the little spray of flowers. Hers were red carnations and, error of errors, her hosiery matched these red carnations! We bow our head in shame as we recall the line "let your hosiery match in color some accessory."

Then came the woman who thought she'd show Fifth Avenue something about waistlines. She was probably some sweet little married woman who cooks her own meals and launders her own underwear, walks to save carfare, etc., but she certainly was out to show the rest of us fair sisters up! Her figure was slender as a reed. And she knew it. Her little black satin frock was scant to the hem and tied just under the armpits was a narrow string belt which would make the Empire waistline ashamed of itself. Two long sash ends hung to the hem of her skirt in front. Her black poke bonnet was as demure as a Puritan's. And—she wore no sleeves or gloves, but carried one of those wee little monkey fur muffs which is referred to in Parisian fashion notes. On her satin pumps she wore her monogram in brilliants. Both pumps bore the letter "M." Let's hope her name was Mary! She created quite a stir, at least.

Whist, played as long ago as 1500 was originallly called "triumph."

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Gifts From Friends All Over the Dominion Was Feature of Bazaar.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 18.—A successful bazaar, the first of the season, was held in the Armouries on Saturday afternoon, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of Grace Presbyterian church. Throughout the year this organization is actively engaged in preparing for this annual event, hence the abundant supply of well-made articles on display each season when the bazaar takes place.

Apparently there was no lack of buyers from the time the doors were opened and the public given access to the well-laden counters of the various booths.

The Armouries, because of bare, white walls, and high ceiling, is not easily attractively decorated but the problem was successfully solved on Saturday, and the booths, each with its distinctive color scheme, made the interior bright and pleasant to look upon from all angles. The green and red streamers, interwined with silver tinsel,, enhanced the Christmas atmosphere, and it was evident that many purchases were made with that gift-giving time in view.

One special feature of Saturday's sale was the large counter of "Gifts from Friends of Yore", the entire contents being donations from members formerly connected with the Presbyterian church here. From coast to coast in Canada and the States the response had come, and the dainty gifts, both useful and beautiful, were displayed at the well-patronized booth. The Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes were draped nearby and pinned on the flags was the list of places from whence had come the donations for the help of the home church: Victoria Vancouver, McBride, (British Columbia; Seattle, Brantford, Toronto, Lindsay Peterborough, Owen Sound, Port Hope, Orillia, Guelph, Lakefield, Galt, Bethany, Bailieboro, Cleveland, Los Angeles, Chicago, San Martin, (Cal.), Carberry, (Man.), Ingersoll, Thorold, Woodstock, Bowmanville, Beaver Mines, (Alta.) Uxbridge, California, Wabash (Ind.), New York, Baltimore, Cameron.

The Handkerchief Booth was in charge of Mrs. C. Thorndyke and Mrs. Henry Hubbeard; Mrs. T. Inman, Mrs. R. McMahon and Miss K. Lancashire had the sale of aprons under their care, while Miss Thelma ... Miss Florence Larmer, Miss Lillian Syer, and Mrs. W. E. Ball soon disposed of their tempting array of homemade candy. The "Gifts from Yore" booth was ably served by Mrs. J. R. Eakins, Mrs. W. McKnight, Miss E. Hunter, and Miss Dorothy Armstrong, and at the children's wear department, Mrs. G. S. Gervan, Mrs. J. McKnight, and Mrs. Wilbert Larmer attended to the wants of all comers. The large fancy work booth had in charge Mrs. W. E. Russell, Mrs. Jas. Armstrong, Mrs. Milton Fallis, Mrs. Harry Ball with Miss Muriel Ball as cashier. The "Country Store", with its variety of wares from chickens and ducks, rosy checked appes vegetables to delicious homemade cakes, pumpkin pies, bread, buns, etc., had as salesladies, Mrs. R. J. McKnight Miss Mina Gibson, Mrs. Roy Hutchison, Mrs. Lamber Gibson, Mrs. Albert Miller, Miss Thelma Armstrong, and as cashier Miss Ethel McKnight.

The "Fish Pond", always a delight to the children, was exhausted comparatively early in the afternoon, those who "baited" the hooks being Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, and Miss May Hales. The afternoon tea-tables were constantly filled after about three-thirty o'clock, Mrs. H. Armstrong, Mrs. R. J. Doak, Mrs. S. E. Eakins, Miss Phyliss Brown, and Miss Anna Hawthorne looking after this important item of the afternoon's work.

The financial results were something over three hundred dollars. Practically everything was disposed of.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

THE CASE PRO AND CON.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—I want to be fair and discuss union fairly and not with heat.

1.—Those in favour of union lay chief stress on the evils of over-lapping which those opposed to union answer by stating that for very many years co-operation or the use of a single church edifice has been practised by all denominations where desirable without any need or desire for organic union.

2.—Those in favour state that the identity of the Presbyterian and other churches will not be interfered with. Those opposed answer that if that is true then the proposed union is really co-operative federation and that steps towards organic union should be released and organic union given up. Identity cannot be preserved in organic union and that no objection will be made, of the "organic union," scheme is given up to friendly co-operation which can be arranged at any time or place by local churches without interferring with the colleges, trusts, missions, belief and forms of worship and selection of ministers as now contemplated. The present step according to unionists themselves is not intended to be more than co-operation and if so let it be such and let it be so named.

3.—Unionists especially the leaders began by calling attention to the fact that a United Church would have great power in the politics. As Rev. W. Chown said: A United Protestant Church could say to parliament do this and don't you dare do that. The A. U. answer that this will stir up trouble and make every other denomination hostile. That it will make a political party and not a church out of the union.

4.Unionists say that Social Service or work for our fellow-men and women or as the Scriptures say "Love thy neighbour" is the new motto of the new church and that it will bring in the new by ringing out the old separateness of people. The A. U. say that the various organizations are now so thick in that good work that they overlap and had to be reduced to a system by federation. A community work and that the Union is an attempt to draw these new societies into its fold. They say that this will break up the work instead of helping it.

5.—The United Church is to manage everything by a Central Council and a Settlement Committee and will leave congregations no word in the management of the churches or the ministry. The Unionists say that if the U. Church is to be managed in a businesslike way and its decisions be of true ecclesiastical strength they must be in the hands of leaders and not of the people, as in an army. If a congregation does not do as the Central Committee orders it may be dissolved and excommunicated. There is no way of rewarding or punishing a congregation in the present system.

6.—The U. C. Basis of Union is a full and complete confession of the Old Faith say unionists and it is so. No one can deny that. Antis say that makes the case plainer as it is incomprehensible that churches should go out of business for only business reasons when it can be arranged otherwise.

It is said by many unionists that the uniting churches are going down in membership and in the number and power of ministers at present and that a change must be made to save the ships. The Antis say that the pilots are purposely steering the ships on the rocks for their own political ends and the present movement is a political scheme confined to Canada and rejected elsewhere and that the present leaders are hostile.

7.—Antis allege that Modernism or a right to criticize. The Bible as any other book is at the bottom of the new move and that the heathen are in the pulpits more than in the pews. It is to shake off the old beliefs that the move is being made because there is no need for it. Unionists say that the old beliefs were largely superstitions and that the Old Testament is not and the N. T. is not the inspired Word of God in the old sense. They point to what they call the unbelieveable fables in the Bible.

8.—Papers holding the approval of unionists are openly and violently modernistic and reject the sonship of Christ and the Atonement say the Antis. To this there has been no answer so far. The papers referred to show what they are.

9.—Unionists call the union a step forward, Antis call it a leap in the dark. Some say let well enough alone. Young people are watching events and are not very much in favour of centralising authority and some say that they will found a new church if the Union goes through and is carried out, on that account. Some of the young people have quit altogether because they say the whole thing was bunk and always was bunk and was just a "pious putover" on them and that it is now plain and that that will be the way with the new church in a few years. We must be careful not to shake the faith and confidence of our young people especially young men.

Reader and one interested.

ENGINEERS GET ONLY TWO HITS IN QUAKER GAME

Carruthers Was Erratic for the Porridge Makers in Close Softball Game.

BELMONTS WON

Defeated Teachers by 9 to 4 in Second Game of Arena Bill.

With it cold enough in the Brock street ice palace last night to make one think of hockey, the Quaker Oats Company softball team, leaders of the Mercantile section, met the Engineers in a game that was a pleasure to watch. Although a steady thumping of cold feet could be heard on the old boards that have held many a fan, there was hardly a spectator who did not stay until the last man was down, for the game was so close and exciting that it was impossible to pick a winner until the last man, who was unlucky "Munro," the first sacker for the losers, had missed three.

With the score three to two against them, the Quakers came from behind in the fifth inning when a single by Turner, a triple by Kirn and a double by Ash accounted for two runs, and handed the Quakers a victory. Neither team scored during the rest of the game, but the Engineers threatened in the last inning when they had two men on and one out, but Carruthers, the speed ball artist for the Quakers, did the trick when he whiffed Burgess and Munro to end the game.

Carruthers started off like a house afire, fanning the three men to face him, but in the second inning he was just as bad as he was good in the first, walking three men in a row, striking out one and then issuing another pass. He was erratic throughout, but got there just the same, striking out 14 batsmen, issuing 6 passes and allowing but 2 hits, the lowest number of hits registered against any pitcher this season. His team mates played snappy ball and had but two errors chalked against them.

Langley started on the firing line for the Engineers and he stuck to his guns well, turning in one of his best performances this season. He was not in it with the Quaker pitcher in the line of strike-outs, but he pitched a much steadier game than his opponent. He allowed but 12 hits, which he kept well scattered. His team behind him played errorless ball.

Haskill Crew Win

The teachers were the next victims of the evening, for they fell down to defeat at the hands of the Belmonts when the Haskill crowd piled up nine runs and held the chalk slingers to four. The Belmonts were never headed and after they had netted three in the third inning and four in the fourth all they had to do was to keep the teachers from piling up their score and this they did winning out with five runs to the good.

"Tommy" Holyman did the pitching for the Belmonts and although he didn't have a strike out to his credit he held the teachers to eight scattered hits and never issued a single pass.

"Dunk" Dunkerley found it hard to find the plate and walked five men, but he made up for this when he sent seven of the Belmonts back to their bench on strike outs and went one better than Holyman in the hit column when he had but seven safeties registered against him. Both teams played good ball in the field, the Belmonts coming through without an error while the teachers had two minor slips.

EPINARD HOME

French Horse Sent Back to England By Customs Red Tape.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—Epinard yesterday returned to trainer Gene Leigh's stables at Maisons-Laffitte, safe and sound, but after vicissitudes which caused the famous French racehorse to first be refused admittance to France and treated as an undesirable.

The coolness of the French was not due to Epinard's defeats in the United States but because when he first arrived at Cherbourg from Southampton he encountered the red tape of the customs officials. It was discovered that his papers were not in order. These provided for the horse arriving from the United States instead of Great Britain. Consequently the son of Badajoz was forced to return to Folkstone where a new set of papers was drawn up. He finally landed at Boulogne Sunday and continued on to Maisons-Laffitte.

MERCANTILE LEAGUE

The Dentists took two out of three from Cressmans last night at the Water Street Alleys. Some good scores were rolled and all the games were hard fought, close affairs. The Dentists won the first game by a small margin of four pins, got the second by forty-four pins and the Cressman outfit walked away from them in the last game, the only one which they won.

Green had the high three games with a good score of 618 and Cressman was next with 579. Green had the high single also with a score of 226.

Following are the scores:

LADIES' MERCANTILE

Only two games were played in the Ladies' Mercantile League at the Water Street Alleys last night and the Quakers and the Westclox broke even. The ladies were late in getting started, owing to a slight mixup in the schedule. However the good rolling that has been witnessed in the last few games was upheld again last night and some good scores were turned in.

Miss D. Currie was high for two games with a score of 278, with Miss M. Caird next with 271. Miss O'Brien rolled a real high single game of 171 with Miss Currie with 150 and Miss Caird 152.

LAKEFIELD WILL SOON CALL HOCKEY MEETING

Junior Team Needs Recruits To Fill the Vacancies.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 18.—The reorganization of the hockey team will probably take place in the near future as the snow fall of last week and heavy frosts have been a forecast that winter is coming. Junior hockey will have some new recruits this years as some of last year's players have passed the age limit. An interested citizen offered a Bantam Cup for boys under 14 years if four or more teams entered a Bantam League.

The District League will re-organize again no douot and play for the Challenge cup. The local leagues were more popular than ever last year and the prospects are for a good season in 1925.

GREAT SEASON FOR MAJOR HAL, 2.13 1-4

Stanley Blewett's Horse Won 21 Firsts in 28 Starts on Harness Tracks of Ontario and New York State During the Past Season.

"MAJOR HAL" 2. 13¼.

This record which speaks very highly for the horse and its driver was not composed of race won in Peterboro alone, but also in Lindsay, Port Hope, Sudbury, Brockville, Canton, New York and Syracuse, winning firsts in all of these places. A number of these races were won against some of the best race horses in Canada and United States in the 2 13¼ class. Besides winning 21 firsts out of 28 starts the horse has crred off a number of seconds..

Major Hal is owned by Stanley Blewett of Blewett's Livery Barns, Hunter Street.

VETS WITHDRAWN FROM ALL SOCCER

Resignation Accepted, But May Make An Appeal To O.F.A.

ABIDE BY REFEREE.

When the question of Saturday's game was called, Mr. Sid. Whatley intimated to the Board: "The G.W.V.A. football team and their executive refuse to play any further games under this Board, and object to the actions of the board of directors at their meeting last week; also request that the name of the G.W.V.A. be expunged from all the minutes, after such a raw deal we received."

The President responded: "The Board may meet your first request, but the latter shall not be. The minutes shall remain as they are."

Time and again the chairman called for a seconder of Mr. Whatley's motion, "that the G.W.V.A.'s resignation be accepted," which found the needful after a long wait. Two or three other amendments were made so as to give the Vets an opportunity to voice their grievances but their answer was, "we are finished."

The President: "We appointed the referee to have full charge and we must abide by his decision."

It was hinted that this matter may be appealed through the Ontario Football Association, which will require a $50 fee. If the higher court uphold the local Board then the Vets will lose their deposit; otherwise, if they succeed in the apneal, they will receive their money back.

Automatically Awarded.

The forfeiture of the next two games by the Vets automatically give the Thistle the League championship, which carries with it the White Challenge Cup and the medals. Through their action, the Canadian Woollens automatically go up into second place to receive the Clark Shield.

The Vets had a chance to win the League, if they won the next two games against the Quakers and Thistle, which would even up the number of points, thereby compelling the Vets and Thistle to play a sudden death game.

Filene Prizes Praised Arouse League Interest

LONDON, Nov. 17.—In distributing the British Filene peace prizes to-day at King's College, Viscount Cecil applauded the Filene scheme as calculated to promote agreement among nations. He remarked that almost all of the 4,700 British essays submitted in the peace contest were in support of the league of nations He said that getting the intelligence of Europe to thinking about this subject was of itself of immense value, for the success or failure of the league depended not upon governments but upon peoples.

The speaker added that it was essential the people should ever be considering where the league was faulty and how it could be improved and developed.

MARRIAGE HEALS AUTOMOBILE WOUNDS

PUEBLO, Colo., Nov. 18.—(United Press).—Picking up the scattered fragments of two families disrupted by an automobile accident, a father and mother have united their families and provided a home for the seven children orphaned by death of the father of one, and the mother of six.

Lewis S. Cole met death in a Pueblo irrigation ditch attempting to rescue his sister-in-law, Mrs. John D. Cole, and her baby. All were swirled to eternity in the black waters that had swallowed the car.

John Cole mourned the loss of his wife, daughter and brother; Mrs. Lewis Cole vainly attempted to support her five children. Grief and financial straits drew the two and their children together and love grew from companionship. Quietly they were recently married.

Three homes, in reality, have now become one, for Mrs. Sarah Cole, mother of the drowned man, has been taken into the new dwelling, far from the scene of the triple tragedy.

G.W.V.A. MEETING.

Ladies' Auxiliary Met on Monday Evening.

The regular business meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the G. W. V. A. was held last evening, when arrangements for the forthcoming bazaar were made. Mrs. R. J. Devey presided.

An interesting report of the recent convention in Toronto of the Provincial Command of the Ladies' Auxiliaries to the G.W.V.A. was given by Mrs. W. R. Morris, president of the Provincial Command, and reports were also presented by Mrs. R. Bugg and Mrs. J. Welsh.

Convenors for the different sections of the bazaar were appointed, as follows: Mesdames Sharp and Thorndyke, refreshments; Mesdames Walsh and Patterson, tea-room; Mesdames Hughes and Mackness, fancy work; Mesdames McKinstrey and Porter, dolls; Mesdames Clark, Allston, McNeely, Bugg, Lynch, Harris and Dainton respectively for the sales of bedroom furnishings, fish-pond, handkerchiefs, aprons, fortunetelling, rummage and candy.

CAR AFFORDS PLEASURE.

Working Man Now Has a Chance to Spend a Few Leisure Hours Each Day.

LONDON, November 18. — "The wide and indeed almost universal use of the motor car has proved for the United States an antidote for Bolshevism."

This is the impression brought back from his American visit by Lord Ashfield, the chairman of the London Underground Railways.

"The motor car," he says in a newspaper interview, "... afforded the working people in the cities an opportunity of reaching the country, spending their leisure hours away from their ordinary surroundings along with their families and friends. It gives them something to which to look forward to when their day's work is finished and goes a long way toward preventing discontent and unrest creeping in."

RAILWAYMEN WANT PROMISED SALARY

Will Walk Out Next January If Demand Is Not Fulfilled.

LONDON, Nov. 18. — (Canadian Press).—Locomotive engineers and railwaymen threaten that there will be a general stoppage of railways of the country next January unless the railway companies live up to the terms of settlement of the last strike whereby engineers and railwaymen were to receive increased pay, beginning in the new year.

A clause in the settlement contained the words "unless in the meantime it is agreed otherwise," and this is regarded as a possible obstacle to the increased wage.

London is threatened with the stoppage of work in power houses in the London area as a result of the claim of workers in the Barking super-power house for wages equal to those paid in London. There is a difference of sixpence per hour.

BEATTY TO RESIGN.

LONDON, Nov. 18. — (Canadian Press).—Admiral Lord Beatty will resign his post as First Lord of the Admiralty at the end of the year, according to some of the morning newspapers. It is recalled that rumors of his resignation were current about a year ago, when it was suggested he was retiring, due to dissatisfaction with certain Government schemes. There is a suggestion of this kind on this occasion. Apparently there is no special significance in the resignation as Lord Beatty's term of office has already nominally expired.

Naval circles expect that his successor will be Vice-Admiral Sir Osmond De Brock, commander of the Mediterranean station since 1922.

INDEPENDENCY NEEDED.

Canada Should Either Be Independent Or Absolutely Not.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 18.—(Canadian Press).—"I would vote every time for absolute independence for Canada, but I would work my hardest to see that, as an independent country, she had the happiest relations with Great Britain and the United States," declared Henri Bourassa, editor of the Le Devoir, during an interview here last night. "While I would prefer to see Canada an independent country, I am in no way inclined to be unreasonable, but I do most assuredly consider that she should be one or other—either an independent country or country which has a say in the various problems which confront the Motherland."

DENIES BOMB STORY.

General V. A. S. Williams Says There Is No Truth In Published Story.

TORONTO, Nov. 18.—(Canadian Press).—General V. A. S. Williams, commissioner of the Ontario Provincial Police, to-day officially denied the published story that his home in this city had been made a target for a hand grenade bomb. It has been hinted that a reported attack on the Commissioner's residence was an ominous warning from the bootlegging industry to ease up on the proposed aggressive movement to enforce the Ontario Temperance Act.

DALTON BAKER CONCERT

Assisted By Dorothy Allan Park Soprano.

The audience that had the privilege of hearing these famous artistes at the Conservatory last evening enjoyed one of the finest concerts ever given in this hall.

THE DALTON BAKER RECITAL

(By Jeannette).

The song recital given by Dalton Baker, the English baritone, in the hall of the Conservatory of Music last evening, assisted by his pupil, Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, soprano, was very successful. There was an attendance of nearly five hundred people, in an audience whose distinct appreciation of the fine programme presented marked them as real music-lovers.

Mr. Baker, the possessor of a massive baritone whose exceptional compass embraced almost the full scope of a bass and ascended at times to tenor-like heights, uses his powerful voice with consummate skill. His voice production, his smooth, dignified delivery, his powerful, yet soft tonal quality, make him an expert vocalist. A varied programme of songs that, with a few exceptions, were entirely new to Peterboro audiences, proved the versatility of the singer. Although the first numbers on his list appeared to suffer somewhat from a similarity of treatment, there was plenty of verve in the delightful interpretation given the later selections.

Mrs. Park excelled herself in her support of the vocalist of the evening. She was accorded the enthusiastic aappreciation which her splendid work deserved. Her beautiful, sympathetic voice, with its fine, clear quality and artistic presentation, combined with the dramatic interpretation which Mrs. Park always imparts to her music, made her singing vivid and lovely. Doubtless there were more technically difficult numbers on a lengthy and diversified programme, but to one member of the audience at least, the little "Blackbird's song" by Cyril Scott, as sung by Mrs. Park, was a memorable bit. The dainty sweetness of this morsel of melody, with its bird mimicry in the slurred, trailing scales, and its pretty, rippling accompaniment, was eloquent of the scope of the singer's powers.

The big number on programme was the dramatic and stirring duett from "Samson and Delilah," with Mr. Baker as the High priest and Mrs. Park as Delilah. The demands of this exacting duo were adequately met by the two splendid singers. A notable quality in both vocalists of a high degree of technical training was apparent also in the wonderful blending of the two voices in the final double number, the "Swing Song and the "Trot Here and There," excerpt, from the charming modern "Veronique." These two selections, bright, colorful in swift rythtmic tempo formed a triumphant conclusion to a thoroughly enjoyable recital of interesting music and called forth applause which led to a repetition of the dainty "Swing Song."

Mr. Baker's first group was a trio of Old English songs; "Come, Let's be Merry" "False Phyllis" and "When Dull Care," and was followed immediately by a trio of contrasting atmosphere; "Love Me or Not" "Sombre Woods" and an exacting number from "Samson"; "Honour and Arms." His versatily and masterly musicianship were also demonstrated to the full in six brief numbers, which included the pretty love song, "Maire, My Girl," "Son of Mine," and the forceful number, "The Rebel." "After" was a minor-toned Elgar composition, and two dramatic and powerfully-rendered selections were "Lorraine, Lorraine, Loree" and the vital singing of "King Charles."

Mr. Baker's final group was a quartette of short folk songs, progressing from the lover's plaint in "Some Val has Stolen" to the nautical jollity and whimsical atmosphere of "Tarry Trousers," repeated to enthusiastic applauase, the vim of "Ward the Pirate" and the humour of the fantastic "The Crocodile." To the repeated encores which greeted this group, Mr. Baker, playing his own accompaniments, gave in soft, full voice the graceful "My love is like a red, red rose," and the familiar and well-loved "Minstrel Boy."

As an opening group, Mrs. Park sang two classic numbers in Italian, the finished, holding quality of her voice very apparent in the rounded dulcet syllables of "Caro mio ben," sung pianissimo, and "Nina," followed in English, by one of Debussy's delicate compositions, with light, graceful accompaniment, the operatic "Aria de Lia (L'enfant Prodigue)."

The quartette of lovely selections in which "The Blackbird's Sing" was paramount, contained also the descriptive sweetness of "Summer," a light, gay bit, Cyril Scott's "Lullaby" and "The Disappointed Serenader," a humorous, staccato cameo by Brahms.

Accompanists of the evening, who afforded proficient and sympathetic backgrounds for the two vocalists were Mrs. Pearl Burford Curtis of Toronto and Mr. Charles Peaker, organist of Knox Church. Bouquets of flowers were presented to Mrs. Park and Mrs. Curtis, the former receiving a large number of floral tributes. At the conclusion of the programme, Mrs. Park's pupils entertained a number of friends in the reception rooms of the Conservatory.

NO LASTING GAIN FROM COMPULSION

Sam Gompers Advises Labor To Adhere to Principle of Voluntary Action.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 18.—(Canadian Press). — President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, in his address to the forty-fourth annual convention of the Federation yesterday, admonished Labor to adhere to the guiding principle of voluntary action and to "illumine your every problem with consecrated devotion to human well-being in the fullest, widest sense."

"We have tried and proved these principles in economic, political, social and international relations," he said. "They have been tried and not found wanting, and where we have tried other ways we have failed.

"In a spirit of consecration to the cause of humanity, I want to urge devotion to the fundamentals of human liberty—the principles of voluntarism. No lasting gain has ever come from compulsion. If we seek to force, we but tear apart that which, united, is invincible. There is no way whereby our Labor movement may be assured sustained progress in determining its policies and its plan other than by sincere democratic methods."

Contentious Questions.

The outstanding feature of the convention is expected to be the post-mortem on the Executive Council's approval of Senator La Follette's candidacy. Behind the scenes the greatest efforts have been made to enunciate a harmonious policy so that the internecine strife that followed the Executive Council's action at Atlantic City last summer may be ended.

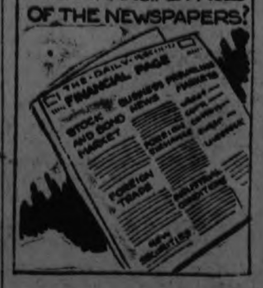
Once the question of Labor's approval of Senator La Follette is settled, other contentious questions are slated for consideration, any of which may cause a stormy debate.

Although the proposal to recognize Soviet Russia has been downed at every convention since it was first proposed, it will come up again. Its proponents will support their stand by pointing to English recognition of Soviet Russia and also to the fact that Mexico recently welcomed officially an agent of the Soviets.

Potential dissension in the convention also lies in the suggestion of the building trades department that the body suspend the United Brotherhood of Carpenters, the second largest organization in the Federation, principally because of its failure to abide by the decision of the National Board of Jurisdictional Awards in the old dispute between the carpenters and the sheet metal workers.

Money AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.



Just what information can the average man gain from the final pages of the newspapers?
Answered by

BARNET NOVAR
Lecturer and Writer on Practical Economics.

In the financial section of the newspapers the person who wants to keep in touch with business and economic conditions finds an accurate reflection of events and forces.

He finds a complete tabulation of the stock and bond market, comment by experts, the prices prevailing in the wheat, corn, cotton, sugar livestock and commodity markets of the country, reports of industrial conditions, government reports about our foreign trade, news of new securities; dividend news, business news—an increasingly important department in the newspapers, the fluctuations in foreign exchange.

In addition to all these departments some newspapers maintain in addition a department devoted to investment information.

Accepts Chancellorship.

Dr. Rudolph Ramek Is Now Chancellor of Austrian Government.

VIENNA, November 18. Canadian Press. — Dr. Rudol. Ramek, the former Austrian Minister of the Interior, to-day accepted the post of Chancellor of the Austrian government, replacing Dr. Ignatz Seipel, who announced yesterday he had decided not to attempt the formation of a new cabinet.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

STETSON'S "UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" COMPANY

After years of experience in catering to the wants of successive generations of the amusement loving public, Leon W. Washburn has reached a secure place in the hearts of the American peaople. Today it is a conceded and undisputed fact that his stupendous production of the original Stetson "Uncle Tom's Cabin" which he will bring to the Grand Opera House, for two days, with Saturday matinee, commencing on Friday, November 21st, is the strongest, brightest, most complete and capable combination of talent ever organized to present the immortal masterpiece of the late Harriet Beecher Stowe. Mr. Washburn does not believe in putting the greater part of his salary allotment into the hands of two or three performers and allowing the balance of the cast to suffer through the employment of inferior artists, who always disgust the experienced patrons, but he has found that the employment of the highest class artists together with the expenditure of money to make each and every act and detail compelte pays twice over in the box office receipts. This explains why the Stetson organizations have always been recognized as the paramount "Tom" shows of the Universe.

This company brings out all the accessories of this remarkable drama in such a realistic manner that it proves of wonderful interest all the way through. It is the largest and most expensive organization touring the country presenting this well and favorably known drama.

Among the notable scenes presented are the St. Clair plantation, showing the tropical garden and its beautiful magnolio's and orange trees in full bloom, among which nestles the typical plantation residence, the home of "Little Eva", Legrees' cotton plantation on the Red river, the Rocky pass in which George Harris defends his wife and family, the Ohio river by moonlight concluding with the beautiful transformation scene, "The Celestial City" acknowledged to be the most magnificent stage setting ever conceived in point of size and equipment the Stetson company is said to be one of stagelands biggest offerings, certainly the biggest touring at popular prices.

AT THE CAPITOL.

It was New Year's Eve. He had just proposed to the girl he wanted for a wife, when the other girl, the one who had provided the tarnish on his part, loomed up again. His sweetheart found him taking supper with the "other woman," and was heart-broken. And that happened to be the day when the girl had resigned her position because the junior partner persisted in making unwanted love to her. Is sauce for the goose sauce for the gander? George Fitzmaurice, who produced "Tarnish," the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre for the first two days of this week, doesn't answer that question very fully.

Emmett Carr had a gay time with Nettie Dark, the snappy manicurist, but when he met Letitia Tevis, he forgot Nettie altogether Letitia was of a different type, the good type, and he wanted to marry her. She had a "priceless old bird" of a father, a philandering gentleman who refused to work, and squandered money on Nettie, the manicurist, who was an energetic little gold digger.

When Emmett tore up Nettie's picture he thought he had closed that chapter of his life forever. Letitia loved him and he was going to marry her. But Nettie inveigled him into visiting her once more and then Letitia arrived to try and recover some of the money that Nettie had squeezed out of her father. Just how Et Lett, between two fires, managed to bring the affair to a satisfactory conclusion, is rather cleverly pictured.

Itns an interesting picture with the heart interest the main theme, and a psychological element to its make-up that makes rather amusig the spectable of the young man forced to face a situation that he has tried to shove into the background. Ronald Colman makes a good hero and May McAvoy is very appealing in the principal feminine role, while Marie Prevost is as excellent as usual in a vamp role.

RACE HORSES PROVE TEMPERAMENTAL ACTORS

Thoroughbred horses used in many scenes in "In Every Womans Life" proved difficult to direct. They could not become accustomed to the glare of the studio lights, even when covered with blinders. They proved to be restless and frightened.

When Irving Cummings was directing the dinner on horseback in this First National picture, which is shown at the Capitol Theatre, he had to make a few scenes and then allow the horses to rest. It took several days to make this one scene, which was difficult and dangerous to the actors, without the nervousness displayed by the thoroughbreds.

Later on in the production a racehorse is brought into a living room to be shown to his master before the race. The first time the scene was taken without a hitch. The second time the horse displayed nervousness and the third time he broke one of the doors, turned over a pedestal, broke vases and almost got away from the groom in whse charge he was placed. He was allowed to rest for several hours and the scene was retaken later in the day.

Mr. Cummings regards horses as the most difficult to direct, due to their timidity and size.

"In Every Womans' Life" will be shown at the Capitol Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday.

AT THE ROYAL.

BELASCO PLAY, "DADDIES," A COMEDY HIT.

Happy Audience Testifies to Charm of "Daddies."

"Daddies" is the story of five bachelors. No, there is no inconsistency here. You see the "daddies" were all bachelors to begin with, confirmed and foresworn champions of the state of single blessedness. They became daddies by adopting a bevy of war orphans. The process of making an honest-to-goodness dad out of a determined bachelor is exemplified in all its delicious humor in the screen version of David Belasco's great stage success 'Daddies,' at the Royal Theatre last night.

The story opens with five heart-free college men who decide that there shall be no place for women in their happy journeys through life. They thereupon form a bachelor club which demands a five thousand dollar contribution from any member who seeks his release from the club for matrimonial purposes.

From its inception the club is a success. However, certain women members of the club members' semi-immediate family bring pressure to bear upon the theme of selfishness which they claim the club typifies. In a measure to deflect this torrent of criticism, the members decide to adopt a war orphan each. Then the fun begins. Jumping into the sacred state of fatherhood by the adoption route has is complications. The situations are mirth-provoking in the extreme. These situations finally reach a climax where the would-be bachelors agree that "the hand that rocks the cradle" is a mighty necessary appendage to have about the house on a squally night. The picture comes to a finish in as pleasing a solution of the problems presented as could be wished.

Everybody is happy. Particularly the audience. After seeing this splendid picture no one could wonder at the tremendous hit the original production made on the spoken stage. The screen, of course, makes it possible to carry the situations to greater extremes and also makes them much more realistic.

"Daddies" is presented by a most capable cast, including Mae Marsh, Harry Myers and other prominent screen celebrities. A particularly brilliant performance is given by Miss Marsh, whose very wistfulness just makes you love her. Every single member of the big cast seems to have been carefully selected for his or her particular role. Certainly Belasco's famous play has gained entertainment value in its transmission to the screen. It is certainly a "better picture" in every single sense.

Royall Randall stopped suddenly. He could scarcely believe his eyes: Diana Faraday was giving him a "stand up," and she was dashing out of town with an old fellow,—old enough to be her father.

But Randall was game. He sped to the campus in time to assume his position on his college's football teaming, winning the game for them. Then he dashed to the big city to hold her to account or else to inform her father.

In an exotic cafe he chanced across her again. And to his dismay, another girl, Yvette, claimed his affections. This new charmer also seemed to be on intimate terms with Diana's escort. Randall attempted to speak to Diana, but she rebuffed him.

He couldn't figure it out. Something was wrong some place, he felt. Before he knew it, he was exchanging blows with a "lounge lizard" who resented his attentions to Yvette.

Then, in another breath, federal agents raided the cabaret.

Randall was getting the best of his opponent, who, knocked to the ground, seized an iron rod and struck him down—was he dead?

Did Diana come to his aid? Why was she deliberately snubbing him? And the man, we was her own—but see Laura La Plante in "The Dangerous Blonde," her newest Universal picture, to see how a daughter can save her own father from impending ruin.

AT THE REGENT.

In the matter of historical accuracy, gorgeous costumes, magnificent settings and greatness of cast, Cosmopolitan's new Marion Davies picture, "Yolanda," which was presented at the Regent Theatre last night, is one of the greatest productions of the year. There can be no manner of doubt that it will go down in the history of films as one of its most magnificent productions, lavish in its settings, beautiful in its costumes and acted magnificently by a great cast. Joseph Urban has never designed more beautiful settings than he did for "Yolanda." Massive sets have been shown in the past but none of them has had as much realism as in the sets showing the castle of Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy and that of Louis XI., King of France.

"Yolanda" is one of the best romances in which Miss Davies has appeared and that means the best that have been shown on the screen, for no other motion picture star has approached her in bringing to the people of to-day the charm of far-off countries and ages. Her acting in "Yolanda" is the best in her career. She is most ably supported by Holbrook Blinn as King Louis XI. of France, Lyn Harding as the Duke of Burgundy, Ralph Graves as Prince Maximilian of Styria and a host of others, the names of whom form a blue book of the film and theatrical world.

Everyone who found enjoyment in "When Knighthood Was In Flower" and "Little Old New York" will be charmed by Miss Davies in "Yolanda," by the story which it unfolds and by the beautiful settings by Joseph Urban. Robert G. Vignola directed the production. In our opinion, "Yolanda" is one of the films of the year which should on no account be overlooked.

Shareholders To Be Held Liable For All Payments

WINNIPEG, Nov. 18.— Shareholders of the bankrupt North Western Trust Company will be held liable for payment of the unpaid balance due on shares of stock purchased in the company, according to the majority judgment of the court of appeal, delivered to-day.

This judgment reverses the decision of Mr. Justice Dysart who held that in as much as the company had complied with the shares of stock act, shareholders should not be placed on the list of contributories and were not liable to pay in any further sums of money to the company. It is understood that the cause will now be taken to the su-

AFTER SERVICE RECITAL.

A recital was given in St. John's church on Sunday, Nov. 16, after Evensong, by Mr. F. G.Mann organist and choirmaster of that church. There were five numbers each having a different style. Perhaps the most beautiful number was the first "Larghetto" (First Organ Concerto) by Handel. A very beautiful number was the third Andante Religioso. This was assisted by Mrs. Hoyland, solo violin, Miss C. Taylor 1st violin and W. Gaskin 2nd violin, Mr. Farthing cello.

The programme, which was listened to with great attention, was as follows:

Larghetto (First Organ Concerto)—Handel.

(a) Prelude in C minor—Chopin; (b) Ase's Death (Peer Gynt Suite)—Grieg.

Andante Religioso—Carri.

Cradle Song and Curfew Bell—D. Peel.

Toccatta in G—Demorest.

WHITE RIVER'S BEGINNING.

White River (that place of climatic notoriety on the height of land north of Lake Superior) made a fair start yesterday morning by going down to 24 below zero; Cochrane reached 6 below, while Doucet (a station on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific, half way between Cochrane and Quebec City) reached 12 below. Doucet was expected to give White River a run for its reputation, but has proved so far to be a disappointment.

ART ASSOCIATION.

An organization meeting in connection with the formation of a Club to study Interior Decoration, in connection with the Women's Art Association, was held yesterday afternoon at the home of the president of the Association, Mrs. J. E. R. Munro. Miss Mamie Montgomery was appointed convenor of the new Club, whose programme embraces a study during the winter of period furniture, a study of old brasses and pewter, silver, clocks, china, linen, and upholstering, draperies, wall decorations and floor coverings, all in relation to the home. At each meeting, a member will deliver a paper. The first meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. B. Mann on the afternoon of Monday, December 1st.

P. C. Smythe Set Out From Dover This Morning In Attempt To Cross Channel.

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 18.—(Canadian Press). — P. C. Smythe, the Toronto man who is attempting to paddle across the English Channel, and who in his first attempt last Thursday was picked up by the South Goodwins Lightship, when in an exhausted condition, set out again to-day on his hazardous enterprise. He started from Dover.

Society

Stewart McGill, of Centreville, has left the home farm for Albert College, Belleville. He will be much missed by a wide circle of young people, among whom he was deservedly popular. In his new career he will be followed by the good wishes of many. The loss of the farm will be the gain of some other profession. During the week-end he took leave of many of his young friends with mutual regrets.

At a meeting of the bankers' dance committee, held last evening, it was decided to hold their third annual dance on Friday, February 13th.

Miss Agnes Mayoch, of Brechin, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Mayock, 90 Hunter street.

MONTREAL CLUB PRESIDENT WAS CITY ALDERMAN

Name Reluctantly Divulged at Police Enquiry—Wanted By License Board.

NO PROTECTION.

Constable Alleges Coal Dealers Gave Short Weight In Sales.

MONTREAL, Nov. 19.—In face of obstinate opposition by Leonice Plante, advocate, Walter Scroggie, on the witness stand at the police inquiry yesterday on order of Mr. Justice Coderre, named Alderman Gabias as president of Lumkins Club Incorporated, said official, according to Mr. Plante, being long and earnestly sought by the Quebec liquor commission.

An attempt by Mr. Plante to have the matter thrown out of court as irrelevant to the police probe, brought severe reprimand from the bench, especially after the answer had been given by the witness.

Another interesting incident of the evidence was the description by the participants of a wordy battle between Walter Scroggie and Thomas Campeau in the corridor of the court house Monday in connection with the latters' evidence in the box during the enquiry. There was talk of "a gun" but both men on the stand yesterday morning swore that that they were unarmed at the time.

Constable Trudeau gave evidence regarding coal dealers and the short weight evil, expressing the opinion that before the police took a hand nobody got full weight. The witness made a scatching indictment of the coal trade of Montreal when he stated that only one case in five was the fault of the driver and that the remaining four out of five cases of short weight were the fault of the coal merchant.

Walter Scroggie testified that Lumkins with which he was connected, was not a hotel but a limited club. It had no license for the sale of liquor nor permit to dispense beer and wines. He was employed as manager and Harry Field, mentioned in Monday's evidence, was steward.

Mr. Lanctot "We understand that you have been tipped off regarding a warrant sworn out for Fields."

"You use bad words, Mr. Lanctot."

Mr. Lanctot "Then go ahead and use some good ones," and the questin was repeated. Witness; "No such thing."

Pressed as to whether the waiter Hay had warned him that he was taking out a warrant for Fields, witness said: "The truth of the matter is that Hay hollered so loud that the whole world could hear him saying, that he was taking out a warrant for Fields and that after had used language that no red-blooded man would stand for. The case was dismissed."

"Then he did not tell you personally?" "He told the whole world."

"Have you ever had any protection from the police?" "Never; look up the books of the club and see how often the police have raided it."

Pressed for the names of presidents and directors of the club, witness insisted that he did not know them.

Rebuked by Judge

Mr. Justice Coderre "You are not telling me everything. I want no fuss. I want to know the name of your president. You are not going to ask me to believe that you do not know the name of the president of the club?"

Answering this and further questions by his lordship, witness stated that he had been engaged as manager of the club by resolution of the board of directors. The resolution was in Mr. Joseph Cohen's office. Witness was ordered to get it.

After some further pressure, witness stated that he had been interviewed in regard to his engagement by the secretary, and pressed for the name, gave it as M. L. Caleese.

Scroggie stated emphatically that he was not mixed up with any other club in Montreal. He admitted that he had been in the slot machine business and had had "plenty" of condemnations, but not protection. He had never been given warning of any cases to be made in connection with slot machines. He declared he had no particular friends on the police force, although he knew some of them casually.

Mr. Lanctot asked witness whether he had had anything to do with working for the police in running a special candidate in the last municipal election in Ville Marie. The anwer was a definite negative and replying to a further query Scroggie said that counsel's information was wrong if he had been told that witness had driven constables about in his car in connection with the elections.

Witness also made categorical de-

BARBERS TO BOYCOTT VALENTINO FILMS UNTIL HE REMOVES BOLSHEVIK BEARD

Fear That Whiskers Might Become Fashionable Has Prompted Resolution at Convention.

FOR NEXT PICTURE.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—Because Rudolph Valentino, moving picture actor, has grown a beard, the convention of the Associated Master Barbers have adopted a resolution that its members "be pledged not to attend a showing of his photoplays as long as he remains bewhiskered."

The resolution expressed the fear that the 'male population of America is very likely to be guided by Valentino to the extent of making whiskers fashionable again," and that "such a fashion would not only work harmful injury to barbers, but would so utterly deface America as to make American citizens difficult to distinguish from Russians." "Be it resolved, that Rudolph Valentino be condemned," the resolution concluded.

When Valentino, the patent-leather movie sheik, arrived in New York, one of the ship photographers refused to take his picture, saying that it wasn't Ruddy, at all, but one of those fake doctors who wear devil's beards.

But Ruddy couldn't fool the rest of 'em. Anyway, not when there were girls aboard.

Ruddy explained that he will be a moorish chief in his next issue of the jumping flickers and that while he was on vacation in Europe he might as well grow the beard and have it over with, so he wouldn't have so many darn-fool questions to answer if he grew it gradually in this country. Beards do grow gradually, you know.

Nita Naldi, who will be Ruddy's leading lady, accompanied the sheik and his wife, Natacha Rambova, on their European tour.

RUDOLPH VALENTINO.

SPARROW SAVED LIFE OF A ST. THOMAS MAN

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—The death of a sparrow saved the life of a prominent local business man yesterday.

The man was warming the motor of his automobile by letting it run in his garage. In a couple of minutes the sparrow fell at his feet, and as he stooped to pick it up he felt a dizziness creeping over him. He immediately rushed out of the doors and the fresh air revived him. Carbon monoxide gas, the fumes of the burning gasoline, had killed the sparrow and undoubtedly would have overcome the man in another minute or two if the death of the bird had not given him a timely warning.

FACTORY IN ALBERTA.

Utah-Idaho Sugar Company Decides To Build.

CALGARY, Alta., Nov. 19—(Canadian Press). — The Utah-Idaho Sugar Company has decided to erect a large sugar beet factory at some point in Southern Alberta, B. R. Smoot, general superintendent of the company, stated here yesterday. The initial expenditure will total $1,500,000.

"Farmers of the south country have guaranteed us six thousand acres of beets on cultivated irrigated land," Mr. Smoot announced, "which would be sufficient guarantee to warrant our building a factory at some point in Southern Alberta."

Mr. Smoot intimated that the proposed factory would only be the first of what would be a chain of refineries. The headquarters of the company are located at Salt Lake City.

SPECIAL ORANGE MEETING

ANDERSON CASE TO WASHINGTON

Vancouver Lawyer Said To Have Been Arrested Without a Warrant in San Francisco.

ROUGHLY TREATED.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Representations have been made to Washington regarding the case of Fred R. Anderson, the Vancouver lawyer, who was arrested in San Francisco on a charge of liquor smuggling, Premier King stated here last night at the conclusion of a meeting of the Cabinet Council. The British Ambassador at Washington will make inquiries into the case, said the Premier in a brief statement. The nature of the representations has not been made public. Whether or not the United States Government has taken any stand on the matter was not disclosed.

According to information received here, the arrest of Fred. R. Anderson was made without a warrant by the San Francisco police. He is charged with smuggling of liquor into the United States. It is alleged that the arrest was made without a warrant, and without a charge being laid, tha the arrest occurred at one o'clock in the morning, that he was roughly treated, that he was given no opportunity to arrange bail until an official protest had been entered, and that he had been sent to jail without seeing a solicitor.

CRERAR SUSPECTS BOB ROGERS OF STATEMENT

Reported By Conservative as Dictator of Alberta—Ludicrous, He Says.

CALGARY, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—It is extremely rare that Hon. T. A. Crerar, president of the United Grain Growers, will consent to be interviewed by the press. He departed from his usual custom, however, Tuesday, when a representative of the Canadian Press showed him a Toronto despatch in which W. J. Blair, Conservative leader in Alberta, charged him with being a dictator of the province.

"Mr. Blair's statements regarding both myself and the United Grain Growers, Limited," he said, "are wholly absurd and even ludicrous. I do not think they originated with Mr. Blair, but probably with the Hon. Robert Rogers, who has a unique facility for making such statements, and who is probably celebrating his restoration to the position of dominance in the Conservative party."

Why some people don't get on is because they are always falling off in application.

TWO HUNTERS' BODIES RECOVERED IN MARSH

Winnipeg Sportsmen Missing Two Weeks—Boat Swamped.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Missing since November 3, the bodies of Hans Webber and Walter T. Smith, Winnipeg sportsmen who failed to return from a hunting expedition in the marshes near Clandeboye Bay, were recovered from the icy waters of Lake Manitoba Tuesday. The bodies were found by fishermen less than 100 yards from the spot where their overturned boat was located a week ago.

Webber was one of the foremost scullers in Western Canada, and an outstanding figure in other athletic activities, accompanied by Smith, left Winnipeg for the northern marshes on November 2. A heavy storm was reported on the night they attempted to cross the bay, and it is believed that the boat capsized and that they were unable to swim to safety, owing to their weighty hunting gear.

CONSULT DOMINIONS ON PEACE PLAN PROTOCOL

Britain Requests That Disarmament Discussion Be Postponed By League.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press Caable Via Reuter's)—The British government, through its foreign office, has requested the secretariat of the League of Nations not to place the security and disarmament protocal on the agenda for the next meeting of the Council of the League of Nations which will be held at Rome, December 8.

The reason for this request is that the British government considers it will be necessary to consult the government of the overseas dominions before it will be able to proceed in the matter.

AUSTRALIA ON EVE OF GREAT DEVELOPMENT

Premier Bruce Says Britain's Surplus Population Will Be Absorbed.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press Cable Via Reuter's)—Prime Minister Stanley M. Bruce, speaking here Tuesday again stated his belief that there was a great industrial development in store for the commonwealth and the country was already on the brink of unusual prosperity. This great development, he said, with closer Imperial relations, would result in the absorption by Australia of Britain's surplus population and the admittance of Australian products to the great market of Britain.

PRINCE THANKS PRESS.

President of Wembley Fair Acknowledges Empire-Wide Publicity.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press Cable).—His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, in his capacity of president of the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley, which closed recently, has forwarded a letter to the Duke of Devonshire, who was one of the chief sponsors of the big fair, requesting him to convey to the press of the Empire his sincere gratitude for the patriotic assistance they gave in connection wih the exhibition. The Prince declared that it was to the encouragement of the press that the success of the fair was largely attributable.

STORMY SCENE DURING DEBATE LIQUOR ISSUES

Premier Ferguson Left No Doubt As To His Position on Recent Vote.

WILL OF PFOPLE.

J. A. McCausland Was Backed Into a Corner by a Ferguson Supporter.

TORONTO, November 19. — In a fighting speech before the big Conservative conference at the King Edward Hotel yesterday, Premier Ferguson left no doubts as to his intention to resist all efforts, within or without his own party, to thwart the will of the people as expressed in the O.T.A. plebiscite on October 23rd last.

In it he declared for the principle of adherence to the will of the people, and his last sentence, a clear and emphatic declaration of his course, brought the whole conclave to its feet, cheering him.

He said as a finale to his address: "I want to say to you that there is no office in the gift of this people, not even the Prime Ministership of the province of Ontario, great position as it is, that has sufficient attraction for me to cause me to violate an obligation given to the people."

Postponed to the last half-hour of an all-day conference of the Conservative Association of Ontario, the "wet" issue was finally precipitated when resolutions tabled earlied in the day by F. W. Wilson, M.L.A., for Windsor, and W. G. Weichel, M. L.A., for North Waterloo, as mover and seconder, was introduced. It read as follows:

"We, supporters of the Conservative party of the Province of Ontario, resolve and declare that in our opinion, the results of the recent plebiscite held October 23rd, 1924, constitute a mandate form the people to the legisalture of this province to pass legislation providing for government control in those ridings that desire it, and that such legislation is necessary in the best interests of law and order."

The resolution transferred on orderly political business meeting into a tumult of turbulance, were invectives flew and threats were levelled and where speakers shouted at the top of their voices to make themselves heard, and where the conclusion of the affair found J. A. McCausland, the Conservative member for Southwest Toronto, backed into a corner hotly bandying the word "blackguard" with a staunch supporter of Ferguson.

The resolution itself never came to a vote, the whole row being over the motion of Mr. McCausland that the resolution be presented to the meeting for discussion.

As there was no order of resolution on the agenda, chairman MacNicol was not even going to read it, without first obtaining consent of the convention, but Premier Ferguson, amid the cheers of the convention, urged that in order to avoid subsequent complaints of throttling the discussion, it be read; recommending at at the same that there were some matters upon which the government could not accept dictation but must accept the full responsibility.

After the resolution was read there was the hottest kind of a discussion, during which was threatened with being "thrown out" and told to "shut up" and "sit down," and in which the Premier uopn one of the occasions of Mr. McCausland's interruptions squelched him with: "I may be able to lead people in politics but I am not able to lead them in ethics."

The ultimate standing vote upon the question of whether the resolution should be considered by the convention, found only three supporters, among them Mr. McCausland; and the remarkable feature of the vote was that not even F. W. Wilson, M.P.P., or W. G. Weichel, M.P.P., the mover and seconder, were to be found standing in favor of its discussion.

Then for the amendment, that the resolution be not discussed, the whole room, with the exception of three proponents, stood up, and celebrated its victory amid a burst of cheering.

ART FACTORIES FAKE ANTIQUES

Nine Copies of the Saint Sauveur Virgin Now in America.

LIST OF PROSPECTS.

PARIS, Nov. 19.— Angelo Malgarotta, owner of a so-called "Virgin factory" at Malakoff, near Paris, admitted that he is kept hard at work by Paris antique dealers copying antiquities.

Malgaratto asserted:

"I estimate that at least nine of my copies of the Saint Sauveur Virgin are now in America."

At the same time, he admitted that he did not have any evidence that they were purchased under false certificates of authenticity. He added:

"As a matter of fact, many big collectors will pay fancy prices for copies of well known statues and then delude their friends into believing they have bought originals.

"In my opinion, unscrupulous collectors are as much to blame as the dealers, who after all only supply the demand."

Perfect Copies Seen

Malgarotto showed perfect copies of statuettes recently discovered in the ruins of Carthage, and also stones, rings and head ornaments which he said were faked by Arabs in Tunis to sell to tourists.

Madame Boutron, whose husband a foreman in the repair shop of the famous Demotte establishment, was mysteriously slain last year, said that never to her knowledge had her husband copied art objects in their entirety.

He confined himself, she said, to supplying antiques with missing parts ,such as arms and legs. She said:

"In some cases they even broke up statues to use portions for repairing more valuable ones. My husband was a veritable artist. He certainly was not a maker— he simply restored antiques."

Employs Dozen Men.

At No. 6 Boulevard Biron, Saint Ouen, just north of Paris, is another art fatcory, operated for a man named Moretti, a former cemetery stone mason. Moretti employs a dozen sculptors, all on skilled work, "restoring antiques." He said:

He refused to give any names.

The biggest houses in Paris refused to comment on the "fake art" business to-day, but the manager of the shop of Edouard Jonas, a millionaire dealer, said that reputable firms are forming a committee to discover frauds and force the fakers out of business.

Many amazing dodges are resorted to by dealers to unload spurious stuff on collectors. It is common for French noblemen to accept com-

THEFT EXPOSED BY CONFESSION

Registered Parcel of $1,000 Was Not Missed By Post Office or Bank.

POLICE SHOCKED.

LETHBRIDGE, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Four years ago a registered parcel containing about one thousand dollars was sent to a Lethbridge bank by a merchant of Burdett. The other day Edward Standing confessed to the police in San Francisco that he had stolen the money. Standing was formerly a clerk in the Lethbridge Post Office.

Not until details of the confession were received by local police yesterday from San Francisco, was it discovered that such a theft had actually taken place. Anthony Rigg, sender of the money, admitted that he did not know that it had not been delivered to the bank to cover accounts of his wholesalers. The post office did not know and the bank did not know. Standing will be brought back to Lethbridge.

Standing's statement to the San Francisco police was that he had taken the money, that a friend had told him another man had been convicted for the theft, and he wanted to clear the other fellow. But the theft not being known, naturally there was no conviction, and Standing's confession was a shock to the police.

Brimmell Brothers Are Moving To Brockville

LINDSAY, Nov. 18.—Mr. Harry Brimmell, who is a member of the firm of Dundas and Flavelles, Limited, has severed his connection with that firm and with his brother, Mr. Frank Brimmell, who was formerly in business in Peterboro will conduct a gents furnishing store in Brockville. The senior member of the new firm has been associated with the Flavelles for twenty-three years. He is president of the Lindsay Rotary Club, Lindsay Curling Club, President of the Retail Merchants' Association of Ontario, ex-President of Lindsay Board of Trade and a former member of the town council. He leaves for Brockville about the first of December.

LABOR OF FIVE NATIONS JOINED HANDS IN PEACE

American Federation Meets With Mexican, Canadian, English and German Delegations.

GOMPERS IN TEARS.

Mexicans Marched Across the Rio Grande From Juarez to El Paso.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 19.—Representatives of 14,000,000 wage-earners of the United States, Mexico, Canada, England and Germany gripped hands at the conclusion of the first joint session of the American Federation of Labor and the Mexican Confederation of Labor, and, amid the cheers of American delegates and the repeated "vivas" of Mexicans, pledged the forces of organized labor to preserve the peace of the world.

One thousand delegates of the Mexican Confederation of Labor, in sixth annual convention at Juarez, across the Rio Grande, marched over the International Bridge late Monday afternoon and joined forces at Liberty Hall with the 400 delegates to the forty-fourth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor.

Mexicans Cheered in Hall.

Entrance of the Mexicans brought the American delegates to their feet. Ricardo Trevino, general secretary of the Mexican Confederation, and Juan Rico, president of the American Federation, were escorted to the platform, where they embraced Mr. Gompers. Trevino gripped a standard with the Mexican flag. As column after column of the Mexican delegates swept into the hall the American delegates cheered and applauded.

The agrarian delegates sent to the convention direct from the farm, were clad in white cotton suits, broad straw sombreros ,sandals and pink and orange scarfs. The industrial delegates, from machine shops and railroads, wore overalls, and the representatives of the clerical and intellectual workers were attired in the conventional business suits and white collars.

Orange and white blouses mingled with white costumes and the black shawls of the Mexican women to make a colorful spectacle.

Mr. Trevino whose speech, as well as that of Mr. Rico, was translated by C. N. Vargas, of the Pan-American Federation of Labor, declared that the struggle of the American and Mexican labor movements both were directed "against a group of capitalists who reside in the United States and who are now the strongest financial force in the world." The struggle against those forces, he said, was not a struggle of Mexico or of the United States, but of the working people of the world.

Mr. Freund warned all enemies of the labor movement in Mexico "that the men in the labor ranks would be happy to lose their lives in the struggle for liberty." Only one thing could make the Mexican labor movement fearful of its future, he said, and that would be if it were to lose the friendshin of the American labor movement.

Grasps Hands for Peace.

After a short address by Mr. Kelly President Gompers called on the Mexican leaders and on the fraternal delegates from England, Germany and Canada to grasp hands as a demonstration that the labor organizations of the five countries were determined to maintain the peace of the world.

The spectacle of Mr. Gompers, Mr. Trevino, Mr. Rico, A. B. Swales, President of the British Trades Union Congress; John Colbert, of the same congress; C. T. Cramp, of the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress, and Peter Grassman, Vice-President of the German Federation of Trades Unions, standing on the platform with firmly gripped hands evoked an enthusiastic demonstration. Tears were rolling down the cheeks of Mr. Gompers when he announced the adjournment.

GREAT OUTLOOK FOR CANADIANS

Canada Will Have Minister at Washington in Near Future, Says Graham.

COMPLETE LIBERTY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press.)—Canada will have a minister in Washington in the near future, Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways, declared last night in replying to a toast to Canada, which was proposed by Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador to the United States at the annual dinner of the Canadian Club. After reference to close relationship with interlocking interests of Canada and the United States, Mr. Graham said: "It will not be very many months until Canada will have a representative at Washington." Complete liberty to each individual Dominion as to its own development, with hearty co-operation among them all and empire in the matters of world wide policy, is only policy through which the British Empire will be able to continue to "hold together" and exert its influence in the world, Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador to Washington, said.

"Canada especially," he said. "By reason of her position as an American power, will have exceptional position and play exceptionally important part, in future development of the British Emptre."

"It will be for her, he said, "to interpret the rest of us, the feelings and the attitude of this great American Republic with whom we not only desire but intend to live in most cordial friendship and in peace in the future.

"In view of the constantly increasing importance of America, north and south, in economic as well as political affairs of the world at large, importance of Canada's share in the Imperial and world affairs can, I think hardly be overestimated. I feel sure that, judging by the wisdom of the Statesmen in past, she will play her part with honor, dignity and success."

NEWS OF HASTINGS.

Another Skating Rink Under Course of Construction.

HASTINGS, Nov. 19.—A new skating rink is under construction in Hastings. Mr. S. Stevenson is making rapid progress in building an open-air rink a little north of Front Street East. It is expected that a hockey team will be formed in the near future.

The small boys have already donned their skates, and are skating on the ponds, some of which are now frozen over since the cold weather has developed.

Mr. and Mrs. A. V. German were in Warkworth on Tuesday.

Many of the citizens of this district attended the fowl supper in the Norwood Methodist Church on Monday evening.

Many of the young people from Hastings attended the dance in Norwood on Friday evening, which was under the auspices of the I.O.D.E.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Bailey were in Warkworth on Sunday.

Father John Powers, of Peterboro, spent Tuesday in Hastings.

Mrs. H. T. Lambert, Misses Mary and Kathleen Lambert and Miss Olive Keogan spent Sunday in Havelock.

Mr. Nelson Wellman, who this season has been cheesemaker at the Brickley Cheese Factory, has moved his household effects to Norwood, where he will spend the winter.

The funeral of Mrs. Dunlay, widow of Mr. John Dunlay of Percy, was held on Monday morning. Deceased was in her sixty-fourth year. Service was held in the Church of Our Lady Mount Carmel, and interment took place in the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

LOAN FELL THROUGH.

Russia's Attempt To Raise Loan In Australia Failed.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press). — Replying to Question in Legislative assembly of New South Wales yesterday, Hon. Charles William Oakes, Colonial Secretary and Minister of Health, stated that attempt of Soviet Government of Russia to raise loan of £200,000 in Australia has been unsuccessful. Amount subscribed to loan reached only £800.

FROZEN TO DEATH.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Nov. 19—(Canadian Press).—Body of Michael Sharron of Toronto, Ontario was found stiff in a freight car on the Grand Trunk tracks here yesterday.

Sharron, with several companions, the police learned had been drinking heavily and they crawled into the car to sleep.

HEALTH FABLES.

In Anytown, as elsewhere, the "old timers" were always talking about the best methods for attaining longevity.

Almost invariably different methods seemed to lead to the same end.

One would say that he had never stopped smoking and drank liquor whenever he could get it; another would insist that old age has to be obtained only by complete abstinence; some were vegetarians and others ate meat.

The crux of which is; few persons react similarly to either the externals or internals of life. Each man must study his own problem. But there are general rules to the game, by following which no one can go wrong.

To reach a ripe old age is all but impossible if you live a rushing, hectic life. Cultivate cheerfulness and bright outlook; do something useful as often as you can for the good of your peace of mind and soul.

Get a hobby; don't worry about luxuries, simple things are best; keep your mind occupied and vary your interest so that they will not lag. Eat the things that agree with you best, rather than those things you like, and get lots of fresh air, exercise, baths, sleep and sunshine.

KEEP HOOKS LOW.

See that hooks are placed low enough in the clothes closet so that children may hang up their own coats and wraps.

GOVERNMENT IN WAY.

Proposed $100,000,00o Loan To France Not Signed Yet.

PARIS, Nov. 19th. — (United Press).—The Ere Nouvelles says the Coolidge Administration has raised difficulties in the way of the proposed $100,000,000 loan by J. P. Morgan to France.

Negotiations, it is learned, have suffered a temporary hitch but those interested are hopeful that the difficulties raised by the American government can be overcome and the loan agreement signed.

Cor... ONLY CREW ON DECK.

Passengers Battened Below While Crew Faced Gale—Seamanship Praised.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18. — With a death knife between his teeth, Fourth Officer John Collins of the White Star liner Adriatic crawled along the hurricane deck while a cyclone was raging last Wednesday to cut adrift the starboard emergency lifeboat that was hanging from the after davit. A sailor was blown overboard and drowned, another lifeboat was stove in and for six hours the 25,000-ton liner was hove to with her engines going at full speed to keep her head on to the precipitous seas.

The Adriatic arrived Monday with her forward deck coated with ice. Her passengers spoke highly of the skillful seamanship of Captain Frank Beadnell, R.N.R., and his officers for the way they handled the ship during the terrific storm last Wednesday, when only members of the crew were allowed on deck. The passengers were battened down below and watched the heaving seas through the glass ports.

On Tuesday, Nov. 11, at 6 p.m., the glass began to fall and a fresh gale started to blow from the southeast which increased during the night and by 4 a.m. the next day Chief Officer William Weston and Fourth Officer John Collins relieved the bridge, it was blowing at a velocity of seventy-five miles with high head seas.

At 5.30 the wind veered to the northwest and blew at a ninety-mile gale and later to 100 miles.

It was evident that the Adriatic was near the centre of a cyclonic storm and Captain Beadnell, who was on the bridge, relieved the two officers in order that they could see the lifeboats were properly lashed down. No. 3 boat on the starboard side was lifted from its solid wooden chocks by the cyclone which carried them over the side and the stern of the boat No. 19 aft on the same side was torn from the chocks and hung over the side of the second cabin island, as it is called.

Fourth Officer Collins went aft with eleven men of the port watch and H. Stickland the bosun, to make the boat fast. Just as they had completed the job boat No. 20 on the opposite broke adrift and had to be secured. John Edward Nelson, a sailor, was told to climb under the boat to catch the gantline when it was passed over from the dock top by the bosun from the deck. There Nelson lay on it face downward with was a collapsible boat lashed to the keelsunder the swaying lifeboat, and his head aft.

Seaman Swept Overboard.

As he raised his right arm to catch the rope the wind got under his oilskin coat which filled out like a balloon, and, before the members of the crew could realize what had occurred, the unfortunate seaman was wisked out from under the lifeboat and blown overboard like a piece of paper.

Two life buoys were thrown overboard from the island where the port watch was standing and another was thrown over by Quartermaster Thomas Ryan from the after bridge. The seamen said that Nelson was beyond all aid. He had on a pair of rubber seaboots which would have filled immediately, they said and which would have dragged him down. The Adriatic was then barely keeping head-on to the seas and could not have been turned around without endangering the ship. Besides pitching forward the stern went down at intervals and took over waves which swept over the after bridge.

HON. JAS. MURDOCK SPOKE AT STIRLING

Hon. Arthur Meighen Follows on Thursday in the Porter By-election.

STIRLING, 18.—Stirling has had its share of weddings during the past week, the last being Miss Ella Currie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Currie, who was married to Mr. Lindinfield, on Saturday last. The happy couple are spending their honeymoon in Toronto and London.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Patterson and Mr. and Mrs. Sandercock have returned from their honeymoon trips to Ottawa and Montreal and everybody wishes them a happy married life.

The Voter's Lists are prepared for the coming by-election in Hastings West and considerable interest is being manifested in the campaign in connection with it. Both sides are busy organizing and holding meetings in various parts of the riding.

The Hon. Mr. Murdock arrived on the scene and was a speaker at a meeting last night, held in the community hall at Mount Pleasant, in the interest of Mr. Hanna.

There is to be a meeting here on Thursday night in the interests of Mr. Porter, when Hon. Mr. Meighen and other speakers from a distance will be heard.

Hunters Return

Some of our local hunters returned from the north last week and brought with them four fine deer, which were on exhibition in Mr. McGuire's butcher shop for several days

Others are returning this week and report good results from their trip.

Plowing Stopped

The recent cold draught which blew in from the north on Sunday has stopped the farmers in their plowing operations, and there is considerable of this work to do yet.

The pipes at Evergreen Cheese factory couldn't withstand the frost on Sunday night and burst causing some damage. Operations will cease at this factory on Thursday, closing a very successful season.

Mr. Thos. Cranston has built a new garage between his creamery and Jas. Sarle's shop.

Mr. Alex. Donald of Campbellford who was seriously injured by falling from Mr. Legrow's house, and was removed to his home, is reported to be improving nicely.

Personal Notes

Misses Florence and Stella Marshall and Duncan Marshall Jr., were recent visitors at their uncle's, the Hon. Duncan Marshall, in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. M .W. Sine attended the anniversary services of St. Peter's Presbyterian church in Madoc.

Mr. and Mrs. David Tucker of Minto, have moved into Stirling and will spend the winter at the home of Mrs. Jacob Sine, Gore street.

Mr. Bob Parker of Deloro, was in town Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Martin spent the week end in Napanee with friends.

Mrs. Robt. Reid and Miss Ella Kingston, were the guests of the former's brother, Mr. James Caskey of Madoc on Sunday.

Messrs. Luther Tucker and K. M. Sine of Peterborough were in town to-day.

The pond is frozen over and soon the boys will be trying their skates.

TURKS INTRODUCED TO OUR CORN

The American relief is doing much to make American corn popular in Turkey as a substitute for wheat and rice. Corn flour and corn grits may be the means of relieving the situation and when the natives learn to like corn they will save much money, as it can be supplied much cheaper than wheat and rice.

MOTIVE POWER FROM HEAVEN

Railroad presidents and various oil directors will be out of jobs when the new motive power invented by an American engineer comes into general use. He has it pretty well in hand at the present time, so much so that he recently invited a number of friends to ride on a machine which he has built. The experimental car had much the appearance of the foot-power trucks which are sometimes made use of by railroad workmen with the addition of a ten-foot pole in front with a bundle of wire on its top. It has a motor and a little machinery hardly worth mentioning, but no engine, battery or gas tank. "What makes it go?" asked one of the guests. "I am taking electricity from the air," was the reply. The inventor took his guests many miles through the country and the power never failed. With a supply of power from the skies to be drawn through an old umbrella frame there will be no use for the mussy stuff heretofore taken from the interior of the earth, neither will there be any use for the many gas tanks scattered over the country.

Character is the foundation, reputation is only the superstructure, and the latter cannot long endure when the former crumbles.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. First you will feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness. 40c and 75c, at all druggists.

PROTOCOL POSTPONED.

Overseas Dominions Will Have To Be Consulted Before Proceeding.

PARIS, Nov. 19. — (Canadian Press.) —The British Government, through its foreign office, has requested the secretary of the League of Nations not to place security and disarmament protocol on the agenda for the next meeting of the Council of the League of Nations, which will be held in Rome on December 8th. The reason for this request is that the British government considers it will be necessary to consult Governments of the overseas Dominions before it will be able to proceed in the matter.

The action of the government in certain quarters is taken to mean that the protocol is virtually scrapped. Decision was not received with surprise in London because of strong objections raised by the Dominions.

LEGISLATURE PARTY HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Manitoba Member Injured In Collision With Street Car.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Proceeding to the Parliament Buildings to attend a Government caucus, W. C. McKinnell, M.L.A. for Rockwood, was injured and four members of the Provincial Legislature, including Hon. W. R. Clubb, Minister of Public Works, narrowly escaped death, when a street car collided with an automobile here Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. McKinnell, who was driving the automobile, was badly bruised and suffered from shock. His condition, however, is not serious. Apart from a severe shaking up, the other members were uninjured.

Hospital for Sick Children
67 COLLEGE ST., TORONTO

Dear Mr. Editor:—

Your readers have probably had their appetite for statistics satiated during the past few months. Still they will, no doubt, want to know something of the work accomplished by the hospital to which they have so generously contributed in the past. They are shareholders in a Mission of Mercy. Their dividends are not paid in coin of the realm. May I trespass upon your space to outline what those dividends are?

Firstly, the daily average of children occupying cots in the Hospital for Sick Children was 255. The total cared for as in-patients was 6,397. That is equivalent to the population of a good-sized Ontario town.

And secondly, the out-patient department. This is a wing of offices given over to consultation and minor operations. On an average there were 190 young callers a day.

That is where the dividends are earned—in the difference made in the lives of thousands of children through the voluntary contributions which render it possible to maintain an institution where pallid cheeks become rosy and twisted limbs are made straight.

If that were not dividend enough, one might try to estimate the enormous salvage of child-life in Ontario which has taken place since "Sick Kids" doctors and "Sick Kids" nurses have been going out through this province equipped with a knowledge of children's diseases, which they could not get except in some such highly specialised and pre-eminently efficient institution as the Hospital for Sick Children.

On this year's service the Hospital expended $345,126 and finds itself in the hole to the extent of $124,284. What comes in around Christmas-time keeps the Hospital going. So long as the word "Christmas" retains its original significance could any charity possibly enlist more of the sympathy of your readers or entitle itself to more of their support?

Faithfully yours,
I. E. ROBERTSON,
Chairman Appeal Committee

A MINUTE OF MERCY COSTS FIFTY CENTS

WOMAN-SIZE JOB, THIS WIFE BUSINESS

Happy Marriages Made Up Of Well Cooked Meals, Mended Socks, Love Sympathy — Husbands Have No Sinecure in Daily Work.

By CYNTHIA GREY.

After you have successfully married a man it's your job to make him happy. And if you don't succeed in doing that you fail just as a man fails in his business career.

For a happy marriage just doesn't happen. It's made up of well-cooked meals and mended socks and sympathy and love and understanding and a few little incidentals like those. And your job is to provide them.

There is no "vamp" in the world to compare with the comfortable woman who puts the buttons in her lord's clean shirt every morning and keeps a corner of the living-room sacred to his old easy-chair, his ash-tray and his favorite magazines. The wife who believes with Beatrice Forbes-Robertson Hale that two hours a day is all any woman needs to spend doing her housework will never have the kind of home that looks better to her husband than the club, the pool-room or the golf links.

* * *

But that doesn't mean that there's not another side to life and marriage. There's the romantic side that really is the heart and soul of the institution. And if you want to keep that as it should be you have got to keep yourself the attractive woman your husband first fell in love with. You can't slump.

For no man remains long in love with a woman who is physically shabby. If you have let your husband see you with your hair uncombed, your face shining with cold cream and your body swathed in a soiled kimona, you may depend upon it that you are no longer the woman of his dreams that you once were—no matter what he may say to the contrary.

And if you are letting your brain get into sloppy negligee habits you are making the mistake of your life. Men admire no one so much as they do a good talker.

When Lady Astor was last in this country, her audiences were largely men. To hold your husband's interest you must make yourself entertaining. Do you?

* * *

For one thing, do you read the daily newspapers? Your husband does, of course, and he knows what is happening in the world. If you don't, it scores against you in this marriage game.

The wife who knows who Walter Johnson is, and how many times the Prince of Wales' horse has thrown him, is a dozen times more interesting than the one whose dinner-table conversation centres on the new fur jacquette she must have, or why she doubled four spades in last night's bridge game.

And then there's another thing. Do you really help your husband in his own work of making enough money to take care of you? Or do you dishearten him by comparing your six-room flat with the fine new house Bill Jones has just bought for his wife?

The most unlovely wife in the world is like the one James Montgomery Flagg wrote the poem about—the one who left her husband because he couldn't keep her in a style she'd never been accustomed to.

* * *

Have you ever stopped to think about the courage of husbands as a whole? They go out every day to do work not half so interesting as your own varied task of housekeeping.

You're in your own house, where you can keep your own hours, where you're free to stop any time for a telephone chat with Margie, for a stroll in the park with the baby, or a matinee.

Your husband probably has a "boss," and works under the strain of constant competition besides. Men's positions are far from being the sinecures we women imagine them to be.

* * *

No man can go out in the morning and do his best work whose wife has just shown him a great sheaf of bills that can't be paid for months or who has cried because he can't afford to buy her the new mandarin dress she craves. He is handicapped from the start.

The woman who is doing everything in her power to make her home a harbor of peace and comfort, the one who sends her husband out to the daily battle freshened in body and spirit, is the only one who is honestly keeping her part of the marriage contract.

It's a woman-size job, this wife business.

U. F. O. MEETING HELD TORONTO

Party Will Be Re-organized Under the Name of Progressives With Same Leaders.

DRURY SPEAKS.

TORONTO, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Undismayed by the crushing defeat administered in the Provincial elections of last year, remnants of the U.F.O. Government and supporters met in convention at the Labor Temple yesterday to decide upon the future of their party. The gathering decided by an unanimous vote to reorganize their party under the name of Progressive, and to again trust their leadership to E. C Drury and Manning Doherty, former Premier and Minister of Agriculture, respectively.

In the address of Mr. Drury and Manning Doherty last evening, neither mentioned the name of Peter Smith, but their references to recent events were so pointed that no one could doubt what was uppermost in their minds.

Hon. Mr. Drury said there was a painful, intensely painful, question that he must refer to—an unfortunate occurrence that had grieved him deeply, an occurrence which it would be useless to deny or ignore. There was, however, this to say, the most sacred obligation of the Government was the administration of the law, that there should be no ground for suspicion that the scales of justice were held with an uneven hand or that the sword of justice was unsheathed against one but not against another. That there was not unfairness, that one should not escape and another be taken. It was for the people of Ontario to judge on the facts disclosed during recent months whether the present Government was fulfilling that most fundamental duty. Then he paused for a few moments, as if at a loss to find words with which to express his thoughts, and remarked: "Well, let it stand at that."

After concluding his speech, the former Premier came to the press table and said he desired to make it quite clear that he had the utmost confidence in the judiciary of the province, and was glad Canadian courts were not in the category of those across the line.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING.

Although much is not heard these days of the proposed additions to Peterborough's school accommodation, it is interesting nevertheless to note that the St. Catharines Collegiate Institute and Vocational Training School seems to be living up to all the predictions made by its advocates.

Figures just given out show that no fewer than 909 pupils are enrolled for the day classes, while the number taking advantage of the Vocational School night classes has reached a total of 1,140, and, in addition, there are 127 night pupils studying academic subjects to improve their training and fitness for life and their general knowledge.

They show that both branches of the school are being taken advantage of, and they refute the idea that facilities for vocational training are not utilized enough to justify the cost of their maintenance.

There can be no quarrel with the conclusion of the St. Catharines Standard that better citizens will be the result, with improved earning capacity in life, and, as the Standard puts it, "it is all free to those who have the ambition and will to so improve themselves.

DOMINION PROHIBITION.

The on-to-Ottawa slogan of Rev. Ben. Spence, implying as it does a campaign for national prohibition, has been giving many people considerable material for thought.

How the Federal Government, in the face of adverse majorities to prohibition in the Western Provinces and the attitude of the people of Quebec toward the question, could be expected to force Dominion-wide prohibition, is something that Mr. Spence has not yet explained.

To ask Ottawa to ignore the Provincial laws of Quebec, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia and to clamp prohibition upon Provinces that, as a result of the votes of their own people, have adopted a form of Government control, is so unreasonable as to make it likely that many people who have always voted for prohibition would be decidedly reluctant to folow Mr. Spence upon any such crusade.

If general prohibition is to come back, it can only come through the individual Provinces by plebiscite deciding to adopt it—it is idle to talk about the Federal Government of its own accord attempting to put into force a principle rejected by five of the Provinces.

No Dominion Government would pass such a law, and, moreover, no Dominion Government could enforce such a law.

THE DETOUR NUISANCE.

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce has submitted half a dozen resolutions to be discussed at the annual convention of the Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, and among them is one in regard to Provincial road-building and the elimination of the detour evil as far as possible that the Examiner hastens to support.

The Highways Department has failed to give this detour problem the attention it deserves.

Take one important road alone, the Kingston highway, and the records show that for months during paving operations between Oshawa and Bowmanville and between Port Hope and Cobourg the traffic has had to be taken care of by detours over roads that were never intended to carry such a number of cars.

It is a miracle indeed that there has not been a series of bad accidents on these detours, considering the narrowness of the roads and the extent of the traffic over them.

The motoring fraternity have to be convinced that it is necessary to tie up all traffic on a principle artery simply because it is under repair, or at least fail to see why the operations could not be speeded up very materially.

The probem might profitably be studied by the department during the winter with a view to improved conditions when out-of-doors work recommences in the spring.

THE HAMILTON MURDERS.

The whole machinery of the law should be directed toward the solution of the two murders that have shocked the people of Hamilton and of Ontario generally during the last few days.

The authority of the Province has been challenged by these brutal killings, and no expense or effort should be spared by the Ontario Government in assisting the Hamilton authorities to run down the guilty parties.

The crimes are attributed to foreigners engaged in the bootlegging industry.

Whether that is true or not makes little difference; what does matter is that two most cold-blooded murders have been committed and up to the present the assassins have gone Scot-free.

The rounding up of the brutes who so callously killed two men within a week under similar circumstances should be considered as the most pressing task before the Ontario Provincial Police.

The Ontario Temperance Act can wait a little if necessary while the Provincial officials devote all their energies to the solving of this double crime.

The idea must never be allowed to gain ground that murder can be committed with impunity in this Province.

There have been too many unsolved homicides in the Hamilton district, and the most recent case must be cleared up and the culprits brought to justice, in order that newcomers to Canada may be impressed with the fact that British law prohibits murder and that British law enforcement officers, like the Royal Mounted, "always get their men."

SCHOOL AS UNIVERSITY.

Premier Ferguson made a highly interesting and important announcement in his speech at Caledonia on Friday, to the effect that the Government was contemplating the provision of financial assistance to the high schools of the Province to enable them to teach first and second-year university work. This is a step which will undoubtedly be warmly welcomed by the general public, says the Hamilton Spectator. It is often difficult, and in many cases an impossibility, for parents to gratify their ambition to provide university education for their children. The question of expense is the main stumbling block, and this arises principally from the fact that, except for those resident in university cities, the cost of board and lodging has to be taken into consideration in addition to the educational fees. If the high schools were converted into universities, in the way suggested, it would go far toward solving the problem. Whether it is in all cases desirable to provide a university education for public school pupils is another question. The opportunity would probably only be taken advantage of by a percentage of parents and scholars, in any case; but it is manifestly in the best interests of democracy that education should be made as good and as cheap as possible for the greatest number.

Another section of the speech which will be received with gratification by the public is that which deals with the teaching of civics and history. The Premier is a strong imperialist, and holds that the emphasis should be placed on the Union Jack and the British Empire. This does not mean that the history of our own Dominion will be neglected. It is, indeed, the intention of the Provincial Education Department to send out pictures, illustrative of Canadian history, with instructions to teachers to specially impress upon scholars the biographical details. Those who, from previous announcements from the department, had formed the opinion that history was in any danger of being neglected in the schools will be agreeably reassured by this pronouncement, and by the excellent summing-up of the true purposes of education, which, in the Premier's view, are not merely the acquiring of knowledge, but the development of the moral, physical and intellectual faculties. Keeping that ideal in mind, it is not possible to go far astray.

NO TIME FOR INCREASES.

The Ottawa Journal, a good friend of the Ontario Government, does not think that Mr. Ferguson's proposal to increase ministerial salaries has met with anything but the minimum of applause, and adds: "Under the circumstances and without wishing to be too dogmatic about the matter, we think that Mr. Ferguson will not be doing a very popular or useful thing if he increases the remuneration of his Ministers."

In discussing the subject it admits there is argument for the other side.

"Briefly, it is that if a public servant is worth anything he is worth a good salary; and that if the highest type of men, or able men, are to be recruited by the State, the State must be prepared to pay them.

"All of this is perhaps true. But the thing which it involves may be overdone. In the first place it is impossible, in a democracy, in any State, to put service and patriotism on a salary basis. To do so, to attempt to do so, would be to strike at the moral foots of government. The man who enters public life cannot possibly enter it with the idea that he ought to make as much money serving his country as he would make serving only himself. If he does so, then the chances are that he will try to serve himself, and the country afterwards, anyway.

"Nor is it true—as is so often alleged—that small salaries keep our best minds from politics. They may bar the man who has the faculty for making money, the man who makes that his supreme purpose; but is such a man the best equipped for politics? Anyone who has watched Parliaments, anyone who has observed successful business men in public life, anyone who has studied the experiment of "business men in politics," knows the answwer. It is that in nine cases out of ten the man who has made a success of making money makes a mess of politics.

"For the two things are vastly different. One is concerned with a sole idea, demanding perhaps but specialized knowledge along a certain line. The other is as wide as humanity, demanding equipment of an entirely different kind. Politics, in short, is an art and science of itself—the most difficult, the most complex of all of them.

"Lastly, it is by no means certain that all the men who are in politics would make more money out of politics. Many of them, there are reasons for thinking, would make a great deal less. We doubt, for example, whether such undeniably efficient statesmen as Sir George Foster or Mr. W. S. Fielding would ever have grown rich in business. Their talents were of a different order. And so with Sir John Macdonald and Sir Wilfrid Laurier."

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

West Hastings is so heated up over the Federal by-election that the cold days has gone almost unnoticed.

How can the rural residents of Hastings who voted for a dry Ontario vote for Porter and still be consistent?

The cheering over Mr. Ferguson's salary increase announcement is so faint that the average listener-in cannot "bring it in" at all.

J. S. Woodsworth, M.P., would have every reference to war taken out of the school text books. To be logical similar references might be removed from the Bible. It is one of those crank ideas in which publicity mongers like to indulge, says the St. Catharines Standard.

Postal officials are planning facilities for the new Toronto Union Station for handling the mail of a million people. Probably by the time the station is open Toronto will have that many citizens.

Hon. Manning Doherty says that organized agriculture is out of politics for good—whether for the good of itself or the Province or both he neglected to say.

The Porter-Hanna battle in West Hastings seems to be growing in intensity. It gives the political orators of both sides a chance to keep in shape for the next Federal campaign, which may not be so very far off.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Nov. 18.—The run this week promises the heaviest this fall. Receipts ofr the first delivery today are 62 cars, 1143 cattle, 103 calves, 963 hogs and 619 sheep and lambs. Three loads of Western feeders about 900 lbs. each sold today from $4.20 to $4.75 a cwt. but Ontario loads of heavier cattle, but of poor breed, sold at less money. Two loads of Western steers, averaging 1,300 lbs. each, sold on Monday at $6.25 a cwt.

Export stores bought this morning cost $5.50 to $6.50 a cwt. and heifers, $5.75. Export cows were not above $4.50. Four good quality butchers, 1175 lbs. each, sold at $6.25 a cwt. and a couple of baby beeves sold at $7 and $8.75 a cwt. A small bunch of 1,000-lb. butchers sold at $6 a cwt. and mediums, almost good brought $5.50. Common butchers 'heifers were $3.50 to $4 a cwt.

There is a little lull in the demand for calves and price are easier except for grassers. Outstanding calves sold at 11 cents but most of the good calves went at 9½ and 10 cents and mediums 7½ to 8 cents.

Lambs are having quite a steady market with fewer of the light 80 to 90-lb. kind than could be used. A few extra good lambs brought 12 cents, but large bunches of good light lambs sold at 11¾ cents. Heavy lambs were 9 to 10 cents. Sheep were firm with the choice kind 7 to 7½ cents.

Hogs have a firmer undertone. The bid is $8.75 a cwt. f.o.b., but holders are sticking at $9 a cwt.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, Nov 18.—Sterling exchange rates were quoted today as follows:—Sterling demand $4.63; Sterling cales $4.63⅛.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Nov. 18. — There was no improvement in the demand from foreign buyers for Canadian grain here today and the market in consequence in this respect was dull. No. 1 northern spring wheat leading to bay ports was offered at 10½ cents per bushel over the December option, c.i.f., above ports in Canadian funds with buyers bidding 10 cents per bushel over. There was some demand from local buyers for Canadian western oats and sales of No. 2 grades were made at 4 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg No. option, c.i.f, Montreal , while No. 1 feed grade sold at 4 cents per bushel over the Dec. option c.i.f., here. Moderate amounts of business was done in carlots of grain with sales, Ontario No. 3 extra malting barley at $1.09, No. 3 grade at $1.08, per bushel ex-track ,while Ontario No. 2 white oats sold at 62 cents, No. 3 grade at 60 cents and No. 4 grade at 58 cents per bushel ex-store.

Owing to the strength in the Canadian cash wheat situation and an improved demand from local and outside buyers for winter wheat flour grade coupled wth lighter offerings from Ontario millers a stronger feeling developed i n th: spot market prices scored a further advance of 20 to 25 cents per barrel. Prices were well maintained for spring wheat grades and the trade was extremely brisk.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Corn went soaring today and reached new peak prices for the season, May delivery touching 1.22½ and July 1.23 a bushel. Freezing temperatures and increased feeding demand together with scantiness of country offerings led to active general buying of corn, and the market closed buoyant. 1¾ to 3¼ cents net higher, May 1.22½ to 1.22⅝. Wheat finished unsettled, at half cent net lower, to ¾ cent advance, December 1.53⅛ to 1.53¼ and May 1.60⅝ to 1.60¾, with oats half cent to 1 cent up and provisions varying from unchanged figures to 37 cents gain.

EGG PRICES.

OTTAWA, Nov. 18.—There is no important change in the egg situation but the undertoe to the market is firm owing to the increasing scarcity of fresh stock and continued good demand for storage eggs.

Kansas City Uses River For Wheat

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 19.—(United Press).—This inland city for the first time in history recently established connection by way of the Mississippi river with the Gulf of Mexico.

Five hundred thousand bushels of Kansas wheat shipped through Kansas City floated from St. Louis, Mo., out to sea and to European markets with a saving over rail transportation of 2 cents a bushel, or $10,000.

The barge line which moved the wheat soon will extend its service direct to Kansas City via the Missouri river.

The wheat was loaded in St. Louis from freight cars and ten days later it was in storage elevators at New Orleans.

The second shipment totals 700,000 bushels and is soon to get under way, bringing the total bushels of wheat transported down the river to 1,200,000 bushels, and representing a saving in transportation of $24,000 to the shipper.

A THOUGHT.

Many minds are as blank as a sheet of unsoiled white paper until some experience writes in indelible inks its impressions of right or wrong, pleasure or pan.

Some minds must experience something before they can seem to realize what it's all about.

But experinces are like the stern lights of a ship at sea—they only illuminate the waves that have washed against our bow.

Why is it that an intelligent man must be put to trial with trouble in order to understand fully what is best to do?

Wisdom that is bought by experience is so expensive.The experience of others should be lesson enough.

Every crime, every act of crookedness, every mistake made by another is a guidepost for you. By observation you have been taught all that is necessary to know for your plans in prosperity, your peace of mind, but by long wanderings you frequently try to find a shorter way.

It is not necessary to make the mistakes that thousands have made right before you. Just let their experiences be your example.

The expriences of others throw a great light across your path (and in front of you), but the average man insists on building his own bonfire in order to see the trail.

ELECTION HUMOR.

Heckler's Retort to Curzon Nearly Broke Up Meeting.

(By Milton Bronner.)

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The brightest spot in a dull but fiercely fought British Parliamentary election campaign was furnished the other night when the pompous Marquess of Curzon was addressing a Tory rally.

The Marquess should be interesting to Americans because he is a double son-in-law of America, both of his rich wives having been daughters of the U. S. A.

Curzon was expatiating upon the truth and how often telling the truth involved one in difficulties.

"I remember," said he, "when I was a school lad being severely punished for telling the whole truth."

And the meeting nearly dissolved in laughter when some wit in the galleries yelled out:

"Cured you forever, didn't it?"

RUSSIAN PRINCES SUPPPORT CYRIL.

COBOURG, Germany, Nov. 19.—Grand Duke Cyril of Russia, who some time ago announced to the world that he considered himself the rightful heir to the throne of the Russian czars, has sent copies of his proclamation to the 16 Russian grand dukes who are above 21 years of age.

His "chancellory" now reports that 13 of the 16 princes have sent notes or letters approving of his contention.

WEST INDIAN OIL FLOWS STEADILY.

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad, B. W.I., Nov. 19.—The petroleum industry of Trinidad, started 19 years ago, has shown an increase from 368,934 gallons in 1905 to 106,780,531 gallons in 1923. The total production during this period of time has been more than 688,000,000 gallons. Only twice has the steady increase in production been arrested, in 1915-16 and in 1919.

The exportation of crude and refined oil in 1923 amounted to 85,136,457 gallons.

The American safety razor is given the credit of having conquered the Spanish beard. On account of the heaviness of their beard, the Spanish men generally shave much less than those of other countries and the result was they presented a rather unshorn appearance. The visit to the barber was a serious matter and the Spaniard selected his barber as other men would select a dentist, the one that was least painful. But the American safety razor is said to have overcome this and the men are not only enabled to shave themselves, but to shave more frequently.

SAVAGES DO NOT HAVE OUR DISEASES.

Tuberculosis, cancer, 'flu, pneumonia and most of our diseases are unknown among savages. The reason is that they live upon natural foods. When they contact civilization and begin to live upon civilized man's white flour and refined "ghost" cereals" they die off quicsly with civilized mans diseases, but not if they stick to their own natural foods. Thus nt is hrown that it is civilized man's foods that cause his omnipresent diseases.

And besides food science has proved that the most fatal of civilized man's food practices is the refining out of his chief foodstuffs, the grains, their body-building mineral salts, fats and vitamins.

Dr. Robt. G. Jackson of Toronto, editor of the Dietetic Age of New York, circulating among physicians, has taught this for years. To counteract the effect these refined foods, Dr. Jackson devised Roman Meal, a natural whole grain food, made from whole wheat, whole rye, flaxin and bran, rich in all those elements refined out of white flour and "ghost cereals." Roman Meal eaten several times each week, in any of the delightful ways in which it may be cooked will compensate the deficiencies of white flour ,etc., and promote good health. It prevents indigestion and positively relieves constipation. Beef has 952 food units to the pound. Roman Meal has 1,600. Especially valuable for nursing and expectant mothers and children from the 10th month. At grocers.

CHURCH TREASURES TO BE DISPOSED OF

The report is that the church treasures of Russia are to be seized for the purpose of raising money to relieve the starving natives. The most famous of these is the bejeweled ikon Our Lady of Kazan, in the Kazan Cathedral, Petrograd. It is a representation of the Virgin in beaten gold, weighing ten pounds, and decorated with 1,655 large diamonds and 1,432 smaller ones, 638 rubies, 1,400 pearls, seven sapphires and 100 other jewels, besides a diamond necklace of great value draped around the image. The diamonds are all first water stones.

LODGE AND WILSON ALIKE THOUGH THEY WERE BITTER FOES

Two Outstanding Intellectuals in U.S. Public Life—Blood Clots Killed Both.

FRIGHT OVER LEAGUE CAUSE OF DEATHS

By HARRY B. .IUNT.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—A strange twist of fate, it seems, that Henry Cabot Lodge came to his death by the same sort of blow that struck down Woodrow Wilson at the height of his career, when he and Lodge were battling in the biggest fight of their lives, over the League of Nations.

It was a brain lesion that brought the Wilson collapse. By reason of his fewer years and his more robust vitality, Wilson was able to fight his way back to partial recovery. Senator Lodge, 10 years older than was Wilson at the time he was struck down, and weakened by two recent operations, never rallied.

* * *

Not only in the similarity of the stroke that ended their careers, however, were the lives of these two men alike.

At the end, the bitterest political enemies this generation in America has known, the qualities that brought each to greatness were much the same.

They were the two outstanding intellectuals in our public life. Both were great figures in the world of American letters.

Each proud to the point of imperiousness, but backing pride and resoluteness with a scholarly understanding and depth of knowledge that lifted them from the class of mere pretenders to the rank of real leaders, it was inevitable that when they did clash it should be a battle to the death.

And so it was. The death of Lodge, no less than that of Wilson, can be traced back to that struggle of 1919, which sapped not only the mental but the physical vigor of the two chief contenders. Lodge defeated our entry into the league. But he was a sick man ever after.

* * *

The lines of these two lives first crossed because of their mutual interests as scholars and historians.

Lodge was editor of the International Review, back in the 70's, when he accepted for publication a political treatise by Woodrow Wilson, then a student at Princeton.

Wilson recalled this to Lodge at his first meeting with the Senator, following his election as President, declaring that he always remembered Lodge as the editor who published his first article.

The last meeting between the two was at noon on March 4, 1921, just a few minutes before President Harding took the oath as chief executive.

Wilson, crippled in body, had been assisted to the President's room in the Senate wing of the capitol, to sign last-minute measures rushed through the dying Congress.

Lodge, as leader of the Republican majority in Congress, called on him there to announce that unless the President had something new to communicate the Congress was ready to adjourn.

* * *

Probably no more tense moment ever will be experienced by any of those present than when Lodge and Wilson faced each other on this occasion.

There was a tense, seemingly breathless pause, after Lodge had spoken.

Wilson, his face drawn by his long illness, his cane at his side, seemed at first oblivious of the presence of the Senate leader. He was still fighting the pressure of that blood clot on the brain.

Then, slowly, with mental self-control that he was not able to impart to his paralyzed muscles, he turned. Except for his eyes, his face was coldly expressionless. But when he spoke the sharpness of his tone was like icy steel down one's spine:

"I have no further communications to make," he said. "I appreciate your courtesy. Good morning."

* * *

What is the most wonderful animal in the farmyard?—A pig, because he is killed and then cured.

nial of any knowledge of the silk robbery at Racines. He also admitted that he had been arrested on a charge of receiving the stolen goods and having knowledge of the robbery, but the case had been dismissed.

"Can you tell us anything about your connection with Savard and the police?" "What is the use of that. Savard is dead."

Pressed for an answer: Witness stated that there had been no connection between Savard and the police to his personal knowledge.

Never Gambles

Scroggie denied all knowledge of 205 St. Lawrence boulevard. He knew 334, where he had a mint machine.

"Have you ever been arrested in connection with gambling?" "I never gamble," said witness smiling. He added that he had never run a gaming house and had never been in one. He had never run or had anything to do with a handbook.

Witness declared that he had never received any protection from Chief Campeau, whom he had only met a couple of days ago. He had never been protected by Chief Belanger. He knew Inspector Egan casually, but he had never been protected by him. He also knew Sergeant Lafleur, ex-Mayor Mederic Martin's bodyguard, but it was untrue that witness had driven this officer in his automobile.

"Have you a permit for firearms?" "No, I never carry them."

"What was the trouble between you and Mr. Campeau in the corridor of the court house.'

Scroggie stated that when he was sitting on a bench outside the court Campeau had tried to speak to him. Witness had told him to go away. Words had followed and Campeau had mentioned the word "gun." "That made me mad," said Scroggie, "and I jumped to my feet and said: "Pull your gun and I'll stick it down in your throat.'"

"Did you have a gun?"

Witness answered that he did not. "Did Campeau have a gun "

"I do not know. I'll jump up to any man who says that he will pull a gun on me," he added.

Mr. Lanctot then suggested that Campeau be asked to gi.. his version of the affair. Thomas Campeau's story was that his cousin, Percy Aiken, had told him that Scroggie was sore at him on account of the evidence he had given before the commission. He had gone to speak to Scroggie. "Words followed," he continued, "and we threat ned one another." He added that he had no firearms. He may have used the word "gun."

"Did Scroggie threaten you on account of your evidence?" "He never threatened me."

Never Paid for Protection.

Scroggie, recalled, said that he had never directly or indirectly paid any money to the police or detectives of Montreal. He knew plenty of gamblers and bookies but he never acted as agent for them with the police.

Mr. Lanctot then again turned to the address, 205 St. Lawrence blvd., and asked witness if he knew a receiver at that address. Scroggie answered "no." He had dealt in drygoods when he had been president of Scroggie's Limited, but he had never to his knowledge, traded in stolen goods.

Commission Looking for President.

When witness was again pressed to give the name of the president of the Lumkin Club, Leonice Plante, an attorney, said he had advised Scroggie not to give it for reasons counsel had.

The commissioner: "You had better let us have them. I want to know the name of the president of this club."

Mr. Plante: "The liquor commission is at present looking for the president and has been for some time. That is my reason."

The commissioner: "I want to know the name."

Mr. Plante then made application for the protection of the court for his client so that the liquor commission might not be able to make use of the information which would be given.

Mr. Justice Coderre: "We know that this place sells liquor and that is a matter for the police. I order you to answer."

Mr. Lanctot to witness: "Now do you know the name of your president?"

Mr. Plante, to witness: "Tell the name, but ask the protection of the court."

Witness: "Mr. Gabias."

"Alderman Gabias?" "Yes."

Scroggie said that he did not know the names of the directors. He wanted the books for that and the commisioners assured him that they would be sent for.

Mr. Plante to the commissioner: "Now you see my reason for my objection."

The commissioner taxed counsel with having endeavored to conceal the name and Mr. Plante replied he did not know it.

"I wanted to know that name," said his lordship. "I know it, and I am glad to know it. You told us this answer had nothing to do with the case. An alderman of the city of Montreal is president of a club where liquor is sold and you say that has nothing to do with the police?"

BUILDING A HOUSE LIKE A THERMOS BOTTLE

A Western inventor has patented a system of building construction carried out on the principle of a thermos bottle. A building of any kind, bungalow, large house or commercial structure, has double walls with a vacuum between. The inventor claims that 50 per cent. of the usual heating costs can be saved by his idea. The air space keeps the interior of the building warm in winter, cool in summer, damp-proof and sound-proof. Also, cheaper construction cost and upkeep are claimed.

Guests Paid Heavily.

One nobleman, it is alleged, made large sums by filling his castle in the Department of Camereu with spurious antiques from several Paris dealers and then inviting house parties of prospective customers. This nobleman married an American woman, who has a large acquaintance in social circles.

Another feature of the business is the existence of a list of "easy prospects" circulating among the lesser dealers. On this list some of the best known names in America are said to appear.

A list seen here contains the names of J. O. Widener, A. M. Winthrop, Irving Cox, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman Reginald Vanderbilt and Howard Perry.

But it was asserted that this was merely a confidential list of well-known collectors, such as is in the possession of every reputable house.

JUDGMENT CAMPBELLFORD CASE

In the 11th. Division of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham. Denike vs. Hubble.

Mr. Payne for the plaintiff.
Mr. Lynch for the Claimaint Hubble.

These were a number of proceedings under the provisions in the Division Court Act referring to Absconding Debtors. he goods were seized and I assume are still in the possession of the bailiff. Attaching orders were, I assume, made out in each of the various cases. All these goods were claimed by one Diamond, who says he bought them all for $125.00 from the defendant Hubble, paying him $95.00 in cash and the balance being for rent, Diamond being Hubble's landlord. A great proportion of the goods seized were exempt under the Act so far as Hubble was concerned, but as yet he has not made any such claim, he having disposed of all his ownership in the goods to Diamond.

Objection was taken that the attachment proceedings were all defective. These attachment proceedings were all founded on affidavits made by or on behalf of the various plaintiffs. The Statute expressly says that these affidavits must be made in the form provided, and setting out the facts therein required. These affidavits are all defective—they are not in the form provided, and there are various defects. first, that it does not state what the debt is for, and secondly, and perhaps more important, that no fraud was alleged. These defects are fatal to the proceedings and they must all fail.

Even if the proper allegations had been made in the affidavit it might be difficult to substantiate the fact that Hubble was an absconding debtor in view of the evidence given at the trial. The only question tried was whether or not the claimant Diamond was the owner of the property. There would seem to be no doubt of this as both Diamond and Hubble swore to the bargain having been made and carried out as stated and there is no evidence to the contrary and there is no apparent reason why their evidence should not be accepted. The mere fact that Diamond had made arrangements to sell the property to Mr. Sopher of Belleville does not invalidate his claim. The goods must therefore be delivered to the claimant, Diamond, the owner of the property. He may also recover such costs as he is entitled to, if any, from the various plaintiffs in the Absconding Debtors proceedings.

AMERICA RAPIDLY WASTING HER FUEL

In Five Years 250,000,000 Barrels of Oil Will Be Required Annually to Run Cars.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 18.—An appalling waste of America's vital natural resources makes it certain that manufactured gas is destined to be the fuel of the future and to furnish the world's heat, according to Alexander Forward, of New York, secretary-manager of the American Gas Association, who spoke here today at the convention of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners.

Stating that the nation's future is bound up in its fuel supply, Mr. Forward said there was no permanent refuge in oil or in water power, and that eventually the country would have to draw more and more upon its coal deposits.

"In five years," the speaker declared, "the fuel requirements of our automobiles alone will amount to 250,000,000 barrels of oil annually, or more than the total oil output when the World War began. The railroads are now using 50,000,000 barrels a year as locomotive fuel. Shortly the tide will turn. Perhaps within ten or 15 years possibly in much less time, the supply of oil in our country will be totally insufficient to meet the demand.

"It is equally futile for America to pin her hopes to waterpower," Mr. Forward declared, "for our industrial plants are now using 60,000,000 horse power ,and at the present rate of increase they will need 100,000,000 horse power in a dozen years. The most rapid development of waterpower which public policy will permit cannot save enough coal to even keep up with the increasing demand.

"We must rely on coal," he stated "and this despite the fact that by the year 1940 we shall in the United States be burning as much coal each year as is now consumed by the entire population of the earth. Furthermore, there is no tangible hope of lower coal prices, and it is practically certain that the cost will gradually increase."

According to Mr. Forward, the solution to the fuel problem lies in the economical use of coal in the manufacture of gas and such flexibility in gas rates and gas heating standards as will enable the gas companies of the country to give the greatest service in heat for the least money.

Instead of uniform gas heating standards, the needs of the future will require flexibility so as to permit the individual gas company to manufacture and delived to its customers gas of such thermal content as will make for the greatest amount of conservation.

Finest Homes Occupied Only By Servants For Ten Months of Year.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Most of the finest homes in Manhattan are occupied only by servants ten months of the year. These servants, butlers, maids and chambermaids, live like royalty in mansions on Fifth and Park avenues.

They have only to see that the property is kept in order. After a few tasks they have much of the day and all of the night in which to loll in great easy chairs, or to browse among rare volumes in famous collections, or to study great masters gathered from the galleries of the world.

Of course, servants are supposed to keep to servant quarters, but many of the most magnificent homes in America are unoccupied by the owners for months at a time. Some of them are boarded up for years at a stretch. Consequently, the butler may be a better connoisseur of art than his master, especially when the master has inherited his various collections.

The historic old home of the Astors at 840 Fifth avenue will be preserved for out-of-town sightseers for another summer, at least. Vincent Astor had planned to build a modern apartment house there.

Prince and Princess Obolensky (who was Alice Muriel Astor) came to have one last look at the scene of many social triumphs of other years when Mrs. William Astor waved her lorgnette over the town's social aspirants.

Then Vincent Astor changed his plans. He and his wife will occupy the great house this winter. That is, they will occupy it when they are not at Rhinebeck-on-the-Hudson, or in Paris, or at Newport, or in Florida.

There are more fur stores in New York in proportion to the population than in any other city. Most of them do business on the installment plan, but the purchasers complete their installments before they take their coats from the store. As a consequence these fur stores are crowded on Saturday afternoons now, girls making their weekly deposits so that they will have their coats by Christmas. And you also can see husbands buying Christmas presents for their wives on the same plan.

The baby-carriage garage business is picking up over on the East Side. Mothers in those high tenements wear themselves out dragging baby carriages up and down long flights of stairs. And thieves would steal the carriages if they were left on the sidewalk. Generally the baby-carriage garage is a bootblack shop which closes for the night. The rate for the week is 25 cents.

Laxatives do not overcome constipation

LAXATIVES and cathartics provide temporary relief only. Their continued use leads to permanent injury. In time, says an eminent physician, an almost incalculable amount of harm is done by the use of pills, salts, mineral waters, castor oil and the like.

Physicians advise lubrication for Internal Cleanliness

Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless.

Take Nujol regularly and adopt the habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

ABOUT DODGING RESPONSIBILITY

It is human nature to dodge responsibility. Man is forever seeking alibis, blaming his troubles on anything except himself.

Illustrating this, Dr. W. R. Riddell points out that it is a universal custom to call a disease by a name indicating that it had a foreign origin.

For instance, take the mysterious malady we call Spanish influenza. The Spanish call it Italian fever. The Germans call it the Russian pestilence. The Russians call it Chinese catarrh. All countries dodge responsibility.

Take another disease: It might just as properly be called Japanese measles as German measles.

When a man makes a blunder, he nearly always has an excuse on the tip of his tongue. Even though the blunder is a direct result of his own personal carelessless or inability, he musters up conditions and outside influences to alibi him. And usually he actually believes he is a victim rather than an offender. Samples:

"Oh, I'd have gotten it done, but it was such a nasty day. . ."

"I meant to do that, and knew it should be done, but Mr. Blank attracted my attention and. . ."

"It wasn't my fault. I didn't know the pistol was loaded."

In recent years, man has discovered a new gold mine of alibis — the invisible. Certain crimes, which used to be considered matters of personal will-power and power of choice are now blamed on mental weaknesses inherited from ancestors, or to the influence of "the jazz age," or to brain unstabilized by the nervous strain of wartime.

Psycho-analysis caught popular fancy largely because it furnishes a wealth of new alibis for human weakness and erring. Psychic cults thrive as never before, for the same reason. It is, for instance, much easier to blame the stars or the influence of the departed than to shoulder responsibility.

The most unfortunate phase is that dodging responsibility tends to make people blunder again and again. The alibi is a weakener, a destroyer. Standing up and taking our medicine is painful, but it strengthens and makes us alert against future mistakes.

CANADA MUST PROTECT RIGHTS SAYS WORLD NOTED ENGINEER AT CITY E. I. C. ANNUAL DINNER

J. B. Challies, of World Pow ry Follows Lack of Power That Stagnation of Indust ry Follws Lack of Power —Cites Unfortuna te Switzerland.

PETERBOROUGH BRA NCH GETS CHARTER

Brilliant Gathering of Profess ional Men on Auspicious Occasion—Completion of F ifth Year Suitably Recognized—Visitors Bring Their Branches' Greetings.

"If we, in working out our great water power developments along the St. Lawrence and at Niagara, ever let our share of that power go into the United States, we are ruined," declared J. B. Challies, vice-president of the Engineering Institute of Canada last night at the Sixth Annual Dinner of the Peterborough Branch. It was the most challenging statement of the evening, delivered by an authority that is undisputed in matters touching the water power developments and resources of the Dominion. It was Mr. Challies who represented Canada at the World Power Conference in London and by his indefatigable energy and expert knowledge put Canada before the forty-four nations represented there in such a way that the power development of the Dominion is the envy of the world. His warning last night arose out of his discussion of the Conference and his subsequent tour of Europe in the course of which he cited the case of Switzerland where other nations are developing power to run their own industries. This condition, he said, must not be allowed to encroach here, where the country's prosperity is dependent upon the cheap development of power for manufacturing.

Besides giving the principal address of the evening, Mr. Challies handed to the Peterborough Branch its charter that declares it a part of the Canada-wide organization of Engineers. This charter, handsomely framed, will be treasured by the local branch for what it means, but also on sentimental grounds, as it was signed by Walter J. Francis a few hours before his death. Mr. Francis was personally known to most of the members, having made his home in this city for many years. He was at the time of his death President of the E.I.C.

Auspicious Occasion

The Annual Dinner of the E.I.C., Peterborough Branch, is recognized locally as one of the biggest affairs of the winter season, and an invitation to attend is considered an honor by the recipient in any part of Canada. Last night's function, scheduled to the minute, ran with the smoothness that has characterized all the activities of the Engineers. It was the most notable occasion since the inception of this branch, because of the presentation of the charter and because of the number of prominent guests present, representing every branch of the science and the highest genius in the profession. Besides Mr. Challies, who has a world wide reputation, there were half a dozen outstanding figures in the engineering world. O. O. Lefebvre, chairman of the Montreal branch and chief engineer of the Quebec Streams Commission is a national figure, Professor H. E. T. Haultain, head of the Department of Mining Engineering in the University of Toronto, has an expert knowledge in his branch that is unsurpassed. Professor P. Gillespie, of the Civil Engineering Department, University of Toronto, has advised in some of the greatest undertakings in the country.

The dinner was of special import, also, because it marked the fifth anniversary of the Peterboro branch, and many of the charter members were present to celebrate their fifth birthday. No student, attending his first E.I.C. dinner, could fail to carry away the impression that a vast store of knowledge was represented in the gathering, including scores of local men who have already risen high in the profession, and others who have before them the highest honors in the engineering world.

Welcome Guests.

E. R. Shirley, Chairman of the Peterborough branch E.I.C., struck a note of sadness in his welcome to the guests as he remarked the absence of the late President of the Canadian Institute, Walter J. Francis, who died during the year. Mr. Francis had lived in Peterborough many years, and was endeared to the members as a fellow-worker as well as in his capacity of head of the organization that owed so much to his ability. The illness of a popular local member was also noted by the Chairman when he remarked on the absence of City Engineer Roy H. Parsons.

Charter Presented.

Mr. Challies, in presenting the charter, remarked on the pleasure he had in representing the Council of the Canadian Institute on so auspicious an occasion. He remarked that while he made the address, the charter itself would be handed over by Mr. Lefebvre, indicating the entente that existed in the organization.

The President and Council of the Institute have authorized me on this ... occasion to present to the ...orough branch a branch char... he continued. It is a material ... of their faith in the Peter... branch and an expression ... ir appreciation of the high ...ing you have maintained in ... branch activities.

This charter is not merely a com...ation of engraving and engross... signed by the President and Secretary and bearing the seal of the Institute, but it constitutes a visible expression of your authority to carry on your activities as a branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada. It is your warrant from the grand Council that you were legally established and in due form.

Since you became organized as the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, engineering—to the people of this community—has taken on a broader significance and the word "engineer" an elevated status. You are to be congratulated on the interest you as a branch have taken in the affairs of your community and on the fact that as individuals a large number of you have become outstanding forces in the city of Peterborough in all that makes for its best interests. This branch is a definite asset to the city of Peterborough and I have it on good authority that the citizens appreciate it as such.

May I express the hope that you will treasure this charter as an emblem of your authority to represent the engineering profession in your district and to maintain its highest traditions. It represents a confidence placed in you by the Institute at large and I know that you will be worthy of that confidence.

It should be the constant care of every member of this branch to feel that he has a definite personal part to play in the branch's success, and that by rising to the heights of willingness to assist he will bestow a blessing upon the profession, upon the branch and upon himself. The opportunite for service presented through your branch are many—the advancement of technical knowledge, mutual goodwill, friendship, service to your community by taking an active part in its welfare, are duties.

By the authority in me vested by the President and Council, it is my honour, privilege and pleasure to now present this charter to the Peterboro branch of the Engineering Institute, which I ask you to accept from the Chairman of the mother branch in Montreal, not only as an emblem of your authority to conduct the affairs of your branch, but as an emblem of responsibility to your community and to the profession at large and the opportunity for service which it offers to each and every individual member.

Mr. Challies told of the interest with which the late Mr. Francis had looked forward to coming to his old home city to present this charter.

In handing over the symbol of authority as a fully constituted branch Mr. Lefebvre expressed the hope that it would carry with it good luck and prosperity.

Mr. Shirley accepted the charter, and told of the pride he had in being privileged to take it on behalf of the local branch.

World Power Conference.

In a vivid picturization of the World Power Conference, Mr. Challies showed the extent of Canada's participation and the great good it did in advertising to the world the unbounded resources of this country. The conference, he said, was the outcome of war conditions. The sources of power in England were subject to labor conditions, making her position almost impossible. During the war period there were troubles in England about which the world at large knew nothing. So serious were they that the British Government found it absolutely necessary to conduct a complete reorganization of its power producing facilities. Lloyd George, then Premier, set up a committee that included representatives of all engineering bodies to consider the question and make recommendations. This body sat during the war and in the year after, and the Canadian Government was represented on it by a liason officer who told of developments in the Dominion. These men decided to call an empire-wide conference for the exchange of ideas on power development, but before the idea could be put into execution Lloyd George went out of power. Canada, it was admitted, has the best power development in the empire, and has made more progress than any other country outside the United States.

When the Labor party assumed office MacDonald was faced with the demand for nationalization of the power sources of the country and the recasting of the Labor structure in England. His conferees, chief among whom was Dunlop, suggested a world-wide conference to discuss not only Hydro power but carbo power also.

Canada accepted the invitation to participate. The Dominion had been advertised as a centre for farming and fruit growing, but its industrial possibilities had never been brought before the world. A notable instance of the thoroughness with which the business was taken up here was the co-ordination of all the papers read by Canadian representatives, the speaker said. There were five parts to the presentation of the Dominion's power case, comprehending everything of importance, and welded into a harmonious whole without overlapping. The papers were printed and issued in book form, attracting widespread attention in comparison with the papers presented by other countries in loose-leaf form.

Describing the opening banquet as a wonderful occasion, Mr. Challies remarked on the honor that fell to Canada in having a representative of the Dominion propose the most important toast. A. Munro Greer, K.C., of Toronto, with a passion for public speaking, upheld the standard of his country so well that he was cheered to the echo while the old Queen's Hall rocked to cries of "Bravo, Canada."

Canada in the Van.

Forty-four countries were represented, and absolute unanimity prevailed. The conference was an excellent opportunity for Canada to show what had been accomplished in this country. Canada led off at the first meeting and was in the van throughout. "I was proud of Major W. H. Munro, an old Peterboro boy," the speaker said. "He holds one of the most responsible engineering posts in Britain, and he is doing his work well."

No other country made any better showing than Canada; and no country had a better story to tell. No other country has the per capita power production from Hydro sources that Canada has. The Dominion is self-contained, if it wants to be.

The result of the World Power Conference was to put Canada on the map in a new way. It showed the engineers and financiers of the world that Canada is, if not the lead ing power producing country in the world, at least not far behind. One point that was interesting to the Europeans was the way our International Joint Commission functions. It is the only body of its kind in the world to-day, acting as a safety valve so far as the two countries are concerned. European countries, with their complex problems arising out of joint water rights, asked an explanation, and we told them that all along the 3,000-mile frontier there is no fort, but only Hydro development stations. The Commission, watching the interests of both nations, makes it impossible for any real difference to occur between Canada and United States.

Telling of his tour of Europe at the close of the conference, Mr. Challies mentioned Switzerland in connection with worries about power development. The engineers whom he met there bemoaned the fact that their country is rapidly entering into the thraldom of her three big neighbors. The French come on the one side, backed by powerful financiers, establish power developments, and transmit the power to France. Germany does the same on another side, and Italy on another. The Swiss industries are becoming cramped. These other countries are taking power from Switzerland into their own territory, and are producing goods cheaper than the Swiss.

"I went over there enthusiastic about power development in Canada" the speaker said, "and I came back, still an optimist, but with just a little fear. If we in working out our great water power developments along the St. Lawrence and at Niagara, ever let our share of that power go into the United States, we are ruined."

Professor Haultain.

"It is 36 years since I called Peterboro my home," Professor Haultain said, in opening his happy address, felicitating the local branch on its fifth birthday. "I saw Dick Rogers first 49 years ago, and he hasn't changed a bit."

Peterboro has shown remarkable development in the social and practical work for which the E.I.C. stands he continued. The city has turned out some wonderful men, but none greater than Sir Joseph Flavelle, who is one of the most remarkable men in Canada. In Toronto he is marked by two outstanding things—the Toronto General Hospital, and Toronto University, of which he is the very essence. The charter covering the complex life of the University was drawn by Sir Joseph and is a remarkable tribute to his acumen and ability.

Professor Haultain remarked that the Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario is seeking to do just what the E. I C. is doing. The Engineering Institute is first and paramount, and the A.P.E. is attempting to co-ordinate its work.

Professor Gillespie.

Professor Gillespie, after pointing out the remarkable coincidence in the fact that Peterborough branch of the E.I.C. celebrates its fifth birthday in a year made famous by its great anniversaries, congratulated the local members on the place it has made for itself in the city. Many engineering feats, like many famous engineers, had been born in Peterborough. The first work on the Trent canal was done here. Sanford Fleming did his first work here. A great many names that have since become great in the engineering profession are linked with Peterborough and an attempt should be made to record and compile their history for posterity.

Mr. Lefebvre.

Mr. Lefebvre brought greetings from the mother branch in Montreal and extended an invitation to the local members to attend the annual meeting there in January.

F. S. Lazier presented congratulations from the Niagara Peninsula. In paying a tribute in memory of the late President of the Institute, he repeated a remark Mr. Francis made a year ago in reference to his predecessor. On that occasion Mr. Francis said the retiring president was "A kindly gentleman; an able engineer, and a sincere man." "Those words," Mr. Lazier said, "might be Mr. Francis' own epitaph."

Sister Professions.

The five sister professions were represented by as many city men who conveyed the felicitations of their organizations.

J. R. Corkery, speaking for the legal profession, congratulated the E. I.C. on the success of the dinner and on the receipt of its charter. The acts of the Peterborough Branch since its inception have been a credit to the city and to the engineers, and the greatest courtesy has always been shown the sister professions.

J. E. R. Munroe, representing, he said, one hundred and fifty teachers, brought greetings and congratulations on achieving the new degree of autonomy conferred by the charter. The teaching profession is peculiarly dependent upon other organizations for support, sympathy, and help, he said. Too long has this support been left to associations whose criticism is not always constructive, and the teachers look to such organizations as the E.I.C. for protection from destructive criticism.

Dr. J. A. Morgan, who represented the Medical Society at the inaugural dinner of the Peterborough Branch E.I.C. in 1919, was again present in that capacity last night. He expressed regret in the loss to the Institute through the death of Walter Francis, his personal friend.

Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, carrying the greetings of the Ministerial Association, said the advancement of the Dominion depends in large measure upon the success of the engineering profession. In his profession, he said, he could not offer much assistance in the material things that engage the minds of engineers, but in communicating the Engineers' spirit to the public he and his colleagues are most happy to help, and to do all in their power to stimulate their aspirations.

"Our work is concerned with very different material," Dr. Blagrave continued. "We work with a more illusive substance, although the criteria with which you deal is illusive too. We are dealing with something more tangible, and we ask from you in your various communities that co-opertaion in the work for which we stand with the same spirit of goodwill we are glad to extend to you. We can unite in constructing a spiritual bridge by which men in the material world can find access to a spiritual.'

Dr. S. J. Graham, representing the profession of dentistry, complimented his hosts upon the achievement of an ideal and conveyed in happy fashion the greetings of the dentists of the city.

A Layman Speaks.

F. H. Dobbin, introduced by the chairman as a good friend of the local E.I.C. branch, spoke in his usual entertaining manner. All history, he said, is merely a record of movements of men, and if movement stops then history ceases. In ancient papyri, manuscript and printed books are found stories of men of letters and famous men through the ages. The signature on an "old master" tells "I made it." "What is there extant that man may go and place his hand upon it and say 'I made it?' The pyramids, the ruins of Hellenic cities, the coliseum at Rome, the strongholds and castle of medieval Europe. All else has perished; all that remains is the work of the engineer.

One longing in the human heart is that we be not forgotten. People and nations pile up shaft and column in memory of the dead. We of Canadian citizenry, standing outside your profession, but looking on, would say to you, 'drive your piles to resistance; lay your foundations broad and deep and enduring; erect your superstructure with diligence and faithfulness, and your work will remain when Rome, the Norman conquerors and Robert Byron are as forgotten as the mummy dynasties of ancient Egypt'."

Musical Programme.

Besides community singing, lustily enjoyed by everyone, several excellent original compositions were rendered by the Engineers' famous sextette, composed of W. B. Ross, A. B. Gates, A. L. Dickinson, W. M. Cruthers, P. Manning and Ian McKenzie. Mr. McKenzie played the accompaniments throughout.

Other Guests.

Other guests present were Joseph Wearing and Rev. J. W. Gordon. Many who were unable to attend sent expressions of regret, including G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., Mayor J. J. Turner and several out of town engineers.

Peterborough Engineers Celebrate Anniversary In the Best of Company

In his address at the Annual Dinner of the Peterborough E. I. C., last night, Professor P. Gillespie, of Toronto, referred to the many anniversaries of great events occurring in this year. Among the chief were listed the following:

Two hundred years ago the designer of the Eddystone lighthouse was born.

One hundred years ago the Darlington-Stockton Railway was opened, the first steam railway on which Stevenson was engineer.

Nearly a hundred years ago the Association of Civil Engineers was formed in England.

Five years ago the Peterboro Branch of the Engineering Institute was launched.

DISGRACEFUL SCENE AT DINNER OF THE ENGINEERING INSTITUTE

Controversy Over Missing Programmes Leads To Heated Words—Many Involved.

SECRETARY RESIGNS.

Prominent Members Took Part in Tempest in Soup Bowl That Shook Audience.

Amazement, doubt, fear and finally laughter swept the banquet hall of the Empress Hotel last night during the Annual dinner of the Peterborough Branch E.I.C. Amazement that G. R. Langley should raise such a rumpus; doubt that their senses had deserted A. L. Killaly, Bill Ross, Paul Manning, P. P. Westbye, and Maurice Cruthers; fear that the local engineers were to be disgraced in the eyes of the visiting brethren; and laughter when the whole fracas turned out to be only "A Tempest in a Soup-bowl."

Mr. Langley started the fun by rising to protest the cheapness of the branch in endeavouring to save money by omitting to supply menus and programmes. "Miserable petty economies only succeed in decreasing the dignity of the affair without making any noticeable monetary difference," he declared. "I wish to go emphatically on record against any such notions of economy."

Mr. Barns as chairman of the programme committee endeavoured to smother the smouldering flame by apologizing and passing the buck, but was shouted down by Mr. Killaly who supported the first speaker. He didn't want to throw any monkey wrenches into the works, he said, but the committees had evidently not been working in harmony. The arrangements for the banquet bear out the contention that engineers are bad business men. The price for tickets was the same as for other years, so nothing is gained in the way of economy.

Protesting the aspersion cast upon his committee, Bill Ross demanded an explanation from the secretary, Paul Manning. He had sought information from both Mr. Barnes and the secretary without success.

Mr. Manning went up in the air and came down with fists upon the table, declaring he would not be responsible for the bungle, and immediately tendering his resignation He had not fallen down on his job, and he would not take the abuse that was being handed out to him. "You can find some other sucker," he declared. "I'm sick of the whole darn business, and so far as I'm concerned to heck with it, I'm through!"

Hall in Uproar.

Feeling ran high throughout the gathering, and condemnation of the unseemly row was heard on every hand. It was felt that the matter might have been dropped quietly, at least until the guests had departed, when the scandal might have been fought out in private. Just as it seemed nothing would save the parties, ad some of the spectators, from fisticuffs, P. P. Westbye assumed the role of peacemaker and poured oil on the troubled waters. In his usual quiet manner, apparently unruffled by the incipient riot that seethed around him, he said many a man thinks he can settle the world's wars when he can't keep his own children quiet at the breakfast table. "You know what General Sherman said about about war, and this unfortunate scrap is just about the same. What is the use of looking backwards: Edward Bellamy made $100,000 in looking backwards," but Lot's wife tried and only made herself into salt. Let us forget this little incident and look forward to a pleasant and beneficial evening together."

When Maurice Cruthers rose to speak he was almost hooted down, but fortunately, since it was he who finally ended the farce, he was allowed to continue. He thought it would have been better if some of those present had kept their thoughts to themselves and had not precipitated a friendly gathering into such a bickering.

Mr. Cruthers said he would, single-handed undertake to remedy the deficiency. He left the room, being excused of the worried and very much perturbed chairman, E. R. Shirley, and shortly returned with mimeographed programmes.

On the first four pages of each proframme was the entire "Tempest in a Soup Bowl," word for word as it had been enacted by the following cast:

The Grouch .... G. R. Langley.
The Apologist .... B. L. Barns.
The Indignant One. A. L. Killaly.
The Injured One .... Bill Ross.
The Goat .... Paul Manning.
The Pacifist .... P P Westbye.
The Cogetter .... Maurice Cruthers.

The scrap was a complete hoax—probably the biggest of its kind ever put over on so large an audience in Peterborough. Only the characters in the cast were in the secret, and they were aided in their act by many who took the matter seriously and mistook it for a free-for-all.

COLLAR ADDS CHIC, CHARM

The tendency to wear smart collar effects with evening gowns is illustrated in this photograph. It adds chic and charm to this interestingly cut gown of green crepe with the corsage of flowers in shades of deep red and gold. It fastens on one side with a scarf hanging down the back, and is fastened with a small bouquet of flowers like those on the corsage.

FASHIONS & FOIBLES

by Shirley Sharon

The manipulation of fabrics such as inserted bands of the material cut crosswise or the combination of the dull and shiny side of satin crêpe is an important new fashion.

A new trimming effect has been introduced in French fashions and it is seen most often on the narrow tube coats. It is known as the manipulation of fabric—that is, fabric cut in crosswise bands and inserted so that as the light falls on it the coat appears to be trimmed with a darker shade, a blacker black, a deeper blue, a smokier gray. The coats are very narrow and are worn short and wrapped closely to the hip.

CHINESE VERMILLION MAKING INDUSTRY

For many years in Hong-Kong the industry of vermilion making, entirely in the hands of the Chinese, has been an important one. The factories at Hong-Kong have inviolate trade secrets. The manufacture of this pigment is among the foremost of the colony's industries. There are something like one hundred small plants for the manufacture of vermilion in Hong-Kong and Kowloon. The raw material comes from Australia, and the vermilion is prepared altogether by what is known as the wet method. The Chinese made artificial cinnebar long before Europe was a civilized country, and to this day there are trade secrets in the vermilion industry.

Nothing reveals the stuff that is in a man quite so surely as the efforts he puts forth to accomplish the thing he sets out to do.

JUDGMENT IN CAR ACCIDENT

In the First Division Court of the County of Peterborough:

Morphet vs. Baptie.

Mr. Wearing for the Plaintiff.

Mr. Gordon, K. C., for the Defendant.

This is an action to recover damages for injuries resulting from a motor car collision on the night of the 28th of September. The plaintiff's car was injured, and he claims damages from the defendant, alleging negligence against him. The defendant counterbalances and insists that the negligence was not so much his as at all, as that of the plaintiff. The collision took place on the night of the 28th of Septemebr, on Hunter street East, Peterborough.

The city traffic bylaw is pleaded by the defendant that the plaintiff's car was not properly placed as against the curb and also that it remained there an unreasonable time on the night in question.

The charges are therefore negligence as against both parties. The city bylaw is not conclusive as to the rights of the parties. Evidence was given of the kind of weather on the night in question—that it was both dark and wet. The court happens to have particular knowledge of the weather conditions on that night, and is of the opinion that the weather was much worse than the evidence given describes, although the evidence does show it to have been both dark and wet. I am of the opinion that the weather condition were so bad as would almost make it an accident not attributable to the special negligence of either side, in which case there would be no liability to either. Without going that far, however, I am not at all satisfied that either party is free from blame.

The plaintiff left his car on the side of the road for many hours continuously on a very dark, wet night, and it is not sufficiently shown that there was any light on it, or if there was any light that it was a sufficient one, considering the weather conditions of the evening; this therefore would be negligence on his part, apart altogether of his contravention of the city bylaw.

Then with reference to the defendant: He was driving with a number of passengers, and naturally enough had all protection from the rain possible available. His sight was obscured on account of the rain on the glass windshield before him, and he had no apparatus, and made no attempt to keep this glass clear. On the night in question it was almost impossible to see any distance ahead, even assuming the lights on his car to be of ordinary strength. What would not have been negligence, ordinarily speaking, would be such on the night in question, under such exceptional weather conditions. He did not use all possible appliances or perhaps take the very greatest care in looking for obstacles ahead; although it is fair to say that he had no right to expect the plaintiff's car to be in this position, and he of course did not see it. If there had been sufficient light on the plaintiff's car he would probably have seen it. On the other hand, the condition of his own car and of his own lookout, were not sufficient as to relieve him from blame under the exceptional circumstances.

The result is that both claim and counterclaim must be dismissed. No order as to costs.

JUDGE HUYCKE.

JUDGMENT IN WAGE CASE

In the first division of the County of Peterborough.

Davis vs. Kikis and Pappas.

Mr. F. D Kerr, K.C., for the plaintiff.

Mr. W. F. Huycke for the defendant.

This is an action for wages by the plaintiff as cook for the defendants at the Burleigh Falls Hotel. It is admitted that $95.00 was paid which the defendants say is all that was earned, they computing it from June 9th to June 28th. Incompetency was charged as against the plaintiff, but that really amounts to but little as the termination of their relations was really by consent. The wages in dispute were at the rate of $5.00 a day from the 1st of May to the 9th of June, from which time he was paid.

I find upon the evidence, the plaintiff went to the Hotel and began on the 5th of June instead of the 9th, during these four days he may not have been cooking, but he was there ready to cook, or do such work as was required. The plaintiff fails in substantiating his claim to wages from the 1st of May. I am not satisfied that either party is correct as to the time that wages should begin. There is no question in my mind that they cannot be considered from the 1st May on, as claimed, and I must further find, although it is not very definitely made out, that there was a contract made sometime before the plaintiff actually went out to the scene of action. The defendants did not have the property till about or after May 20th, and the defendant Pappas had nothing to do with it until after May 22nd., and so then or sometime after that he made the arrangements for the plaintiff to cook at the hotel. None of the parties seem to have kept any memorandum or record of what took place and when. In view of this uncertainty the best and fairest solution I can give to the difficulty is to allow 2 weeks wages in addition to amount already paid. This would be from Monday, May 26th on.

Judgment will therefore be entered for the plaintiff for $70.00 and costs as if sued for that amount.

Signed
E. C. HUYCKE,
Judge.

GLAND GRAFTING ON ANIMALS PROMISES MUCH ADDED WEALTH

By JOHN DE GANDT

PARIS, Nov. 19.—(United Press).—French Africa may soon be one of the most important world centers of wool production, thanks to Serge Voronoff, the famous rejunevating doctor.

Continuing his studies on the effects of gland-grafting, Voronoff came to the conclusion that by grafting extra glands on certain animals, such as sheep, pigs, bulls, horses, etc. they could not only live longer than usual, but either grow longer wool, gain weight faster than if ungrafted, or sensibly prolong their reproductive qualities.

Voronoff, before going to Africa, worked on his scheme for seven years. He grafted extra gental glands to young goats which three years later had hair seven and one-half inches long, while the normal hair does not grow more than two or three inches. The same for young and old rams, but so far the wool on the grafted ones has not been more than four inches long. However, on a one year old grafted ram the fleece weighed over one and one-half pounds, and on a nineteen year old grafted (which would have died if not grafted) it weighed six pounds and one-half.

"Grafting at least one extra gland to rams," says Voronoff in a report that he has just issued, "means a bigger quantity of longer wool. While the animal gains weight and lives longer; also the meat is better, the whole vitality and wool productive energy is safe-guarded.

"The economic consequences are great. All countries need wool, the use of which is increasing, and few have sufficient cattle to fulfill the demands of the population. France now has about ten million sheep, plus nine million in Algeria, six million in Morocco and two and one-half millions in Sudan. This being insufficient, she must buy every year from two milliards francs worth of wool from England.

"Except a few privileged, all countries would like to increase their wool production. Unfortunately there is a limit to the quantity of cattle that a country, especially in Europe, may possess, because the increase of agriculture decreases the spaces for meadows necessary to cattle. On the other hand, trade developing immensely absorbs a big part of the population who used to work in the country.

"The solution of the problem is the following. Evidently it is not materially possible in all countries to graft every sheep, but what must be done is to create, through the results of gland-grafting, a new race producing more and longer wool.

"In every flock, all lambs from three to four month would be grafted from lambs two or three months older. When the grafted lambs would be one and one-half years old, having already a bigger fleece and longer hair, they would form a first generation and procreate other lambs. This second generation will keep the latent impression of the fatherly qualities, but won't show them very distinctly. The males, thanks to grafting, will have fleece at least as good as their parents, probably better still, and when they have become adults and bred with females from the frist grafted generation, the third generation will have rams with qualities sufficiently fixed to be sent in flocks of other regions and continue the race artificially selected by gland grafting."

The Algerian Governor having officially accepter Voronoff's scheme of grafting three successive generations of sheep, the work has already started. It is figured that the results will not be felt fully before five or six years, but if they are satisfactory they will mark one of the most important steps ever made in the increase of wool production. Doctor Voronoff plans to spend part of this winter in North Africa supervising the accomplishment of his plans.

Voronoff's report says the same process applies to goats, bulls, pigs and horses, but adds: "Although graftng glands can fortify rejuvenate annmals and men weakened by age, it cannot infuse life into moribunds. The time is not far, he concludes, when animal grafting, largely and judiciously carried, will be most useful in increasing the wealth of many countries."

GERMANY HAMPERED BY HIGH TAXATION

Two and One-Half Per Cent. Tax Has Been Pared Down to Two Per Cent.

By CARL D. GROAT

BERLIN, Nov. 19. — (United Press).—Germany's experimentation with the turnover tax (Unsatzsteuer) is provding a tremendous hinnderance to speeding up the wheels of production which the nation seeks for accomplishment of the Dawes plan.

The government, realizing that the 2 1-2 percent tax is raising the cost of living and hampering export of German goods, pared down this tax to 2 percent.

Now, however, the finance ministry has completed a thorough investigation, which led it to conclude that t will be gradually to abandon this tax completely. The ministry found, that the tax is being passed along many times multiplied to the ultimate consumer. This ultimate consumer is not the only home worker but also the foreigner wanted for absorption or goods if Germany is to meet her Dawes requirements.

For instance, it was found that the turnover tax—as a result of passing through many middle hands—resulted in levying about 9 percent of the cost of a loaf of bread on the buyer. At the same time, there is an artificial increase in the price of beef, the selling prices including about 6.4 percent of tax passed on through various stages from the cattle grower to the beef eater. Textiles for the ultimate consumer bore more than 7 percent tax as a result of this hand-to-hand transfer of the tax burden.

The workmen's wages must be kept as low as possible and at the same time his living must be on a low level, if Germany is to compete successfully on the world's markets and achieve an export surplus where with to meet the Dawes obligations. But under the turnover tax the cost of living has been, and still is, mounting.

For this reason it is anticipated in most governmental and business quarters that the turnover tax will gradually disappear.

Incidentally the question of tax calculation is proving serious at the moment. The government has been compelled to permit postponement of the harder-hit agrarians. And it was found necessary to extend this specal privilege system to certain industrial and commercial undertakings. These were permitted to pay half of their socalled half-year taxes by the 8th of October but with possponement of payment of the balance to January 15, 1925.

ARMY AIRMEN LOSE 18 FLYING 9,093,360 MILES

DAYTON, O., Nov. 19. — United States army aviators fqlew 9,093,360 miles in 1923 with a loss of only eigh teen lives, it was given out to-day at McCook Field.

The mileage is based upon the speed of the slowest airplane, the De Havilanod, which flies ordinarily at 120 miles an hour. On this basis, it is shown that for every 605,080 miles flown a life was lost. For every 57,480 miles there was one accident.

The distance covered is more than 314 times around the world. Army fliers spent 75,778 hours in the air.

FINANCIAL ROMANCE OF WORLD WAR ENDS IN A TRAGEDY

LONDON, Nov. 19.—(U.P.—The suicide here of John Q. Rowett, backer of the last Shackleton expedition to the South Pole, has ended one of the great financial romances of the war.

Rowett in 1914 was a dealer in rum in a fairly modest way. He wrote an order for six casks of it. A clerk in a wholesale office, misreading the order, made it six cargoes.

A month or two before the outbreak of the war, Rowett began to be deluged with rum. Thousands of casks came from all corners of the earth. Always a simple, straightforward man, Rowett threatened suicide rather than be thought dishonest when the bills came in.

The war started. Great Britain began raising an army that was to include altogether about 8,000,000 men. Regulations provided a daily ration of rum for each man. Rowett was the only man in the world who could furnish rum in sufficient quantities and he obtained contracts to supply both the army and navy throughout the war.

The deluge of rum began a deluge of gold, and Rowett emerged a multi-millionaire. He did not know what to do with the money. He made lavish gifts to all sorts of charities and endowed universities. One day he met Sir Ernest Shackleton on the street. They had been at school together.

"You're Shackleton, aren't you?" Rowett asked. "I hear you want to go to the South Pole again.'

Shackelton said he did.

"I'll furnish the money," Rowett replied. It cost him $500,000.

Shackelton died during his voyage, Rowett believed himself partly responsible. Sir John Stewart, great whiskey dealer and a friend of Rowett's shot himself, unable to meet liabilities of nearly $10,000,000. Of this he owed $500,000. Rowett thought this might have had something to do with the suicide.

Some investments went bad and Rowett became afraid that he might not be able to meet all his bills. His bankers assured him that he had plenty of money, but Rowett went home despondent, and was found in the library of his palatial home, hanging dead by a sash cord.

Though a verdict of suicide was returned, Rowetts' doctor testified he was convinced Rowett was merely rehearsing a suicide in case he went bankrupt.

DRESSING ON LIMITED INCOME

By HEDDA HOYT

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 19.—(United Press).—It's the girl who is working on two cylinders and who manages to look as though she were working on all six—who is the heroine of the fashion world. The girl who has sufficient money to support a six cylinder wardrobe lets many a little Ford outfit outspeed her on Fifth Avenue.

This Fall there are so many inexpensive cloths of good material and of good lines than anyone with taste can be well dressed. Take, for instance, those snappy little short fur coats which can be made from anything from goat fur to sable! Some of these are selling cheaply as to come within the means of any working girl. Cat fur and goat fur, dyed in deep rich browns, may not resemble the more expensive furs but they do have smartness and chic. Who knows at the first glance whether they are real mink or dyed cat? And who cares? It's the fit of the little frock beneath the coat and the shape of the perky little felt hat above it that creates an ensemble worth looking at.

A girl can spend several hundreds of dollars on a fur pacquette and from fifty to hundred dollars on her hat and some clever little person with quick wit seizes the opportunity of copying her costume and appears a week later in a cheap duplicate which she wears with an air that absolutely outclasses the owner of the original model. Sure enough, women know the difference between cat fur and sable and between a $50.00 bonnet and a $2.00 one, but who dresses for women nowadays? For that matter, many of the very wealthy women who are wearing imitation furs and jewels this year, so why worry about quality?

Follow the Standard.

The well dressed woman doesn't attempt to set styles of her own if she has a limited dress allowance. She knows that she can't hope to compete with the lines set by Fashion designers. She sees something smart in a shop window or on a well dressed woman and, choosing her own coloring, follows in cheaper materials the standard set by her wealthier sister.

Many women like to feel that they are original in dress. They will purchase a fashion book and create a gown with Lanvin sleeves, Poiret waistline and Madelaine skirt and add trimmings approved by some other designer. The fiinshed dress looks like a Christmas tree. It has neither style nor chic and is ruined by the combination of different patterns. The designer has a reason for every.hing he or she does. If her frock has long sleeves it should never be made without sleeves. If it is long as to hem, it is because such a frock requires a long hemline.

The home dressmaker should realize these facts.

Accessories are very important these days, and it is these cheap little accessories which make or mar one's ensemble. Just now well-dressed women are wearing more subdued shades of hosiery. One can tell at a glance whether one is up to the moment in hosiery shades. Pinks and flash shades are no longer worn for street wear. Wood shades, light, tans and browns and grays are good. Gunmetal accompanies the black shoe and occasionally one sees the oyster white stocking worn with a black and white shoe combination. White hosiery should be worn when the costume is a black and white affair.

Gloves and Handkerchiefs.

Gloves likewise play a very important part this year. Tans and mauve shades are those generally chosen. White gloves are not being worn during the day time and only occasionally at night in which case they may either be glaze kid or suede. Most women are gloveless for evening occasions. A woman in a Spanish shawl with long white gloves looks ridiculous these days. Arms are always bare, it would seem.

Handkerchiefs are chosen with respect to the coloring of the frock. The all-white handkerchiefs of lace or lace trimmed may be carried for evening use, but for day wear the pastel squares of linen, chiffon or silk are the mode. Little sets of six handkerchiefs may be purchased in the shops, with each handkerchief of a different color. The fastidious woman choses a handkerchief which harmonizes with her frock for each and every occasion.

While these little details of dress do not seem important in themselves the woman who dresses on a limited allowance must pay heed to them if she wishes to appear smart.

In speaking of fads and accessories, one can't omit the little barpin or brooch that is worn on the left shoulder nowadays. These may be real or imitation.

Another fad which doesn't apply to dress exactly is the painting of the fingernails. One sees girls and women with nails as red as any Nautch dancer. And women of refinement are among them.

SHAWL PATTERNS.

Cashmere printed shawl patterns are very effective for novelty linings in coats as well as for jaquettes.

'LASSES-MAKIN' TIME IN SOUTH IS BIG EVENT OF YEAR FOR BOY SWEETEST MEMORY FOR DAD

Thoughts Turn In Sorghum Time to 'Lasses and Mother's Biscuits.

BY S. GILLILAN.

The Olympian Gods Never Dreamed of Such Nectar —The Main Joy.

Any man fifty years old is a dotard of some kind. I am an anecdotard. I am filled with effervescent reminiscence. Mark Twain said that when he was young he had such a wonderful memory he could remember anything, whether it happened or not. "But now that I am old," he sighed, "I can remember only the latter."

I got to talking on the train, the other day, with Representative Patterson of Springfield, Missouri. We discussed long-sweetenin' till we both drooled. And I just had to get out my machine and talk about that stuff and the manufacture thereof. There was a time when I helped erect many a gallon of sorghum. And the process, like the stuff itself, sticks.

Patterson got hateful, once, in our conversation, and came right out and mentioned hot biscuit bathed in sorghum mixed with butter, and I came within one of tossing him from the Pennsylvania company's swiftly moving St. Louisian, and bruising up Vandalia, Illinois, with his form.

It was down in Jackson County, Ohio, that I tinkered with the tough-leafed cane plant. I helped make it with "kittles," and then a man came along with a 'vaporator, and "I learned about sorghum from 'im." There is not a step in the process which isn't as clear in my mind to-day as it was then. Cane stalks, green raw juice, partially boiled, skimmin's, the ultimate pure stuff.

We sowed the brown, shucky seeds in drills, about corn-planting time, when the oak leaves were the size of squirrels' ears. When it came up, a little finer than corn and a little coarser than grass, we thinned it with a narrow-bladed hoe. It grew and grew, requiring nearly as much tending as corn, but not quite. When it grew tall and grayish-green, and the broomcornish tops turned brown, it was time to cut and blade it. Blading cane, by the way, is the favorite outdoor sport of no one that I have ever known. The edges of the blades were like those of hollow-ground razors newly honed. And one's exposed parts were always covered with cuts that hurt annoyingly all through and quite a while after the sorghum-building debauch. The long, bare, jointed, sapling-like stalks were carried to the grinding place, if close enough, or hauled on a sled if the distance were too great, and piled beside the mill. A lazy horse attached to the far end of a wooden sweep furnished the power for the revolving upright rollers between which the stalks were fed, butt end last. A tub below the rollers caught the dull green juice that squirted from the tortured victims.

The juice was then carried to the evaporator, and poured greenly and gradually into one end, I think the one nearest the smokestalk. The top of this contraption was a shallow pan divided into compartments by little transverse partitions alternating in approaching not quite to one side and then the other of the top. Around the end of one low partition went the partly cooked juice; clear across the width of the pan it went, around the end of the next one, till finally it arrived at the upper end, nearest the fire-box opening, where it was honest-to-goodness molasses and was let off through a spigot. But on its way it was by no means unmolested. As it crawled about the end of each low partition it was assailed by a man with a skimmer (like a corn popper), who skimmed off the slimy dross and threw it—"Splat!"—into a little pit dug for that very purpose.

When that molasses-making orgy set in, there was no stopping till it was finished. A man working an eight-hour day would never have got any molasses made. It had to be kept cooking until the last of the green juice had travelled the distance and been spigoted off in a red, sticky mass at the far end of the machine.

There were sports that grew out of every toilsome task, in those days. We boys used to love to lark about the hot evaporator after night came on, 'tend the fire under it, and pop cane stalks. We would thrust a slender stalk into the hot fire, leave it exactly long enough then jerk it out and almost with the same motion "swarp" it against the side of the evaporator. It would explode with a noise like that of a French seventy-five, and make a most delicious smell.

But the main joy, the climactic bliss of the whole 'lasses-makin' time, was after the stuff had come through the spigot into a jug or other vessel and had been transferred to the house. Then, with the accompaniment of butter and hot biscuit or sausage gravy and hot biscuit or shortbread, it became nectar such as the Olympian gods never even dreamed of when they were feeling their Olympical niftiest.

The artist at the game would take the molasses, pour a liberal quantity on his plate, put in butter, and stir it till the whole mass was a pale honey color, then spread it on piping-hot, flaky biscuits furnished ad lib. by Mother, and—well, biscuits thus treated were not a food; they were a beverage. They disappeared at a rate that bespoke too great fluency and volatility for mere edibles. Likewise at breatfast, diluted or enriched with fresh, hot sausage gravy and stirred till it was a pale brown, it made a "sop" simply divine.

FARMERS WIFE HAS HIKE WITHOUT LEAVING HOME

An Iowa farm woman recently found she walked five miles daily walking to and fro in her kitchen. A pedometer, attached to her leg, showed it.

A member of the co-operative agricultural extension service of that state helped her rearrange her kitchen equipment to reduce her mileage. It cut the hike down to 2.5 mile a day.

And it gave her more time for other work about the house, and for rest.

TEST TURKEYS FOR DISEASES

First Flock of Birds to Undergo Tuberculin Test.

EIGHTEEN KILLED

SPOONER, Wis., Nov. 19.—On the Badger turkey farm, near here, is the first flock of turkeys in the world to undergo a tuberculin test. R. H. Rassmussen, Washburn county agricultural agent, and J. D. Eastwald, a veterinary surgeon, bought 160 acres two miles north of Spooner.

R. H. RASSMUSSEN

They obtained their turkeys from western Wisconsin and eastern Minnesota and selected all Mammoth Bronzes.

They now have 1600 young birds and 225 for breeding stock. Recognizing the value of tuberculin tests in all stock, and with no record anywhere of a test of turkeys, they made preparations to test their first birds themselves.

Eighteen of the turkeys reacted to the test. When these were killed, they showed tuberculin lesions.

The tuberculin serum was injected in the duebill of the turkey. These tests will be conducted at regular intervals, it has been announced.

Balanced protein rations and rotation of pens keep the farm free from disease, the proprietors says.

Plan Big Model Electrical Farm Community Where All Drudgery Will Be Done Away With

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 19.—A farmer's Utopia in which much of the heavy work of the field and the drudgery of the household are accomplished by electricity is being planned by Professor H. B. Walker of the Kansas State Agricultural College at Manhattan, Kas.

Professor Walker, half done with a series of experiments to determine the extent to which electricity can be used by farmers and farmers' wives, hopes soon to continue the experiments in a model farm community.

In this model community farmers and their wives wold have as much time for golf, visiting or other diversions as have city men and women.

Among the tasks which electricity would perform for the farmer are pumping water for live stock, grinding feed, furnishing better water supply, threshing grain, curing hay, preparing silage, storing alfalfa, miiking, separating cream, sterilizing milk and cleaning farm buildings.

Among the tasks which electrical power would perform for women are operating washing machines, ironing, chopping foods, lighting homes, heating water, cooking and cleaning.

Whether the model community is to be organized depends upon a decision of the public utility corporations that arranged with Professor Walker and other Kansans to undertake the electrical farm survey. If the corporations agree to provide the funds, the experiment will be undertaken.

Rapidly increased use of electricity on farms in the next ten years is forecast by the experimenters—regardless of whether the experimental community is formed.

At first the experimenters attempted to forecast the principal agricultural products of the state ten years from to-day. Despite the trend toward diversification of crops, it was agreed that electricity would increase production as well as lighten the physical burden of farming.

Professor Walker points out that by electrical means farmers easily could save money as well as time in grinding feed for live stock and in this way would be able to sell their cattle and hogs at a lower figure.

"In making the preliminary surveys," says Professor Walker, "we found that electrical pumping would increase the water supply at a very small increase in cost.

"In the grain districts electrical threshing has been demonstrated as not only possible but profitable. We have gone further and have outlined the possibilities of curing hay, preparing silage and putting up alfalfa by electricity."

Various milking machines, operated by electricity, are being tested. Operation of cream separators and milk sterilizers by electricity already has become quite general where power is available.

Extension of power lines will result in greater use of electricity on farms in the future, the experimenters believe.

Has It These Things That a Farmer Names as Important?

There were only five countries that, in 1923, had a larger export trade in domestic products than Canada had, and they were the United States, the United Kingdom, France, Germany, and India, in the order named. India, with 35 times the population that Canada has, beat us out by only $41,000,000.

During the last fiscal year Canada sold of domestic products to Great Britain nearly $4 worth for every one she sold twenty-five years ago. Last year Canada sold to the United States about $7.50 worth of domestic products as compared with every dollar's worth she sold a quarter of a century ago. Australia bought about $12 worth last year for every one she bought in 1900. The British West Indies took about $8 worth for every one they took twenty-five years ago. For every $1 worth that New Zealand took from us a quarter of a century ago she is now taking $480 worth to-day.

BULBS THRIVE IN COLD.

Best Flowers For Decorating Chilly Rooms—Good In Windows.

Years ago, when I lived in a cold house and the plants would freeze now and then or get chilled enough never to be really nice, I learned the value of the hardy bulbs. I could have flowers even if the soil in the pots should freeze a crust. A light chill had no effect on even the more tender sorts, such as the paper-whites and freesias, while the hyacinths seemed to welcome the cold. Then if I wanted flowers in a room where I kept no fire, but where the temperature was well above freezing—around 50 or 60 degrees most of the time—I could have them, for all the hardy bulbs like such cool quarters. They will do better in a cool room than in a warm one, though in the ordinary living-room temperature they will do well if kept moist.—H. A.

Binder Is Leading Actor In Drama That Would Astonish The Orientals

(In the last installment of this interesting "Fairy Tale," the Moon had just told of the old method of harvesting, when an ox pushed the cutter through the grains.)

"And you saw the farmers of that ancient day," said the Binder in great surprise. "You amaze me! You are indeed a very old, old lady. It is quite likely then that you were acquainted with my more immediate ancestors."

"All of them," said the Moon, not in the least fluttered by the sweeping assertion. "I knew your great grandfather, the old Cyrus McCormick reaper, on which one man rode backward and raked the grain from the platform. . . . And walked home backwards at night," added the Moon, with a smile for the queer old times, then went on:

"Your grandfather, the old revolving sweep-rake reaper, was a most interesting specimen. There was silence around when he lifted his ghostly arms out of the stubble field at night."

"But nowadays," said the Binder, "believe me,

'I'm the cock of the walk:
When I begin to rattle
The girls begin to tattle,
And farmers walk the chalk.'"

The Moon chuckled inwardly at this, while the Binder went on to say that machines rule the world. There were millions of mankind ruled by factory whistles. They rose from their beds, ate their meals, began work and quit work by whistles. The stroke of the clock could tie up a railway system. Throngs in the city stopped and then moved on at the command of a streetc signal.

One evening when the day was exceptionally clear the Moon came with her greeting before sundown. She wanted to be an eyewitness of the harvest activity, see for herself what the Binder meant by the joy of working.

"You were conspicuous for your absence this morning," ventured the Binder.

"Correct," returned the moon. "I was shining on Persian rose gardens and the shifting sands of Arabia."

"Scenery that hits your fancy, doubtless," rejoined the Binder quickly; "but surely you missed a soul-stirring performance in the Occident. At sunrise our curtain rose on a scene that would make Persians incredulous. Tell them about it tomorrow and they will believe you are made of green cheese. My stage, as you see, is a wheatfield. I play the leading role. From right and left come the actors. All day they toss sheaves to each other, and, like magic, shock rows lengthen round the stage."

"Seldom have I seen more perfect acting," observed the Moon.

"Thank you," returned the Binder, "and I am of the opinion that you know why it is superior. The actors are happy—work is happiness; without it actors are dead and the stage a waste of emptiness and confusion. This morning I was a new creature. Every detail of my structure was up and doing. I cannot describe my feelings when the gathering reel began to bend the grain against my cutter bar. As the drive wheel revolved, each bolt and belt and buckie tingled with delight. When the heart is interested binders can do anything. They succeed then in all sorts of weather and situations."

"You thrill me," said the Moon, opening her eyes widely. "Heretofore I have thought ships were the blithest creatures on earth. They have so many inviting horizons to cross. Day and night they feed on distance and mystery; their courage seems to mock the elements; but your passion and industry are no less absorbing and beautiful."

"Wish I could borrow your eyes!" said the Binder.

"Would that I could loan them!" returned the Moon genially.

"Anyway," added the Binder, "the joy of a ship is scarcely less intense and surprising than my emotions when plying through seas of grain. I do not voyage so many knots an hour, but there is gulf-weed in my course, banks of tangled grain, things wrong-end-to, and quite a little veering and backing and pitching. However, I plow through them; then insects scatter, and my way is sunny again.

"To be idle," continued the Binder, "is the bane of existence. Twice my conduct has been blemished in this way. On my way out from the factory I was left behind for a week on a switch at Bradford Junction. Die, I thought I would, die of disgust! On the last day a little Buckeye mower, happy as a bobolink, began singing in a clover field nearby. Imagine my feelings when I heard that mower! The little machine seemed to be bubbling over with the ecstasy of its own music."

The Moon was tickled immensely at this, but there was no time for laughing, not even time to reflect on what a gap there would be in machine affairs without binders.

"The chief blot on my escutcheon," resumed the Binder, "was the loss of a link in my main cog chain. It dropped from its place one afternoon last summer and eluded everybody, although men, women and children sought diligently for it. The harvesting stopped—they had to send to the factory for a new link. Meantime a storm destroyed the wheat. The farmer therefore failed to haul it to town; the mill failed to grind it; mothers failed to bake bread; and, saddest of all, little children grew hungry—all because the link in the chain failed to do its duty—an instance of what my grandmother said, that no one can be idle without bringing misfortune to others."

The Moon was now more than ever charmed with her rural friend. The key to happiness, which she had sought in her voyage around the world, seemed to be quite near, perhaps within the harvest field.

"Have you no rest periods?" she asked. "Tell me, for in my travels I find many folks discouraged and hopeless."

"Oh, yes," chuckled the Binder; "but I am not idle when I rest. Now and then a shower comes prancing across the fields. My actors run to corncribs or barns for shelter—retiring-rooms they call them in theatric language—but I remain on the open stage. Showers are my hobby, a change from regular work. Thus I rest, my mind feeds on things different—the watery mirth of nature, the cleansing winds, and other fortunes showers bring. I love to listen to what the crickets are saying under the platform. Almost always an old grasshopper comes to tell me about his family affairs. I like him. Some people jabber all the time; he doesn't. Sometimes we just meditate on the wheel of life and let it go at that. He dotes on the patter of raindrops, thinks they dance over me with fairy feet. He is a wise gaffer. Often when I look into his big eyes I suspect he knows vastly more than I do about the rain. If you would rest, he says, genuinely rest, you must have a hobby."

"In the winter season you rest?" suggested the Moon.

"As trees and woodchucks do," was the reply. "That is my dormant period, but I am no more dead to the world than the woodchuck. A terrier on entering a woodchuck's den one winter day was surprised beyond belief. He encountered, he said, the fiercest piece of torpidity he had ever seen. Quicker than the twinkling of an eye he learned that the den is the woodchuck's castle. He was wrecked in a minute, and had to be sent to the hospital for repairs. No, our dormant period is not an idle season. Many things we think and talk about in the winter-time."

"Memories of the summer-time," the Moon hastened to say, as if she world of loveliness for themselves. "Don't you remember the lovers who came arm in arm from the house that Sabbath night, their sweet assurance, and how they lingered near you, and how with a fleecy cloud I veiled the flush of color in their cheeks after their kiss of love?"

"True as you live," whispered the Binder, as if revealing a secret. "I caught my first vision of the marriage world that night. Suddenly all the fields seemed sown with blossoms."

"And I took an extra turn in making things magical," added the Moon. "You remember those unsightly pigpens?"

"Very well," answered the Binder, recalling the Moon's witchery; "and I remember how you enveloped them with the glamour of enchantment."

Advance in Canadian Wheat Is Based On World Failure

By B. W. SNOW.

THE advance in wheat, as forecasted before harvest began, is based upon misfortune elsewhere. The wheat crop of Europe, as well as all other food crops, is far short of requirements, and each succeeding estimate fixes a lower total—just the opposite of our own situation. Statisticians now concede that world supplies, from this crop, are below world requirements, and if any unfavorable situation should arise in Argentina, the bread-eating world will face a very uncomfortable shortage.

Meanwhile, this country finds itself blessed with agricultural prosperity. It is a year of erratic contradictions, with one factor favorable and another unsatisfactory, but with the general balance emphatically improved for Canadian agriculture.

Prosperity in Spite of Weather.

The peculiar thing is that if you took a cross section of time at any stage of the year, it would show unfavorable weather conditions, and yet there is no serious crop failure in sight.

But it takes more than satisfactory yields to bring agricultural happiness Price is a very large factor, and it is the combination of crop return and price return, and the dovetailing of one into the other, that brings us a prosperous year.

Every one knows that a season highly satisfactory for small grains is necessarily bad for corn, but every one usually forgets that fact while the season is in progress, and centers attention only upon whichever crop is doing badly. This is the reason that so many people are surprised when they find that our wheat crop this year is one of our large ones. The beginning of the season looked bad for wheat, but as week after week passed with ample rainfall and cool weather, the possibilities steadily increased, and where as ordinarily the prospective crop shrinks as the season advances, this year each succeeding crop report swelled the figures still further. In fact, the official final in December is likely to top even the highest suggestion up to date.

Growers Got the Good Prices.

So much for production. The price factor is as satisfactory, or even more so. With a crop far above an average, we have a price unheard-of at this season in peace times. Such a combination spells prosperity for the wheat country, but it also presents another unusual feature. The advance in price began before a single binder started with the large part of the upturn taking place while the farmer held every bushel of his new crop.

The records show that many, many farmers were misled by wrong advice, to their loss, because the rate of marketing from the thresher was unprecedented. In spite of this flood of new grain, however, prices have steadily gone upward. At this writing they are at the highest point, and promise to reach sensational levels before the crop year is over. The rapid marketing of the crop, in an effort to cash in on what farmers were told were fictitious prices, has cost wheat growers a lot of money.

OVER TWENTY MILLION MEALS EATEN IN CANADA IN A DAY NEED HUGE FARM PRODUCTION

SOME ITEMS CANADA CONSUMES IN THE COURSE OF A YEAR.

To provide Canada with three meals a day for a period of one year ,the following quantities were used:

Flour, barrels, 8,663,078.
Rolled Oats, lbs., 109,220,512.
Cornmeal, lbs., 51,302,602.
Rye Flour, lbs., 2,659,910.
Buckwheat Flour, lbs, 5,631,225.
Barley, lbs., 4,041,053.
Potatoes, bushels, 90,433,000.
Meats lbs, 1,391,342,492.
Butter lbs. 230,507,322.
Cheese, lbs., 21,272,216.

People Depend for Sustenance Upon the Dominion's Greatest Resource.

KEEPS WHEELS GOING

All Industries Depend to Some Extent on Farm Business.

The "Canadian Grocer," has in its latest issue a rather interesting article on the sources and amounts of edibles required to furish a Dominion-wide meal-table for one year. It is estimated that in 1921, the 8,775,853 people in Canada consumed an aggregate of 26,327,559 meals daily, or a grand total for the year of 9,609,458,035.

To provide eatables for this gigantic banquet, the following quantities were used: 8,663,078 barrels of flour; 109,220,512 pounds of rolled oats; 51,302,602 pounds of cornmeal; 2,659,910 pounds of rye flour; 5,631,225 pounds of buckwheat flour; 4,041,03 pounds of barley; 90,433,000 bushels of potatoes; 1,391,342 pounds of meat; 230,507,322 pounds of butter and 21,273,216 pounds of cheese.

"Canada's chief food supply, of course, comes from the farm, consequently it is upon the development of Canada's greatest natural resource—the land—that our people 'epend for sustenance." Of the total wheat crop of 399,786,000 bushels in 1923, 170,104,000 bushels was consumed in Canada. How much of this was converted into flour is not as yet known, but in 1922 there was 81,413,649 bushels milled, from which was produced 17,833,131 barrels of flour. Of this flour 8,633,078 barrels was consumed in Canada, slightly less than one barrel for each person.

Of the 491,239,000 bushels of oats grown in 1923, there was consumed in Canada 467,678,000 bushels. The quantity of oats used for human food in 1922 was 11,191,617 bushels, which was converted into 145,912,814 pounds of rolled oats or oatmeal,of which 109,220,512 pounds was used in Canada.

Cornmeal also was used to the extent of 51,302,602 pounds, while 2,659,910 pounds of rye flour, 5,631,225 pounds of buckwheat flour, 4,041,053 pounds of barley, and 90,433,000 bushels of potatoes contributed to Canada's table supply. Farm and ranch animals provided 1,391,342,492 pounds of meat, together with 230,507,322 pounds of butter, 21,272,216 pounds of cheese, and enormous quantities of milk and cream.

"The dependence of Canada upon Natural conditions, as they pertain to precipitation and temperature, is evidenced in the wheat crops of 1921 and 1922. The increase in production in the latter year , notwithstanding that theer was less acreage sown in wheat, averaged five bushels per acre, or a total of 104,307,500 bushels—the difference being more than enough to provide all of Canada's requirements for flour making."

Table and dairy salt produced in Canada amounted to 41,274 tons, and common fine salt to 35,738 tons.

"The power used in the manufacture of our flour and meals amounted to 95,315 horse power. Herein enters another of Canada's important natural resources. Of this total power, 25,105 horse power was developed by hydraulic turbine and water wheels, while 53,365 horse-power was provided by electric motors, practically all supplied with current from hydro-electric power developments. Natural and artificial gas used for milling amounted to 334,958,000 cubic feet, while 38,236 tons of lignite as well as other fuels, including 12,599 cords of wood, were used."

"The development of Canada's forest resources, second only in importance to her lands, has a very direct bearing upon the provision of foodstuffs to the country's table. Containers are necessary for distribution, and of these there are made annually approximately 860,000 apple barrels, 182,000 sugar and flour barrels, 2,800,000 butter and cheese boxes, 7,400,000 baskets and crates, 1,200,000 berry boxes, and 13,000,000 boxes and packing cases, a large proportion of the latter being used for food supplies. In addition there are millions of cartons, paper bags and other food containers made of paper and boxboard, the product of raw materials, obtained from Canadian forests, required in distribution of our foodstuffs."

SCRUB BULL IS FOUND GUILTY

Legal Talent Battle Results In Conviction—Mock Trial Held.

NOT MUCH DEFENSE.

The mock trial of a scrub bull recently at Waynesboro, Pa., drew an audience of more than a thousand persons. The Advertising Club of the Chamber of Commerce, the Franklin County Farm Bureau and the County Agricultural Agent had charge of arrangements. The trial was conducted according to an outline given by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Local legal talent made the court proceedings realistic. The Sheriff and his force of deputies "arrested" the bull and otherwise aided in conducting court order. For the convenience of busy farmers the trial was held at 7 o'clock in the evening. The merchants of Waynesboro held a "dollar day," which was widely advertised, with the scrub-bull trial as an auxiliary attraction. Twenty-five hundred card invitations were mailed and 500 posters advertised the event.

The trial took place on an electric-lighted platform in the ball park. Band music added to the entertainment, and the services of the Boy Scouts were enlisted to handle the traffic. A dairy cattle specialist from the Department of Agriculture acted as expert witness for the prosecution.

A jury of twelve men rendered a verdict of guilty after hearing the evidence laid before the court of bovine justice. The prosecution showed the detrimental effect which scrub bulls have on the dairy industry. It then described the prosperity and other benefits brought by pure-bred bulls, and pleaded forcefully for conviction.

The defense consisted largely of oratory, aided by music and poetry, as vain resorts to save the prisoner from doom. One witness for the defense failed to impress the jury when he testified that the scrub bull was a great labor-saving device, in that the daughters of such a sire gave less milk, required fewer pails and cans, and were more quickly milked.

WHEAT AND CHAFF

The city kid was roaming about in the country when he came upon a dozen or so empty condensed milk cans. Greatly excited, he yelled to his companions:

"Hey, fellers, come hereq uick! I've found a cow's nest!"

• • •

It's getting fashionable for politicians to call themselves dirt farmers. Maybe they figure that excuses them for mud-slinging.

• • •

There once was a farmer in Tuckahoe
Who into the fallow field stuck a hoe.
He shouted with pleasure,
And yelled: "Buried treasure!"
Then: "It's only a stone, and I've bruk a hoe!"

Value Of Winter Windbreak Great in Keeping Honey Bees

The importance of a good windbreak cannot be over estimated where colonies of bees are wintered out of doors since, for protection from the prevailing winds, it is as essential as packing.

Although well-packed, colonies which are subjected to a heavy wind blowing on them for a few hours will have their temperature reduced considerably; in fact, well-packed colonies which are exposed to the cold winds may die while those having less packing but better protection from the winds will survive. When we think of our own houses in wind swept areas and of the difficulty of keeping the temperature up in the best constructed ones, we will appreciate the necessity of providing adequate protection from cold winds for our colonies.

Windbreaks may be natural or artificial, and the artificial ones may be either temporary for permanent Natural windbreaks are considered to be better. For good natural protection the apiary may be located in the lee of a grove of trees, young timber, an evergreen hedge or on a side hill slanting from north to south, along the top of which a hedge or fence is located.

Artificial windbreaks may be temporary fences or hurdles, such as are used by the railroads, in which the boards are placed horizontally with intervening spaces of 1½ to 2 inches. They may be permanent fences in which the boards are placed vertically with the above mentioned spacing between them. The object of the openings between the boards is to allow some of the wind to pass through, thus preventing a tendency to rise and roll over the fence top into the apiary. The height of these fences should be approximately eight feet and if possible, placed on all four sides of apiary. Buildings, as a rule, should not be relied on to break the wind, for they may only divert it and possibly make matters worse. Apart from its advantages in winter, a good windbreak facilitates examinations in the summer, when without it strong winds would retard the work.

GROW FEED IN YARDS

Green feed grown in the yards save the labor of carrying the feed to the flock. Manure that otherwise would be wasted is utilized by the plants, and the ground is kept in better condition as a result of plowing for the seed bed.

POTATO SHIPMENTS INCREASE.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 21.—The movement of potatoes from this province to Cuba, is now reaching its height. Several large shipments have already been forwarded and arrangements have been made for regiuar winter shipments from Carleton County to Havana.

Sweet potatoes should be stored in wooden crates or baskets.

THE THIEF OF BAGDAD

BY ACHMED ABDULLAH

CHAPTER I.

In the Orient's motley, twisted annals the tale of Ahmed el-Bagdadi's —"the Thief of Bagdad," as he is called in the ancient records—search for happiness, which is by the same token the tale of his adventures and exploits and love, has assumed in the course of time the character of something homeric, something epic and fabulous, something close-woven to the golden loom of the desert in both pattern and sweep of romance.

It is mentioned with pride by his own tribe, the Benni Hussaynieh, a raucous-tongued, hard-riding breed of Bedawins, brittle of honor and greedy of gain, of whom—due to a father, tired of the sterile Arabian sands and eager for the pleasures of bazar and marketplace—he was the city-bred descendant. It is spoken of with a mixture of awe and envy by the Honorable Guild of Bagdad Thieves of whom he was once a keen and highly respected member. It is wide-blown through the flaps of the nomads' black felt tents from Mecca to Jeddah and beyond; berry-brown, wizen old women cackle its gliding gossip as they bray the coffee for the morning meal or rock the blown-up milk skins upon their knees till the butter rolls yellow and frothing; and, on the sun-cracked lips of the cameleers, on the honeyed, lying lips of overland traders and merchants, the tale has drifted South as far as the Sahara, North to the walls of grey, stony Bokhara, Southeast and Northeast to Pekin's carved dragon gates and the orchid plains and ochre mountains of Hindustan, and West to the pleasant, odorous gardens of Morocco where garrulous white-beards comment upon it as they digest the brave deeds of the past in the curling, blue smoke of their water-pipes.

"Wah hyat Ullah—as God liveth!" their telling begins. "This Ahmed el-Bagdadi—what a keen lad he was! A deer in running! A cat in climbing! A snake in twisting! A hawk in pouncing! A dog in scenting! Fleet as a hare! Stealthy as a fox! Tenacious as a wolf! Brave as a lion! Strong as an elephant in mating-time!"

Or, taking a blade of grass between thumb and second finger, another ancient will exclaim:

"Wah hyat hatha el-awd wah er-rub elmabood—by the life of this stem and the blessed Lord God! Never, in all Islam, lived there one to equal Ahmed the Thief in quality and pride, the scope and exquisite charm of his thievery!"

Or perhaps:

"Wah hyat duqny—by the honor of these my whiskers! Once, O True Believers, it happened in Bagdad the Golden! Aye—may I eat dirt—may I not be father to my sons if I lie! But once, indeed, it happened in Bagdad the Golden!"

And then the full, rich tale. The wondrous ending.

Yet the tale's original cause was simple enough, consisting in the snatching of a well-filled purse, a hungry belly craving food, and the jerk and pull of a magic rope woven from the hair of a purple-faced witch of the left-handed sect; while the scene was the Square of the One-Eyed Jew—thus called for reasons lost in the mists of antiquity—in the heart of Bagdad.

Across the South end of the Square straddled the Mosque of Seven Swords, raised on a flight of broad marble steps as on a base, lifting the apex of its wide horseshoe gateway fifty feet into the air, its walls untwining sinuous arabesques of yellow and elfin-green faience beneath the pigeon-blue glare of the sky, its lonely minaret lovely and pointed and snowy-white. East the latticed Bazar of the Red Sea Traders filtered the sun on rugs and silks, on copper vessels and jewelry and thin gold-inlaid perfume bottles,in an ever-shifting saraband of shadows, rose and purple and sapphire and purest emerald. North a broad, tree-lined avenue swept on toward the palace of the Caliph of the Faithful that etched the horizon with a tortured abandon of spires and turrets and bartizans. West squatted a packed wilderness of narrow, cobbled alleys; a labyrinth of flat-roofed Arab houses with dead-white walls facing the street, but blossoming toward the inner courtyards with palm and olive and rose-bush. Here, too, was the dim, tortuous Bazar of the Potters, plum-colored Nubians brought as slaves from Africa, and, farther on, a cemetery criss-crossed with Barbary fig and the tiny stone cups filled with grain and water for the birds of passage, in obedience to the blessed Moslem tradition.

In the very centre of the square of the One-Eyed Jew a great fountain played with sleepy, silvered cadences. And here, on a stone slab a little to one side of the fountain, Ahmed the Thief lay flat on his stomach, his chin cupped in his hands, the sun rays warming his bare, bronzed back, his black eyes darting in all directions like dragon flies to give warning of rich and careless citizens who might pass within reach of his agile hands and whose purses might be had for a little soft twist and tug.

The Square and the streets and bazars were teeming with humanity, not to mention humanity's wives and children and mothers-in-law and visiting country cousins. For today was a holiday: the day before the Lelet el-Kadr, the "Night of Honor," the anniversary of the occasion when the Koran was revealed to the Prophet Mohammed in the year 609.

So throngs milled and moiled everywhere: people of half the Orient's crazy-quilt of races, Arabs and Seljuks and Osmanlis, Tartars and Syrians, Turkomans and Uzbeks, Bokharans, Moors and Egyptians, with here and there men from the Farther East, Chinese, Hindus and Malays, traveling merchants these, come to Bagdad to swap the products of their home lands for what the Arabs markets had to offer. They were all making merry after the Orient's immemorial fashion, resplendently, extravagantly, and noisily: the men swaggering and strutting, fingering their jewled daggers and cocking their immense turbans at a rakish, devil-may-care angle; the women adjusting their thin-meshed face veils which did not need adjusting at all; the little boys seeing if they could shout richer and louder abuse than the other little boys; the little girls rivaling each other in the gay pansy-shades of their dresses and the consumption of greasy candy.

There were ambulant coffee houses filled with men and women in their silken, colorful holiday best,liste ning to singers and professional story tellers, smoking and chatting, looking at jugglers, knife twirlers, sword swallowers, and dancing-boys. There were cook shops and lemonade stands, toy booths and merry-go-rounds. There were bear leaders, ape leaders, fakirs, fortune tellers, buffoons and Punch and Judy shows. There were itinerant dervish preachers chanting the glories of Allah the One, of the Prophet Mohammed and the Forty-Seven True Saints. There were bell-shaped tents where golden-skinned, blue-tattooed Bedawin maidens trilled and quavered their desert songs, to the accompaniment of tamborines and shrill scrannel pipes. There was everything which makes life worth the living, including a great deal of love making—the love making of the Orient which is frank, direct, and a trifle indelicate to Western ears and prejudices.

There were of course the many cries of the street.

"Sweet water! Sweet water, and gladden thy soul! Lemonade! Lemonade here!" cried the sellers of that luxury, clanking their brass cups together.

"O chick pease! O pips!" shouted the vendors of parched grains. "Good for the liver—the stomach! To sharpen the teeth!"

"In thy protection, O my Head, O my Eyes!" moaned a peasant, drunk with hasheesh, whom a turbaned policeman, wielding his rhinoceros-hide whip with all his strength, was the peasant's wife following with loud plaints of: "Yah Gharati—yah Dahwati! O thou my Calamity—O thou my Shame!"

"Bless the Prophet and give way to our great Pasha!" exclaimed the panting, black slave who was running by the side of a grandee's carriage as it crossed the Square.

"O Daughter of the Devil! O Commodity on which Money is lost! O thou especially not wanted! shrieked a woman as she yanked her tiny, pert-eyed girl-child from beneath the crimson paper partition of a sugar candy booth. The next moment she fondled and kissed her. "O Peace of my Soul!" she cooed. "O Chief Pride of thy Father's House—though only a girl!"

"The grave is the darkness! Good deeds are the lamps!" wailed the blind beggar woman, rattling two dry sticks.

Friend would meet friend and greet each other with all the extravagance of the Orient, throwing themselves upon each other's breasts, placing right arm over left shoulder squeezing like wrestlers, with intermittent hugs and caresses, then laying cheek delicately against cheek and flat palm against palm, at the same time making the loud, smaking noise of many kisses in the air.

Mild-mannered, sleepy-eyed and suave, they would burst into torrents of rage at the next moment because of some fancied insult. Their nostrils would quiver and they would become furious as Bengal tigers. Then would come streams of obscene abuse, que vituperat is on in which the East excels.

"Owl! Donkey! Christian! Jew! Leper! Pig bereft of gratitude, understanding, and the average decencies!" deThis from an elderly Arab whose long white beard gave him an aspect of patriarchal dignity in ludicrous contrast with the foul invective which he was using. "Unclean and swinish foreigner! May thy countenance be cold! May dogs defile thy mother's grave!"

Came the reply courteous:

"Basest of illegitimate hyenas! Father of seventeen dogs! Bath servant! Seller of pig's tripe!"

And then the final retort, drawling, slow-voiced, but bristling with all the venom of the East:

Then a physical assault, an exchang of blows, fists going like flails, until the grinning, spitting, crimson-turbaned policeman separated the combatants and cuffed them both with cheerful, democratic impartiality.

"Hai! Hai! Hai!" laughed the onlookers.

"Hai! Hai! Hayah! Hai!" laughed the Thief of Bagdad; and the very next moment, as a paunchy, grey-bearded money lender stopped at the fountain and bent to sip a drink of water with cupped hands, Ahmed's agile fingers decended, twisted, tugged imperceptibly and came up with a well-filled purse.

Another imperceptible jerk of these agile, brown fingers; and while his body lay flat and motionless, while his eyes were as innocent as those of a child, the purse plopped into his baggy trousers of purple, silver-threaded silk that were tight about the ankles and that, only the night before, he had acquired—without paying for them—in the Bazar of the Persian Weavers.

Minute after minute he lay there, laughing, watching, exchanging jests with people here and there in the crowd; and many of those who stopped by the fountain to drink or to gossip, helped to swell the loot in Ahmed's loose breeches.

There was amongst that loot, to describe just a few items, a knotted handkerchief, clinking with coined silver and filched from the woolen folds of a hulking, bullying, beetle-browed Tartar camel master's burnoose; a tinkling ruby-and-moon-stone girdle gem from the waist shawl of one of the Caliph's favorite Circassian slave girls who moved through the Square and past the fountain escorted by a dozen armed eunuchs; a ring of soft, hammered gold set with an enormous star-sapphire from the henna-stained thumb of a visiting Stambul dandy whom Ahmed, lest the stranger spot his brocaded robe, had helped to a drink of water, and had been rewarded by the other's courtly: "May the Prophet Mohammed repay thee for thy kindness!"—rewarded too, and rather more substantially, by the afore-mentioned ring.

Ahmed was about to call it a day when there came out of the Bazar of the Red Sea Traders a rich merchant, a certain Tagi Kahn, well known through all Bagdad because of his wealth and his extravagance—an extravagance, be it added, which he centred on his own person and the enjoyment of his five senses, and which he made up for by extreme penury where the poor and the needy were concerned, and by lending money at exorbitant rates, taking as security the cow and the unborn calf.

He walked with a mincing step, his wicked, shriveled old face topped ludicrously by a coquettish turban of pale cerise, his scanty beard dyed blue with indigo, his pointed finger nails gilt in a foppish manner, his lean body clad in green silk, and holding in his bony right hand a large cluster of lilies at which he sniffed.

All this Ahmed saw and disliked. Saw, furthermore, protruding a little from Tagi Kahn's waist shawl, the sagging plumpness of an embroidered purse. A fat purse! A rich, swollen, bloated purse! A purse to stir the imagination of both the righteous and the unrighteous!

"Mine—by the red pig's bristles!" thought Ahmed, as the other passed the fountain. "Mine—or may I never laugh again!"

Already his right hand had descended. Already his agile fingers were curling like question marks. Already the purse was sliding gently from Tagi Kahn's waist shawl when —for let us remember that Ahmed was stretched flat on his stomach, his bare back warmed by the sun—an inquisitive mosquito lit on his shoulder and stung him painfully.

He wiggled; twisted.

His tapering fingers slipped and jerked.

"Thief! Thief! Thief!" he yelled, reaching up, clutching at the purse, ...rabbing its other end. "Give it back to me!"

"No! No!" protested Ahmed, pulling the purse away and transferring it quickly to his left hand. "It is mine own purse! I am not a thief! I am an honest man! It is you, yourself, who are the thief!"

And, appealing to the people who came crowding up on a run, he continued heatedly, with every expression of injured innocence:

Behold me this Tagi Khan! This oppressor of widows and orphans! This worshiper before the unclean gods of compound interest! He accuses me—me—of being a thief!"

"You are a thief!" bellowed the merchant. "You stole my purse!"

"The purse is mine!"

"No—mine—O Father of a bad Smell!"

"Goat!" came Ahmed's reply. "Goat of an odor most goatish! Abuser of the Salt!"—and he jumped down from the ledge and faced the other.

Standing there in the bright, yellow sunlight, poised on the balls of his bare feet, ready for either flight or combat as the odds might advise, he was a fine figure of a man: short rather than tall, but perfectly proportioned from narrow foot to curly head, with a splendid breadth of chest and shoulders, and long muscles that were like running water. There was here none of your clumsy, flabby, overfed Nordic flesh, like a greasy, pink-and-white suet pudding, but a smooth, hairless torso, with the crunching strength of a man and the grace of a woman. The face was clean-shaven except for an impudent little mustache that quivered with well-simulated wrath as he heaped insults upon the stammering, raging Tagi Khan.

The crowd laughed and applauded—for Tagi Khan had not many friends in Bagdad—until finally a gigantic black-bearded Captain of the Watch shouldered his way through the throng.

"Be quiet, both you fighting-cocks!" he thundered threateningly. "This is Bagdad, the Caliph's town, where they hang men in chains from the Gate of Lions for shouting too loudly in the marketplace. And now—softly, softly—what is the trouble?"

"He took my purse, O Protector of the Righteous!" wailed Tagi Khan.

"The purse was never his," asserted Ahmed, boldly displaying the disputed article and holding it high. "It is a most precious heirloom bequeathed to me by my late father—may his soul dwell in Paradise!"

"A lie!" exclaimed the other.

"The truth!" insisted Ahmed.

"Softly, softly!" came the Captain's warning; and he went on: "There is but one way to decide this matter. Whoever owns this purse knows its contents."

"A wise man!" commented the crowd.

"As wise as Solomon, the King of the Jews!"

Unblushingly, the Captain of the Watch accepted the flattery. He stuck out his great beard like a battering ram; raised hairy, high-veined hands.

"Wise indeed am I!" he admitted calmly. "And now—my Tagi Khan—since you claim this purse, suppose you tell me what its contents are?"

JOHNSON MAKES FIRST DEPOSIT FOR BALL CLUB

Washington's Great Pitcher Retires From American League at Height of Glory.

BECOMES AN OWNER.

Buys Oakland, Cal., Club, With George Weiss, of New Haven, For $350,000.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—The deposit at Oakland, California, by Walter Johnson of his first payment for the Oakland Club of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, is accepted by Washington fandom as definitely meaning the loss of the star pitcher to Washington, although his formal release from the local club has not as yet been granted.

In passing from major league baseball, Johnson has brought to pass something that has seldom happened in competitive sports—the retirement of an athlete at the top of his form and at the point of his greatest glory.

Walter Johnson came to Washington 18 years ago and to-day, having finished one of his greatest years, winding up with a world's series victory that thrilled the nation, has taken his mighty arm voluntarily from the ranks of American League players, where it has been a dread for all of those seasons. There was no question of his ability to stand the strain for several years and there was no question of his title to a salary of bank president proportions. Rather, Johnson, with a long ambition fulfilled—that of a triumph in a world series for Washington—chose the life of a club owner in the minor leagues instead of the difficult role of a beror in the majors.

The departure of Johnson from Washington means the passing of an institution and a tradition. Just as the White House or the Washington Monument are first thought of in the mention of the capital city, so Johnson has been linked up with the baseball fortunes of the town. Nobody thinks of the Washington club without thinking of Johnson, and for years a great deal of its patronage has been due to a desire of persons to see him.

CHEQUE FOR $10,000.

OAKLAND, Calif., Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Walter Johnson, pitching ace of the Washington Club, and George Weiss, owner of the New Haven Club in the Eastern League, yesterday deposited a cheque for $10,000 with J. Cal Ewing, owner of the Oakland Club of the Pacific Coast Baseball League as first payment on the Oakland Club, it was announced by Ewing.

Johnson and Weiss guaranteed to put up an additional $25,000 by Saturday when the final papers will be signed, Ewing said. According to the retiring owner, the total price is $350,000. A price of $385,000 was first agreed upon, he said, but later negotiations were re-opened and the reduction was made.

The new-comers will have until January 2 1925, to make up the balance, Ewing said.

The final details of the sale were completed yesterday at a conference of all interested parties. It had been expected that the transfer papers would be signed yesterday, but the developments in regard to the payments made a postponement necessary until Saturday.

PADDOCK SPRINT RECORD ACCEPTED

ATLANTIC CITY, Nov. 19.—The thirty-sixth annual convention of the Amateur Athletic Union, National governing body in a dozen different branches of sports activity brought its two-day sessions to a close Tuesday by electing Murray Hulbert of New York president to succeed William S. Prout of Boston and selecting Pittsburgh as the 1925 convention city. Acceptance of two new sprint record performances one by Louis Clarke and the other by Charley Paddock, in spite of the disapproval of them by the record committee and promise of action to prevent instances of such athletes as Willie Ritola, Finnish-American running star, from competing for their native lands in the Olympics after receiving the benefit of training in the United States, also were prominent in the convention's closing developments.

Spirited controversy developed over the Clarke and Paddock records. The former's mark of 9 4-5 seconds for 100 yards indoors made at Baltimore last February and the Californias' record equalling the performance of 9 3-5 seconds for 100 yards outdoors made at the national championships in December were accepted by convention vote after the record committee, of which L .C. Goldsmith of Philadelphia is chairman, reported adversely n them. It was claimed that incompetent timing existed in Clarke's performances and that Paddock was aided by a slight wind but testimony officials who watched both performances claimed that they were legitimate and swayed the conventions' favorable action.

GIBBONS-NORFOLK FIGHT IS APPROVED

New York State Athletic Commission Canvassed List of Contenders For Gibbons.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—The State Athletic Association yesterday placed its official stamp of approval on the Tom Gibbons-Kid Norfolk 15-round match at Madison Square Garden Tuesday, December 9, after a hectic session in which every available heavyweight outside of Jack Dempsey was considered as an opponent for Gibbons. This match is the headliner of the Christmas fund show, the net proceeds of which will be distributed among the poor of New York.

Harry Wills, colored heavyweight, Bartley Madden, Tough, New York Irishman, and Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight, were called in at the meeting, and each asked if he would agree to fight Gibbons. Wills and Renault were forced to decline the invitation due to injured thumbs but Madden agreed to accept the assignment. Commissioner William H. Muldoon, former chairman of the New York board, favored Madden as a more logical opponent than Kid Norfolk, and a vote was taken by the three members. Chairman Geo. E. Brower and Comissioner James J. Farley cast their votes for Norfolk, but Muldoon refused to make it unanimous, asking that it be made a matter of record that he cast his vote for Madden.

The Featherweights.

The board of deputies decided on the weight and condition of the six contenders in the featherweight elimination tournament. Each contender has been visited by a deputy and his weight and condition made a matter of record. It developed that Kaplan Paluso and Garcia weighed 127 pounds, one pound over the recognized featherweight limit of 126 pounds, but the boxers in each instance convinced the deputies that they could get down to 126 pounds before two o'clock Friday afternoon, the time set for the official weighing in. Billy Defoe of St. Paul and Babe Herman of New York, alternates in the tournament, will be substituted in the order named in the event any moxer is unable to make the stipulated 126 pounds.

Lombardo weighed 125½ yesterday, Dundee 125½ and Kramer 124 3-4, according to the report. The deputies also reported in each case that they were confident the men would be able to make the weight.

For the first time in more than five years Sandy Herd, noted golf professional, went through the season without making a hole in one.

Chick Evans thinks the golf stroke should be made a part of gymnasium exercises in the public schools.

O. B. Keeler, gifted golf writer, changed Bobby Jones' diet at Merion and it helped the southerner win the national golf title.

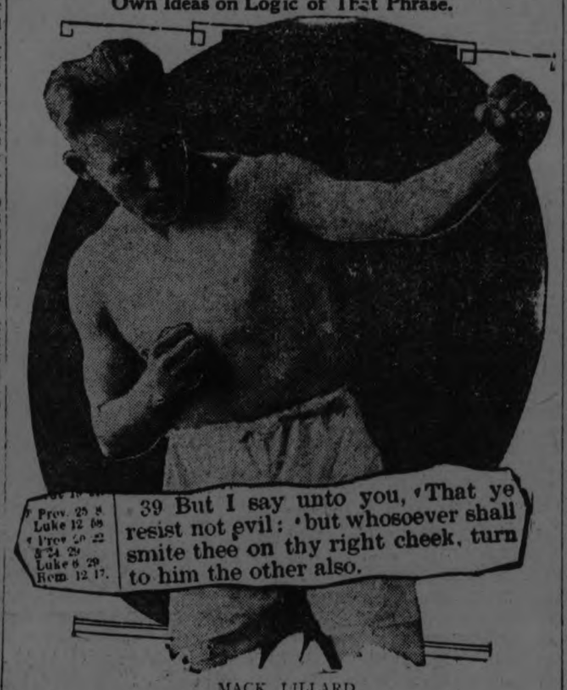
"TURN THE OTHER CHEEK"

Spokane Athlete Who Blends Bible and Boxing, Has Own Ideas on Logic of That Phrase.



MACK LILLARD

SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 19.—The Bible and the boxing glove go hand in hand with Mack Lillard of Spokane, Wash.

On Sundays Lillard is a Bible teacher at the First Baptist Church here, on other days he is a professional battler.

To his Sunday school auditors he preaches the Gospel, according to the accepted doctrines . . . "Whosoever shall smite thee on the right cheek, turn to him the other also." . . . But in the ring Battling Lillard has other ideas on the "turn the other cheek" preachment.

If, perchance, he happens to stop a stiff left with the right cheek, Battling Lillard simply tears into his opponent and tries his derndest for a knockout.

And most of the times he lands it, too. The young man plans to invade the east soon in quest of big game.

Giants and White Sox Disband in Paris; Tour Ends and Players Will Sail Nov. 25

PARIS, November 18. — The New York Giants and the Chicago White Sox baseball teams, which have been playing exhibition games in Europe, will play no more baseball on the continent. The party broke up in Paris on Saturday.

Jennings, Evers, Nehf, Sam Rice, Ruel and others of the players, have gone to Rome, where they hope to be received by the Pope, through the good offices of Mgr. Charles A. O'Hern, rector of the American College.

Charles A. Comiskey and his son, with Frisch and Greb, have gone to Berlin, via Brussels and Amsterdam. Ed. Walsh, Lyons and Clancy will make a three day tour of the battlefields, chaperoned by Hank Gowdy, who will give them first hand information. Another party will go to the Riviera, Nice and Monte Carlo.

Manager John McGraw of the Giants will remain in Paris as will also a few of the players who have become completely smitten with the French capital. The teams will assemble in Paris on Nov. 24, and will sail for America on the Leviathan from Cherbourg, on November 25.

Pioinich and Huntzinger sailed on Sunday for the United States on the George Washington.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Mr. Editor.

Having read the report of the Gordon Cup Final I notice that your reported has quoted Mr. Russell and myself as being "Emphatic in our requests that the Canadian Woollens were the better team?

I wish to state that this report is untrue and that he remarks passed were "That the game was one of the best witnessed for a long time and hoped that he would give the Woollens some credit and not praise only one team the same as he has been doing for some weeks.

As regards the criticism of Mr. Clarke, none was passed whatever, and I myself feel that the referee deserves credit for the way he handled the game.

Thanking you Mr. Editor for your valuable space, I am

J. L. Howarth.

In connection with the above it might be stated for the information of the public that Mr. Howarth and Mr. Russell, during the course of last Saturday's game, repeatedly approached the reporter of the game and requested him to state that "The Woollens was the best team." If the reporter took Mr. Howarth and Mr. Russell seriously they have themselves to blame.—Editor.

Too bad Notre Dame doesn't play Illinois. Such a game was considcrede last winter. It would have been a classic.

ATHLETIC BODY ENTERS RECORDS

SWIMMERS LEAD

ATLANTIC CITY, N.., Nov. 18.—Action designed to broaden the field of the organization's activity approval of an unprecedented array of 137 record and noteworthy athletic performances during the past year endorsement of proposals to benefit future United States Olympic campaigns and ratification of a list of twenty eight 1925 championship awards were the outstanding developments Monday in the opening sessions of the thirty-sixth annual convention of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States.

The meeting bringing together leading athletic governing officials from all parts of the United States waded through a mass of reports, statistics and routine affairs, held its annual banquet last night and will close its deliberations to-day at the Hotel Ambassador. Choice of Pittsburgh as the 1925 convention city and unopposed election of Murray Hulbert of New York to succeed William C. Prout of Boston, as president, are slated as concluding features.

Principal among the steps taken to widen the A.A.U. field of activity was endorsement of plans to ally the organization with a newly formed boxing federation among North and South American nations, William H. Cuddy of Boston, chairman of the A.A.U. Boxing Committee and one of the leading spirits new "All-American" ring proposal advised the convention that he had already come to a tentative agreement with Dr. Carlos Gallegos of Buenos Aires, representative of five South American countries for the first international amateur boxing tournament under the auspices of the new body, to be held in New York next April. Canadian support to the move was pledged to-day by Dr. A .S. Lamb of the Dominion, A.A.U.

The only controversy marking the convention developed over claims for a record indoor performance of 9 4-5 seconds for 100 yards by Louis Clarke, former John Hopkins sprinter made in a meet at Baltimore last spring. Record timers for various reasons rejected the mark but Baltimore delegates forced a reconsideration and the issue was to be threshed out over night for submission to the closing session to-morrow.

The addition of a steeplechase to the indoor championship programme 15 miles run to the outdoor list and provision for a marathon championship reflected the results of President Prout's recommendation for increased development of distance running.

The marathon was given to Boston later when Baltimore withdrew its bid originally accepted.

The 137 record performances approved included 75 which will go on the books as new United States records and 62 noteworthy performances. Twenty-one other marks either were rejected or held over for further consideration, making a total of 158 considered.

The bulk of these performances, 98 were credited to men and women swimmers, while 39 were made in track and field competitions. Feminine athletes figured in only three of the track marks but accounted for a majority of these swimming figures 52, as compared with 48 for the men.

Thirteen new United States outdoor track and field records are featured by the 200 metre mark of 20 9-10 seconds made by Jackson Scholz, of the New York A.C. in the Olympic tryouts at Cambridge, Mass., June. 14 and the high jump record of six feet 8 1-4 inches by Harold Oborn of the Illinois A.C., made at Urbana, Illinois, May 27. Both of these performances also will stand as world records.

Of the new swimming records and noteworthy performances 18 are credited to Sybil Bauer, backstroke star of the Illinois A.C. and 11 to Johnny Weissmuller star of the same club and Olympic champion, who already has about fifty marks to his credit.

THE MAN WHO INVENTED BASEBALL

Harrington Fitzgerald, a well-known journalist and art critic of Philadelphia, is authority for the statement that his father was the inventor of the game of baseball and that his mother made the first baseball bags for bases. His father, Thomas Fitzgerald, was the proprietor of The Item, published in Philadelphia for many years, and was one of the eminent citizens of the city, interested in all things and especially in sports. Cricket was played a great deal in Philadelphia at that time because there was a great many Englishmen living there, and the elder Fitzgerald conceived the idea of originating a game that would be somewhat livelier and that would be essentially American. He worked out the game of baseball and when he had it in shape he called a meeting of a number of persons, who, like him, were interested in sports, and they put their stamp of approval on it at once. Some minor changes were made in the rules that Mr. Fitzgerald had outlined and then a team was organized to play the game. The necessity of having a base that the players could not injure themselves upon was recognized, and Mrs. Fitzgerald volunteered to make them, which she did. A team to play the game was organized and its success was instantaneous.

NORTHERN ONTARIO DEVELOPMENT.

The constant development which is taking place in the mining areas of Northern Ontario is inviting more and more attention every day, and has justified the building of additional railway lines in the new territory by the Ontario Provincial System of Railways (T. and N. O.). The Canadian National Railways served this new territory with through trains from Toronto via North Bay. Standard sleeping cars and coaches are operated between Toronto, Englehart, Timmins and Cochrane, connecting with trains for all points in that district, including Larder Lake and South Lorrain branches.

This territory is also served from the east and west by the "Continental Limited," Canadian National's transcontinental train.

A MONTHLY MEETING OF CHILDREN'S AID

The postponed monthly meeting of the Board of Management of the Children's Aid Society was held yesterday afternoon in the board-room at the Chamber of Commerce, with a good attendance. The president, Mr. B. F. Ackerman, occupied the chair. Others present were Messrs. Edgar, Powell, Abraham, Stocker, Rev. P. Costello, Rev. Dr. Blagrave, Rev. M. C. Mackinnon, Mayor Turner, Dr. E. H. Wood, and Mesdames Fanning, Darcy, Welsh, Hodgson, Holmes, Devey, Gibbs.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, J. Edgar, who also gave the matron's report, showing 13 children in the Shelter during the month of October, two brought in and three sent out, and no sickness.

Mr. Edgar reported that the committee appointed to secure a speaker for the annual meeting had instructed him to write to Dr. Margaret Patterson and to Dr. Pidgeon, of Toronto, requesting their services. Both were unavailable. He has written to Mr. J. J. Kelso, in Toronto, and has not yet heard from him. The annual meeting will be held on Tuesday next, the 25th instant, at eight o'clock, in the hall of the Public Library.

Indigent Families.

Mr. Powell reported four applications for children received during the past month, and a total to date of $1,756 from tag day donations. The agent also reported the taking of three children as wards of the society from a very poor home in North Monaghan, where the family had been living in what was described as a sort of henhouse, with no floor, a stove and an old bed.

Dr. E. H. Wood, who had been instrumental in removing the young infant from this home and taking it to Nicholls Hospital, said: "Something should be done for the poor and indigent in surrounding townships, which are really a portion of the city." He remarked also that Reeve Rye had been rather bitter over the matter, objecting to the procedure adopted by physicians in the past of going from the city to North Monaghan and taking patients to Nicholls Hospital, which subsequently billed the township for their care, with having received proper authorization from the municipal council in advance.

Mr. Powell said that Reeve Rye often took the same attitude with people whose first need was for food, and thought that if the Children's Aid Society took the stand of charging $5.25 a week for each child taken into the Shelter from the surrounding townships and billed the municipalities affected for this amount, as they were legally entitled to do, if they wished, a change would be noticeable in their feeling toward the Society. He asserted that one district had done this, after being refused a grant of $1,500 from the township, and that their bill against the township that year had been $3,200. According to the terms of an old agreement between the city and the townships, children were not charged for, but a subscription was given annually instead. So far, the local society's requests for $1,000 a year had never been granted, the sum of $800 being the most ever received from the township.

Mr. Stocker remarked that the same trouble with the Township of North Monaghan had been encountered by those in charge of the Isolation Hospital where old bills against the municipality still remained unpaid.

Dr. Blagrave was of the opinion that the problem of the indigent mentally deficient person and his offspring would always remain a problem for which there was little or no solution, and that such people would continue to remain a burden that must be shouldered by the communities in which they lived.

The Cheerful Giver.

Mr. Powell's report brought out the fact that a helping hand had been extended to these people and their children and shelter afforded from their misrable cold home by neighbors who were in straitened circumstances themselves, the man of the family depending on very intermittent employment at one of the local factories, at twenty-five cents an hour, for the upkeep of himself and his own family. The quart of milk a day which these people took was being shared with the neighbors' children, although one of their own boys was in need of the entire quantity himself.

A motion by W. Stocker, seconded by Dr. Blagrave, that the caretaker at the Shelter take charge of the transportation of donations of bread from the Quaker Oats Company, instead of leaving it to the agent to look after, was lost on being put to the meeting.

Donations.

The following donations were acknowledged for the month of October: Mrs. George MacDonald, candy; C. Andrews, candy; Masonic Lodge, fruit and peanuts; Choir of St. Paul's Church, sandwiches and cake; Mrs. A. Moir, sandwiches; W. T. Belleghem and Frank Lockington, cake; Mr. Stevens (wholesale grocer), cake; The Kiwanis Club, per J. Johns and J. A. McKone, nuts, candy, peanuts, also school bag and ball for the birthday of one of the boys; Cognawaga Club, cake and sandwiches; Mr. Green, soap.

Accounts.

Mrs. W. H. Gibbs read the report of the purchasing committee, as follows: C. Griffin (shoes repaired) $2.35; Fitzpatrick and Geraghty, $29.68; Allin Ice Co., $4; Dickson's Store, $35.01; Peterboro Milk Products, $11.16; Frank Dawson $2.40; H. Allen, $1.97; R. Denne, $7; W. A. J. Giles, $1.45; Bell Telephone Company, $6.62; W. and A. Ingram (boots), $5; New Centre Meat Market, $6.59; Stock's Bread Co. $6.45; Examiner Printing Co., $53.80; G. W. Powell, $6; Bond's Drug Store, 75 cents; Peterboro Lumber Co., $6.15; Campbell and Best, $3.04; J. R. Lockie, $1.86—total, $193.40.

IRISH PRIMATE DEAD.

Cardinal Logue Passed Away at Six O'clock This Morning.

BELFAST, Nov. 19. — (Canadian Press).—Cardinal Logue, Primate of Ireland, died at six this morning at his residence, "Ara Coeli," in Armagh.

There had been no previous intimation of the Cardinal's illness and the news of his demise caused a great shock throughout Ireland.

TWO BOMBS THROWN AT MAJOR GENERAL STACK

CAIRO, Nov. 17. — (Canadian Press).—Two bombs, one of which exploded, were thrown at Major-General Sir Lee Stack, Sirdar of the Egyptian Army, while driving from the Ministry of War to-day. General Stack was also attacked with revolver shots and badly wounded in the stomach. He was removed to hospital.

The three or four assailants involved in the affair eventually escaped. They first threw a bomb which failed to explode, and afterwards fired several rounds with revolvers, hitting General Stack, his aide-de-camp, his chauffeur and a policeman.

General Stack's condition is serious. He is suffering from shock, and has three bullet wounds in the stomach, hand and foot respectively.

THE FIRST FIVE YEARS OF LIFE

Are you like your father or mother? Do you resemble them in disposition or in character? Most people believe that such similiarities are inherited. But they are not as much inherited as they are acquired by association, is the claim of a medical specialist.

His idea is that a person's character is determined by the people who take care of him in the first five years of life.

Young children are like monkeys. They imitate. For instance, quite often when a mother slaps a baby, the baby slaps back. This isn't resentment, nor is it temper. It is natural imitativeness. On a broader scale, this is how parents' traits are passed on to children.

The basis of character is emotion rather than intellect, according to the generally accepted sceintific idea. And a young child is quick to mimic the emotional outbursts of father or mother.

Sometimes the child's reaction is the other way. A boy, reared in a sullen and evil-tempered environment, may shrink to the background like a turtle into its shell, and become quiet, brooding, sad, with a "sweet disposition." But usually the child's emotions reflects the parents'. You know how a boy aspires to be like his dad.

The mother who babies a lad and keeps him secluded at home is apt to ruin his chances of becoming successful. Her coddling prevents the development of aggressveness, so neccesary for success, and acquired normally by rough-and-tumble contact with other boys. The coddled chld usually develops and "inferiority complex"— a timidity and shrinking, a dread of exploration and venturing.

Nature, quite plainly, intended children—especially boys—to break away from home with self-confidence and ability to support themselves by the time they reach maturity.

Every child has an inborn desire for power. You see it when the baby shakes its rattle and turns to see if his display of strength has been observed. This sense of power becomes dwarfted if the child is babied.

A "spoiled child" usually grows up into a spoiled adult—unless experience with the outside world neutralize the unfortunate effects of early home training and association

Wealth adds to the wisdom of the wise and to the folly of fools.

AT THE CAPITOL.

NEW LOVE THEME IS FILM'S BASIS

"In Every Woman's Life" Offers Unique Problem of Martrimony.

How should a woman choose a husband?

There are all kinds of men who come into every woman's life.

First, there is the man she should marry. Usually he offers little more than love. He is probably young and not had the experience necessary to make love after the fashion of a man of the world.

Second, there is the man she could have married. He is the man-of-the-world type and probably has much money in addition to having the fascination of experience.

Third, there is the man she married. Seldom is he the perfect man—the combination of the first two. Nevertheless she married him for one reason or another and her life will be happy until she meets the man she could have married and the man she should have married.

How this works out in every woman's life may be seen at the Capitol Theatre today and Thursday. Irving Cummings directed this First National Picture and titled it, "In Every Woman's Life." This theme, coupled with dramatic and spectacular scenes, makes the picture one of interest to everyone. It shows what will happen when the three men come into one woman's life at the same time.

Virginia Valli, who plays the leading role, through courtesy of Universal, is regarded as the ideal type for the part which represents almost every woman. The men who figure in her life are Marc MacDermott as the man she married, Lloyd Hughes as the man she could have married.

AT THE GRAND.

STETSON'S "UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" COMPANY.

Youngsters who have never seen 'Liza cross the ice and older folks to whom the hardy, perennial stage classic, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," has been a matter of reminiscence of the "when I saw the play before" sort, will have another chance to witness the latest version of the slavery classic at the Grand Opera House, for two nights, with Saturday matinee, starting on Friday, November 21, when the original Stetson company will make its appearance. Very little change will be noticeable in this production as compared with the original Stetson troup over half a century ago. The same class of artists that were considered topnotchers in the 70's, 80's and 90's are encorded in the character portrayals, and, if the fine points are resorted to, appear to be appreciated more than ever before. Each member of the Stetson organizations interprets his or her part in a most acceptable manner. In the parlance of stage folks, the majority of them have "been treading the boards for a life time" and in many instances, have been portraying parts in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" since they were knee-high to a grasshopper. Conspicuous among them is C. F. Ackerman, the company manager, who has spent a life time in the show business, as a musician, actor and manager of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" productions. It is a long way back to the time that Mr. Ackerman was an operator on the N.Y.C.R.R. in a small town in Ohio, where he learned to toot a horn, so long, in fact, that some of his associates claim he was the official guardian of the pair of bloodhounds that Noah took aboard the ark. During his acting days his favorite portrayal was the character of Simon Legree, and he became so letter perfect that the woman whom he promised to love, honor and obey for the rest of their earthly career, objected, and he dropped the part for a managerial berth.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" continues to retain its hold on the American today, the same as it did years ago. It continues to sway an audience with old-time intensity and play to packed houses.

AT THE REGENT.

The star and director of Cosmopolitan's latest photoplay, "Yolanda," have captured all the glamour of a departed age of chivalry in that film which was shown last night at the Regent theatre. It is a picture of fifteenth century France in the reign of Louis XI., and shows those far-off days in a haze of beauty from which the ugly and the commonplace have been excluded. It tells an appealing and romantic story of the love of Princess Mary of Burgundy masquerading as Yolanda, a Burghee maid for Prince Maximilian of Styria. For political reasons her father commands her to marry the imbecile son of King Louis XI., of France, and her rescue from the French court forms a big dramatic climax to the production. The film pulses with life and presents pictures of constantly changing beauty. There are wild forest rides, exciting moments of peril and many scenes of passion and of comedy.

Miss Davies as Princess Mary sweeps through the gamut of the emotions, bringing to her part an exquisite charm and a technical proficiency of a high degree. She grows visibly in artistic stature with each new picture that she makes.

The picture was adapted from Charles Major's novel by Luther Reed and was directed by Robert Vignola, with the stage settings by Joseph Urban. This is the triumvirate which handled the destinies of Miss Davies first big hit, "When Knighthood was in Flower," and in "Yolanda" they have surpassed their previous effort.

The cast is a remarkable one in that it includes in support of the star such noted players as Lyn Harding, Holbrook Blinn, Ralph Graves, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Maclyn Arbuckle, Ian Maclaren, Thomas Findlay, Theresa Maxwell Conover, Mary Kennedy, Roy Applegate, Leon Errol, Johnny Dooley, and many others.

AT THE ROYAL.

THE DANGEROUS BLONDE WITH LAURA LA PLANTE THURSDAY, FRIDAY, SATURDAY

The Royal announces "The Dangerous Blonde" for Thursday of this week. Here's a production that will more than please the young generation, especially the ladies. It's filled with youth, fun and thrills. Miss La Plante will be remembered as leading lady in "Sporting Youth" and "Excitement," and "The Dangerous Blonde" is just the type of story in which she excells. The original story was published in the Argosy Magazine under the title, "A New Girl in Town." The production is filled with pretty girls, gorgeous gowns, high jinks among the gay white cabaret lights, in fact it's the modern girl at her best and dizziest in a love story of the minute.

"DADDIES" CLOSES TO-NIGHT

Among the really worth-while photoplays to play in Peterboro, "Daddies" must be put on that list. It is being enthusiastically received, and without a doubt is one of the few comedies that can be called delightful. Patrons should not miss it to-night, which is their last opportunity.

MAE MURRAY COMING IN MEXICAN PICTURE.

Mae Murray, the Metro star, comes to the Royal Theatre next week in her latest picture, "Mademoiselle Midnight," which is said to give her the best role she has ever had. The story, written by Carl Harbaugh and John Russell, concerns the daughter of a Mexican ranch owner, who is afflicted with an odd midnight madness. With this as a premise, the film works up to many thrilling moments. Miss Murray has an opportunity to wear gowns of the Spanish style and she introduces some sensational dances.

Monte Blue heads the supporting cast, which also includes Robert McKim, Robert Edeson, John Sainpolis, Otis Harlan, Nigel de Brulier and Nick de Ruiz. Oliver T. Marsh was the photographer. "Mademoiselle Midnight" is presented by Tiffany Productions, of which M. H. Hoffman is general manager and Robert Z. Leonard, director general. It is released by Metro.

SCRIMMAGE DRILL FOR QUEENS SQUAD

KINGSTON, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Queen's senior squad was out at the stadium yesterday afternoon and put through a hard scrimmage drill and signal practice. The players were all out with the exception of "Red" McKelvey, and the work-out was of great benefit to them. They are scheduled to be out again to-day and Thursday. They will leave here on Friday noon for Toronto. The champions expect the hardest game on Saturday next, since they entered the big circle three years ago. They feel that the Tigers will rely a great deal on line plunging, and Coach Hughes will drill the men hard this week to offset this attack. While the players feel that this will be their hardest game, they hope to come through, and Coach Hughes feels confident that the men will play their best football on Saturday.

The Queen's authorities received from the C.R.U. an allotment of 1,800 tickets, including 291 tickets for the covered stand. The seat sale for the local people, students and citizens, opened on Monday, and the tickets are going very fast. There are very few tickets left for the game, and indications are that Queen's may have to try for another special allotment in addition to what has already been received. A very large crowd will go to Toronto, it was stated yesterday.

HEAD STUFFED FROM CATARRH OR A COLD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Opens Air Passages Right Up.

Instant relief—no waiting. Your clogged nostrils open right up; the air passages of your head clear, and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh disappears.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

All interested are cordially invited to attend. 1d119 4380

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

To all who in any measure are engaged in making known the truth and blessedness of "the kingdom to come," and who at times are almost persuaded to say "what is the use?" "who cares?" comes the encouraging words, "be not weary in well doing, for in due season thou shalt reap "if thou faint not." Now is your time of sowing, the future will be your time of reward. Now it is misunderstanding, persecution, and loneliness. In the future we shall be known and understood, then there shall be no more reviling and false accusation, then, we shall meet loved ones, then we shall know each other better, then hope shall have its full fruition, then we will not have to pray "Thy kingdom come." Now you and I can pray "come Lord Jesus, come quickly," and establish Thy Kingdom.

NEW GOVERNMENT FORMED IN CHINA

Manifesto Signed By 21 Military Men, Including Marshal Chi Hsies Yuan.

By Ray Marshall.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.

PEKING, Nov. 19.— A new and temporary government has come into being in China, with headquarters at Wu Chang, across the Yang Tse River from Hanko. It is the creation of Marshal Wu Pei Fu, former generalissimo of the Chi-li armies, who was defeated by Chang Tso Tin after the defractioon of Fran Yu Hsiang. The American Legation has official reports on the project and regards it as most important.

When Wu Pei Fu reached Hankow from Tien Tsin he issued a manifesto announcing the formation of a temporary "government for preservation of the constituion." The manifesto was signed by twenty-one military men, including Marshal Chi Hsies Yuan, who recently defeated Lu Yung Hsiang at Shanghai. These militarists will compose the deliberative executive body of the new government.

Ministers of foreign affairs, finance, war, interior and communications are to be formed presently. The manifesto says that the "head of the government shall be generissimo of all the armies." This is believed to refer to Tsao Kun, the deposed president of China.

Feng Yu Hsiang, the Christian general, who turned against W Pei Fu and seized Peking while the Chili leader was at the front, is berated in the manifesto for his "failure to fight the rebels."

The first object of the new government will be to consolidate all the Yangtse River provinces.

Brazilian Priest First Demonstrated Bird Shaped Dirigible.

RIO DE JANERIO, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press.)— To-morrow the Aero Club celebrates the second centenary of the death of Barthelomeu Gusmao, the Brazilian priest who demonstrated his invention of a bird shaped dirigible at the Portuguese Port of Lisbon, in 1709. The dirigible flew several yards and is said to be the world's first airship.

Gusmo died in extreme poverty having favor at Court.

REV. C. PIDGEON CHURCH UNION

Defenders of Ancient Form of Belief Classed as Rank Hypocrites.

MET IN TORONTO.

Spoke of the Accusations of Modernism Directed Against United Church.

(Special to the Examiner.)

TORONTO, November 19. — "As long as the anti-unionists elect as their president a man open-minded to all that scholarship can teach, and put others with similar views in the front rank of their propaganda, their claims to be defenders of the ancient forms of belief is rank hypocrisy," said the Rev. Dr. George C. Pidgeon, in an address at St. John's Presbyterian church last evening, in which he dealt with the accusation of "modernism" directed against the United Church of Canada by anti-unionist speakers and letter writers.

Dr. Pidgeon went on to say that Principal D. J. Fraser, the president of the Presbyterian church Association, had always accepted the results of modern historical criticism, and is himself one of the most accomplished scholars of the Presbyterian church.

"Professor Thomas Eakins' attitude on the interpretation of the Old Testament is well known," said the speaker, "and few men have been attacked for modernism more bitterly than he."

Dr. Pidgeon pointed out that at a meeting of the alumne of Wycliffe College last year, Rev. Sturtharker was the speaker and his address was on the advocacy of the modern approach to the Bible. Quoting from the minutes of the Toronto Presbytery Dr. Pidgeon stated that the class of 1911 had received in committee a question of a subscription to the Westminster Confession when the Rev. T. Crawford Brown gave notice that he would move that the Presbytery take up for consideration the question of the form of subscription by young men entering the ministry of the Presbyterian Church. Subsequently Mr. Crawford Brown introduced a motion that the statement to which those about to be ordained or inducted should be required to subscribe.

"I do not cite these facts as a reproach to the men concerned" said Dr. Pidgeon, nor do I suggest for a moment that the positions interfere with their loyalty to the Christian doctrines of salvation. "The fact remains, however, that there are not in any branch of the uniting churches thinkers more advanced than they. As long, therefore, as the Presbyterian Church Association elects such men as its officers and uses them in its propaganda it can not pose as the enemy of "modernism" by putting such men in their official positions and putting them forward as their representatives, they put the stamp of approval on their views as worthy of a place on the new sect they are about to form. When so many of their advocates condemn their views. They show that they are "a house divided against itself" and we have good authority as to the inevitable fate of such an institution."

In conclusion Dr. Pidgeon said: As a matter of fact, the only authoritative statement in recent times of the fact of the United Churches is given in the doctral section of the basis of union. There the central evangelical doctrines are stated with a clearness and emphasis unsurpassed.

"No one who knows these church es doubts for moment that they are sound at heart on the doctrines of grace. The fact that this statement of doctrine was approved by men like the late Principal MacLaren in the Presbyterian church and Dr. A. Carman in the Methodist church is a sufficient guarantee of their loyalty to the supreme truths of revelation. Nearly all the men who have led in the evangelistic campaigns of these the churches are Unionists and they feel that the basis of union puts in the forefront the vital truths of our religion."

THE CONSERVATIVE CONFERENCE CLOSED

One Thousand Guests Attend Banquet Last Evening.

TORONTO, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Half a dozen Federal and Provincial Conservative leaders addressed gatherings here last night, assembled for the banquet which brought to a close the two days of conferences of Conservative supporters from every part of Canada. About a thousand guests sat down to dinner, and many who were unable to get tickets dropped in later for the speech-making. Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Premier of Ontario, discussed the political issues and touched briefly on the policy of his government.

He found in the present-day conditions of unemployment eloquent witness to the failure of the tariff reduction to solve national problems.

Surplus farm product could not be sold because factories had no payrolls and workmen no money. Industries must have adequate protection. While the industrial province of Ontario had no right to lay down the fiscal policy for the whole Dominion, he urged that industrial communities were an integral part of the nation's life and must be provided for. There was a new type of unemployment nowadays. Men who had not been brought up to manual labor were faced with slow starvation. The cure for unemployment, he thought, lay in the return to the policy of protection.

KLAN ORGANIZE IN CITY OF HAMILTON

Hamilton Police Are In Possession of Names of 32 Members.

HAMILTON, Nov. 19.— (Canadian Press.)—Klux Klan appears to have at least established the nucelus of a branch here. Police are in posession of the names of 32 local men and women who are said to have joined the organization during the past two weeks.

This information came to light as a result of the arrest of Almond Charles Monteith of Niagara Falls, N.Y., self ackonweldged organizer of the Ku Klux Klan, who is charged with carrying a loaded revolver. Monteith appeared in police court yesterday. The only charge against him was that of carrying a weapon. On request of Howard Yates, his counsel, Monteith's case was laid over until to-day. He was admitted to bail in sum of $1,000.

High United States' officers of the Ku Klux Klan claim that A. Monteith, arrested in Hamilton on a charge of unlawful possession of a revolver, has no connection with that organization either in Canada or in the United States.

THREE LOST IN FIRE.

Father, Mother and One Child Burned To Death —Two Children Rescued.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press.)—Father, mother and their three months' old daughter were burned to death early this morning when fire of undetermined origin destroyed their home at Perrysburg. They were Mr. and Mrs. William Donaldson. The bay's name was Betty. Don, a son, a twin with the baby girl, was grabbed from its father's arms and rushed to safety by Mrs. E. McMillan, a neighbor. Another child, Kathleen, aged 3, was rescued after she had crawled part way to the front door.

The mother and father perished while endeavoring to rescue the twin girl.

OTTAWA, Nov. 19. — (Canadian Press).—The Ottawa Hockey Association is still bolstering up its team in the pro. league, and has released Ironstone, goal-tender, formerly of Sudbury, and signed a contract with Alec Connell for the position held for several years by Clint Benedict. Ironstone has been here for two weeks, but he failed to come up to expectations. Connell is the best goal-tender in the Ottawa district. Since 1919 he has played for the Cliffsides, Gunners and Shamrocks in the Ottawa City League. He is a good lacrosse player too. His brother, Charlie Connell, was captain of the Ottawa football team in the inter-provincial union this fall.

"Them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him."—I. Thess. 4:14.

Our hearts are sad to-day, and yet,
Faith can in triumph sing,
"O grave, where is thy victory?
O death, where is thy sting?"

Till then, we'll dry each falling tear,
The prospect—O, how fair!
It shall be soon, perhaps, to-day,
We'll meet Him, "in the air."

IN MEMORIAM

FLANNERY—In loving memory of our little son, Victor Thos. Flannery, who passed away three years ago to-day, aged 6 years and 7 months.

Oh, why was he taken so young and so fair?
We never will forget our terrible loss,
Nor his memory fade from our life like a dream,
The lips need not speak when the heart mourns sincerely,
For grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.

GORDON MEIN IN MOTOR ACCIDENT

Turned His Car Into Ditch to Save Two Men in a Buggy.

Gordon Mein, proprietor and driver of the Chemong bus, saved the lives of two men this morning by turning his car into the ditch at the risk of his own life. His automobile was badly smashed, turning completely over.

While driving towards Peterborough, 4 miles out on the gravel road at two o'clock in the morning, Mr. Mein came suddenly upon a buggy containing two men, Harry Brookes and Jack Castle of Cavan. To avoid running them down he turned his car into the ditch, where it suffered a broken top and windshield.

AN OPPORTUNITY

In order to keep our plant running and give work to our men, we will make a reduction of TWENTY PER CENT. on all Monuments.

We have received the rough granite in car-load lots from different quarries—Rock of Ages granite from Barre, Vermont; Silver Grey from Quebec; Black granite from New Brunswick, and Dark Red from Sweden.

Additional Machinery

Having lately added a large air compressor, also a polishing machine and surfacer, we are in a better position than ever to manufacture Monuments at rock-bottom prices.

We are here in your city and will give you a guarantee of our work and material. Our customers do not have to accept inferior work or defective granite.

We will be pleased to show designs and quote prices.

RAISINS

One of the most fortunate purchases we made in Christmas fruit, was our VALENCIA RAISINS. The quality is really excellent, large meaty fruit in very best conditon.

The Valencias are the best for Christmas cakes, pies, and mincemeat. We are selling these at single lb. 18c; 2 lbs 35c, or in 28 lb. box, lb. 16½c brand peels are the choicest product put up anywhere. The fruit is kept in perfect condition from the green state to its finish. It's very clear, soft and fine flavored. The natural fruit flavor is preserved—If you are real particular about your peels, ask us for "Rolla" brand, and have it good this year.

ALMOND NUTS

There are several standards in Almonds, size and flavor making the grades. Some kinds grow to a much larger size and have a distinct flavor—Our 3 crown Valencias are the most generally used for cooking purposes and are a real good grade, lb. 50c or ½ lb. 30c.

The 6 crown Valencias are larger, and used more for blanching or salting, lb. 70c.

The Jordan Almonds are the aristocrats among Almonds, very large and rich flavored—The finest for blanching and salting, 4 oz. 35c

See our window for full display of Christmas fruit and goods.

CHARGE TOO LIGHT AGAINST BANDITS

Constables Tell of Vigils In Disorderly House Expecting Raid By Robbers.

NO CO-OPERATION.

Alderman Says Too Many Judgments Suspended and Cases Adourned.

MONTREAL, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—The law courts of Montreal do not always co-operate with the police in the best manner, Mr. Justice Coderre was told yesterday afternoon's session of the police probe by Alderman J. H. Bedard, members of the executive committee, whose opinion was that "too any cases are adjourned and too many judgements suspended and too much bail granted without even the constable knowing it."

Twice during the afternoon alderman appeared in the witness box, and he filed with the court an interview he had granted a local paper, setting forth his views that the bulk of the police were, so far as he knew, doing their duty.

Other high lights in yesterday's evidence included the following:

Rene Chenevert, K.C., said he had recovered stolen good belonging to him by paying S. Mendelsohn $120. Mendelsohn was also the agent of recovery for Wilfrid Champagne, living on St. Hubert Street, who got back furs and cutlery worth upwards of eight hundred dollars for the payment of $105. He had interviewed Mendelson in the presence of detective Pelletier. G. M. Champagne, son of Wilfrid Champagne corroborated his father's evidence.

Constables Colulombe and Bissonnette told of keeping a vigil in a disorderly house which was scheduled to have been held up by bandits.

Police who were protecting the Bank of Hochelaga collection car previous to the hold-up of April 1, told the messenger J. H. Thibodeau, on one occasion after the car had reached its destination, that three bandits had been passed on the corner of Ontario and Davidson streets, but that the car had passed too quickly for them to intercept it.

He had asked the detectives why, if they knew the robbers, they did not arrest them, to which the former replied that "It was no good," that men like Serefint and Nieri would be released on the payment of a $10 fine and that a "real case would have to be made against them. This converstion, Thibodeau told the court, had taken place between himself and Detective Belanger, who had not explained how he knew that the men on the corner contemplated holding up the car. The incident had been reported to officials of the bank at the end of the day, the witness said.

Corroborates Testimony.

After Thibodeau had told his story, his companion Lucien Brunet, replaced him on the stand an corroborated his testimony, stating however, that he had not heard the detectives mention the bandits' names and that he was not positive it had been Detective Belanger who had given the information concerning them.

Alfred Champaigne, of 1357 St. Humbert street, stated that his house had been broken into and property stolen to the value of $1300 during the family's absence

SEPARATE DEPARTMENT FOR DOMINION AFFAIRS

To Harmonize Relations Between Governments of Britain and Dominions.

LONDON, November 20 Canadian Press Cable.—There is reason to believe that steps will likely be taken without undue delay to separate the departmental business concerning the dominions from the colonial office.

The permanent officials of the Colonial office are quite agreeable to this being done, it is said, because the present position with relation to the governments of the dominions and Great Britain is recognized as being out of consonance with modern conditions.

The meeting of the High Commissioners of the Dominions and Premier Stanley Baldwin, on Tuesday, when Lieut.-Colonel E. C. Amery, the Colonial Secretary, and Austen Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary, were also in attendance, was quite an informal gathering held over the teacups. Several matters affecting the dominions naturally were talked over informally. As previously announced this was the first time a British premier on entering office extended an invitation to the Dominion High Commissioners to meet him.

With regard to such questions as the Singapore naval base and the inter-imperial economic matters there is no reason to believe that the British government has arrived at anything like definite decisions. The only definite decision that has been taken, it is understood, is that the full opinion of the Dominions in such matters will be sought by the imperial government before taking action.

ALLEGED LEADER OF FRAUD RING SEIZED

Organized System of Cheque Forgeries in West Believed Uncovered.

EDMONTON, Nov. 20.—One of the most highly organized systems of bank frauds in Western Canada is thought to have been unearthed and brought to a close as a result of the investigation of Detective Reynolds, finger-print expert of the city police.

One of the alleged principals, a man giving the name of Nick Schumancky, with a long string of aliases, has been arrested in Regina and will be brought back to the city to face four charges here. Another is under arrest in Winnipeg and will be rettened to Edmonton in the course of a few days while others are under suspicion. Banks are said to have lost $10,000 by the forgeries.

The frauds on the branch of the Bank of Montreal here were put over by means of two forged checks for $150 and $350 in which the name of Sam Boychuk, a well-known city rooming-house keepper, was used. It was not until nearly a month after the checks had been cashed that it was discovered that they were forgeries.

Even then the imitation of the handwriting of Boychuk was so well done that no one but an expert would be able to detect the difference.

TRIAL IN WINNIPEG.

WINNIPEG, Nov 20. — Nick Sycwczuk, who was arrested here several weeks ago on a charge of forging, is believed to be the man referred to in an Edmonton despatch relating to the discovery of an organized band of forgers, operating in western Canada.

Sycwzuk is at present out on $4,000 bail and will shortly appear for trial on a charge of forging several cheques and of obtaining by fraudulent means $400 from a Winnipeg bank.

PLEA MADE FOR OPIUM VICTIMS

BROOK NO DELAY.

GENEVA, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press.) — Great applause rang through the meeting hall when Bishop Charles H. Brent, addressing the international opium conference in presenting the United States proposals yesterday, delivered an eloquent appeal for practical steps to save the human race from the scourge of opium and narcotic drugs.

His favorable reference to the league of nations and the protocol for the pacific settlements of international disputes created extraordinary interest among the delegates as did his remark that all must recognize the essential unity of humanity and that there is no white, yellow, black or brown race.

"God never made one national to be exploited or despised by another," he declared.

This was interpreted as a plea to help especially Orientals who are the victims of the opium evil. Insisting on frank as well as open diplomacy, he said that they were launched in an undertaking which would brook no delays, pretenses or backsliding.

The delegates from Germany and Czecho-Slovakia warmly supported the position of the United States, Herr Eckhardt of Germany, saying that Bishop Brent's discourse would find enthusiastic echo throughout the world.

A commission of eleven who will act as a committee of business and co-ordinate the work of the conference includes representatives of Great Britain, Francne, Japan, the United States, Switzerland, Holland, Germany, Italy, India, Jugo-Slavia and Bolivia. Denmark, China and Cuba will have representatives also who are officers of the conference.

ONE MET DEATH IN AUTO SMASH NEAR BRIGHTON

Large Car, Carrying Six Toronto Passengers, Left the Highway and Turned Turtle Twice.

TWO INJURED.

M. Kayler Was Killed and Solomon Altman is Suffering From Concussion of the Brain, May Not Recover.

BRIGHTON, Nov. 20.—(Special). — M. Kayler, 155 Sussex Street, Toronto, was instantly killed; Solomon Altman, 55 Sussex Street, Toronto, is suffering from concussion of the brain and may not recover, and Solomon Gordon, 161 Major Street, Toronto, is suffering from minor injuries, including a broken collar bone, sustained when a large car which Altman was driving overturned on the Provincial Highway, about three miles east of Brighton, late yesterday afternoon. Others in the car were T. Rosenbloom, 80 Major Street, Toronto, and Mrs. Kayler and her son. The last three were uninjured, except for a bad shaking up. The party were motoring from Thornhill to Wellington to visit a farm which Altman had recently purchased. Interviewed after the accident, Gordon stated that Altman was not driving over twenty-five miles an hour. The car slipped into the ditch without warning and turned over twice. Kayler's neck was broken. A strong westerly wind, amounting almost to a gale, was blowing at the time, and this was said to be partly responsible for the accident. Fresh gravel on the highway may also have been a contributing factor, according to those in the car. The road at this point is considered good, and this is the first accident on the highway at this particular point. The injured were brought to Brighton by Messrs. Hayes and Tweedle of Smithfield, and S. D. Ross of Brighton. Dr. Harold Clark had Altman removed to the Cobourg Hospital in the ambulance. Gordon had occupied the front seat with the driver until the party reached Colborne, when Kayler volunteered to exchange seats with Gordon, claiming to know more about the road over which they were travelling. Half an hour later Kayler was killed.

CARIBOU SEEN IN THE YUKON

Radio Message From the Far North Says Wolves Trail Caribou.

GET C.N.R. CONCERT.

MAYO LANDING, Y.T., Nov. 20. --(Via High River, Alta., Wireless Station).—Caribou have come into Mayo for the first time in twenty years. Wolves are on the trail of the caribou. Trappers are not enthusiastic over recent restrictions on trapping of marten but expect big season on lynx. Prospects at Kana are brightest for ten years according to a mining man.

The Stewart River has been frozen over for a month. Trails are now improving and mails are on a weekly schedule this year from Dawson City.

People in this camp are enthusiastic over recent press news sent by wireless and are hoping it may bring good news service.

The foregoing wireless despatch was picked up by the government wireless station at High River, Alberta, relayed from the government wireless station at Fort Simpson, one thousand miles northwest of Calgary. Mayo is the big silver mining camp in the Yukon and the message crossed the Rocky Mountain range to Fort Simpson on The Skeena River.

Fort Simpson also reported by wireless that on November 15 at 7.30 p.m. that far northwest stations picked up the Canadian National Railway broadcasting station in Ottawa and heard a concert broadcast from the Chateau Laurier. "This is the second time this station had been heard here," said the Fort Simpson despatch.

CAIRO GUNMEN WOUND SIRDAR

Sir Lee Stack, Administrator of The Sudan, Seriously Wounded By Assassins.

RAIN OF BULLETS.

CAIRO Nov. 20. — (Canadian Press).—Six or more gunmen, using both bombs and automatic pistols, created a sensation in the streets of Cairo yesterday by attacking Major General Sir Lee Stack, leader of the Egyptian Army and in whose person is combined the highest civil and military position in the Sudan.

Three bullets hilt General Stack, as he was being driven in an automobile from the war ministry down the Shasia Kaar el-Aini. The spot chosen by the assassins for their attack was within a few yards of the place where two years ago two British subjects, Messrs. Brown and Robson, were murdered.

At the residency where the Sirdar was taken it was found that he had sustained a serious wound in the abdomen and wounds in one of his hands and one of his feet. The surgeons discovered that the bullet in the abdomen had lodged under the lung and that the intestinal tract had escaped perforation. Late last night after an operation for transfusion of blood the surgeons expressed hope for the recovery of the Sirdar.

The rain of bullets directed at the Sirdar's car, seemingly from every angle, also wounded, but not seriously the Sirdar's aide, his chauffeur and a policeman. The chauffeur, an Australian, although wounded twice, remained at the wheel of the car and drove rapidly to the residency.

Zaghloul Pasha, the Egyptian Premier, as soon as he heard of the attack on Major-General Sir Lee Stack, Sirdar of the Egyptian Army, hurried to the residency, where he saw the Sirdar and his aide, Capt. Campbell, and the chauffeur, lying side by side. After expressing his horror of the crime and his deep regret, Zaghloul proceeded to the Palace and told the King what had happened. Twice during the afternoon the King sent representatives to the Residency to express his sympathy and to inquire as to the Sirdar's condition. Later Zaghloul announced that the Government would immediately open an inquiry into the attack and pursue it with the utmost vigor. He added that he also would offer a reward of $50,000 for the apprehension of the criminals.

JUDGMENT REVERSED.

Appeal In Grain Delivery Case Dismissed By Supreme Court.

OTTAWA, Nov. 20. — (Canadian Press).—The appeal in the case of the Vancouver Milling and Grain Co. versus C. C. Ranch and Co., was dismissed with costs in the Supreme Court of Canada yesterday. The action was brought by the plaintiff appellant to recover damages for failure to deliver grain according to a contract. The trial judge awarded $1,841.65 damages, but the judgment was reversed by the Appellate Division.

QUEBEC'S NEW GOLD AREA RICHER THAN PORCUPINE WILL PRODUCE $20,000,000

Engineer at Montreal Club Luncheon Emphasizes the Need of Railway Into Northern Quebec.

C.P.R. PLANS LINE.

MONTREAL, Nov. 20.—In one two-hundred acre area in the northern Quebec gold belt $20,000,000 worth of gold had been found, a better record than the Porcupine region of Ontario.

Charles Spearman, consulting engineer, told the weekly luncheon of the Electrical Club here yesterday in an address in which he declared there was every reason to expect that the gold fields of this province would prove as paying as those of Ontario.

Lack of railway facilities was the chief drawback in Quebec, he said, but the Canadian Pacific Railway had under consideration construction of a road running north and south to tap the entire belt with a southern terminus at Montreal. He said, if built, it would be of inestimable benefit to the mining country and to the city.

Construction of the T. and N.O. railway through North Bay to Cochrane, had shown that railways were the main factor in opening a mining country, Mr. Spearman said.

JOHN DENNISON FATALLY HURT

Harwood Man Was Crushed Between Separator and Engine.

Cobourg, Nov. 19—(Special).—Mr. John G. Dennison of Harwood, was fatally injured near her Tuesday and passed away later in in the Cobourg General Hospital. Mr. Dennison is manager of a threshing outfit and on Tuesday was moving his machine from the farm of Mr. Walter Leach to that of Mr. Harry Davey, Hamilton Township. He had occasion to go down quite a steep hill. Mr. Dennison was driving the engine to which the separator was attached and two other men were riding with him. In going down the hill, the separator, broke loose and crashed into the engine. The men who were sitting on either side of Mr. Dennison jumped but he was crushed between the two machines. Fortunately there was a team of horses drawing the tank and these were hitched to the separator to draw it off. The injured man was then conveyed to Cobourg Hospital and his people communicated with. He did not survive his serious injuries. The engine of the machine was smashed but the separator was not much damaged.

Deceased was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dennison of Harwood, and a man who was generally esteemed. He was about thirty-six years of age and unmarried. Besides his parents he is survived by one sister.

The funeral takes place this afternoon from his home near Harwood to Bethesda Presbyterian cemetery. Rev. Tohmas McCord will conduct the services.

BRITISH LIBERALS ARE PLANNING FOR REVIVAL

Prepare To Put 500 Candidates in the Field—To Preserve Party.

LONDON, November 20. — Sir Godfrey Rollins, M.P., for Grennock, Scotland, the chief Liberal whip, announces that the Liberal Party's objective is to place over 500 candidates in the field as early as this can be done conveniently. Their candidacy will be sustained by active propaganda and will be financed on a democratic basis. Their policy will be lofty idealism based on the realities of life.

Sir Godfrey says that the Liberals' severe and decisive defeat in recent general election was due to their having placed the Labor leaders in office, which move was not properly understood by the electorate.

The recent vote showed that there were over 3,000,000 electors still true to Liberalism, Sir Godfrey Collins says, and these must not be allowed to drift to either of the other parties.

From other sources it is understood that the Liberals means to fight every by-election, for with only 44 Liberal members in the House of Commons the party cannot afford to compromise anywhere, more especially as the danger of Labor again being at the head of the government is now believed to be removed for many years.

LEAGUE HOPES FOR PROTOCOL

Postponement of Deliberation on Disarmament at Britain's Request Does Not Mean End.

MAY YET APPROVE.

GENEVA, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—After a day of inquiry with telephone messages to Paris and London, officials of the League of Nations issued a warning last night against drawing exaggerated inferences from Great Britain's request for postponment by the council of discussion of reparations for the proposed conference for the reduction of armaments.

The officials insist that Great Britain merely means what she says in her note to the secretarial of the league, in which the request was made that the Rome meeting of the council in December eliminate the disarmament question from the agenda, because, owing to its recent accession to office, the British government has not had sufficient time to form an opinion on the protocol for the pacific settlement of international disputes.

Likely to Approve.

To deduce from this that Britain will scrap the protocol would be stupid, in the opinion of the officials. On the contrary, they say, information reaching the league is that Britain is likely to approve it, though with reservations, if accorded ample time. It is pointed out that nobody has really thought the disarmament conference would be held next June, because of the necessity of completing preliminary negotiations to insure success.

No Suggestions Yet.

It was learned yesterday that no government has yet forwarded suggestions for the disarmament conference agenda, pleading lack of time. League offlcials are of the opinion that England will make a detailed statement at the meeting of the council at Rome relative to the protocol and the disarmament conference and that it is likely the council will then discuss in what form, if any, the conference preparations will continue.

The presence of Austen Chamberlain, Secretary for Foreign Affairs at the Rome meeting is even regarded in league circles as a possibility. The officials say they have heard nothing about the reported intention of President Coolidge to convoke an arms conference at Washington.

JURY STRESSES BOYS' DANGER IN RIDING TRAINS

Parents Urged to Keep Children Off Railway in Verdict to Coroner.

CROUGH DEATH.

Boy Accidentally Killed By C.N.R. Freight Train—Body Cut in Two.

"Accidental Death", was the verdict returned last night in Police Court by the coroner's jury inquiring into the death of 13 year old Fergus Crough of 27 Park street, south, who met his death on Saturday, November 15, beneath the wheels of a C.N.R. freight train at the corner of George and Romaine streets.

Coroner T. W. H. Young presided and J. F. Strickland appeared on behalf of the Canadian National Railway Company.

The following is the jury's report to Coroner T. W. H. Young:—"We the jury, come to the conclusion that Fergus Crough of 27 Park street, south, came to his death on Saturday afternoon, November 15th., at 2 o'clock, at the corner of George and Romaine streets, from falling under the wheels of a Canadian National freight train. We find that the boy in taking hold of the passing train tripped in some way and fell under the wheels. We advise that this dangerous play of riding on trains should be stopped and that parents should see that their children are kept off of railway tracks."

Eye-Witness Account

Mrs. Bigras was the first witness called and her husband acted as interpreter for her, she being able to speak only French. She told Mr. Strickland that on Saturday, November 15, she saw two boys walking down the track. One boy tried to catch hold of the train but failed, the other boy, Fergus Crough, caught hold of the step and was running along holding on to the steps when he tripped and fell under the wheels. Mrs. Bigras said that the boy tried to catch hold of three or four cars and then he finally got hold of one. She said she was watching the accident from a coach that was standing on a siding and had a clear view of the tragedy.

Common Practice

James Maloney of 122 Gladstone Avenue said he was with Fergus Crough when the accident happened

EASTERN PRINCE PAYING HUSBAND?

"Most Hideous Case of Blackmailing Conspiracy," Says Lord Halsbury.

LONDON, Nov. 20. — How an eastern potentate who, because of his high position is known in court only as "Mr. A." is alleged to have paid £150,000 in settlement to a husband who discovered the potentate's relations with his wife, came out to-day during the trial of a suit of C. E. Robinson, a former bookmaker to recover £125,000 which he alleges a London bank owes him on account from the potentate.

The bank asserts that the money was never received for Robinson and also alleges that the plaintiff was a party to a blackmail plot to obtain money nd therefore is not entitled to recover.

The case, which is being contested on both sides by most eminent counsel has created a profound sensation throughout the country in view of the statement of Lord Halsbury representing Robinson, that the trial would reveal "the most hideous case of blackmailing conspiracy" ever heard in the British courts.

BOARDS OF TRADE MEET IN TORONTO

Representatives From All Parts of Province at Session This Morning.

TORONTO, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Measures for the increase and betterment of the wholesale and retail business in Ontario and legislation to that end was under discussion at the annual convention of the Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce of the province. This morning's registrations indicated one of the most representative gatherings in the history of the organization. There were delegates from every part of the province. The programme of the opening session this morning included the address of M. P. Barnes, of Collingwood, Provincial President of the Associated Boards. An address of welcome was presented by Mayor Hiltz of Toronto and representatives on the Ontario Government. This afternoon will be taken up with the consideration of resolutions. This evening a complimentary banquet will be tendered to the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, Colonel Harry Cockshutt.

POWER DEVELOPMENT AT CAMERON FALLS

Hydro Will Spend Upward of $15,000,000 in the Next Five Years.

PORT ARTHUR, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Engineers sent out by the Ontario Hydro electric Commission to report on the possibility of diversion to southof waters which are now flowing north and into Lake Nipigon, to make possible further development of power at Cameron Falls are to return to Toronto sometime this week to make their report direct to Sir Adam Beck

When Sir Adam was in Port Arthur a year ago speaking to the gathering of citizens he mentioned possibilities for power development by cutting through a section of the height of land north of Lake Nipigon and by so doing releasing waters into Lake Nipigon. His estimate that the Hydro would spend upward of $15,000,000 in this section in the next five years included water diversion scheme.

WHOLE COUNTRY IN HUNT FOR BANDITS

Farmington State Avenue Bank Relieved of $30,00 in Cash and $5,000 in Bonds.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Six bank robbers, who shot their way through all resistance after holding up Farmington State Avenue Bank, at Farmington, yesterday, and escaped with $30,000 in cash and $5,000 in bonds were being hunted on every road and byway in northwestern and western sections of Wayne country. Their arrest within 24 hours is expected by the police.

Sixty automobiles, carrying deputy sheriffs from Wayne and Oakland counties and Farmers and tradesmen armed with shot guns and rifles, halted every car on the road for hours. It is estimated that more than 200 persons are pressing the search. Late in the evening, it appeared the gun men had evaded the net however, they were last seen on Plymouth road headed for Plymouth.

The sedan in which the robbers escaped from Farmington was recovered on the telegraph road near Grand River Avenue. The robbers had abandoned the car, when it ran out of gasoline and continued on their flight in a small car which they stole at the point of revolvers from the first passerby. The abandoned machine was riddled with bullets and stained with blood, indicating that one at least of the gun men was wounded in the fire which greeted them as they left the bank. Walking to the director's room the robbers found the directors of the bank in conference. Howard Warner son of the former Governor Fred M. Warner, and President of the Bank, was struck on the head with a revolver when he rose from his chair He was knocked unconscious but not injured seriously. Other directors and employees of the bank, including four women, were forced to lie on the floor. While two robbers were directing Pierce, the cashier. Others kept watch over those lying on the floor. The latter included Margaret Moore a teller, who managed to kick $30,000 in currency and $67,000 in bonds out of the robbers sight and thus saved them.

$50,000 DREDGE SANK YESTERDAY

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press). — Captain Clarence Lebeau, commanding the dredge "Toledo," and seven members of his crew narrowly escaped death when the dredge sank off Rattle Snake Island, about eight miles off the mainland, yesterday, after battling high winds and sea for some time in an effort to make the bay. The dredge, en route to Toledo, was in tow of the tug Burley, when a heavy sea engulfed it, snapping the heavy tow lines. The dredge was top heavy with machinery and plunged to the bottom of the Lake in 80 feet of water.

Captain Lebeau and his crew were washed from their vessel. They swam about for 30 minutes before the Burley was able to pick them up in life-boats. Several of the men collapsed from exposure and exhaustion as they were dragged into the boats and rushed ashore.

The dredge was valued at $50,000.

MEXICAN CLASH IN MURDER CASE

Aftermath of Recent Death Sentence Imposed on the Slayers of Mrs. Evans.

MAYOR ARRESTED.

MEXICO CITY, Nov 20.—Enmities growing out of the case of Mrs. Rosalie Evans, who was assassinated last August and for whose murder two men last week were sentenced to death, have culminated in disorder in the Huejotzingo district, State of Puebla.

According to advices received here agrarian forces under General Manuel Montes have captured and are holding prisoner General Honorato Tuetli, of Cholula, which is situated three miles west of Puebla City and Teutli's brother Manuel. They say also that General Felipe Gonzales has been wounded in a clash between state troops and armed Agrarians.

Rounded Up Seventy.

Teutli was serving as inspector-general of the Puebla police when Mrs. Evans was killed. He headed the first investigation in the murder of Mrs. Evans and rounded up more than seventy agrarians for alleged connection with the crime. All were released within a few days, however, when Valente Quintana, heading the secret federal service, announced that Francisco Ruiz and Alejo Garcia, who were convicted of the murder and sentenced to death last Saturday night, had been arrested and confessed killing Mrs Evans with the purpose of robbery.

It was stated when the wholesale arrest of Agrarians was made that General Teutli was attempting to capture General Montes on the ground that the assassination of Mrs. Evans was the culmination of a six-year campaign to expropriate her haciennda by agarians of whom Montes is said to have been the acknowledged leader. The agrarians recently became involved in a conflict over the governorship of Puebla where three governors have been in office within three months.

Returned as Mayor.

Teutli who was relieved of his duties as inspector general of police after the murder of Mrs. Evans and the arrests of the Agrarians, resumed his duties as mayor of Chilula from which post he had secured a leave of absence. He was visiting San Martin, Texmelucan, when, according to advices received here, he and his followers clashed with the Montes agrarians and he was made prisoner.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even bettert than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U.S. Government, and 35 leading uniersities, and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up; is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coil oil).

The inventor, F. S. Johnson, 246 Craig Street W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him to-day for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

SUGAR DECLINES.

MONTREAL, Nov. 20—(Canadian Press).—In sympathy with the foreign markets, sugar prices locally were quoted yesterday down 25 cents a hundredweight to $7.50 for granulated extra fine, $7.10 for No. 1 yellow, and $7.60 for powdered sugar.

Since October there has been a drop of ninety-five cents per hundred pounds, and the price is $2.70 lower than this time last year.

OLD GLORY ON SULGRAVE MANOR.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The Board of Governors of the Sulgrave Institution has been notified that Francis Treman King, of New York, has set aside £1,500, the interest from which is intended to provide in perpetuity for the flying of the Stars and Stripes from one of the flag staffs at Sulgrave Manor.

JOHN D. INCREASED HIS HUGE FORTUNE

Cleaned Up $111,000,000 This Year Out of Oil Stocks.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press.)—John D. Rockefeller has increased his fortune $111,000,000 by the phenomenal rise in his holdings in Standard Oil stocks, it is figured here to-day.

The Senate committee, while investigating the oil industry, disclosed the holdings of Rockefeller in various Standard Oil units and from this data it has been able to figure his approximate gain for the year.

His holdings in nine of the companies have increased more than $90,000,000 in market value. His dividends from these stocks this year will be not less than $13,200,000, bringing the total increase to his fortune to $111,000,000.

NEWS OF HAVELOCK.

Farewell Party For Miss Josephine McMaster—Personal Mention.

HAVELOCK, Nov. 20.—Fifty or more young people gathered in the basement of the Methodist church on Tuesday evening in honour of Miss Josephine McMaster, who is removing to Napanee.

The first part of the evening was spent in games and singing.

Miss McMaster was then called to the platform and was presented with a beautiful ivory boudoir lamp by Mr. Gordon Wilde.

The following address was read by Miss Hazel Freeman:

Dear Josephine,—It is with extreme regret we have learned of your impending departure from among us in the very near future. You will carry with you the good wishes of all of us and we feel sure that in your new home you will soon make a host of new friends, but we believe that you will not forget your old friends even though you will be located in a larger centre with no doubt a multitude of new interests.

We ask you to accept this lamp as a slight token of our regard for you.

Signed on behalf of your frineds, Norma Haig, Velma Davidson, Gordon Wilde (committee).

Miss Josephine in thanking the young people for their beautiful gift said that she hoped in her new home to be able to do more work and better work than she ever had done here. She also wished everyone success in their different occupations and that she would always remember her friends and be reminded of them whenever she would look at her beautiful gift.

The evening was wound up by a very dainty lunch being served and farewells bidden.

Funeral on Tuesday.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Wilmont Terrington of Toronto, took place on Tuesday last at one o'clock to Maple Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Herrington, who has been residing in Toronto for the past few years, was an old resident of Havelock. Her remains were brought here on the noon train Tuesday and service was held at the cemetery.

Rev. Mr. McIlroy and Rev. Mr. E. O. Seymour taking charge of the service.

The sympathy of all goes out to the bereaved family.

Quarterly services were held in the Methodist church on Sunday evening last by the pastor, Rev. E. O. Seymour, assisted by the Rev. G. R. Clare, of Norwood.

Mrs. Ed. Williams is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Will Wilkie, at Guelph.

Mr. Roy McBride and Mr. Douglas Laing motored to Cobourg on Sunday.

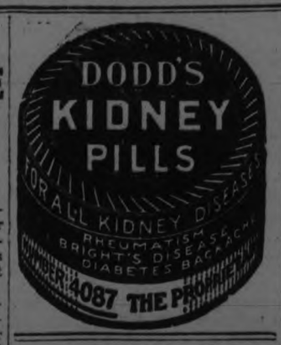
Several young people attended the fowl supper held in the Methodist church at Norwood Monday evening last.

Mr. W. A. McMaster has purchased a business in Napanee and he and his family are leaving for their new home in the very near future.

WIVES.

Forty-two women, all claiming to be wives of the same man, cause excitement in Vienna court. Testimony indicates that he married for money, averaged $80 from each bride, then skipped. As nearly as we recall, he holds the world's record for this generation.

A good many Canadians, some months hence when they are making out income tax returns, will be wondering if this Austrian's real motive wasn't the lure of being able to claim 42 exemptions.



HUNTERS BATTLE ICE.

Three Keene Duck Hunters Had Difficulty in Returning to Shore.

KEENE, Nov. 20.—Messrs, Parnell Scott and Fletcher had a very thrilling experience on Rice Lake. They had started out to shoot ducks at one of the distant islands in the morning, and did not return until night, after encountering a good deal of ice on the lake at night. They finally got within about 200 yards of shore, when they were compelled to take poles and break the ice ahead of the boat. This they did for two hours, but after working until about 9.30 p.m., managed to make the shore. It is very seldom that the lake is frozen over so early in the fall.

Mr. Pat. Bolin was unable to take his cattle off Sugar Island on account of the ice pack.

Mr. Andrew Rennie and family, along with Mr. Pat. Roache, had a very serious accident on Saturday. They were coming home from Peterboro when they met a car on the road at a culvert. It being very narrow, Mr. Rennie's auto turned completely over. Mrs. Rennie was very badly bruised, and Mr. Pat. Roache had the misfortune to have his shoulder dislocated.

Mr. Wilbert Watkins also had a mishap with a car. He was proceeding along the road, and his front wheel struck a block of wood, turning the car over in the ditch. The occupants sustained bruises.

Mr. A. E. Fletcher was in Peterboro on business on Wednesday.

The Trent Valley Creamery Co. of Keene are sending their cream to Campbellford from this district, this factory being closed for the season.

Mr. Robertson, of Lucknow, has been shooting at Elmhirst Cottage.

Mr. Farr, of Port Hope, was down for a few days to shoot at Ashburn's Point, but was forced to leave on account of the lake being frozen.

Mr. Jas. Ashburn, who is in St. Joseph's Hospital, is slightly improved.

Mrs. Wilbert Fife, who underwent a serious operation at Nicholls Hospital, is progressing nicely.

Mrs. Pat. Roache is still unable to be out.

Racoons are very plentiful in this district. Mr. Wm. Kempt shot one on the street in Keene.

Mrs. Andrew Rennie attended an installation meeting at Vimy Ridge Lodge in Peterboro on Tuesday evening.

Rev. Andrew McLaughlin preached in Hiawatha on Sunday.

Keene L.O.L. 494 held a very largely attended meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 12. A visit was made by the county officers from Peterboro. A very profitable evening was spent with the Keene brethren.

The Young People's Epworth League held a meeting for the election of officers. The following officers were elected:

President—Mrs. A. McLaughlin.
1st Vice-President—D. Edwards.
2nd Vice-President — Miss Lily Chapman.
3rd Vice-President—Mrs. A. McLaughlin.
4th Vice-President — Mr. W. Fletcher.
Secretary—Miss L. Chapman.
Treasurer—Miss Annie Burley.
Organist—Miss M. Edwards.

Mr. Harry Mather was in the village on business on Tuesday.

Mrs. John McFarlane, of Peterboro, was visiting friends in Keene on Tuesday.

Mrs. W. I. Downer, of Lindsay, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Archie Kempt.

Messrs Parnell and Scott of Niagara are visiting Mr. W. H. Fletcher.

A very successful oyster supper and concert was held at Bethel on Tuesday evening. Cunningham's orchestra of Peterboro was in attendance, and gave a very delightful programme.

PHEASANT ON FARM.

Bird of Bright Plumage Seen Near Omemee.

OMEMEE, Nov. 19.—Mr. Orville Toole, a farmer residing about a mile Southwest of Omemee, has several times recently seen a pheasant, straying about on his farm, which he claims is a beauty, both in plumage and size.

Mr. Bruce Rehill has purchased the farm belonging to Miss Carrie Toole and was busy last week, making repairs to the barn.

Mr. Michael Duffy, delivered to the elevator recently 87 bushels of sweet clover for which he received $5.75 per bushel. This being the yield off 9 acres.

EXHIBITION BOARD TALKING CAMPAIGN FOR 1,000 MEMBERS

If Any Person Thinks the Association is a Closed Affair, Let Him Offer $2 Membership Fee.

PRESIDENT THINKS IT CAN BE DONE

Are there one thousand persons in this district who still entertain that old, unfriendly fiction, long since generally dispelled, that the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition is a close corporation?

In one sense the directors hope there are that many, for if they really wish to be shown that the association is open to them they will be cordially invited to join at the nominal and usual membership fee of two dollars a year.

It is unlikely that this intimation will flock the president's and secretary's offices with applicants, but there's a cordial welcome waiting for them and their two dollars.

Seriously, however, the directors are considering a membership campaign.

"I'm convinced we can get one thousand new members in the city and country if we go after them and sell them the Exhibition as a local and district enterprise which they should support" said President Denne, at the last meeting. "They can come in just the same as the rest of us. Their personal interest and the total fee from that number would be a big help this year. I'm satisfied the whole public is behind us. We've had proofs for some years that the people have every confidence in this Board and what we are trying to do in this district, but we want at least a thousand members."

Such was the text of a membership discussion which will likely materialize in an intensive and extended appeal to the public to become actively associated with the Exhibition.

This year the Board has spent $4,500 on permanent improvements to the Exhibition property for the further accommodation of the public, especially for exhibitors. The plant is steadily enlarging, but there is much work still to be done before the directors will be satisfied that exhibitors are adequately provided for. In the progress that has already been accomplished local merchants, manufacturers and municipalities have been generous. With out the assistance they have given the exhibition facilities would be still hopes and plans sketched on paper and prize-winning producers would have lacked the inviting accommodation that has attracted so many new exhibitors during the last few years.

The Board meetings are as largely attended as ever, and the earnestness of the directors to push the Fair's progress farther than ever next fell is manifested in their membership campaign plans at this early stage in the new exhibition year.

U. S. RAILWAYS SHARED SAVINGS WITH PUBLIC

Reduction of Freight Charges in 1923 Amounted to $657,000,000.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—The railroads of the United States saved $932,591,000 in operating expenses in 1923, and passed along $657,000,000 of this sum to the public in the shape of reduced freight rates. This statement was issued by the American Railway Association yesterday after the annual meeting here of its 193 class 1 roads.

During the first eight months in 1923, according to the statement, the shipping public was saved another $380,000,000 through reduced freight charges.

The total reduction in freight charges since 1921, "which marked the peak in freight rates, was given as $1,373,000,000." This sum saved to the public in 1923 was about half that saved in 1923—$336,000,000.

The marked shaving of freight tariffs, the statement observed, was attributable to increased efficiency and economy in operation.

THREE YEARS IN PEN.

And Lashes For Assault and Robbery With Violence.

BRANDON, Man., Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press.)—Three years in the penitentiary and twenty lashes was the sentence imposed yesterday after noon on James H. Ross, ringleader, of the trio who assaulted Adolph Stark of Steinbach, Man., here on October 17. David Walker and James Fraser each got two years and ten lashes. The charge was assault and robbery with violence.

Staying Power!

ON the rugby field, in sports of any kind, the athlete prepares himself for staying power. He develops himself to the maximum of efficiency. He makes of his body a veritable storehouse of energy so that he will be "there" when he is needed.

The athlete daily eats the foods which give him the greatest amount of energy without taxing his digestive organs. So should you. Grape-Nuts is the food you should eat every day. You need the nourishment that wheat and malted barley give, the vitality and strength of phosphorus and iron, the laxative bran from the whole wheat berry.

Ask your grocer to send you Grape-Nuts for to-morrow. Four teaspoonfuls with cream or milk are sufficient for each serving. Add sugar if you wish. You'll feel a new tingling through your veins—a new feeling of strength and vigour that will carry you through each day, always at your best.

GRAPE-NUTS VEGETABLE SOUP

1 cup Grape-Nuts, 1 pound veal stew, 3 tablespoons shortening, 2 onions, medium size, 1 quart tomatoes, 2 quarts water, 1 cup carrots, sliced, 1 cup peas, 4 tablespoons salt, 1 teaspoon black pepper, few sprigs parsley, 2 cups potatoes, sliced.

Put shortening in stew pan; when it starts smoking put in stew meat cut in small pieces. When light brown, slice in onion. When onion is brown, put in tomatoes, and cook 20 minutes; add 2 quarts water and let boil 15 minutes; then put in sliced carrots, peas, parsley, salt and pepper. Let cook until peas and carrots are quite tender, then put in potatoes; when potatoes are almost done, put in Grape-Nuts and cook three minutes.

This recipe serves ten to twelve.

BUY THEM AT HOME.

There is only one thing more important than buying your Christmas presents early, and that is buying them at home.

Peterborough's stores—hailed by visitors as among the finest in the Province—are full of gifts of all descriptions.

There probably has never been such an array of attractive articles of all kinds offered the public in this city before.

From the ends of the earth have come Christmas delicacies and Christmas gifts, and you can find them all on the shelves and counters and in the show cases of the local stores.

You don't have to judge them from the flattering picture in a mail-order house catalogue or from the glib description in the same publication.

When you buy at home you can see the articles for yourself, you know what you are buying and you are spared the disappointment that often follows a purchase in the dark, via the mail-order house.

You buy your goods from people you know and who know you, and the money that you spend comes back into circulation in Peterborough.

You are helping yourself, you are helping the merchant, you are helping the man out of work, when you buy at home.

POLICE COMMISSIONS.

The city of Kitchener is to vote at the New Year's elections on the question of enlarging the Police Commission, either by appointment by the Council or by election by the ratepayers, of two more members.

This change, if adopted and sanctioned by the Legislature, would have the effect of rendering the Police Commission three-fifths elective, which, of course, is the aim of those behind the movement.

It is a development about which there should be no undue haste.

Already the City Councils have control of the purse strings so far as Police Commissions are concerned, and that is about as far in the direction of aldermanic control as the administration of the police force should go.

There would, in fact, be no object in having a police commission at all were the Kitchener plan to go through.

The Council might just as well control the Police Department by a Council committee, as it does the Fire Department, the Roads Department and the other civic activities.

It would be a serious mistake to put the police force into municipal politics, a bad thing for the administration of justice and for the Aldermen themselves.

There would be more or less of a constant demand upon members of the Council to intercede on behalf of this or that citizen who happened to run foul of a by-law or a statute, and whose influence around election time was not to be dispised.

That has been the history of police administration everywhere where the police have been directly under the control of an elected council, and there is no cause for thinking the conditions would be any different in Kitchener—or in Peterborough for that matter.

It was a wise Legislature that inaugurated the present system in Ontario cities—and it will be a wise Legislature that will leave it alone.

THE NEW PARTY.

Ontario still has three political parties—or is four a more correct number, having regard to the Independent Labour party?

The Ontario farmers' organization as a political entity has disappeared, but in its place is the Ontario Progressive party, erected on the ruins of the old structure and headed by ex-Premier E. C. Drury.

There is to be no U. F. O. tint to the latest entry in the political field, for in the words of its President, "this convention has taken steps to remove the stigma of class appeal, class legislation and even class consciousness from the movement."

The Progressives will seek followers everywhere, in the cities as well as along the concession lines, and they hope to present a platform and enunciate principles that will attract to themselves support from every class in the community.

Just what they can offer that will be attractive remains to be seen.

Part of their stock-in-trade, of course, will be the thread-bare charges against the integrity and honesty of purpose of the old political parties, without any enlightenment as to how the Progressives, organized as a political body themselves, are to be much different from the older parties.

Carping about the wickedness of the Liberal and Conservative organizations served its purpose in 1919.

The Drury Government had not been in power then, and the great experiment that was to give Ontario something new and decidedly beneficial in the line of government had not failed.

It would be more difficult now for Mr. Drury and his associates to use the same arguments as five years ago; in fact, it is to be imagined that he will be kept fairly busy giving an account of the stewardship of his Government.

A NATIONAL LABORATORY.

According to an Ottawa dispatch, the question of a grant for the establishment of a national research laboratory is to be revived during the coming session of Parliament.

This is an expenditure that the Examiner has no hesitation in saying is justified, even although the general situation calls for economy in Federal administration.

Canadian scientists should be given every opportunity to show what they can do, for science is playing a most prominent part in the race for commercial supremacy—and this country cannot afford to be left behind.

Our facilities for research work have been limited.

The Research Council has accomplished wonders, considering that it has been handicapped by lack of funds, and particularly through the absence of a modern, thoroughly-equipped laboratory.

For this condition of affairs the Senate, and not the House of Commons, is to blame.

During the regime of Rt. Hon. Mr. Meighen the House of Commons passed a bill to establish a national laboratory, but the Upper Chamber fell upon it greedily with their pruning knives, and the measure was lost.

No further attempt has since been made to establish a laboratory, and the intimation that another effort is to be made at the next session of Parliament will be gladly received by those who have given any thought to the matter and who realize how desirable it is that Canada's scientists should not be handicapped by lack of the necessary facilities.

THE ENFORCEMENT OF LAW.

The enforcement of law is never an easy task when great financial profit may accrue from the breaking of it, and this is, unfortunately, the case in connection with most liquor legislation, whether license, Government sale or prohibition. In the United States the bribery of Government officials, policemen and revenue officers has been resorted to wherever possible, and when a poorly-paid policeman has been offered $200 a week simply not to see too much, it has no doubt been a temptation. Just how far such tactics have been used in Ontario we can only guess, but no one doubts that they have been resorted to.

We were told the other day that an honest young fellow had been approached with the assurance that he could clear $50,000 a year by bootlegging, and seeing that he possessed an unblemished reputation he was assured that he could operate for five years before he would be suspected. Another story came to us that a prominent bootlegger had boasted that an occasional seizure and fine meant nothing to him, as he was secured by those higher up, and even a fine of $1,000 was merely a bagatelle. We cannot vouch for these stories save that they came to us from most reputable sources, and they illustrate the methods of working and suggest the profits involved.

It is clear that if we are to get rid of the illicit traffic a fine of $1,000 is of little use, as it acts simply as a license. One man actually came to us one day withthe stor y that the sellers of strong beer in Toronto were paying $2 a barrel into a central fund and out of this all fines were paid. Whether this is true or not it seems clear that the ordinary fine has little terror to the seller of forbidden liquor. Premier Ferguson has stated his conviction that jail without the option of a fine would be a wise course. We think the jail suggestion is a good one, but seeing that the country is put to a good deal of expense in the matter we would suggest that a fine of $1,000 or $2,000 accompany the term in jail.

And if it be found that foreigners are persistently breaking the law we suggest that arrangements be made with the Dominion authorities that these lawbreakers be promptly deported. If the strangers whom we have welcomed to our shores are not willing to obey our laws we consider that we have no further right to extend our hospitality to them. We suspect that there would not be many deportations. If once it was understood that the bootlegger would be promptly sent back with his wife and family to the country from which he came, we think men would think twice before they broke the law.—Christian Guardian.

WHERE CANADA IS WASTING MANY MILLIONS.

Blue books and official publications are notoriously hard reading and, too often, dull reading. If there is an exception to this charge of boredom, it is in those pamphlets which deal with the life of the country, either physical or economic.

Such a publication is the return showing the export of wheat from Canada which is issued annually by the Federal Bureau of Statistics. The issue which has just been distributed tells a grave story and issues a solemn warning to those who will read. It is no new tale, for it is told in the same volume with but slight variations year after year and our neglect of the danger it reveals only increases its seriousness.

The story can be told in a few words. Of the 289,000,000 bushels exported from Canada during the year which closed on August 31 last, 21,000,000 bushels went to the American millers. This left a balance of 268,000,000 for export by port shipment. Of this total no less than 141,000,000 bushels were shipped from American ports by way of Buffalo, 73,000,000 were shipped through Montreal, St. John and Quebec (Montreal being responsible for 61,000,000) and 54,000,000 were shipped through Vancouver.

This means that of the grain grown on the great Western prairies of Canada, outside of the amount shipped direct to the American millers, nearly 63 per cent. was shipped through American ports, while 47 per cent. only was exported through Dominion ports. This is really putting the case in too favorable a light, for the grain shipped out of Vancouver was not in competition from the transportation standpoint with that which was forwarded eastward.

Of the grain shipped eastward from Fort William 141,000,000 bushels went to American ports by way of Buffalo and 73,000,000 were handled through Canadian ports. To Montreal the rate by water averages 9 1-4 cents a bushel, while to Buffalo the average water rate is 2 cents a bushel. Yet wheat is not on the ocean at Buffalo as it is for all practical purposes when it reaches Montreal during the shipping season, and there are many miles of costly freight transportation between Buffalo and American ports.

This means that Canada is annually paying a sum of between twenty and thirty million dollars to foreign interests during the process of selling the grain she grows on the prairies and this enormous sum is laid upon the shoulders of the grain farmer of the West as part of the cost of production which is entirely lost to Canada. Some of this Canadian money is thrown into foreign canals, some is thrust into the palms of elevator men, porters, freight handlers, etc., and some is attached in the form of coupons to the holders of stock in foreign transportation companies.

It would have made a difference to hundreds of unemployed, hungry men and willing, if that twenty to thirty million dollars had been spent in Canadian wages to employes during last year.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Belleville is to vote on the question of daylight saving at the coming municipal election. And advocates of summer time are confident that the majority of ratepayers will vote for it.

The early rounds of the Ferguson-McCausland bout are all in favour of the Premier.

All these sales the druggists are putting on should put a different complexion upon things.

The use of "canned heat" for beverage purposes is giving the Hamilton authorities a lot of trouble. It should be able to make the stuff unpalatable enough to keep it from being used except for the purpose for which it was intended.

LIQUOR RUNNING FOR HOME BANK

More Light Thrown on Steamship Activities at Trail To-day.

TORONTO, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—More light was thrown on liquor running trips of steamer Vaudreuil pledged to Home Bank as security by C. A. Barnard, one of bank directors at the trial of J. F. M. Stewart, another Home Bank director, before Judge Coatsworth this morning. J. C. Austin who managed ships for British Dominions corporation which was holding company for bank, said that Vaudereuil and her first trip in 1922 with liquor from Glasgow discharged part of her cargo at Halifax.

Remainder was discharged at sea, off New York. The Vaudreuil made second trip with liquor somewhere off New York according to witness and lost $25,000 on the two trips. Loss was paid by the bank. On two ships, Vaudreuil and Paipoonge, which the bank held total the loss was about $250,000, he said. Percy C. Bonham, marine engineer of Montreal, said that in 1922 and 1923 value of ships was only that of scrap metal or few dollars a ton.

Trial this morning was also featured by hot clashes between N. W. Rowell, K.C., for defence, and D. L. McCarthy, K.C., for crown which Judge Coatsworth described as "displays of temper".

A THOUGHT.

One night during a tempest, she went adrift, and for years the "Fanny E. Woolston" was lost to the world. Sailors would say that she had "crossed their bow," but only sailors said this.

For nearly five years she drifted like a discontented soul—drifted into paths that leave no trail. The love-sick winds and the passionate gales of all corners of the compass had kissed her shredded sails.

Out on the lonely, fathomless, dread deep, calm or convulsed, obeying the stillness or the storm, the "Fanny E. Woolston" drifted—drifted—until one day a friendly tide and a home-bound storm drove the little wreck back to the beach near the very town she started from.

"Back to the beach," but not back to her original moorings. "Back to the beach," the only place open to the "Fanny E. Woolston."

When the sun rose in the morning they found her stranded on the "sands of time," where even the footprints of former friends were washed away..

Again! How natural it is to blame the woman!

Fred, struck by a stronger ship. Fanny, in a human hurricane, went adrift.

"Out on the ocean of life we sail Reason the pilot, passion the gale."

Even the great "Titanic" went down to her grave by a blow from a greater force, illustrating my point: It makes no difference how big or how strong you are, some day you may strike something that will carry you off ('reason the pilot') and out on 'the ocean of life' you may drift like the derelict with 'passion the gale.'

The next time you meet a derelict, try to see beyond the effect and get at the cause. If you have no pity, no pardon, seek no forgiveness for your own soul. For, be it remembered: He that forgives most shall be most forgiven.

Our wishes, like shadows, always lengthen as our air castles rise in a dream of To-morrow.

The unsuccessful man is forever telling what he is going to do To-morrow, and forever forgetting that his example of To-day is of much more importance than the estimate that he entertains of To-morrow.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Nov. 19.—For export, a few short keeps were bought this morning at $5.25 to $6, and some heifers $5.50 to $6. Export bulls cost $4.50, and cows the same price. Top handyweight butchers sold at $6; good butchers $5.50, and medium butchers $4.75. Canners cows were in strong demand today, and prices were firmer at $1.75 to $2.25 a cwt. Trading was quite active today, and the market will be fairly well cleaned up.

The buying of calves is not as keen as it was for several weeks probably owing to the season use of poultry. This has brought prices of good to choice calves down a dollar a cwt., making top 11 cents and good calves 10 cents. Mediums are averaging 8 cents; heaviest 6 cents and grassers 4 cents.

Light lambs are easily steady at 11½ cents a pound, but heavies are not so buoyant and buyers want to get them below 10 cents. Today's light lambs sold from 11 to 11½ cents.

Hogs are stronger and most of the sales are being made at $9 a cwt. f.o.b. There is a feeling that a further advance is impending.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, November 19. — New smashing of high price records for the season took place in the corn market to-day as a result of spirited buying together with dearth of offerings. Profit-taking, however, shaved down corn values at the last. Corn closed unsettled, half to 2 3-8c net higher; May 1.23 to 1.23 1-8. Wheat finished weak, 5-8c to 1 5-8c off; oats at 3-8c decline to a shade advance, and provisions varying from 12c setback to a rise of 42c.

STERLING RATES.

Sterling demand, $4.62?.
Sterling cables 4.62 5-8.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, November 19.—The demand from local buyers for cash grain in the domestic market to-day was somewhat limited, and the volume of business was small. The car lot trade was also quiet and the prices were unchanged, with Ontario No. 3 extra malting barley quoted at $1.09; No. 3 grade at $1.08 per bush., ex-track; Ontario No. 2 white oats at 62; No. 3 grade at 60c and No. 4 grade at 58c per bushel ex-store.

EGG PRICES.

OTTAWA, November 19. — The undertone is firm on account of the scarcity of fresh receipts. At a number of producing points storage eggs are being brought in as there are not enough fresh to supply the local demand. Storage eggs continue to move into consumption freely.

Toronto fresh, firm, jobbing specials, 68c; extras 64; storage slightly easier undertone; storage extras 47c to 48c; firsts 43 to 44; seconds 37c to 38c.

Winnipeg firm, retailing extras 55 to 60; firsts 50 to 55; seconds 40 to 45.

FILM LOVE SCENES ARE TOO INTIMATE

Lou Chaney Says "Mush" is Repugnant to Normal Persons.

By JACK JUNGMEYER.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 20.—Love making is too intimately shown on the screen, believes Lon Chaney. Its physical aspect, comprising the bulk of movie content and frequently verging on the clinical, often affronts the most furtive of the beholder's instincts.

Chaney, picturesque character actor, is not one of your "great screen lovers." Nor is he given to effusions on the technique of romance.

"All the more ardent phases of love making," says Chaney, "should be done on the screen by suggestion. An audience should see little more of courtship in films than it sees in actual life.

"And how much do we witness in real life, even though it is continuously imminent? Very little. Wooing, by its very nature, is the most secretive of vital human activities. Nature keeps it furtive among most of her creatures because it is so closely linked with the self-protective instinct. We have refined the blunt facts and approaches of mating with the words and gestures of romance. This in itself shows the squeamishness even to discuss them publicly.

Screen Shows Secrets.

"In real life we know little of love making except that in which we ourselves engage. Yet, on the screen we are shown pretty near everything.

"Now, it is a curious fact that the healthy, normal human dislikes intruding upon another's courtship almost as much as he resents being intruded upon. That is probably one of man's oldest pacts, a pavement for modern romantic love.

"Screen love scenes, just to the degree that they create sound illusion, beget, in the sensitive at least, the feeling that those shadowy lovers are being detestably spied upon by folk in the theatre gloom. It stirs to some degree that repugnance which the normal person has for public show of affection, a repugnance which finds expression in laws, ordinances, censorship and even the 'bouncer' of dance halls.

"Folk squirm uneasily at these 'improprieties.' And they squirm even though the figures on the screen are but shadows in a play, when love making becomes too detailed. Children try to cover adolescent embarrassment in such naive explosives as 'Mush' or 'Applesauce.' The stiff silence or troubled giggles of elders is equally eloquent of a disturbing reaction.

Modesty Decline.

"Of course, the screen has reflected, and perhaps aided, in the growing tendency toward public love making, which in its more brazen aspects reveals decadence. At best, it is called 'a decline in modesty.'

"Exploitation of that open curiosity has been a big factor in picture making, but while its whetting on the screen has been agreeable to many, it has been offensive, I believe, to many more. The great mass of theatregoers still wants the more intimate phases of love making kept as sacred and inconspicuous as they are in real life. Anything beyond that line shames them in the presence of their fellows and families.

"Love making on the screen should be confined largely to hints, to so much of courtship as is generally tolerated in the open—the mild caress, the fleeting kiss, the languishing look—and that beyond these limits it were better deftly to indicate what every lover under the sun will understand is in the mind of the players."

Is Your Shadow In The Way?

A HOME half lighted is like a home half warm—poor economy at the high cost of comfort. Particularly when light costs so little.

Shadows, for example, are needless annoyances. White or frosted Edison Mazda Lamps, in portable floor or table lamps, overcome this condition, and greatly increase the cheerfulness of your rooms.

To obtain the best results, choose lamps with wide shades that throw the light upward as well as downward. In ceiling fixtures of pendent or shower type, put 50-watt white or frosted Edison Mazda Lamps, or 75-watt lamps if the fixture is a translucent bowl.

Near you is an Edison Mazda Lamp store, recognizable by the yellow and blue cartons. There you can obtain real information about good lighting.

RECEIVER OF STOLEN GOODS

at their summer home on May 6 and 7, 1922. The back entrance had been forced, and the thieves, of whom there were at least two, had made themselves comfortable, apparently for two days, having eaten, drunk and slept in the house.

Detective Pelletier had told him that a man named Mendelsohn might be able to recover the stolen goods. They were not in Mendelsohn's possession but he knew where he could locate them on condition that he was paid for doing so. Mendelsohn had come to witness's house and had told him that for $125 he would recover a fur coat which had been taken. This was valued at $600 and $700. Mendelsohn had later returned with the coat and had been paid the $125. Both interviews had taken place in the presence of Detective Pelletier.

Made a Further Offer.

Mendelsohn had made a further offer to recover some cutlery which had been stolen, for $150 and had also ask a further $40 for his services in the matter of recovering stolen property. Witness had recovered his cutlery but several articles stolen from the house were still missing.

Mr. Champaigne had asked the detective why he did not make an arrest seeing that Mendelsohn knew knew where the goods were, and had been told by the officers that Mendelsohn, who had rendered the detective valuable service, would not divulge the name, for fear of being killed.

G. M. Champaigne, son of the previous witness, confirmed his fathers' evidence in general. He stated that Detective Pelletier had told him that he had "better pay up or he would no get anything."

Constable Coulombe remembered having waited with constables in a house on City Hall avenue, expecting a hold up to take place there. There were four or five of them together, including himself. Bissonnette, Payette, Edmond and Laflamme. There had been several robberies in the district. The information the police had was that there would likely be a hold up in that house. The house in question was a disorderly house. He remembered having passed four nights in that house, waiting for the hold up men to appear. The went there about ten o'clock and left about four or half past four in the morning. They sat in a room at the rear.

They did not see the business of the house going on. The doors were closed so they could not see what was going on. He had no doubt that business went on as usual. They heard the music but did not hear any talking. Witness did not know who gave the order to go there. He was not sure if they did not go there on their own initiative. They were under the orders of Sgt. Archambault.

Other Tell of Watch.

Constable Payette declared he remembered having mounted guard, with orders at the house on City Hall avenue. He was sure of two successive nights but they might have been there three or four nights. The squad was under Sgt. Archambault and the sergeant was with them when they went to this disorderly house. He did not remember being given anything to drink there, but they were given meals during the night. That was the first time he had ever known a squad of police to hide in a disorderly house waiting for a holdup.

Cross-examined, witness said the police had been informed that the robbers might be expected to visit that house and they went there in the hope of being able to arrest them. The house had been raided twice to his knowledge since that event. He did not remember who had informed the police that the bandits were likely to rob the house.

Constable Bissonnette could only swear to having spent three nights there. He did not remember whether Sergt. Archambault was there all the time, but he knew the sergeant went with them. Witness had heard that the place was kept by someone named Cesar.

Answering a question by Oscar Gagnon witness said that they did not go there to protect the house against bandits but to catch the bandits.

"The victims of the hold-up, had there been any, would have been the respectable citizens who frequented the house?" Alban Germain asked.

Witness agreed that this was so.

Inspector Egan Gave Orders.

Sergt. Archambault remembered having gone to this house with the squad of constables. Some Italians were supposed to be organizing a hold-up. They spent three nights waiting for the hold-up but it never took place. Inspector Egan gave the instructions which caused them to hide in the house.

Answering a question by Alban Germain witness said that the fact of a hold up being carried out in a disorderly house would not prevent him from intervening to arrest the gangsters.

Ald. Bedard was called to the witness stand and confronted with an interview alleged to have been given by him to a French newspaper, in which he was stated to have said that he was opposed to the judicial inquiry, that the police did their duty, but that they were not properly supported and that they did not get sufficient backing in the courts. He admitted having given the interview, but denied having said that the courts were not doing their duty. He thought that the paper must have been joking. He had only said that there were too many cases delayed in court.

MESSENGERS GAVE EVIDENCE TO-DAY

Bank's Collection Car Was Object of Bandits For Several Days.

MONTREAL, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press.)—J. M. Thibedeau, for 27 years messenger in the employ of the Bank of Hochelaga, and who was in the car held up and robbed on April 1st last for which crime four men were recently hanged at Bordeaux jail, and two others sentenced to prison for life, gave evidence this morning before Mr. Justice Coderre in police probe.

He declared that collection car had been under protection of five city detectives for a fortnight before the hold-up but they were not always the same men. Three bandits had been pointed out to him on cars around before the hold-up, at a certain corner and he had been told the car passed too quickly for the fulfillment of their plans. When he asked Detective Belanger why the bandits were not arrested if known, he was told that men like Serafini and Nieri would be immediately released on payment of a ten dollar fine and that a "real case" would have to be made out against them. Belanger had not explained how he knew that the men on the corner contemplated holding up the car. His companion, Lucien Brunet, replaced him in the witness box and corroborated his testimony.

RED OCTOBER BACK.

End of Soviet Expedition To Wrangel Island.

MOSCOW, November 19. — The Soviet expedition which recently hoisted the Russian flag on Wrangel Island, returned here to-day on the armed transport Red October. On board was Charles Wells, a member of the Stefanson party, who was taken off the island with thirteen Eskimos. According to the Soviet officials Wells made a statement in the presence of the British consul that he left Wrangel on his own accord and was entirely satisfied with his treatment at the hands of the Soviet officials.

What is the only pain of which everyone makes light?—A window pane.

U. S. ELECTIONS LIKE BRITSH

Conservatism Versus Progressivism Broad General Issues in Both Countries.

By CHARLES P. STEWART.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—England's national election and America's were only a few days apart.

The broad general issues of the two contests were the same—conservatism versus progressivism.

The lineups were the same. The results were the same.

And now, in both countries, there probably is going to be a regrouping of parties. There almost certainly will be one in England. The south may modify developments in America to some extent. Then again, it may not.

England has three major parties—Conservative, Liberal and Labor. They correspond to Republicans, Democrats and Progressives.

The Conservative and Liberal parties have grown so much alike in recent years that many voters declared it hard to tell them apart, except by their official labels.

Both Are Conservative.

That is, both are conservative.

The Labor party thus far has been more radical than the bulk of the Progressives. It is an older party, too, and has had one spell at the governmental helm, under the Premiership of Ramsay MacDonald, definitely a socialist.

The English contest, then, was three-cornered, like the American.

One group in each country was a strong conservative group.

A second group was a little more liberal than the first, perhaps, but not much more. It was not nearly so strong as the first one.

The third group was progressive, liberal, radical — whatever you please to call it.

For convenience let's refer to them as parties A, B and C respectively, in both countries.

A had its nucleus of "original" liberals. It drew also from A and B, those elements which had been developing liberal tendencies. England's A group lost few votes thus in comparison with America's, for, generally speaking, England's conservatism is harder boiled than America's. B's losses to C were much heavier than A's, because the B's were a trifle more liberal to begin with.

Liberals the Losers.

But B lost also to A, for B's conservatives, alarmed by C's activities, anxious to beat the latter as badly as possible and aware of their own group's weakness, decided numerously to go the whole hog and vote just as conservatively as they knew how.

Thus A and C both profited at B's expense.

The English B group's disaster was completer than in America. There was no modifying element whatever in England. In America the negro question's influence was to hold the B voters together in the south, for the most part at least.

Well, it was a victory for conservatism.

But it wasn't as much of a victory as mere figures imply. From the size of A's majority it might be inferred that liberalism stands no chance—ever. But it's a consideration that group C is young even in England and only an infant in America. C has life before it.

If the A administration in England and America give satisfaction during the terms they are entering on, they may win again, at the next election, and possibly several times again.

But sooner or later it will come C's turn.

Liberals in Danger.

Liberalism can't expect to be actually in office more than occasionally in any naturally conservative country, like England or America, anyway. Conservatism is bound to be in power the greater part of the time.

Group B, however, seems to be in danger of disintegration.

In England, group A, being in office by so big a majority. Probably will hang on for several years. By that time, all signs are that B will have disappeared completely, leaving only two groups—conservative and liberal—which is the way it ought to be. It means something.

CURED HIS RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation. If you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 489L Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N.J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

STILL AFTER ALFONSO.

Gay King of Spain Target of Famous Author Now In Paris.

PARIS, Nov. 19. — (Canadian Press).—A manifesto by Vicente Blasco Ibanez, famous author, published to-day in France, Great Britain and United States against King Alfonso of Spain, charges the King with the responsibility for the Spanish military disaster in Morocco in 1922, in which thousands of Spanish soldiers were killed and thousands made prisoners. Alfonso is charged with betraying France by giving secret information to Germany during the war.

A FIRE IN TORONTO.

Building Erected Many Years Ago For Brewery, Damaged By Fire To-day.

TORONTO, Nov. 19. — Damage estimated at $50,000 was done by a fire which early to-day gutted two stories of the old Reinhardt brewery, now used as a warehouse, on the Don embankment here. The building was erected 75 years ago.

DOUKHOBOR CHIEF BURIED IN ROCK

...NELSON, B.C., Nov. 20.—Peter Verigin, leader of Canada's Doukhobor colonies, rests in a vault blasted in the rock of a mountain that towers above the principal village.

Five thousand followers carried his body there.

He was regarded by the Doukhobors as divinely sent to lead them. Under his guidance their wealth increased to $5,000,000. They owned sawmills, great farms, several factories.

Verigin, born in Russia, spent 15 years in Siberian exile before he was allowed to come to Canada at the request of the Canadian government, Count Tolstoi and the American Society of Friends. He was killed by a mysterious explosion on board a railroad train.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach creating so-called "acid" indigestion.

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis, accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

DE VALERA UNDER ARREST

Eamonn De Valera, Irish Republican leader cannot keep out of jail. Here Ulsterite police are seen ushering him into their automobile outside the Town Hall in Newry. After a night in jail, he was released, only to be arrested again at Londonderry. Now he is serving a thirty-day sentence for failure to obey a mandate to keep out of the North.

OMEMEE GAVE $202 TO BIBLE SOCIETY

Rev. J. Paterson, of Peterborough, Preached At Annual Meeting.

OMEMEE, Nov. 19.—The annual meeting of the Omemee branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society was held in the Presbyterian Church on Tuesday evening. Rev. J. B. Patterson, of Peterboro, was present and gave an illustrated lecture. The pictures were taken by the speaker while doing pioneer work in Northern Ontario, Saskatchewan and British Columbia, and proved most interesting.

The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. A. T. Weir and Rev. J. A. Black.

Mr. Hill, the secretary, gave a report of the Omemee branch, and in the absence of the treasurer, Mr. W. H. Kennedy, the president, Mr. H. Lamb, read the report, which showed the sum of $202.39 having been collected in Omemee and vicinity last year.

A hearty vote of thanks was moved by Rev. J. A. Black, seconded by Rev. A. T. Weir, and heartily endorsed by the congregation, to the collectors who gave their time, etc., to raise this gratifying sum.

Missionary hymns were used for the occasion, and were heartily rendered by the congregation, when they appeared in clear type on the screen.

Mrs. A. Clemett and baby are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wagstaff, of Cannington.

High School Inspector Rogers, of Toronto, paid a visit to Omemee School on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Woods left last week to spend six weeks with relatives in Estavan, Saskatchewan.

Mrs. Francis Fee is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. J. Weir, of Port Perry.

Miss Lila Parsons visited her cousin, Mrs. R. Crerar, of Bethany, last week, and assisted on the programme at the Methodist fowl supper.

Mrs. Dinner, of Lindsay, was the guest of her cousin, Mr. Harvey Hall, over the week-end.

JOPLING PARTY HOME.

Two Members of Party Credited With An Attack of Buck Fever.

A hunting party composed of Messrs. Fred, Jim and Harry Jopling, "Dad" Dobson, Roy Nickrenz, Ed Cooney, W. C. Fleming, of Buffalo and Chas. Fader and Chas. Sawyer, of Haliburton, has just returned with their quota of deer after a fortnight's expedition at Canese Lake, about thirty miles northeast of Haliburton.

The party brought back five bucks, three does and a yearling, also a string of stories about their trip. When coming out by Bear Lake, with all their rifles packed in the canoes, Cooney and Fleming encountered a big buck swimming in the middle of the lake and chased it to the shore, where they took a whack at it with their paddle before it disappeared in the brush.

Buck fever attacked Fleming on one occasion with such violence that he let a buck get away in the water while shooting wildly about thirty feet over its head, and Ed Cooney and Jim Jopling are also credited with an attack that caused them to miss every one of eight deer in a bunch. Nickrenz shot a doe in the water after crawling over most of the island on his hands and knees to get it. Jim Jopling persuaded his companions to rely on his proficiency as a woodman on one occasion to such an extent that they nearly got lost and came out onto the lake when a fierce gale was blowing. Fair weather was experienced up to last Sunday night when the thermometer dropped uncomfortably low.

The party got no bear, but two or three of the Bruin family were shot by other hunters in the vicinity, and the Peterboro group heard moose on several occasions, one coming to within a hundred yards of their camp.

BIG FEES FOR SURGEONS.

Medical men of the fourteenth century exacted large sums from their patients, according to a lecture on "The Evolution of Surgery," recently given in London by Sir D'Arcy Power. John Arden in 1349 made a large fortune, said the lecturer. He charged $5,000 in money of the time for an operation and exacted in addition $200 a year for as long as the patient lived and two changes of raiment.

BUSINESS.

It devolps that the business depression has not been as bad as it seemed at the time. It was common talk, some months back that the auto industry was supposedly "all shot to pieces." But in the first nine months this year factories turned out 734 autos for every 611 in the corresponding months of last year and 662 the year before. In making comparisons, keep in mind that 1923 output was abnormally and unhealthily big.

'STRONG ARM' SQUAD FOR CHICAGO THUGS

Police Chief Declares War on Gunmen's Own Territory—64 Arrested First Day.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—A war of extermination has been declared upon the tough element that has been ruling Chicago by Chief of Police Collins, following a conference with Mayor Dever, who said he wanted action and not explanations or alibis.

As first steps the Detective Bureau is to be reorganized and a "strong-arm" squad of twelve picked "fighters," similar to New York's, created.

"Those detectives who are too ladylike to do business with the gunmen are to be removed," said Chief Collins.

"Too many bureau squads have been joy-riding while the town was being shot up. We are going to stop this promiscuous shooting, these gang murders and all crimes committed by the hard-boiled."

The "strong arm" squad, following the New York example, is not expected to bother with taking prisoners to court but rather deal out summary justice in the alleys, gang headquarters, soft drink parlors or wherever they find the most convenient place to fight gangsters with their own methods. Police officials take this to mean that there will be less work for the courts and more for the surgeons and undertakers.

The O'Banion murder and the spectacle of thug dominance demonstrated at the gang leader's funeral recently was declared the last straw. Ordinarily this would be followed by half a dozen killings in reprisal, but the police are determined to do whatever killing is necessary themselves. Sixty-four notorious characters were arrested last Friday night and more were picked up the following day.

Chief Collins's charge that "rubber stamp" Judges prevented prompt justice to gunmen was branded as "an infamous lie" by Superior Judge Joseph B. David, who also denied that "any Judge ever released a prisoner without justification." He ordered the arrest of Louis Alterie, confidant of Dion O'Banion, on a charge of assault to commit murder upon alleged information that Alterie was present at the shooting of John Phillips, a slain gangster, and had said he would "shoot it out with the slayer of O'Banion."

That 2,000 gangs or "clubs" with a membership of 100,000 boys exist in Chicago was revealed by Frederick M. Thrasher, reporting results of social science research under the auspices of the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memoria at the University of Chicago.

Besides criminal groups, many were found organized for good influences and others for political preferment. They are said to be supported by breweries, saloons and in some instances by athletic goods dealers who profit by sale of equipment.

VARIETY IN STAMP PRINTING.

Efforts are constantly being made to improve the method of printing our postage stamps and the result is that the red stamp now in general use, is to be had in four different processes. To the untrained eye there is little or no difference, but the eye of the expert can discern the varying characteristics quickly.

FIRST BOOK ON FARMING.

"A Boke of Husbandrye"—believed to be the first book on farming printed in England—was bought recently for a sum equal to about $1,500 on behalf of the British Museum at Sotheby's salerooms. This book, so small that it could easily be slipped in the pocket, was printed in 1523 by one Richarde Pynson. It was written by Sir Anthony Fitzherbert, of Norbury, Derbyshire, and is in excellent condition, though colored with age. It is bound in morocco.

GET ACQUAINTED WITH W.E.E.I.

(BOSTON, MASS.—303 METERS)

By WILLIAM J. FAGAN.

Only a few months old, WEEI, maintained by the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston, has come forward and made a strong bid for recognition in the East.

Those in charge of WEEI did a wise thing during the first few weeks of operation. Beginings are always fraught with dangers. There is always bound to be a mix-up and there necessarily must be considerable jockeying about before the most happy combination is struck. So, after the gala opening night, WEEI contracted for the better part of WEAF's evening program which was carried by wire to Boston and there put on the air. This gave WEEI an opportunity to discover its listeners' desires and enabled it to give its audience just what it wanted when the station went on the air "on its own."

Station WGI, Medford Hillside, is responsible for a large part of the crew operating WEEI. One of WGI's popular features, The Big Brother Club, has become WEEI's opening studio feature each evening, and WGI's Big Brother has made his headquarters in WEEI's studio.

A considerable percentage of WEEI's program still comes from the studio of WEAF, including the Sunday broadcast of Dr. Cadman's Y.M.C.A. Conference, Eveready Hour, the Vincent Lopez Orchestra, football games and other features. On each Sunday evening, WEEI broadcasts exclusively the musical program from the New York Strand Theatre by direct wire, including an hour from the theatre and a studio program, similar in character to Roxy's Capitol Theatre program. This is one of WEEI's most popular broadcasts.

Dok Eisenbourg, Happy Hawkins and Jack Renaud with their dance orchestras capably attend to the necessary dance music, while popular performers of talent look after the up-to-date popular music. Recitals of vocal and instrumental soloists and ensembles round out the studio program nicely, giving popular balance.

Remote control transmission is above the average. Programs are broadcast from Boston theatres and there is a weekly Midnight Organ Recital which has proved popular.

It will be interesting to watch the development of WEEI, for it has started off auspiciously. Its programs are good, wholesome fare, with enough variety and outstanding features to make it noteworthy, if not yet distinguished. It is a welcome addition to the list of Eastern stations.

THE OLDEST JOKE?

What is the oldest joke?

It's the one about barbers talking too much according to the findings of Tom Masson, former Editor of "Life." It may sound familiar, for it is still being told with variations and was used by Lady Asquith upon her last visit to America.

The background is ancient Greece. Archelaus, king of Sparta, was getting his royal locks shorn. He was attended by a regular barber, one of the voluable talk barbers who insisted upon predicting the outcome of the next chariot race. After the barber had chatted for some time he stopped long enough to ask the king:

"How would you like your hair cut?"

"In silence," snapped his majesty.

This joke is a matter of historic record and one of the most ancient.

What time of night will cats come in at the front door? — When they find it open.

When does a leopard change his spots?—When he moves from one place to another.

HOW STAGS FIGHT.

The stag is a ferocious fighter and has attacked and killed horses —and on occasions put bulls to flight.

The fighting weapon of the stag is its antlers. Each year these antlers grow from the skull at the rate of an inch a day.

During their growth they are covered by a fleshy layer of skin, in which the blood circulates in order to feed the growing bone, writes Mr. E. Kay Robinson in "Nature Lessons with Animals."

When the antlers are fully grown the skin dries up and the animal rubs it off. The stag only uses his antlers as a weapon for about three weeks, and then carries them for but a few months more.

When two stags are fighting, each endeavors to get its antlers outside those of its opponent's, in order to push it aside and thus expose its flank, at which it makes a darting blow with the shorter points on the antlers.

Which travels faster—heat or cold? —Heat, because you can easily catch cold.

NO DISEASES IN FUTURE

Within 50 years, chemists and physicians will have discovered cures for nearly all enemies of the human body, including such dread maladies as cancer, So predicts Dr. William S. Nichols, former president of American Chemical Society.

Then no one would die until the body just naturally wore out like an aged machine, barring accidents and such killers as lightning. It is pleasant to contemplate.

Why wait 50 years? The famous Dr. Wiley in his eighties, recently said: "If luxury could be destroyed and all houses burned to drive us outdoors, the diseases which kill us and middle-aged men would disappear.

That's true. Disease as a rule isn't much to fear. The great danger is in a lowering of the body's powers of resistance or fighting off disease.

And lowered resistance is an inevitable result of living an unnatural life. Of course, as time goes on, man's body adapts itself to its environment—becomes immune to conditions and germs that have killed city-dwellers before long environment led to immunization.

The Eskimos are the healthiest people in the world. Bring them down to our cities and they die like flies. It was so with the red Indians—exceedingly healthy until the white man brought his disease, such as tuberculosis, and his alcohol to lower their powers of resistance.

All this demonstrates that disease is usually an unnatural condition.

Also, that most diseases are created by civilization, and that wherever civilization goes it carries its diseases with it.

Does nature disapprove of civilization, particularly of our congregating densely in cities, and try to "get across" to us the news of her disapproval by attacking us with maladies?

10 Years From Now Where Will Your Business Be?

WILL it be the Leader in its field, or trailing in the rear?

Will it be in a strong financial position or in a weak one?

Will its products be well and favorably known to the public or will they be practically unknown by name to the mass of consumers?

Will its products enjoy national distribution, be recommended by dealers everywhere or be sold "incognito" by a few distributors?

Will the trade mark, trade name and goodwill be worth a few paltry thousands, or a hundred thousand, or a million?

Will the business be selling its output at fair prices and earning a good profit, or will it be selling at cut prices and passing the dividends?

* * * * * * *

Where Your Business Will Be Ten Years From Now depends upon the plans and policies adopted in the immediate future and upon the energy and determination with which they are carried out.

It will also depend, to a large degree, upon the extent of your use of the power of Advertising.

During the next 10 years Advertising is going to be an even more important factor in the world of business than in the past.

The aggressive, progressive, determined business man who employs ADVERTISING intelligently, aggressively and persistently—who makes ADVERTISING part and parcel of his business—will be the man who will put his business in the most commanding position 10 years from now.

With the aid of ADVERTISING you can secure a wider and more intensive distribution. You can make the name of your product a household word throughout the land. You can make your trade name, trade mark and goodwill worth many times their present value. You can steady and stabilize your market, obtain fair prices and secure protection against unfair, cut-throat competition. You can place your business in a stronger, safer financial position.

Advertising has been a predominant factor in the success of such famous products as Palmolive Soap, Heinz 57 Varieties, Prince Albert Tobacco, Sunkist Oranges, Eversharp Pencils, Wrigley's Gum, Listerine, and many others. It can be just as great a factor in your business.

We would welcome the opportunity of discussing with you how Advertising could be used to benefit your business during the next three, five and ten years.

MR ALAN SMALL

Troubled For Years With Indigestion

Mr. Allan Small of 607 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"I have always lived in fear of heart trouble—my father, as well as my mother's sister, died from this dreaded affliction when I was a child. As it was on both sides of my family and I had often heard it was hereditary, I lived in dread and fear.

"As I have had at intervals severe abdominal pains, heart-burn and pressure on the heart, I felt there was no relief so I became reconciled to the horrible truth I was doomed, nothing could be done and must await my time to go as my father and mother's sister. I never dreamed I might only have intestinal indigestion, and my trouble was sour and acid stomach, causing gas pressure on the heart. Thanks to a friend who suggested Carter's Little Liver Pills as a remedy for faulty intestinal elimination, I am now free from the dreaded fear and have all around good health. Simple easy to take and relieves the bowels in a rational way, without harsh effects."

DRIVERS.

Police are testing the eyesight of all traffic law violators in Chicago. They find drivers who cannot see 20 feet away. Small wonder, there are so many accidents.

But why stop at arrested drivers? Every car owner should have his vision examined before giving him a license. Also, he should be tested for sanity and quick decision. A half-blind, nervous or low-intelligence driver is apt to be as dangerous as a speed maniac with callous conscience and hard heart.

The auto is as dangerous as a loaded pistol, unwisely handled.

THE THIEF OF BAGDAD

BY ACHMED ABDULLAH

"Gladly! Readily! Easily!" came the merchant's triumphant reply. "My purse holds three golden tomans from Persia, one chipped at the edge; a bright, carved silver medjidieh from Stambul; eighteen various gold pieces from Bokhara, Khiva, and Samarkand; a shoe-shaped candareen from far Pekin; and a handful of small coins from the land of the Franks—cursed be all unbelievers Give me the purse! It is mine!"

"One moment," said the Captain. He turned to Ahmed. "And what do you claim the purse to contain?"

"Why—" laughed the Thief of Bagdad—"it contains nothing at all, O Great Lord! And—" opening the purse and turning it inside out—"here is the proof!" But he kept his right leg very quiet to keep the stolen money, which he had plopped into his baggy breeches, from rattling against the rest of his loot and thus giving him away.

Laughter, then, from the crowd. Riotous, exaggerated, falsetto Oriental laughter—presently topped by the Captain's words:

"You spoke the truth, young man!"

He winked at Ahmed shamelessly and brazenly. For a year or two earlier he had borrowed a sum of money from Tagi Khan; and, the first of every month, had paid high interest and substantial instalments without, thanks to the other's miraculous calculations, being ever able to diminish the principal.

He addressed the merchant with crushing, chilly words:

"Consider, O Wart, that the Prophet Mohammed—on Him the blessings and the peace! — recommended honesty as a charming and worthwhile virtue! No—no . . ." as Tagi Khan was about to break into a flood of bitter protestations — "consider, furthermore, that the tongue is the enemy of the neck!"

With which cryptic threat he swaggered off, bumping his sabre tip martially against the stone pavement, while the Thief of Bagdad thumbed his nose insultingly at the infuriated merchant and turned West across the Square, toward the Bazar of the Potters.

Ahmed was pleased with himself, the sunshine, and the world at large.

Money he had! Money that would be eagerly welcomed by his pal, an old man who had first initiated him into the Honorable Guild of Bagdad Thieves and had taught him the tricks and principles of their ancient profession.

Today Ahmed was a greater thief than his former teacher. But he still loved the other, a certain Hassan el-Toork, nicknamed Bird-of-Evil because of his scrawny neck, his claw-like hands, his parrot's beak and beady, purple-black eyes; and he shared everything with him.

Yes. Hassan el-Toork would be glad of the money—and the other rich loot.

"But here it was getting on toward the noon hour, and Ahmed had not yet broken his fast. His stomach grumbled and rumbled, protestingly, challengingly. Should he spend his money on food? No! Not unless he absolutely had to!

"I shall follow my nose!" he said to himself. "Aye! I shall follow this clever nose of mine than which, except for my hands, I have no better friend in the world. Lead on, nose!" he laughed. "Sniff! Smell! Trail! Show me the way! And I, thy master, shall be grateful to thee and shall reward thee with the aroma of whatever rich food may tickle my palate and bloat this shriveled belly of mine"?

So the nose sniffed and led the way; and Ahmed followed, across the Square of the One-Eyed Jew, through the packed wilderness of small Arab houses that ran together like children at play, with a glimpse at the sky above the roof tops revealing scarcely three yards of breadth, the copings meeting at times, and the bulbous, fantastic balconies seeming to interlace like the outrigging of sailing craft in a Malay harbor; until finally, at a place where the alleys broadened into another Square, the nostrils quivered and the nose dilated, causing the owner of the nose to stop and stand still, like a pointer at bay.

A delicious, seductive odor was wafted from somewhere: rice cooked with honey and rose buds and green pistache nuts and drowned in a generous flood of clarified butter; meat balls spiced with saffron and poppy seeds; egg plants cleverly stuffed with raisins and with secret condiments from the Island of the Seven Purple Cranes.

Ahmed looked in the direction where the nose sniffed.

And there, balanced on the railing of a bird's-nest balcony high up on the wall of a Pasha's proud palace, he saw three great porcelain bowls, heaped with steaming food, that a fat Nubian cook had put there to cool a little.

He looked at the wall. It was steep, high, straight up and down, with never a foothold of any sort. A cat in climbing, he was. But to reach this balcony he needed wings, and—he laughed—"I am not a bird, and may Allah grant it be many years before I become an angel!"

And then, brushing through the deserted Square, he heard two noises blending into a symphony: a man's staccato snore and a monkey's melancholy, pessimistic bray. He looked about, and, a little to the left, he saw an enormous Tartar peddler—well over three hundred pounds he must have weighed—asleep in the sun, sitting cross-legged on huge haunches, his extravagant stomach resting and overlapping on his stout knees, his great, turbaned head bobbing up and down, snoring loudly through half-open lips, while, a few feet away, a tiny white donkey, the fruit-panniers empty but for three spoiled melons and roped to the wooden pack-saddle, was braying at the sky, doubtless complaining of its boredom.

"A pulley!" thought Ahmed. "Sent by Allah Himself to help me up to yonder balcony!"

A few moments later he had unwound the turban cloth from about the Tartar's head, weighted it with a melon, flung one end over the balcony railing, and, when it came back to his hands, tucked it deftly under the sleeping man's knees, then tied it to the donkey's saddle.

"Up, little donkey!" he called softly. "Up, little brother, and back to thy stable—the rich, green food! Up!"

And the donkey, nothing loath, ambled sturdily on its way; the Tartar, with the turban cloth tugging at his knees, awakened, saw the donkey trotting away, and waddled after it with loud shouts of: "Hey, there! Wait a moment, Long-Ears!" And thus, clinging to the turban cloth as if it were a rope, ambling donkey and waddling peddler serving as a pulley, Ahmed was drawn up to the balcony in triumph and comfort, and lost no time in helping himself to food, stuffing his mouth with large, greedy, well-spiced handfuls.

He had not been there very long when a commotion caused him to look down. Around the corner, surrounded by a crowd of men and women and children, he saw an Indian sorcerer swinging with a majestic stride. The man was immensely tall, emaciated, bearded, and naked but for a scarlet loincloth. By his side tripped a young boy, while two attendants followed, one carrying a grass-woven basket and a bundle of swords, the other a coiled rope.

"Moslems," he said, "permit me to introduce myself. I am," he announced without the slightest diffidence, "Vikramavata, the Swami, the Yogi, the greatest miracle-worker out of Hindustan! There is none in the Seven Known Worlds who approaches me in the mastery of either white or black magic! I am a vast sea of most excellent qualities! I am—so I have been assured by truth-telling and disinterested persons in China and Tartary and the lands of the dog-faced Mongols—a jewel of pure gold, a handful of powdered rubies, an exquisite tonic for the human brain, the father and mother of hidden wisdom!" He motioned to his attendants who put basket, swords, and rope on the ground, and went on: "If you like my sorcery, stay not the generosity of your hands! For"— in flat and shameless contradiction to his previous statement—"I am but a poor and humble man, with seven wives and seven times seventeen children, all clamoring for food!"

He bent; opened the basket.

"Ho!" he shouted at the young boy who thereupon jumped into the basket, where he curled up like a kitten. The Hindu closed it, picked up the swords and thrust them through every part of the basket with all his strength, while the crowd looked on, utterly fascinated.

Up on the balcony Ahmed, too, watched. He was pleased more than ever with himself and the world at large. Why, he had money, a few choice jewels, an abundance of food—here he helped himself to another liberal fistful—and now a show: all free of charge, all for the asking and taking!

"Hayah!" he said to himself, sitting on the balcony rail and chewing luxuriously, "life is pleasant—and he who works and strives is a fool!"

CHAPTER II.

He put a dry mango seed on the ground for all the world to see. Thrice he passed his hand over it, murmuring mysterious Indian words:

"Bhut, pret, pisach, dana,
Chec mantar, sab nikal jana,

and the mango seed burst—it grew—it shot in the air—in bloom—in fruit. Again he waves his hand and—behold!—the mango was gone.

He asked the boy to approach. He whispered a secret word and, suddenly, a glistening Khyberee sword flashed in his right hand. He lifted it high above his head. He struck with all his might. And the boy's head rolled on the ground; blood squirted; while the onlookers were aghast, sucking in their breath like little lisping babes in the dark. Then he waves his hands again, and there was the boy, his head on his neck where it belonged, a smile on his lips.

So trick followed trick while the crowd applauded and shuddered and laughed and chattered and wondered, until finally the Hindu announced the greatest of all his tricks: the trick of the magic rope.

"A rope," he explained, uncoiling it and whizzing it through the air with a sharp noise, "woven from the hair of a purple-faced witch of the left-handed sect! Never in all the world was there such a rope! Look, O Moslems!"

Swish!—he threw the rope into the air, straight up, and it remained there standing, without support, erect, like a slim tree, its upper end parallel with the balcony rail and directly in front of Ahmed's eyes, who could hardly control his itching palms.

The Hindu clapped his hands.

"Hayah! Ho! Jao!" he yelled; and suddenly the boy disappeared, vanished into the nowhere, while the spectators gaped with open mouths.

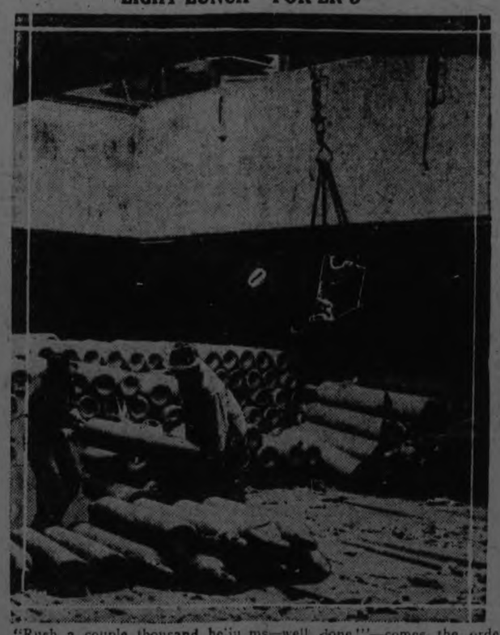
"LIGHT LUNCH" FOR ZR-3



"Rush a couple thousand helium—well done!"—comes the order from the hangar at Lakehurst, N.J. For the Shenandoah and the ZR-3 have giant appetites and helium gas is their pet dish. The photo shows a supply arriving from Texas, but this will be a mere mouthful for the air monsters.

BLOODLESS DUEL.

Two Italians Fought Fourteen Rounds With Swords.

ROME, Nov. 20.—Deputy Eugenic Chiesa and Signor Tamborini, member of the Florentine Legion volunteer militia yesterday fought a duel with swords. Deputy Chiesa was challenged by Tamborina in consequence of attacks by the former on the militia which were published by Voce Republicana. The duel continued 14 rounds and neither was wounded. Doctors ordered a suspension of the conflict despite Chiesa's protest. There was no reconciliation.

ESTATE TO CROWN.

Illegitimate Brother Claimed Share in $19,757 Left Intestate.

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—(By Canadian Press).—The claim of William Stone to a share in the estate of the late Enos Stone of Regina, was dismissed in the supreme court of Canada yesterday.

The case originated when the Western Trust Company of Regina, as administrator of the estate of Enos Stone, appealed to the trial court for an option as to what persons if any were entitled to the estate. Stone was an illegitimate child who died intestate and unmarried. William Stone, an illegitimate brother, and he legitimate children of the latter, claimed a share in the estate which consisted of property valued at $19,757.33. The attorney general of Canada appealed on the ground that upon the death of Enos Stone intestate and without heirs or next of kin, whole estate became vested in the crown.

WHERE SATAN IS WARDEN.

The old philosopher Phocylides wrote: "To do a kindness to a bad man is like sowing your seed in the sea."

Old Phocylides was a grouch in the head and had gout of the heart.

Kindness, like grain, increases by sowing, but only a fool would throw seed in the sea.

Radium sells on a basis of $200,600,000 a pound, but one little act of kindness, costing no great effort, no money and a moment of time, is often of greater help to humans than a handful of radium.

The reason for the high cost of radium is due to its comparative scarcity. The real reason for the unusual appreciation of kindness is largely due to a lack of sufficient production to lower its value on the open market.

If everyone were always kind and considerate, kindness would be as common as the small stones on a gravel road.

Kindness is not a common practice. We all mean to be kind, but our good intentions often prove to be the stuff they pave the streets with down in that prison where Satan is warden.

FIXES LABOR HOURS

BERLIN, Nov. 20.—Students earning their livelihood will not be allowed to work longer than four hours daily for their support, according to Dr. Roethe, the retiring president of Berlin university. Because of the belief that close connection with more or less radical workmen might "impregnate" the young students with socialist ideas, the problem of the poor student, forced to work his way through university, has worried the president.

MENUS FOR A FAMILY.

Luncheon—Scrambled egg on toast, bread and butter, spinach, plain cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—Beef stew, cauliflower, orange salad, peach blancmange, whole wheat bread, butter, milk and coffee.

Of course the tea and coffee mentioned in these menus are a concession to the grown-ups. Every boy and girl who is brought up with the idea well fixed in mind that tea and coffee have no place in the diet until "years of discretion" are reached, will be less prone to "nerves" later in life.

Try serving the orange juice about half an hour before breakfast to the four-year-old member of the family.

Run the raisins through the food chopper before adding them to the cereal.

The beef stew contains potatoes and carrots. Mince the meat for the youngest and always mash his vegetables well for him. No four-year-old child can be trusted to thoroughly masticate his food. Even with the mashing admonitions of "chew it up fine" do not come amiss.

Plain Cookies.

One cup sugar, 6 tablespoons butter, 1 egg, 4 tablespoons milk, 2 cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Cream butter and sugar. Add egg well beaten with milk. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Add vanilla to first mixture and stir in dry ingredients. Roll on a floured board as thin as possible. Cut with a biscuit cutter and bake on an oiled and floured sheet in a hot oven.

DREAMS

When they awaken they often find that the colors and designs of the gowns remain fresh in their minds, and a great many times their new creations carry out the ideas received in their visions.

These dreams are significant. A well-filled wardrobe may signify the approach of an early marriage and often predicts success in business and social world.

Interpretations.

Clouds of despair, which have gathered from trivial worries, will disappear if you see yourself singing in a choir.

To be paying out money, as for bills, taxes or to a group of employes or friends, is a good omen that you will always have plenty.

Simple Mixture Best For Constipation

Simple buckthorn bark, magnesium sulph. c. p., glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adlerika, is excellent for constipation. It often works in one hour and never gripes. The pleasant and QUICK action of this efficient intestinal evacuant will surprise you. Adlerika helps any case gas on the stomach, unless due to deep-seated causes. Often removes matter you never thought was in your system. McDermid & Jury and E. L. Payne, Druggists.

HELP KIDNEYS BY DRINKING MORE WATER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Help Neutralize Irritating Acids.

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which may quickly relieve your bladder irritation. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

RED PEPPER FOR COLDS IN CHEST

Ease your tight, aching chest. Stop the pain. Break up the congestion. Feel a bad cold loosen up in just a short time.

"Red Pepper Rub" is the cold remedy that brings quickest relief. It cannot hurt you and it certainly seems to end the tightness and drive the congestion and soreness right out.

BANK CLEARINGS.

High Mark of 921,583 Was Reached During the Past Week.

The bank clearings for the week ending to-day, given out by the Peterboro clearing-house, were $921,583, an increase of $92,161 over last week's total, which was $820,161. The total for the corresponding week one month ago was $868,931, and for the same week in November, 1923, the total was low at $743,750, or $177,833 less than this week's mark.

6 WEEKS AT SEA.

Canadian Schooner Veronica Found in Helpless Condition.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Liner President Harding reported to offices of United States line here that last evening, she rendered assistance to Canada Schooner Veronica which was in helpless condition a hundred miles off Cape Sable after raid by liquor pirates. Veronica was bound from Bermuda to Halifax and had been at sea six weeks.

CANADIANS SHOULD PURCHASE AT HOME

Lower Cost of Production Can Only Be Achieved By Higher Turnover.

TORONTO, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Standard of living exists in Canada to-day, which is too high to be maintained, M. P. Byrnes of Collingwood, told delegates to Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, in convention here to-day. Mr. Byrnes, who was delivering his address as retiring president dealt with problems facing Canadian industry to-day. Adjustments would have to be made in economic conditions. Unless Canada could keep pace with the wage standard of the United States we should lose population but it must be admitted that the United States are quite some time ahead of us in economics". For these reasons every encouragement must be given to Canadian Manufacturers. Citizens must buy goods manufactured at home in preference to any other goods. To compete with other countries Canada must manufacture in bigger quantities. Lower cost of production could only be achieved by means of a bigger turnover.

ARMS CONFERENCE MEETS IN EUROPE

Coolidge Will Convoke Conference Not To Meet In Washington.

GENEVA, November 20. — The latest rumour circulating in Geneva, on the disarmament question is that President Coolidge will convoke a new arms conference, not to meet in Washington, but some where in Europe, perhaps at The Hague.

Those circulating this rumor insist that the Washington government already has sounded the new British government.

Canada and China thro their support to the United States proposals for the control and ultimate eradication of the narcotic evil, when the international opium co..ference resumed its sessions to-day.

Hon. H. S. Beland, Minister of Health, speaking for Canada, pointed out that the United States had enacted laws, the enforcement of which would be sufficient to eradicate the opium evil if clandescent and organized smuggling do not flood the whole land with heroin, morphine and cocaine.

Dr. Beland appealed to the conference to free humanity "from these hideous monsters."

PETERBORUGH MAN PLAYS FOR QUEENS

Howard Young, Former P.C. I. Captain, Shared in Championship Game.

Peterboro was represented in the great victory Queen's won over St. Michael's in the Intercollegiate Intermediate Rugby series by Howard Young, son of Dr. T. W. H. Young, medical health officer of the city.

Young played a good game on the wing for the Kingston crew, using all the speed he developed and all the knowledge he acquired as captain and quarter-back on the Peterboro Collegiate Institute squad, where he was trained by Coach Browne.

It is considered quite an honor that a freshman should make the team and put up so good exhibitions of play as has Edgerton Howard MacDougall Young — "Howie" to his friends in Peterboro.

Inadequate lighting is said to be responsible for the spoilage of goods valued at $28,000,000 annually in the industrial establisments of the United States.

ST. LUKE'S HELD ANNUAL BAZAAR

Large Crowds Attended Supper at Market Hall Last Evening.

The Women's Guild of St. Luke's Anglican Church held a very pretty bazaar in the Market Hall on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. The arrangement of the various booths was extremely decorative, and indicated the care and attention paid by the ladies in charge. The attendance was excellent, last evening's crowd, both for supper and for the evening, being very good.

The president of the Guild, Mrs. George Curtis, and Mrs. G. J. Bousfield, acted as general convenors. The supper-room, bright with the overhead pennants which decorated the entire hall, with ornamental entrances of green and red standards, and long white-clothed tables arranged with ferns and red and green candles in silver holders, was in charge of Miss M. Calcutt and Mrs. J. J. Turner, who also looked after the afternoon tea tables, assisted by a group of energetic helpers. Red and white scalloped and fringed paper formed the decoration for an interesting table labelled "Antiques," where all sorts of odds and ends, including a stuffed canary in a cage, were offered for sale. This table was in charge of Mrs. F. Whitehouse and Mrs. T. Moore. The same bright shades of red and white in an intricate lattice pattern were used at the booth, where homemade cooking in good variety was sold, under the supervision of Mrs. H. Butcher and Mrs. C. Butcher. An interesting item at this section was the delicious-looking three-storey cake made by Mrs. G. L. Hay.

An effectiave imitation of a winter day under a clear sky was the motif of the arrangement of the dainty doll booth. Powder blue and fluted white paper was used, with imitation snow, to form an effective background for the dolls of every sort, from a rag baby to the dignified "guess her name" beauty with yellow curls and white frock. Here was a miniature bridal party on view under big white wedding bell, the bride in lace and orange blossoms, the bridegroom in conventional black, and the attendant curate, sporting a jolly Chaplin moustache, clad in regulation soutaine, surplice and stole. In charge of the dolls were Mrs. Edna Fairweather and the Misses Muriel and Bertha Curtis.

Mrs. A. Nickels and Mrs. D. F. Drummond had the sale of homemade candy, in a green and white section arched with evergreens: Mrs. J. Mackin, Mrs. G. L. Hay and Mrs. J. Butcher sold aprons and quilts at a red and white strined booth; Mrs. L. Jamieson, Mrs. Harry Adams and Mrs. R. A. McKee had the sale of dainty fancy work and babies' wear in an orange and white section, and the fish pond was looked after by Mrs. John Scott and Mrs. W. Davies.

Soft drinks, chocolate bars, ice creamed cigars were dispensed at a very effective booth, whose conventional decorations were done in ovals and diamonds of orange with a green frame and upper lattice. Mr. and Mrs. H. Fitch and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Henburn were in charge.

Music for the dancing which took place on Tuesday evening was supplied by Aitkens' orchestra.

LOST PARTY ALIVE.

William Nutting and His Party Were Last Seen at Greenland on Sept. 6.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—William Washburn Nutting, New York journalist, and his party who attempted to sail from Norway to New York in a small boat and has not been heard of for several months may be still alive, according to a letter received by Halifax Echo from Rufus Sweet of Goldenville, N.S., who has returned from Greenland, where he left Nutting on September 6th. Mr. Sweet believes there is still a good chance that Nutting and the party are alive They may have been picked up by some whaling crew or landed some where on the Labrador coast, he says.

ELECTION CAMPAIGN.

Two Local Boys in the Field —A Lively Campaign.

The election campaign for the local member to the Boys' Parliament held annually in the Provincial Parliament buildings, Toronto, during the week of the Christmas holidays is in full swing. There are two nominees in the field. Alan Neal representative of Trinity Sunday School and Orville Martin of Knox.

Both candidates are staging a live campaign and are putting their platform and qualifications before the C.S.E.T groups, boys' gatherings, and Sunday Schools of the city in masterly fashion. Both are well known to the youth of the city and both having sterling qualifications for the office of boy mayor of Peterborough and member of the Boy's Parliament.

The elections through the province will take place on November 29.

Trevor Miller was Peterborough's member for last year and the local Boy mayor.

MAYOR OUT OF LUCK.

Mayor J. J. Turner, whose party returned yesterday from its stamping ground at Bottle Lake, not only did not get a deer—he did not see one. The party included J. E. A. Fitzgerald, Captain Copperwaite (guide); John Freeman(chef); Charles Elliott; George Boucher; George Powell; Ray Best; John Bertram; Gus Cochrane and Mayor Turner.

Despite the lack of trophies captured in the chase, Mayor Turner, who returned a few days before the remainder of his party, was well satisfied with the outing and the relaxation and jolity of the camp.

ANNOUNCEMENT TO-MORROW

Provincial Analysts Are Too Busy To Test Beer Submitted By License Inspector Stewart

That the Government laboratories are so busy testing the varying strengths submitted to them that they have no time to analyse Peterborough beer, was revealed in County Police Court yesterday when a local man was brought before Magistrate Langley on remand, charged with having liquor illegally. The prosecution represented by J. F. Strickland, asked for a remand to give time for receipt of the analysis of beer said to have been found in the man's possession.

Mr. McElderry, appearing for the accused remarked that Inspector Joseph Stewart had said the beer was the best stuff available, and perhaps that would be enough for the prosecution to go on.

Mr. Strickland replied that the prosecution was guided by the labels on the bottles.

The accused was remanded until Wednesday, November 26 at 2 o'clock, without bail. His car being held by Inspector Stewart is considered sufficient surety for his appearance, Mr. Strickland said in giving his consent.

HUNTERS RETURN WITH TROPHIES

City Men Come Back From the Chase With Deer and Stories.

MONARCH ESCAPES.

When W. Crow, of Crow's Landing took the dogs out one day they snuffed at a hole under a huge rock. Mr. Crow climbed on the boulder where he had a view of the opening, which was soon filled with the head and shoulders of an immense bear. A bullet speedily ended Bruin's life and it took the entire party of hunters to drag it from its lair.

SHOULD TEACH SAFETY.

Coroner Expresses Opinion That Peterborough Teachers Might Do Good Work.

Following up the advice of the jury which last night suggested that parents instruct their children to avoid railway accidents, Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young to-day told The Examiner that this might be extended to include school teachers.

"I think," he said, "that school teachers might take a short time periodically to teach their pupils safety measures. It would not take much off the regular study periods, and it might be the means of saving lives through teaching the children to avoid automobiles and trains. The children might be told, too, that the railways are determined to make examples of any boys they find climbing around their cars or walking on the tracks."

WOMEN'S GUILD TEA.

The Women's Guild of All Saints' Church held a tea yesterday afternoon and evening at the home of Mrs. A. A. Haskill, 532 Charlotte street, with a good attedance. Mrs. P. Fitzgerald, president of the Guild, assisted Mrs. Haskill in receiving the guests. Tea was poured by Mrs. A. Campbell, assisted by Mrs. A. A. Robinson, Mrs. L. Dobbin and Mrs. F. Pakenham. Mrs. D. McLeod and Mrs. W. Thorn had a sale of homemade cooking, and home-made candy was sold by Mrs. R. Henderson and Mrs T. Sabin. Decorations were carried out with yellow 'mums. During the afternoon and evening, an enjoyable musical programme was rendered with vocal solos by Mrs. L. Spriggs, the Misses Eda Borbridge and Beryl Bates, and Messrs. H. Rush and C. Coleman. Readings were Mrs. E. W. Glover and the Miss Ethel Cooper Accompanists were Mrs. E. W. Clover and the Misses Price and Olga Johnston.

MAY BE LOCAL BOY.

Mrs. Hoy Fears That Youth Found Dead in West May Be Her Son.

Since reading in the Examiner on Monday of the death through exposure and hunger of an unknown youth in Manitoba, Mrs. Hoy, 26 Ware street, entertains fears that the item may refer to her son, Rellen G Hoy. The despatch declared that identification was impossible because of the absence of letters or other written matter. A merchant in Fort Francis said he saw the boy the previous Friday, walking along the railroad tracks, carrying a gun and a knapsack.

Rellen G. Hoy is 16 years of age, 5 feet 5½ inches tall, heavy built, and has dark brown hair in a brush cut. A conspicuous mole on the breast will make identification easy.

The boy went to work with Richard Henderson at Moss Bank, Sask, and later was employed by Nelson Burrows at Ettington, eight miles away. Several letters written by his mother to this address have been returned unopened, and she is unaware of his present whereabouts.

Unemployment Not Acute.

Majority of Cities in the Province Are in Worse Position Than Peterboro.

Unemployment in Peterboro has not reached a serious condition, enquiry at the Government Employment Bureau showed this morning. Hugh Robertson, superintendent of the local branch, pointed out that statistics show Peterboro in very fair condition compared with other cities in the Province.

There are 115 persons, men and women, listed for employment, there having been 52 new applications last week and 40 placements. Orders for help are generally from farms, with some short jobs offered in the city.

For the Prevention of Goitre
Medical authorities recognize that goitre can be treated and prevented most simply and effectively by the use of table salt to which a small quantity of Iodine has been added.
SIFTO IODINE SALT
Sifto Iodine Salt is our regular high-grade Sifto Free-Running Salt to which a small quantity of Iodine has been added, as approved by the Ontario Provincial Board of Health. This does not change the color or taste of the salt in any way. Use Sifto Iodine Salt regularly on table and for cooking just like ordinary salt.

NEW DRAFT TAKES PROFITS OF WAR

Government Would Set Its Own Price For Munitions and the Like.

KANSAS CITY(Mo., Nov. 20th. --(United News).—A universal draft law which would give the Government the power to take over all industries necessary for successful prosecution of war, is included in the legislative program the American legion has submitted to President Coolidge by national commander James A. Drain here Wednesday.

Drain stopped here for a few hours to greet the local legion officials while enroute to El Paso Texas, where he will make an addre before the American federation of labor convention on Friday.

"The universal draft law we have prepared is intended to take the profits out of war," he declared. "Th governm.ent would set its own price for munitions and the like."

WARM IN WEST

Manitoba Is Enjoying Indian Summer.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Under the influence of early winter mild wave, Western Canada at present is enjoying what is com monly termed "Indian Summer" and snow in many districts is reported to be disappearing rapidly.

Rainfall, varying from a light drizzle in Manitoba to more than half an inch in parts of Saskatchewan was experienced during the night and early this morning. Mild temperatures are also reported in Alberta.

Prospects are for a continued warm weather throughout the Prairie provinces and according to official forecasts the present low pressure wave will be followed by another within a few days.

SWITCHMAN KILLED.

Walter Atkins Died From Loss of Blood When He Had His Legs Severed.

TORONTO, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Walter Atkins, 32-year-old switchman of the Canadian Pacific Railway here, lost his life while at work this morning. He slipped and fell from a tank car which was being shunted. Both his legs were severed, and he later died in hospital from shock and loss of blood. Atkins was married. An inquest will be held.

THE STRONGER SEX.

(By Cynthia Grey)

A girl can see a man unshaven and still think he's handsome.

She can see him in a bathing suit, and still love him.

And she can meet him when he has a cold in the head and yet not lose her affection for him.

But just let him trip and fall with her on a dance floor, and her admiration for him is gone forever!

A man may have been decorated in the World War; he may be at the top of his profession, but nothing makes a woman feel so proud of him as to have the head waiter call him by name.

You can always tell how much a girl is in love with her beau by the length of time it takes her to dress to go out with him.

FASHIONS & FOIBLES

BUTTERICK 5606

The tunic may be no more than two rather small-shaped sections of the fabric but it spells Paris in capitals all over a new frock.

At the Ritz a few days ago a very smart woman who has just returned from Paris was wearing a French frock with one of the new, short, narrow tunics. It was made entirely of heavy black silk crepe with black buttons at the top of the tunic and copper-colored ends on the black scarf. Her light-colored suede gloves exactly matched her nude silk stockings and her shoes were the new plain pump with rather short, rather round French vamp. This particular tunic frock with its extraordinarily simple lines is very nice in the new wool materials—rep, cashmere, soft twills, etc.

LABOR CONVENTION CLOSED YESTERDAY

Hon. Manning Doherty Will Continue to Lead Party in Provincial House.

TORONTO, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—With mutual congratulations and resolutions expressing the confidence in future of their party and in their leaders, Hon. E. C. Drury and Hon. Manning Doherty, progressives of Ontario, yesterday brought their convention in the Labor Temple to a close, after a session devoted chiefly to hewing out of planks for a party platform and discussion as to the best means of securing publicity. Hon. Manning Doherty is, apparently, to continue to lead party in Provincial House, as nothing was said as to securing seat for Hon. Mr. Drury. Altogether some twenty-five resolutions were passed. 18 resolutions had been passed, and it was discovered that it was not the intention of the committee to have them all included in the party platform but that they should be submitted to local organizatjonns for debate and revision with the view to final adoption at the next convention. The decision to appoint an organizer was arrived at speedily and it was decided that each constituency should be asked to contribute $25 as a start, the opinion being as expressed that if the organizer was a good one he would be able to coax further dollars from farmers' pockets himself, an executive committee was appointed as follows:—Bert Taylor, Cheltenham, F. M. Chapman, South Ontario, Newton Smale, Lindsay, J. J. Whitmore, York and Joseph Little, Dufferin.

FIVE LIVES LOST.

Another boarder Edward Alexton was taken to Wilkesbarre hospital in a serious condition,. The loss was estimated at more than seventy-five thousand dollars.

RT. HON. A. MEIGHEN SPOKE AT MARMORA

Says Porter Charges Against Murdock Were Proven Before Committee.

MARMORA, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—So far as the by-election in West Hastings is concerned, there is but one issue, and that is whether or not Ministers of the Crown must live up to the British standards of our forefathers or of the responsibilities of office are to be permitted to fall into degeneracy and decay. That was the tenor of the fighting message which Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Conservative party, brought to this centre last night when he appeared in the interest of Mr. E. Guss Porter, Conservative member, who is seeking re-election.

Mr. Meighen pointed out that there are normally many important matters at issue, so far as the King Government is concerned, but the circumstances which surround the by-election in West Hastings are peculiar and unusual. The duty fell upon the electors of this riding to give their decision, not upon the general policies of differences between the Conservative party and the Liberal Progressive Government, but upon the general principles and standards of dignity and fairness which should be displayed by a Minister of the Cabinet. Mr. Meighen declared that the Porter charges against Hon. Mr. Murdock were proved before the committee beyond all shadow of doubt, and he added that before the "inquiry" there were Liberal lawyers who had said that the evidence against Mr. Murdock was complete and convincing "and," he added, "if Mr. Murdock wants the names of the Liberal lawyers, I can give them."

BILL HART TELLS ABOUT TOM INCE

Says at One Time He Was So Poor He Nearly Starved to Death.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—William S. Hart can remember the period when Tom Inch, pioneer movie director and producer, who died on Wednesday, was so poor that he was unable to buy food for days at a time.

Hart, Ince and Frank Stammers, who later was a successful composer, lived together in New York in two small rooms for which they paid $7.50 each. That was in 1902.

"We used to starve for days," the actor of cowboy and bad man parts said Wednesday. When we would get food we ate until we nearly djed. "After a hard pull better days followed and we made as much as $100 a week."

CAN CURE CRIME, SAYS MIND DOCTOR

Experiment Made for First Time in English Law

ESCAPES JAIL

Accused Handed Over to Physician After Being Convicted

A psycho-analyst has for the first time in the history of English law rescued a "criminal" from the clutches of the law after he had been indicted and found guilty of an offence punishable by a long term of penal servitude.

This intense drama of love and sex was staged at the Worcester Assizes before Mr. Justice Lush. The chief actor was Dr. Gilbert Scott, of Malvern, a specialist in nerve diseases, and a psycho-analyst, whose personality seemed to dominate the court as he dilated with dramatic purpose and intensity on the course of love—and its often tragic aberrations, as interpreted by psycho-analysis.

Judge and court alike were held spellbound by the doctor's oratory and his lucid interpretation of the case before the court. The prisoner was Frank Amos Zealley, a clerk, aged forty-two, accused of improper conduct. He was bound over by Mr. Justice Lush and handed back to the doctor for a continuation of psycho-analytical treatment.

Dr. Scott opened his remarkable statement with the declaration that Zealley had never developed along normal lines.

"I am not here for the defence or the prosecution," said the doctor, before he plunged into a profound analysis of the course of love, its relation to sex, and the lives of normal and abnormal individuals as they are probed and unravelled by the psycho-analyst.

INSTINCT.

"Probably your lordship does not know how love develops?" queried the doctor.

"Will you excuse me if I lecture you on what I see as a medical man and not on the legal position?"

There is first, the doctor pointed out, the baby's love—which is a selfish instinct. Then comes the time when the child is more in love with his mother—in the case of a boy, and her father in the case of a girl. "You are always seeing that," said Dr. Scott, "it is becoming proverbial that 'a boy's best friend is his mother.'"

We come a step further, the doctor added. The child goes to school, and then comes the love for the same sex. The boy takes to himself a companion; the girl a bosom chum. The love for the parent sinks into insignificance. As they grow older the sex again crosses. The young man falls in love with a young woman; and the young woman with a young man.

"At any of these stages love could stop," said Dr. Scott. "Zealley was one of those in whom love had stopped at about the 'one and a half stage.' He is absolutely selfish," declared the doctor; "he has never been in love, and unless he is treated he will never marry, and is going to be a danger to society.

NOT REALISED.

"I have gone back into his history. I have taken him back unconsciously, under hypnotic suggestion, when he did not realise what he was saying to me. Now I come to the point—it may be a new point of law. I am simply throwing the suggestion out as a medical man. I have had a certain amount of experience in cases such as this, that if this man is convicted and sent to prison the treatment will be stopped; his cure will stop.

"I think that I can guarantee that if he remains under my treatment I can turn him out a useful and decent member of society."

Zealley was then bound over. His father undertook to look after him, and consented to a continuance of Dr. Scott's treatment.

Naturally, the case has created a profound stir in Worcester. Mr. Justice Lush's decision makes a legal precedent, which may well be regarded as 'the beginning of the psycho-analyst's career in the courts of law.

FARROW'S FINAL DIVIDEND MADE

Distribution of 18 Cents More to 41,000 Unsecured Creditors

A final dividend of 9d., making 5s. 3d. in all, is to be distributed to 41,000 unsecured creditors of Farrow's Bank.

The final balance sheet shows a total payment of £1,065,771, the assets having realized more than was expected at the time of the crash.

The winding-up charges totalled £117,832.

Farrow's Bank suspended payment in December, 1920. Its liabilities exceeded £4,000,000, and the failure was a heavy blow to many people of small means, who formed the bulk of the bank's customers.

Thomas Farrow (the chairman), William Crotch (a director), and F. D. T. Hart (an auditor) were charged with conspiracy and fraud in the conduct of the bank. Farrow and Crotch were sentenced to four years' penal servitude each, and Hart was given 12 months' imprisonment.

Previous dividends have been: 2s. in February, 1921; 1s. 6d. in December, 1921; and 1s. in December, 1922.

Gold Medal for Best Butter Won by Gloucestershire Girl

Miss E. M. Mortimer, of Minchinhampton, near Stroud, won the championship and gold medal in the butter-making contest at the Dairy Show, Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington. Miss J. Prichard, of Upton Snodsbury, Worcester, being second.

The champion junket-maker, a winner of the silver medal, was Miss L. Hosking, of Trewinnard, St. Erth, Cornwall, reserve being Mrs. C. Yates, of Bromyard, Worcester.

P. W. Watson, of Eccleshall, Staffordshire, won the gold medal in the champion milking contest, and the cow-judging contest was won by the East Anglian Institute of Agriculture, Chelmsford, the prize being the British Dairy Farmers' Association Challenge Cup.

SUDDEN BOOM IN COTTON SHARES

More Than Million Pound Rise in Values in Few Days

During the last few days there has been extensive buying of cotton mill shares by the British public in anticipation of the long-expected cotton revival.

Business in the industry has improved greatly of late, and working hours in the mills have been extended. The demand for shares comes from all parts of the country and has caused an enormous rise in values.

Shares that recently could be bought at six coppers are now being sold at as much as six shillings each. The total rise in the market value of the shares of the 296 companies quoted in the official list of the Lancashire Sharebrokers' Association is estimated to be well over a million pounds sterling.

More than half a million shares were sold in one day. This is the largest one-day sale since the association was formed fifty years ago.

Members of the association interviewed said that the present activity in buying would be all to the good if it lasted for a few weeks, but if it went much beyond that it would send values too high, and that would mean mischief.

ENGLISH AS SPOKEN BY EAST INDIAN

Funny Letter Read in Course of Address on India

A curiously garbled letter of application for appointment to a vacancy on the staff of a firm of merchants which had been written by an Indian was read by Sir Charles McLeod, in the course of an address on "India," which he delivered at the trade luncheon of the Old Colony Club. After the usual flamboyant style of address the letter proceeded:—

"As to my alljustments, I submitted for the metric examination but failed for the reason which I shall describe. To begin with, my writing was illegible. This was due to climatic reasons, for I having come from a warm climate found my fingers very stiff and very disappointing to my wishes. Further, I have received a great shock to my mental system in the shape of my only fond brother. Besides, most honored sir, I beg to state that I am in very uncomfortable circumstances, being the soul means of support of my fond brothers seven issues, consisting of three adults and four adulteresses—the latter being the bain of my existence, owing to my having to support two of my own wives, as well as of their issue, of which, by God's misfortune, the feminine gender predominates. If by wonderful good fortune these few simple lines may have your benign countenance and favorable turn of mind, I, the poor menial, shall ever pray for the long life and prosperity of yourself, as well as your honor's posthumous olive branches."

EATING COLCHESTER TAXPAYERS COLD

Witty Speech Made by Duke of York at Feast

The Duke of York made a witty speech at the Colchester oyster feast.

"Colchester's oysters," he said, "are throughout the world famous for their delicate flavor, and, having tasted some for the first time today, I can agree with that. (Cheers.) But it is not for this reason alone that they should be considered unique; for they rank as ratepayers. (Cheers.) I am told that in the last thirty-five years they have contributed a sum in the region of £85,000 for the relief of the rates. Were it not that these important ratepayers present the curious paradox that the quicker they disappear the more prosperous the town becomes—(laughter)—I for one should feel uneasy at the thought of depriving the town of Colchester of even one of those truly valuable assets. (Laughter.) I am glad to learn of the prosperity of Colchester's oyster fishery, and to know that this important industry provides employment for a large number of her men."

WOMAN DISLIKES PULPIT "WIGGLERS"

"Ministers who wiggle in the pulpits are the scourge of Great Britain," declares Mrs. Catherine Wellers, who has instituted a nation-wide campaign to induce pastors to maintain dignity and poise when delivering their sermons. "Wiggling ministers are as great sinners as tent-show dancers," says Mrs. Wellers.

Edward Walshe, of Fedamore, Co. Limerick, was shot dead in his house. No motive has been assigned for the outrage.

CO'Y PROMOTER HAD HECTIC TIME

With Capital of £200 Went in for Big Business

BUBBLE BURST

Eleven Concerns Formed But Only One in Good State

Starting with a capital of between £100 and £200, Bertram James Redman borrowed £40,000 and launched out into "big business" as a company promoter, now has applied for a discharge from bankruptcy in the London Bankruptcy Court.

The Official Receiver said Redman's liabilities were £317,789, and the assets about £100. He charged Redman with various offences against the Bankruptcy Acts and with contributing to his failure by rash speculation and extravagant living.

Eleven proofts having been lodged for £242,631 in respect of income tax, super-tax and excess profits duty for the years 1918-1923, Redman had returned a contingent liability of £307,389 of unpaid tax, but had treated it as not expected to rank, on the ground that he had not earned the income on which the assessments were made.

Redman asked for a discharge subject to a consent judgment for £500, Mr. Registrar Mellor said the suggestion that in a case of this kind, with liabilities of over £300,000, a discharge should be granted subject to a judgment for £500 was too idle for the Court to entertain for a moment.

ADVERTISING AND STOCKBROKING.

Here was a man (he continued) originally an advertising agent, and then a stockbroker, who launched out in 1915 with a capital of £100 or £200 and took over the whole of the share capital of John Brinsmead and Sons, Ltd.

In the spring of 1917 he borrowed £40,000 and purchased all the shares in a business at Sheffield and formed it into a new company.

He appeared to have formed 11 companies, of which six had been wound up, and only one was in a satisfactory position.

According to the Official Receiver he had been insolvent for the last nine years, and during the whole of that period had been living at the rate of £3,000 a year—at the expense of the creditors.

He had bought a large estate and residence and incurred in connection with it an expenditure of £27,000.

The registrar said that anything but a long suspension would be no use and the discharge would be suspended for five years.

Tenants Must Have Seven Children to Get New Houses

Sunbury, (England) Borough Council favors large families for its municipal houses, and the tenants for the latest batch of houses will have seven children in each case.

The council claims that the best building record in the country under the State-aided scheme.

Six houses, that are the first of a new block of 38, were opened by Mr. H. A. Allen, chairman of the council, with a golden key.

These houses, Mr. Allen explained, were let at rents as low at 10s weekly, including rates. The cost of building was only £400, and this would be reduced by the Government subsidy of £6 a year for 20 years.

The council, Mr. Allen added, selected as tenants only applicants with several children, and, in the case of these houses, seven would be the number.

MISS THURBURN FOUND NOT GUILTY

Sensational Case Comes to End at Third Trial

Miss Dorothy Myrtle Thurburn, 25, formerly residing at Sheringham, was for the third occasion brought before a jury at the Norfolk Assizes at Norwich, the judge being Mr. Justice Swift.

The case did not occupy more than a few minutes, as the prosecution did not offer any evidence, and the judge directed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty on the twenty-four counts on which she was indited, namely publishing certain defamatory libels concerning Margaret Isabel Christopherson, Stanley Christopherson, Edward Fraser Copeman, Ethel Maude Copeman, Adelaide Annie Dyer Bennet, Doris Hewett and Agnes Evelyn.

PEMBROKE FARMER REVIVED BY GUM

Mr. William Francis, a Pembroke farmed, who came to London for the Dairy Show, mistook the disused tube station at Wood Lane for Shepherd's Bush, where he was staying, opened the door of his carriage, and fell from the train.

He was so seriously injured that the surgeons at the West London Hospital did not expect him to live. They, however, injected into his veins gum arabic, which can be used instead of blood in transfusion cases, when mixed with salt and water, and later he revived.

ANCIENT EGGS ARE FOUND OUT

At the Ayrshire Agricultural Association's Dairy Show at Kilmarnock a large number of the exhibits in the classes for fresh eggs were disqualified for "old age."

Some of the eggs were recognized as having been exhibited at previous shows for years past and as having frequently won prizes as fresh eggs.

FREE (STATE) BEER.

The total quantity of imported beer retained for consumption in this country in 1920-24, according to official Customs and Excise returns issued, was 1,393,000 standard barrels, practically the whole of which came from the Irish Free State.

COMMITTED TO THE DEEP

The casket containing the ashes of the late Admiral Sir Percy Scott was cast into the sea twenty miles off Portsmouth, with simple ceremony, in accordance with his wishes. The late Admiral was, perhaps, the foremost authority in the world on naval gunnery, and many inventions in use in the British navy today are the work of his brain. The illustration depicts the simple ceremony. Wreaths may be seen floating in the water.

FISH CAUGHT BY BEER BAIT IS NEW IDEA.

The latest angling story comes from Leicester. The success of Mr. Lee, a man of seventy-four, has made all local fishermen jealous of him, so he has divulged his secret.

He uses a bait of paste mixed with beer instead of water.

His colleagues now state that every fish he landed seemed to be slightly inebriated.

FIANCE WANTS HIS MONEY BACK

In Dublin High Courts judgment for £400 was granted Michael Colleran, a Ballinasloe farmer, against John Ward. Colleran had paid Ward £500 in anticipation of marrying Ward's daughter. The girl, who was under 16 at the time, objected to the union and ran away, and the wedding never took place. Ward had repaid £100 and now Colleran used for the balance.

WEDDING PARTY IN MOTOR COLLISION

In a motor collison near Carndonagh, County Donegal, a motor car containing a wedding party was overturned.

The bride, Mrs. Faulkner, of Cardonagh, received severe spinal injuries and Mr. Faulkner, the husband, had his leg fractured. Both were taken to hospital in a critical condition. The driver of the second car, Mr. Digby, had also to be treated in hospital. Both cars were wrecked.

NO CHURCH OR PARSON IN REDCAR

Dormanstown, a town near Redcar, has 500 houses and a population of nearly 3,000, but there is no church and no parson in the place.

A hall which is used during the week as a picture theatre and dance room is utilized for services on Sunday.

A short time ago the clergyman who was in charge accepted a living at Sowerby, and a successor has not yet been appointed.

OWNER WAS PROUD OF HIS NEW CAR

In a side turning in the City of London a number of vehicles were held up by a solitary motor car. At last one of the drivers went forward to investigate.

He found the car (a new one) empty, and came upon the owner seated on the kerb on the further side, peacefully scraping some mud off one of the back wheels with a pair of nail scissors.

THE FOUR STAGES OF INTOXICATION

"Surely a man is either drunk or he is not drunk?" asked the Sheriff at Ayr. He received the reply:

"There are four clearly defined stages or states of drunkenness: the jocose, the bellicose the lachrymose and the comatose."

MOTHER PARADED HER 17 KIDDIES

Born in the Tower of London, John Charles Pope, of Harefield, whose death is announced, was the son of a beefeater, and the youngest of 17 children.

He used to recall the difficulty his mother had in getting so many children to bed.

At night she paraded them in single file and counted them off as they passed her!

POSTMASTER SENT TO JAIL FOR THEFT

Postmaster at the village of Heath, Harold Blundell, aged 29, was sentenced to four months' imprisonment at Leighton Buzzard for stealing £154.

When the deficiency was discovered in Blundell's accounts he said he had used the money in his business, but would make every endeavor to repay it, promising £100 by the end of the week.

He had an invalid wife and three children.

DOG STOWAWAY ON AEROPLANE

A French aviation company was summoned at Croydon Police Court for permitting a dog to be landed from an aeroplane at Croydon without an import license.

Mr. Martin Page, for the company, called evidence to show that nothing was known of the animal being on board the aeroplane. It was not "declared" by the passenger before embarking, nor did he pay for its passage.

It was apparently carried in the passenger's coat pocket and taken out some after landing. The hearing was adjourned.

Lieut.-Colonel Griffith Griffiths, of Prospect Cottage, Hounslow, London, who served as an Army surgeon, died at Four Crosses, Carnarvonshire, at the age of 83.

EX-INSPECTOR SYME RELEASED FROM JAIL

Ex-Inspector John Syme was released from Pentonville Prison, and conveyed to his home in an ambulance, after having undergone a hunger-and-thirst strike since Tuesday morning.

This is ex-Inspector Syme's twenty-ninth hunger-and-thirst strike.

WHITING BITING AT WORTHING PIER

A shoal of whiting paid a surprise visit to Worthing.

Anglers on the pier had scarcely had a bite until about 4.30.

Then for about two hours the fish were landed as quickly as the anglers could bait and throw their lines.

Some anglers landed two and three at a time, and catches of 50 to 60 were made while the bait held out.

COW'S JOURNEY SEEKING CALF

A cow puchased at Northampton Cattle Market had its calf taken from it before it was removed to Holcot, 10 miles away. The next day it was found at the market gates. It had escaped from a field remote from the road and wandered 10 miles in search of the calf.

CAT AND MOUSE CAUSE OF FIRE

A cat chasing a mouse is believed to have caused a fire, resulting in £8,000 damage, at Cardiff.

The fire broke out in a warehouse.

Several cats were kept in the warehouse, and it is thought that one of them, rushing at a mouse, knocked over a packet of matches, which ignited.

PERAMBULATOR BAN BY CARDIFF POLICE

Cardiff police are prosecuting mothers who monopolize the pavements with perambulators.

Four women appeared at the police court, and were dismissed with a caution, and warned not to repeat the offence.

Ten prams, it was stated, were lined up together when the "raid" was made, but six of the mothers escaped.

CANON BARTLEET, OF GLOUCESTER, DEAD

The death has occurred at Cheltenham, of the Rev. Samuel Edwin Bartleet, M.A., hon. Canon of Gloucester Cathedral since 1907. He was in his 90th year.

During his long clerical career Dr. Bartleet held important livings in and noad Gloucester and at Dursley. He was an able archaeologist.

ANCIENT ESTATE ON THE MARKET

Sir John Leigh, Bart., has decided to sell the estates of Lilleshall and Woodcote.

They cover 3,000 acres, and Lilleshall, once a seat of the Duke of Sutherland, is reputed to be one of the finest mansions in England.

The history of the property goes back to the time of Domesday.

In the Civil War Lilleshall was besieged, its towers battered down, and its defenders killed.

The ruins of the historical abbey, which adjoin the grounds, will be included in the sale, as well as the mansion and about 22 farms.

MEDIAEVAL FIND IN NORFOLK CHURCH

Remarkable discoveries have been made at the 14th century church of St. James, Great Ellingham, Norfolk, which is now being restored.

Partially preserved frescoes have been revealed under the whitewash on the wall in the south side.

A large unusual mediaeval niche, which had been completely walled up, and of which no record existed, has also been found.

The niche is brilliantly painted in blue and red, and the gilding on the vaulting is almost as bright as when it was put on.

There is a painted angel at the head of the niche in a perfect state of preservation.

MUNIFICENT GIFT TO BRISTOL HOSPITAL

Sir George Wills, chairman of the Imperial Tobacco Company, is making a gift of £60,000 to Bristol General Hospital, of which he is president, for the purpose of providing a new nurses' home and out-patients' casualty department.

Previous gifts of Sir George Wills to Bristol include a total of about £264,000 to the university, besides a joint gift with Mr. H. H. Wills to it of £250,000, and 80 acres of Leigh Woods beside the Avon Gorge for use of the city.

DINNER RAFFLES PENNY CHANCES

Penny raffles for Sunday dinners are the vogue in some London week-end markets. Chickens and side dishes are the lure that have drawn even some prominent society women and their maids to the market places.

SUICIDE REVEALS BLIGHTED LOVE

Talented Woman Showed Hatred of Humanity in Various Ways

"MEN ARE VILE"

Threw Herself Into the Thames from Westminster Bridge

A shattered romance which turned a beautiful and talented French embroideress into a woman whose hand was against humanity, has been revealed by the suicide of Mlle. Hilaire Blanche Hassart, aged fifty-two, who threw herself into the Thames from Westminster Bridge.

It was alleged at the inquest that Mlle. Hassart demonstrated her hatred of humanity by—

Taking a pleasure in frightening children.

Delighting in dressing hideously, although she could execute the most exquisite needlework.

Making herself up as a ghost.

Fastening strings across the stairs to trip people.

Putting fine needles in hair combings.

One who knew her well, in an interview, said:—

"In many respects Mlle. Hassart was a woman of mystery. She came, I believe, of a good French family. No letters ever came for her, but she gave me to understand that her terrible position had been brought about by a blighted love romance when she was about twenty years of age.

VIOLINIST WOOER.

"She had then just left a convent in a Parisian suburb, and was wooed by a wonderful violinist—a Viennese—who was performing for a season at the Paris Opera. The day was fixed for the wedding. Mlle. Hassart went to the church, but the bridegroom did not put in an appearance.

"Inquiries were made at the Opera House, but it was found that the musician had departed suddenly. Subsequently it was discovered that he was a married man with two children in Vienna.

"The shock brought on a severe attack of brain fever, and for some time Mlle. Hassart's life was despaired of.

"A few years ago she took up her residence here permanently, and lived by her embroidery work. But she seemed to hate her fellow-creatures more and more every day.

"She carried her hatred of humanity even to little children and animals, and more than once, in one of those violent fits of ungovernable rage which sometimes possessed her, she was heard to declare that there was 'nothing any good under the sun.'

"She would never speak to a man if she could possibly help it. It was her custom to describe them as 'vile creatures.'"

Lord Sholto Douglas Divorced by Wife; Married Three Years

In the Divorce Court Mr. Justice Horridge granted Lady Georgina Leonora Sholto Douglas a decree nisi against her husband, Lord Sholto George Douglas, who did not defend.

Lady Sholto Douglas said she lived in Upper Grosvenor street. She married Lord Sholto in April, 1921, at a register office. She had been married before, and the union had been dissolved.

There were no children. The marriage was not very happy, as there was trouble with her husband about the allowance which she made him. In April and May, 1923 there was trouble, and she took proceedings for restitution of conjugal rights. Shortly after that they came together again, and lived in Upper Grosvenor street. Early this year she was up North, and when she came back the trouble was renewed, and she left the house. She only returned after he had left it.

King Anxious to Provide Work on Royal Estates at Sandringham

The King has been devoting a good deal of consideration lately to the question how agricultural unemployment during the coming winter may be best avoided on his estates at Sandringham, Balmoral, and Windsor.

Agricultural depression and the best means of remedying it is a subject that the King has studied closely.

He is not particularly concerned to see the various projects prove immediately remunerative, so long as they provide work.

The King and Queen are now at York Cottage, Sandringham, and during their stay the King proposes to visit every portion of his estate in order to see not only what work actually requires to be done, but what other there is that can be done if the situation should require it.

It has to be borne in mind, of course, that the King is by no means wealthy, and that he has often to consider carefully how much he can afford to lay out on his estates.

It is sometimes said that the King is able to undertake work on his estates of a nature that could not be afforded by a private landowner, because he is not taxed as others are taxed. This is, however, an error. Apart from Windsor, which is the official property of the Crown and therefore exempt from taxation, the King pays precisely the same rates and taxes as any other landowner.

The King is a far more practical farmer than is realized by the outside world, and he has been a pioneer in many respects. He was, for instance, the first landowner in the Highlands to employ a motor tractor.

RUN OVER BY TRAIN WITHOUT INJURY

Failing to notice the approach of an express whilst walking in the four-foot way near Nottingham, a railway employe fell flat between the metals and the train passed over him.

His mates expected to see a mutilated corpse, but although the tools he was carrying were smashed, the man was unhurt and walked away with his companions.

Over 2,000 umbrellas and hundreds of overcoats and rainproofs were left behind by passengers on the Southern Railway. The articles will be disposed by auction at the half-yearly sale of unclaimed property at Waterloo Stiion.

Baby In Coffin Cried And Funeral Stopped Abruptly

As the body of a baby, which was believed to have been born dead, was being lowered into a grave at Point Cemetery, Dowlais, the celrgyman performing the burial was startled to hear a thin plaintive cry come from the coffin.

The lid was raised, and the clergyman discovered that the child was alive.

The parents of the child, a girl, are Thomas Cushion, a steelworks worker, and Mrs. Cushion of Dowlais.

HAIRDRESSER'S LINK WITH CABINET

Business Bought from Father of Sidney Webb Profitable

FAMOUS CLIENTS

Fortune Left by Pole Was Got by Hard Work

Stanislas Olszewski, the ladies' hairdresser of London, who has left an estate of the gross value of £20,755, handled many lovely and famous heads in his time.

Lady Diana Cooper, her mother (the Duchess of Rutland) and sisters, Lady Cunard, Constance Duchess of Westminster, and the Countess of Pembroke were among his clientele.

His dainty little establishment in Cranbourn-street, up and down the stairs of which so many well-known people have passed, has another claim to fame.

It was at one time owned by Charles Webb, father of Mr. Sidney Webb, and an upstairs window, with the name "Sidney Webb" scratched on it, recalls a piece of boyish mischief by the future President of the Board of Trade.

Mr. Charles Webb was the first London hair dresser to introduce shampooing, with its attendant equipment of basins and taps.

When Mr. Olszewski, who was born in Poland, but went to Scotland 38 years ago, took over Mr. Webb's business, shampooing was a process indulged in only by the smart set.

The process was a long one. Not only were tresses as long as possible, but there was no hot air apparatus, run by gas or electricity.

So the hair of the beauties of those days had to be tediously dried by hot towels and fans.

Before Mr. Olszewski retired shampooing had become a matter for the million.

Mr. Olszewski was one of the three enterprising young hairdressers, all working in a hairdresser's shop which then stood in a passage between Wardour-street and Lisle street, who were the first experts in London at the business of Marcel waving.

Mr. Olszewski retired in 1916, shortly before the craze for bobbing made the work of hairdressers easier and more profitable. He approved of bobbing as a healthy fashion.

Mr. Olszewski's fortune, his son told a press representative, was obtained by hard work.

LONDON FACES HIGHER RENTS

Million Houses Likely to Be Affected by New Valuation

A wholesale increase of rent affecting a million houses in London is threatened unless a special Act of Parliament is passed to prevent it.

Edwin Evans, president of the Property Owners' Protection Association, explained to a reporter that at the approaching quinquennial, or five-yearly, valuation of London property the local authorities intend to assess rateable property on its increased value due to the 40 per cent. increase in rent allowed by the Rent Restrictions Act of 1923.

With the rateable value of property thus increased rents will rise, for under the Rent Act tenants have to pay all increases in rates.

ROASTED HEDGEHOG FAVORITE MEAL

A 6-year-old gypsy girl, whose father said that she enjoyed nothing so much to eat as roasted hedgehogs, was concerned in a case before the Scarborough Bench recently.

Her parents were summoned for cruelty to her. It was stated that she was dirtily and scantily clad, and was suffering from infantile paralysis.

The mother told the inspector of the R.S.P.C.C. when he visited her that the child had had the hind leg of a hedgehog for breakfast and had eaten it with relish.

An order was made for the girl to be sent to an institution.

MURDERED WOMAN FOUND IN FIELD

William Bignall, of Wotton-under-Edge, Gloucestershire, has been arrested by the Tetbury, Gloucestershire, police on a charge of murdering Maggie Legg, of Swindon.

Bignall went to a police sergeant and made a statement. The officer went with him to a field, and there found a woman's body with the head nearly severed. Bignall was arrested and later handed over to the Wiltshire police, as the field is just over the county boundary.

LOOKING FOR WORK AT 106 YEARS OLD

Venerable Essex Woman Was Housekeeper to Man, 94

CRITIC OF GIRLS

Remembers Queen Victoria Being Crowned—Never Had Photo Taken

Mrs. B. Pennick, of Tiptree, Essex, a woman who was born three years after the battle of Waterloo, and has worked hard all the days of her life, has lost her job, and from no fault of her own. She has spent her 106th birthday in bed.

Aunty Pennick was housekeeper to William Herrington, a carpenter of ninety-four.

He was a hale young fellow. For the last twenty-six years old Herrington had jogged along splendidly in the care of Aunty Pennick. Every Sunday he would say:

"Do you think I can go to church today?"

"Church? Of course," Mrs. Pennick would reply. "Here, let me put your collar on." She would fix him up, put on her bonnet, and 94 and 10½ would amble off down the village street to divine service.

A COLLAPSE.

But a little while back old Herrington took to ailing. Then his heart would not stay the pace. A fortnight ago Aunty Pennick sat up till the early hours tending him. As dawn broke the old man gave up the struggle. Aunty tottered into the next house, woke up the neighbors, and collapsed. It was a great shock to her.

They took Aunty away in a bath-chair to her great-niece's house further along the street.

I saw the cheerful old soul in bed today. Before I was ushered in warning was administered.

"Don't mention her age, whatever you do. Aunty can't abide it. It's not to go even on her tombstone when she dies."

Aunty shook my hand and soliloquized sadly on the death of "Bill." Her face was wrinkled, and she could see me with difficulty, but she heard fairly well. Her hair, not yet entirely white, was gathered in a neat plait. Many a bachelor buck of thirty-five or forty would have envied Aunty her head of hair.

She had a message to give: "If you want to enjoy life," she said, "bed early, rise early, work hard."

"Oh, I've worked, when all Essex was nothing but corn, picking stones in the fields at 8d. a day. Haymaking times I got twopence a day more. I had to pay my rent and live out of that.

HER DREAD.

"An' now I'm out o' work I don't want to go to no workhouse," the dear old thing muttered. "I've lived hard and worked hard, and why should I go to the workhouse?"

"That's her one dread," whispered her great-niece. "But, of course, we should see to that."

Aunty Pennick married when she was twenty. She helped her husband keep the village public house in Tiptree, the New Times. That was back in early Victorian times.

"I remember the Queen being crowned," she said. "It was just about the time I was married; a bit before, perhaps.

"You'll be up again soon, Aunty," I said.

"Please God," she replied, "and able to do a bit."

Aunty has never had whims about food. Plain puddings, bread and cheese and butter, and if there was a glass of ale with it, so much the better.

"What do you think of the modern girl, Aunty?"

"Can't abide 'em. I never smoked in my life. We didn't do that in my time."

I asked for a photograph.

"Never had one took," she said. "And I ain't going to have myself took. Such fancies! Whatever should I look like?"

ROYAL CHRISTMAS CARDS UNIQUE

Pilgrim Fathers' Incident on King's Greeting—Works of Art

The King's Christmas card this year depicts Charles I. and the Pilgrim Fathers. Charles is shown granting, in January 1629, the charter necessary to raise the little Puritan settlement of Massachusetts to the status of a colony. There is also the quotation from Shakespeare, "The Heavens give safety to your purposes."

The Queen's card shows a Sphinx and a Pyramid past which Mary and Joseph are travelling. Beneath is the quotation from St. Matthew: "He took the young child and his mother..... and departed into Egypt."

The Prince of Wales's card shows the ancient ceremony of the Doge of Venice casting a ring into the sea—the wedding of the Adriatic. Princess Mary Viscountess Lascelles's card portrays the escape of Mary Queen of Scots from Loch Leven Castle. Accompanying it is the quotation: "An eye to see the sunny side of every chance and change that time may bring."

Judge Says £1,000 Income Not Too Much for Baron

A petition by the trustees of the estate in bankruptcy of Lord Moncrieff, of Tullibole Castle, Kinrossshire, asking the Court of Session, Edinburgh, to say that the £1,000 a year Lord Moncrieff enjoyed from the estate was too much has failed.

It was stated that he had been a partner in a school at Bridge of Allan, Perthshire, but the venture was unsuccessful and was dissolved. His liabilities were about £5,000, and claims of the larger creditors were mainly in connection with the school.

Lord Murray, giving judgment, said that Lord Moncrieff, in view of his age, 52, and absence of special qualifications, had little chance of earning his own living. His rank, social position, and responsibilities towards the heir to the title also militated against such a course. He could not, therefore, say that £1,000 a year was excessive.

JUST TWO HITS FOR TOOLROOM

Carruthers Was Wild, But He Fanned Eight In Another Quaker Victory.

TWO GAMES OFF.

The Triple Links were short a few players last night so the game went to the Teachers by default. The Oddfellows picked up a few men and borrowed two spare men from the Teachers and gave an exhibition of how the game should not be played. The game quickly developed into a running race, the Triple Links winning by four laps. The final score was 22-18, Munroe and Dearborn of the Teachers played against their teammates and turned in a game such as they had never played for their own team. Dearborn was the fielding star of the night and made several spectacular catches in left field.

The second game scheduled, Engineers vs. C.N.R., was called off, as neither side had a full team on hand.

QUAKERS WIN AGAIN.

Quaker Oats added another to their long string of victories when they slammed Abbie Rose's offerings for 15 hits and 11 runs while Carruthers held the Toolroom to 2 lonesome hits and 1 run. The Quaker star was unbeatable with men on bases, getting out of several bad holes after walking batsmen.

Gerbault will be delayed here for several days making necessary repairs.

WANT MORE TICKETS.

Queen's Students Snapped Up Allotment For Saturday's Game.

KINGSTON, Ont., November 19.—Coach Bill Hughes stated this morning that he did not yet know who would take the place of "Red" McKelvey at middle wing next Saturday against the Hamilton Tigers. He has had Brown, Airth and Norris working in McKelvey's place and will continue to work them until the last minute and he will pick Brown or Airth and possibly Norris for the middle wing position.

The last ticket for the Toronto game was sold here last night just before the Athletic Board office closed and a despatch was got away to Toronto asking for more tickets, but whether these will come or not remains to be seen. The demand for tickets this morning was very heavy and the authorities are hoping that Toronto will accede to the request for more pasteboards. Over four hundred student tickets have been sold to students already and the remainder are being taken up fast.

OTTAWA LIKES HOOLEY SMITH

Canadian Olympic Star Fits Into Senator's Front Line in Workouts.

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—(By Canadian Press).—Daily practices are whipping the Ottawa professional hockey team into first class shape for the opening of the local season which is scheduled to take place on Monday night when Calgary Tigers invade the capital for the first of a two-game exhibition series. While their national hockey league schedule does not open for a few days subsequent to the Calgary set of games, the Senators will be in great shape for the exhibition turn.

The work of "Hooley" mith has the rail-birds sitting up and taking notice. Smith swung right into line with Denneny and Nighbor as if they were old team mates, and his smooth style of play has found popular approval. Denneny, sharpshooter of the team for the past three years, appears headed for another great season. Nighbor is back in his old form, while Clancy and Finnegan furnish two very capable relief men. George Boucher and Edwin Corman are named as the regular defence with Lionel Hitchman as relief man.

The signing of Elex Connell, formerly with Shamrocks in city league, has caused no end of comment. What will be done with Joe Ironstone remains to be seen, as it has been announced that Connell will be first string goaler. Ironstone may return to Sudbury and remain amateur, it is rumored.

GENEVA PROTOCOL IS NOW SCRAPPED

Conservative Administration Will Repudiate the Protocol Signed By MacDonald.

LONDON, Nov. 19th.—By Lloyd Allen, United Press Staff Correspondent).—The Geneva protocol is scrapped the Daily Telegraph declared today, following the announcement that the British government had asked the League of Nations to postpone discussion of the security and disarmament protocol adopted recently by the League assembly.

What the Baldwin Government actually requested was that the council, when t meets at Rome December 8 leave the proposed pact off its agenda. The Daily Telegraph interprets this as an indication that the Conservative adminstration will repudiate the protocol signed by Ramsay Macdonald The Daily Telegraph points out that if the Geneva protocol is scrapped the way is opened for American leadership in a new move for world disarmament None of the other morning news papers comment on the subject.

Dissatisfaction on the part of the Dominions with provisions of the protocol prescribing use of the British fleet as a cure-all for international ills is believed one of the chief reasons for the governments request.

VETERANS HOLD OWN THIS YEAR

Johnson, Peckinpaugh, Cobb, Vance and Others Disprove Old Adage of Youth.

That youth will be served is an old adage in sport.

It failed to hold good in major league baseball last season.

The veteran Walter Johnson, oldest pitcher in the big show, emerged from the world series, after having failed in his first two starts.

Washington's two aged southpaws as baseball goes, George Mogridge and Tom Zachary, saved the series for the Senators by their rather unexpected superb pitching.

About five years ago the New York Yankees cut loose with Mogridge—figured he was through. They have regretted the deal that sent him to Washington many times.

With Walter Johnson, the veteran Peckinpaugh at shurt for Washington carried off most of the series honors. While Peckinpaugh didn't win the series, his batting and fielding kept the Senators from being beaten before the seventh game arrived.

In the recent world series the veterans of the game were very much in evidence. True, the youthful Lindstrom played remarkably well at third for the Giants, and the recruit Marberry shone as relief pitcher for Washington.

Incidentally, Mc Kid manager, Stanley Harris, prevailed over the old master, John McGraw. Yet the veterans, Johnson and Peckinpaugh, stood out.

What was true of the world series, holds good for the regular playing season!

Playing his twentieth season in the majors, Ty Cobb had one of the best years of his career.

Despite advanced age and the managerial burdens of a club that was a disappointment, Tris Speaker played his usual brilliant game in the field and at the bat.

In the National League, Dazzy Vance, far from being a youngster, was the leading pitcher of that organization. It was a dozen years back that Vance got his first major league trial with the New York Yanks and failed.

Then there was "Rabbit" Maranville, a veteran as ball players go, yet he was one of the best second basemen in the majors last year. Shifted from short to second to make room for Wright, he fitted in perfectly.

Each major league uncovered some star youngsters like Cuyler, Coombs, and the like, yet the veterans like Cobb, Speaker, Collins, Johnson and the rest held their own. Baseball is not a survival of the youngest.

Mars Cassidy Has Sent American Thoroughbreds Scurrying From the Post in More Than 50000 Races and Is Still at It.

MARS CASSIDY AND A FACE-TO-FACE VIEW OF A FIELD GETTING AWAY FROM THE POST

There are champions and champions. Mars Cassidy is the holder of an unsual championship. Cassidy has started more races than any other man in the country, possibly in the world.

Cassidy has sent the thoroughbreds scurrying away from the post in more than 50,000 races and is still an active figure on the big tracks of the country.

Cassidy is considered the best starter in the business. It is important that the horses get away from the post in something approximating military precision. Many a race has been ruined by a bad start.

Cassidy has fewer of these against his name than any starter on the turf. That is why he is called the game's champion starter.

JURY STRESSES

and that he had been with him about five minutes before the accident. They were walking down the track when Crough reached out and took hold of a step on one of the cars, tripping and falling under the train. He said he did not try to catch the train but just touched a step as it was going past.

Mr. Strickland: "Do the boys in your district jump on the trains much."

Witness: "They used to do it nearly every Saturday."

Crough was knocked down about six or seven feet from Romaine street and was carried a short distance in the direction of the station. When the train had passed I yelled to a man in the caboose and the train stopped a short ways up the track. I have seen him ride on a train once before."

Many Stolen Rides

Vincent Chouinard, 249 Princess street, was on the west side of George a short distance from where the accident took place.

"I saw Fergus take hold of the train and go under. He was not quite up to the corner when he fell. He often told me about stealing rides on trains. I have often seen boys catch on trains on this track."

John Deannard, sergeant of the local police force was on the corner of George and Romaine when the accident occurred. He said he saw the boy fall under the train.

George Wheeler, constable of local police force, saide he received word of the accident and arrived on the scene about 2.10 p.m. I found out that the boy lived at 27 Park street south and then I 'phoned Dr. T. W. H. Young, the coroner

Mr. Strickland:—"How far had the boy been carried by the train, after he fell."

Body Cut in Two

Mr. Wheeler:—It didn't look to me as if he had been carried at all. The body had been cut in two and was lying about 3 feet from the edge of the sidewalk on George street."

Dr. G. S. Cameron said that when he arrived at the scene of the tragedy the body was lying on the track and was separated about the middle.

Jorris Mowery, 287 Wescott street was on the west side of George, at the time of the accident. She saw the accident, saw Fergus Crough coming down the track and saw him fall between the cars. She said that she had never seen him riding cars before, but that she had seen other boys.

Speed was Slow

H. R. Guist, rear brakeman of Canadian National train extra 2599 west, said the train was travelling about six miles an hour at the time of the accident. He said that trains coming into the city were not allowed to go over 10 miles an hour. He never seen the boy until after the train stopped. He saw the lady in the standing coach wave her hand and he applied the brakes and stopped the train as soon as possible.

Mr. Young:—"Have you noticed boys jumping on trains before."

"Yes, we have been troubled considerably by boys stealing rides."

William Gillespie, brake man, said he had had seven years experience on the railroad and that the train was travelling between 7 and 8 miles per hour. He didn't see the boys before or at the time of the accident."

Train of Forty Cars

Harry McCabe, conductor of the train, said there were forty cars on the train. He was standing on the top of a car near the front end and that he did not notice any boys near the track.

Mr. Strickland:—"How far was the train passed George and Romaine streets when the train stopped?"

Mr. McCabe: — "About two or three car lengths."

Mr. Strickland:—"How many cars passed over the body."

Mr. McCabe:—"I think it would besafe in saying three or four."

"Did you examine the wheels of the car."

"Yes there was blood on some of them."

John Milchrest, engineer on No. 2599 west, did not see any children on the track. He was looking out of the right hand side of the cab. I did not know anything about the accident until I reached the station. The train was cut and I went on to the depot to get water and never knew of the accident until I reached there. The train was travelling about 7 or 8 miles an hour.

BAGDAD BUZZES WITH RUMORS ABOUT PASHA

...BAGDAD, Nov. 20.—Great interest has been aroused in Bagdad by the rumous that Seyyid Talib Pasha, a former aspirant to the Irak throne, who is reported to be now in Egypt, is to be allowed to return to his native land. Seyyid Talib was deported by the British authorities in 1921 on account of a speech at a public dinner in which he criticised the British policy of that time. He is known to have had serious designs on the kingship, and was probably the most serious rival that the then Emir, now King Feisal had to face.

Seyyid Talib was easily the most prominent political figure produced in this country by the stormy political life of the period. He was also a very good friend to the British, particularly in the days of 1920, and his deportation to Ceylon caused resentment at the time even within British official circles.

BUILDING NOT CHURCH MUST PAY SCHOOL TAX

Ruthenian Mission Used For Training Men For Priesthood.

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—The case of the Ruthenian Catholic Mission versus the Mundare School District of Alberta was dismissed without costs by the Supreme Court of Canada yesterday, the court being equally divided. The action was on a declaration that a certain building and the ground upon which it stands were exempt from taxation under the Alberta School Assessment Act, which exempts from assessment and taxation "any building used for church purposes, and not used for any other purpose, for hire or reward." Apart from the chapel, the building is used for the training of young men for the priesthood. The trial judge held that the building was not used for church purposes and dismissed the action. The judgment was confirmed by the Appellate Division.

SCARED BY LION—NO LYIN'

Sam never was so scared in all his life. Here he was, a modern Daniel in the lion's den, with old Nero right on top of him. But Nero, for some reason or other, didn't think much of Sam as food. Evidently he had just had his dinner. Sam, though, surely put in a couple of terrible minutes—they seemed like ages—until they opened the door and let him out. The picture was taken on the Gays Lion Farm at El Monte, Calif.

O.H.A. TEAM HAS FIRST WORKOUT

Intermediate Squad Spends Useful Hour on the Canal.

Taking advantage of the fact that the canal is frozen over, the Peterboro intermediate O.H.A. squad turned out last evening for an initial workout, probably the earliest practice on record. Nothing but skating was attempted but the outfit spent a useful hour in loosening up and if they could get three or four nights of that kind of going it would be a great help in preparing them for the S. P. A. series early next month. Those out last night were Joe Dwyer, Harold Parker, W. Ranger, Frank Collins, Ray Rose, "Shorty" Burgess and "Scotty" McPherson of last years's team Bert McLeod, last year with Varsity Seniors and Le Pierrie of Timmons. Other players available are Bailey, last year with St. Mary's Senior O.H.A. team and Russel Salmon of Bracebrjdge.

LAKEVIEWS ARE GUESTS OF HONOR

Entertained at a Banquet and Dance Last Evening.

The Lakeview ball club completed its post-championship social functions last evening when the players and officers of the club were the guests of Mr. Chas. Cheu at a most enjoyable banquet at the Class Cafe, followed by a dance at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cheu, Simcoe Street. It was a fitting wind-up to a most enjoyable season, during which the Lakeviews captured the Ontario junior championship for the second year in succession.

Those in attendance at the banquet were Manager L. W. Lebarr, Coach Walter Jackson, Harry Halliday, Frank Whitehouse, L. Lebarr, Jr., Johnny Marchen, Jim Johnston, Don. McIntyre, Fred. Ash, Harry Whitlow, Al. Griffin, Lambert Collins, Wilfred Lebarr, mascot, and F. D. Craig, president.

After a most excellent repast had been done ample justice to, Manager Lebarr thanked the players for their co-operation during the year, and presented each of them with a group photograph of the Lakeviews as a souvenir of a successful season.

The dance afterward was thoroughly enjoyed. Lakeview colors were prominent in the decorations, and the music and refreshments were both delightful, the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Cheu being much appreciated.

TORONTO TEAM HERE SATURDAY

Humberside To Play Local C. I. in Sudden Death Semi-final Game.

Rugby fans will be glad to hear that the Humberside Collegiate team of Toronto, the Queen City winners, have been ordered to play a sudden death fixture with the Peterboro Collegiate at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon. This will be a semi-final game in the Interscholastic series, and as the winner will go into the finals, probably against Hamilton Collegiate, the battle should be the hardest fought of the season.

Three seasons in succession the Peterboro students have been eliminated from the race by the Toronto representatives, but now that the local crew have won Eastern Ontario honors for the fourth year, Coach Browne and his squad are hopeful of overcoming the Queen City Collegians and landing into the finals.

The team is in good shape, coming through a hard battle at Kingstone last Saturday without casualties, and if they are beaten by Humbersides it will not be because the players are not in the best of condition.

Saturday's game should attract the biggest crowd of the season. The fine showing of the Collegiate crew has won the admiration of the Rugby fans, while the game itself has made an impression upon people who hitherto knew nothing about football as played by the Collegiate teams. With Toronto's best interscholastic crew stacked against the garnet and grey, the prettiest struggle of the year will be the result.

Both teams will be at full strength and everything points to a memorable tussle between two sturdy, well-trained young teams.

CANDIDATES GATHER.

Meeting of Boy Electors Was Held Last Evening In Cobourg.

COBOURG Nov. 20.—A most interesting meeting of the boy electors of Cobourg was held in the Methodist Sunday School Hall, last evening, about sixty boys and leaders in all being present. The occasion was marked by the presence of the West and East Northumberland and Cobourg candidates for the Fourth Ontario Older Boy's Parliament.

Olaf Snelgrove of Camborne, has been elected by acclamation in West Northumberland and Gordon Lapp of Brighton, in East Northumberland. But in Cobourg there will be a real contest for there are no less than four live wire candidates in the field. They are Clifford Earl, Jim Forbes, Lyle Sleeman and Hubert Harris. All delivered interesting and convincing campaign speeches. Olaf Snelgrove was the next speaker and he was followed by Gordon Lapp, who is one of three candidates for the Premiership of Parliament. He spoke at some length on what the Parliament expects of the members-elect and then on his own platform.

The meeting was presided over by Jack Hutton, pretor of Cobourg Tuxis Square, and an address of welcome to the candidates was given by Percy Climo, who represented Cobourg in the Parliament last year.

CRISIS OF CAREER.

New York Police Commissioner Faces Supreme Court Investigation.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Police Commissioner Enright is facing the crisis of his career, charged by Democratic aldermen on Tuesday with maintaining "special service," which they say is a little more than organized opportunitly for Gray. He now faces Supreme Court investigation of his conduct in the office investigation which may not only deprive him of his portfolio, but take from the Democratic party the power it has wielded in New York City for the last seven years. The charges were made by Aldermen Peter J. McGuinness and James F. Kiernan, of Brooklyn, and Edward J. Sullivan of Manhattan.

WINTER FAIR WILL OPEN MONDAY NEXT

Over Thirty Booths Have Been Requisitioned—Dance Each Evening.

The Kiwanis Winter Fair, which will hold sway in the Market Hall from Monday to Thursday evening, inclusive, of next week, promises to be a very interesting event. Already all the space for the thirty or more booths has been requisitioned, and arrangements are going ahead at full speed for four days of fun, frolic and entertainment.

The exhibits in the various sections will include a wide range. Members of the Kiwanis Club are connected with a variety of undertakings in the city, and articles sold or manufactured in the various establishments with which they are identified will be on view. The decorations and arrangement of the different booths will doubtless be of the kind that strike the eye and captivate the imagination. The Kiwanians have the reputation of going into everything with a degree of enthusiasm and co-operation that makes for success in any undertaking, and they are not letting the grass grow under their feet on this occasion. Everyone attending the Kiwanis Fair is assured of a real good time.

A large space has been reserved for the dance, which will take place each evening, with an excellent orchestra to provide the music. There will also be games of skill going on at all times. A tea-room will be in charge of the ladies, who also supervise the sale of home-made cooking and candy. Three very worth-while prizes will be given in connection with admission tickets sold each evening, the lucky trio on each occasion drawing a souvenir of their visit to the big Kiwanis Fair.

OBJECT TO O.T.A.

Sturgeon Falls Town Council Orders Chief Not To Enforce O.T.A.

STURGEON FALLS, Ont., Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—If the Chief of police of Sturgeon falls accepts the recommendation of the town council, he will refuse to enforce Ontario temperance Act here. Council with regular meeting passed resolution last night as follows.

"That in view of the fact that residents of the town of Sturgeon Falls, according to the last referendum are not in favor of the Ontario Temperance Act, and that our constables are put to extra duty to enforce the said Act, that the chief of police be instructed to enforce the said law and not do any provincial work in this connection and that a copy of this motion be sent to the Attorney General."

In the plebiscite held on October 23 last, Sturgeon Falls electors voted 1070 for government control against 109 in favor of the continuation of the Ontario Temperance Act.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

PARTY UNION.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir: General elections cost a great deal. They mean that every man, woman and child is taxed 50 cents for the expenses of an election, to say nothing of the expenses of the candidates. Now I would suggest that all parties join as denominations are doing. The original idea was not for the much greater glory of God but to save expense, and the same argument applies to political parties. Let the Tories, Grits, Progs., U.F.O., etc., all join and make one great united party. It would save so much money that could be used for other purposes that it is wonderful. Differences of opinion are foolish anyhow. Aren't we all working for one object, the good of the country? Then, how can there be so many differences of opinion? Let us learn from Church Union and let the Unionists learn from the parties. Let there be one voice only.

READER.

Editor, The Examiner:

May I take this opportunity to congratulate you upon the efforts you have put forth to arouse the City Council to the desirability of providing a toboggan slide for the citizens of Peterboro'.

I am sure it must have been a disappointment to very many young people to learn that the construction of the slide had again been postponed by the council for another year, this time the excuse being that the Parks Department had spent all their money.

While this is to be regretted, it is not as bad as would first appear, for I am told that other departments will have a surplus, and that it has been the custom for one department which had spent all its money to use some of the surplus of another department for its needs. This expedient does not appear to have been suggested in this instance.

It is not necessary that I should enumerate the many reasons why this slide should be built as soon as possible, for you have placed them before the public in your editorials so much better than I could ever hope to do, except perhaps, to say that it is the presence or absence (as the case may be) of such recreational facilities in a city, that determine to a large extent, whether or not the young people become "boosters" or "knockers" of the city in which they live.

It cannot, I think, be denied that so large a number of us enjoy this healthful sport so much, that every winter we create a very serious danger on the city hills with our toboggans, and yet there is no other place for us to go, and many people are becoming disgusted with the manner in which our Council has consistently refused to shoulder the responsibility of providing some better place, where without danger to pedestrians, we may indulge our love for outdoor sports to our hearts' content.

PETERBOROUGH AMONG LEADERS

Building Permits in Ten Months Increase $120,000 Over Last Year.

FOURTH IN LIST.

Peterborough is still in the leading class for building permits in Ontario, compared with last year. The increase in the city this year is $120,388 in the ten months past.

Only three cities in the province are ahead of Peterborough in the ten months' increase. They are Kingston, Sault Ste. Marie and Stratford.

Only five other cities show any increases in this period last year. They are Chatham, Fort William, Niagara Falls, Smiths Falls and St. Thomas, all with smaller increases than Peterborough.

Out of fifty cities reported in all Canada, twenty-three show increases in the period from January 1 to October 31, while 27 show decreases ranging from a few thousand dollars in the smaller cities to seven million dollars in Toronto.

As a whole, eastern cities are still $8,000,000 behind last year's figures, although the spirit in September and October went a long way toward cutting down the margin. Western cities are ahead of the 1923 figures by $317,859, and although it is a small lead it spells progress. There are indications that this winter will see a great deal of new construction launched west of the Great Lakes.

WASHED OVERBOARD.

90 Mile Gale Lasted For 21 Hours on the Atlantic.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Bringing four injured passengers, the Cunard liner Aurania docked yesterday with a story of severe buffeting in the cyclonic disturbance of November 12th, which washed a man overboard on the steamship Adriatic and forced the America to pour oil on the troubled Atlantic.

Captain Reginald V. Peel described the storm as the worst of his career. It lasted 21 hours, and the wind raged at 90 miles an hour while the ship fought the terrific sea.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL.

UP-TO-THE-MINUTE COMEDY OF THE MODERN GIRL: "THE DANGEROUS BLONDE" AT ROYAL.

Advance notices received describe "The Dangerous Blonde" as a riot of hilarious thrills, romance and action, swirling around the cabaret and society life of Gay New York. Some indiscreet love letters, written by her father, start the trouble, and her devastating wink and dimple did the rest. Laura La Plante will be remembered locally for her clever work in "Sporting Youth" and Excitement.

The story of Laura La Plante is one which is interesting to the countless thousands of girls everywhere who dream of success in motion pictures.

Miss La Plante, star of "The Dangerous Blonde," has been in pictures three years. During that time she has never stopped working hard and has found opportunity in small ways all the time.

It might be said of this newest Universal star that she has never met with a "big opportunity." That is, constantly alert to the possibilities of her work, she has found so many tiny chances and utilized such a large proportion of them that her rise has been gradual and constant rather than a sudden meteoric jump. She was signed by the Universal Pictures Corporation a few months ago to star in feature productions over a long term, after she had played perhaps thirty unfeatured leading roles for that organization.

She started as an "extra" three years ago as much from necessity as from artistic ambition. She wanted to achieve success in some way, and family financial reverses made it imperative that she go to work in some capacity. She never found "extra" work extremely distasteful, because she saw in every day's work some little way in which she could bring herself more and more to the attention of directors.

Finally, Universal put her in one reel comedy leads, then two reel westerns, and eventually into leading roles of five-reel features. Her last leading role was with Reginald Denny in "Sporting Youth," and following this she was made a star.

There was nothing sudden about it—she simply worked consistently for three years, had talent and beauty, and learned to take advantage of every twist of fate, especially in many of the Hoot Gibson productions.

Supporting her in this production, which Robert F. Hill directed from Hulbert Footner's Argosy Magazine story, "A New Girl in Town," are Edward Hearn, Margaret Campbell, Eve Sutherland, Philo McCullough, Frederick Cole and Arthur Hoyt.

Hill also directed her first starring vehicle, "Excitement."

SPECIAL PRIZES FOR KIDDIES AT ROYAL SATURDAY MATINEE

Another assortment of valuable prizes will be given the children on Saturday matinee this week. An Andy Gump comedy, "Oh! What a Day!", William Duncan in "The Fast Express," a Canadian Travelog, and "The Dangerous Blonde" compose a programme that will delight the kiddies as well as the grown-ups.

DESIGNS ALL HER OWN GOWNS

Mae Murray, famous for the luxurious gowns she wears before the camera, designs all of her own costumes. Then she enlists the aid of leading coutourieres in Paris and New York to execute her designs in dainty materials. In her latest Metro picture, "Mademoiselle Midnight," which comes to the Royal Theatre on Monday, she appears in the prologue, wearing the hoop shirts and dainty furbelows and laces of the period of Napoleon III in France, and, in the main story, as a modern Mexican girl, wearing a wide variety of gowns of Spanish and French design, the last word in new fashions.

AT THE REGENT.

"THE LONE WOLF" AS BIG FILM HAS TWO OF WORLD'S BEST STARS

Dorothy Dalton and Jack Holt Head Marvelous Cast of Stage and Screen Favorites.

Louis Joseph Vance wrote one of the world's best sellers in "The Lone Wolf," and his amazing and thrilling adventures wherein, one Michael Lanyard, regarded as the most daring and skilful of all international crooks, were read and re-read by thousands and thousands of fiction lovers. "The Lone Wolf" has been transformed into a powerful screen story by S. E. V. Taylor, who personally directed a phenomenal cast, headed by the famous stars, Dorothy Dalton and Jack Holt.

In the supporting cast appear Wilton Lackeye, Tyrone Power, Charlotte Walker, Lucy Fox, Robert T. Haines, Edouard Durant, Gustav Von Seyffertitz, Alphonse Ethier, Paul McAllister and William Tooker.

As a novel, "The Lone Wolf" won instant popularity everywhere and its pages of exciting adventure and absorbing romance are admirably fitted for picturization.

The photoplay action centers largely in Paris and in Washington. Jack Holt has the title role. Dorothy Dalton appears as a secret service operative, but the identity of this character is revealed only in the closing scenes. With wild chases after criminals, amazing airplane scenes and thrilling encounters and a love story threading its way through the tale, the plot combines everything the most exacting movie audience could desire.

It's a smashing big film and cleverly played by the most competent cast of stars ever assembled. Marvelous direction is due to the great personal work of S. E. V. Taylor.

AT THE GRAND.

STETSON'S "UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" COMPANY

To anyone who wants a chance to prove that human nature is always the same no better opportunity could have been offered than the Stetson "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company, which will hold the stage at the Grand Opera House, for two nights with Saturday matinee, opening on Friday, November 21st.

Everybody will cry when Little Eva dies, just as they did in the days of our wouth, just as they have been doing ever since, in every stage of its production from the rather crude small town performance, which is our first memory, up to the elaborate and mammoth production of the present day Stetson organization.

"Uncle Toms Cabin" is always good because everyone expects it to be. To those who have seen it many times it will bring back memories of the first Topsy and their wonder at the girl who just "growed", to the younger ones who have never seen it, it will give them the chance to determine whether their parents have correctly informed them.

One cannot help but wonder why it is that "Uncle Tom's Cabin" always proves a drawing card, yet there is nothing so very wonderful about it when once the plot and presentation of this realistic drama is taken into consideration. We have read "Uncle Toms' Cabin" as many as twenty times, and always with absorbing interest; and so, to, we have seen it presented on the stage forty times and it seems as if we enjoyed the last better than any previous representation. There is something about the plot of "Uncle Toms' Cabin", a combination of drama, comedy, humor and pathos, all blended so naturally and realistic, that the audience lives through it all, become part of the players on the stage, and have their sympathies aroused to a degree that makes them feel as if they were witnessing a real drama in every day life.

AT THE CAPITOL.

James Kirkwood and Alma Rubens Do Some of Best Work of Careers in "Gerald Cranston's Lady"

William Fox has taken Gilbert Frankau's vivid story, "Gerald Cranston's Lady", and presented it as a photoplay. The finished product is at the Capitol today, Friday and Saturday.

James Kirkwood and Alma Rubens head a cast of unusual merit in this screen version of the celebrated novel and Emett Flynn, the director, who made "The Man Who Came Back" and other well known Fox pictures, has succeeded in transferring to the screen all the color and spirit of the story.

"Gerald Cranston's Lady" deals with a titled lady, who, impoverished sells herself in marriage to an ambitious financier, Gerald Cranston The union is purely one of convenience. Cranston using his newly found position to further his business interests and Lady Cranston using his money to maintain her position in society. But fate, intervenes and Cranston is dashed upon the rocks of business disaster, mainly through the double-crossing of Gordon Ibbotsleigh, a man who has loved Lady Cranston and whom Cranston had trusted. It is then in a big gripping climax, that Gerald Cranston and his lady find love as together they face the humiliation of poverty.

Mr. Kirkwood and Miss Rubens do some of the best work of their enviable careers in "Gerald Cranston's Lady." Walter McGrail and Marguerite De La Motte in the roles of Ibbotsleigh and Angela, who tries to win Cranston from his loveless wife, are very convincing. Others in the cast are J. Farrell MacDonald, Lucien Littlefield, Spottiswood Aitkin, Templar Saxe, Richard Headrick, Eric Mayne and Lydia Knott.

MANY THEATRE PARTIES FORMED TO SEE "THE SEA HAWK" AT THE CAPITOL

Judging form requests for reservations of Loge Chairs, at the Capitol Theatre next week, Sabatini's great story will do record business in Peterboro. Many of the reservations have been made by those living outside of Peterboro. The first two rows of Loges have been reserved on Tuesday night, for a party from Millbrook while other towns are represented also. After seven capacity weeks in Toronto, "The Sea Hawk" is now touring Ontario. By special contract the Capitol will be able to offer it in Peterboro at popular prices. It will be recalled that the admission in Toronto ranged up as high as $1.50. The prices for the Peterboro engagement are: Nights—Loges, 65 cents; orchestra, 50 cents; balcony, 35 cents; children, 25 cents. Matinees—Adults, 35 cents; children, 20 cents. It will be shown at the Capitol, the first four days of next week, starting Monday.

"In every woman's life there are three men; the man she could have married, the man she should have married, and the man she married. Sometimes her husand is all three, but that, as Kipling says, is another story."

These two sentences constitute the pithy introduction and has its final showing this evening. "In Every Woman's Life" is, as described, "a real melodrama." It is full of thrills, mainly of the sentimetal variety, and smashing action. And a paralytic is its main figure. Probably the outstanding element in the production is the acting of Marc McDermott as Count Coti Desanges of the Chateau Desanges, in France, a man who can "see, hear and think" and do nothing else. However, the picture abounds in vivid characterizations. M. C. Levee, its producer, evidently believes in making every factor in his picture, no matter how small, count for something and every actor do his work. Even the butler gives a temperamental characterization. Everybody in this picture is fearfully in earnest, except, possibly, the villian, "Good Luck" Carlton, whose sang froid remains undisturbed, even to the last moment when, with a bullet through his heart, he reaches painfully for his hat in an effort to make a dignified exit.

Virginia Valli is the heroine, Sally Lansdale, one of those actresses who seem to be irritatingly in the wrong in every situation that she appears in, and yet does some real good acting. She is an exotic young thing who runs away with the wrong man, accepts another man's name as a protection when she is told that the first gentleman already possesses a wife, and then mourns broken-heartedly on the shoulder of a third lover while her paralyzed husband injured in an atempt to save his rival, lies inert in the next room. However, it is an entertaining picture, swift-moving from start to finish, and makes an excellent study in screen art that has to do with registering impressions by means of facial expression.

The comedy is a real laugh-producer, with Jimmie Adams in "Why Hurry?" one of those mixed-up situations in which a vacation-seeking family becomes involved in a hopeless tangle of lost tickets and a lost baby and a forgetful parent.

Ladies Prizes—1st, Half doz Sherbets, Mrs. G. Benton; 2nd, Salt and Pepper Cruet, Mrs. L. Wager.

At the conclusion refreshments were served kindly provided by the Ladies'. The Committee desire to express to them their thanks for the supply of cake and refreshments, and also, to the many patrons who were in attendance. The Committee also intimates that a third prize will be given at the next party if there are twenty-five tables, or over.

CRUSHED BY BALE.

John Burfield Met With Accident While Working in Railway Freight Car.

John Burfield was injured this morning when unloading bales at the siding on the west side of Bethune street. It appears that while he was rolling a bale over the iron plate that forms a gangway between the car and the platform, the plate slipped and precipitated him and the bale to the ground. Persons who were passing on Simcoe street heard him groaning and rushed to his assistance. Great difficulty was experienced in lifting the bale, and Burfield collapsed, bleeding at the head, when finally released.

Dr. E. H. Wood was called by telephone by Alderman M. J. Maher, but on his arrival the injured man had been taken away.

Why is a thief called a jail-bird? —Because he's been a robin.

WEDDING BELLS

ZINSTON—WHITE.

A quiet wedding took place on Saturday evening, November 15th, at the Park street Baptist church parsonage, 493 George street south, when Emma White became the bride of Percy Zinston. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Norman R. McLeod. Mr. and Mrs. Zinston will reside in Peterboro.

OBITUARY.

WILLIAM GIBSON

COBOURG, Nov. 20.—The funeral took place this afternoon at Coldsprings of Mr. Wm. Gibson who died very suddenly on Sunday evening. He was a well known farmer and much respected in the district. He is survived by his wife, before her marriage, Miss Stevenson, by a daughter residing in Toronto, and by a son Norman Gibson of Plainville. The funeral, which was largely attended, was conducted by Rev. J. S. Ferguson, Baltimore. Interment was in Coldsprings Presbyterian Cemetery.

W. H. FLEMING

The death occurred on Monday, November 10th of W. H. Fleming, of Port Colborne, a former resident of Peterboro, and an associate at one time of Mr. F. C. Weber, in his drug business on Charlotte street. The late Mr. Fleming, who went from Peterboro, to Port Colborne in 1915, was the owner of the Port Colborne Book Store, and was one of the towns most respected citizens. His demise was due to an affection diagnosed as a tumour or cyst at the base of the brain. He was ill for only a few days and died in the Toronto General Hospital an hour after making the journey there from Port Colborne. The deceased is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Grace Irene Harvie of Peterboro, his parents Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Fleming of Kincardine two brothers one residing in Beaverton and two sisters Mrs. Neil McDonald of Kincardine and another at Windsor.

FERGUS CROUCH.

In the death of the late Fergus Crough as a result of a railway accident, he and his companion taking the shortest way home, by the track, playfully touched the passing train, and misfortunately he tripped and fell beneath it, four cars passing over his body, his face being scarcely scratched, which the family were so thankful to God for, to be able to see him in his coffin as though he died on his bed. Many thanks are extended to the undertakers in their skill and ability in the way the body was prepared. Deceased was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Crough, Park Street. He is survived by his father and mother, two brothers and five sisters — Cecil, of St. Paul, Minnesota; Mrs. H. J. Murphy, of St. Gregor, Sask.; Mrs. H. G. Greenwood, of Vancouver, B.C.; Clarence, Mary, Carrie and Blanche at home. The deceased was attending Sacred Heart School, and was in senior fourth grade, and was a very bright boy at school. He was a daily Communicant. He received Holy Communion on the morning of his death and sang in the choir at High Mass. His funeral took place on Monday morning at 9 o'clock to the Sacred Heart Church, where High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father O'Brien, attended by Rev. Fathers Butler, Finn and Maher. After Mass Rev. Father O'Brien spoke a few words on the life of Fergus Crough to take him as an example in attending to their duty and always be prepared for death. The funeral then proceeded to St. Martin's Cemetery, Ennismore, for interment, the pall-bearers being: Ray Bacon, Bobbie Creighton, Joe Collins, Emmett Moher, Joe O'Toole and Harold Grady.

Peterborough Garbage Collector Had Narrow Escape This Morning From Wheels of Train

When the immortal Steve Brodie jumped off the Brooklyn Bridge, and took the chance that has been so often referred to, he started something. They are still doing it. And the peculiar part of the thing is that no one knows who will or will not take a chance, given the opportunity. Who, for instance, would imagine that the desire to take a chance would ever barbor in the staid soul of a garbage collector? There is probably just as much romance about the job of garbage-collecting as in many another task. Probably many an interesting tale is bound up in the odds and ends that come the way of the gentlemen who help to keep the city neat and tidy, but still it seems like a responsible position that would negative the idea of any of its followers being at all inclined to risk life and limb to gain a stray second or two of time. And it doesn't seem to be a job that requires undue haste, either. Days may come and days may go, but garbage goes on forever. If the collector doesn't make all the rounds today, he is reasonably sure that there will be something to pick up on the morrow.

This morning the engineer of the 7.40 local C. P. R. train had a real jolt, when he applied his brakes just in time to avoid the slaughter of a perfectly good pair of horses and their driver, all attached to a garbage collecting cart making its rounds at that early moment. Coming leisurely along, the driver had the initial intention, apparently, of standing still and letting the train go by. Then an afterthought (usually a dangerous affair) struck him, and he whipped up his team. The engineer applied the brakes just in the fraction of time that was necessary to avoid another insertion in the obituary column this evening, and the relegation to the boneyard of two good aimals.

TRAFFIC JAMS NUMEROUS.

New Parking System in Paris Caused Much Confusion.

PARIS, November 20. — United Press. — Traffic jams were numerous to-day as chauffeurs with poor memories for dates were bewildered by the application of a new parking rule.

Automobiles are to park on the even numbered side of the street on eveh number days, and on the odd side on odd days.

Few motorists were able to remember the day of the month and confusion resulted.

Le Matin suggested that as a first aid to traffic, signs bearing the date should be hung on the policemen.

PRIVY COUNCIL HEARS ONTARIO HYDRO'S APPEAL

Application of Dominion Industrial Disputes Act to Toronto Commission is Issue.

NEARS CONCLUSION

Question Arose Out of Appointment of Arbitration Board in Wage Demand.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—Argument may conclude to-day in the appeal of the Toronto Hydro-Electric Commission before the judicial committee of the Privy Council from the decision of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of Ontario last April on the question whether a Dominion Statute "to aid in the prevention and settlement of strikes and lockouts in mines and industries connected with public utilities" (known as the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act) was within the powers of the Canadian Parliament. The case has been before their lordships for three days and if the case concludes today judgment is almost certain to be reserved.

The appeal is the outcome of the appointment of a board of Arbitration under Judge C. Snider of Hamilton, Ontario, to deal with a dispute between the Canadian Electrical Trades and Union and the Toronto hydro-electric commission and the appellate court held in its judgment that the Industrial Disputes Act was within the powers of the Dominion parliament.

A Wage Dispute

The petitioners manage the hydro electric system in Toronto and employ mechanics, workmen and others who are members of the Canadian Electrical Trades Union. In June, 1923, the business manager and financial secretary of the Toronto branch of the union applied to the Registrar for the appointment of a board under the Industrial Disputes Act, in connection with the dispute between the petitioners and the union concerning wages and working conditions. The petitioners declined to proceed under the Industrial Disputes Act, and in July, 1923, the Canadian Department of Labor established a board of conciliation and named its appointees.

Hydro's Contention

The petitioners refused to nominate anyone to the board on the ground that the act was not within the powers of the Dominion Parliament, and that in any case the government had no jurisdiction to apply the act to the Toronto Hydro-Electric Commission. Notwithstanding that protest the board decided to proceed with their investigation and the commission then brought action against the conciliation body claiming that it was acting without lawful authority. The action was tried before Mr. Justice Mowat who referred the matter to the appellate division.

In their appeal to the Privy Council the petitioners submitted that the Industrial Disputes Act was ultra vires the Canadian Parliament, and maintained that it interfered with their property and civil rights and also those of their employees. They claimed that they were a municipal institution within the province of Ontario and therefore were subject exclusively to the legislative authority of the province. Moreover, they asserted that there was no provision in the British North America Act which authorized the Federal Parliament of Canada to enact such a measure, and that even if it had been lawfully enacted it had no application to them.

Practically the same arguments were advanced by counsel representing the Attorney-General of Ontario as intervenant.

For Whole Dominion

For the respondents it was submitted that the statute is for peace order and good government in Canada as a whole and does not come within those classes of subjects assigned exclusively to the legislatures of the province of Canada. The statute is in relation to a matter of national importance the respondents argued and therefore is only with in the jurisdiction of the Dominion parliament.

Supporting the contention of the respondents counsel for the Dominion government submitted that the Industrial Disputes Act, being for the prevention of strikes and lockouts and the effective operation of same, is of national concern, affects the body politic of Canada and constitutes a problem in statesmanship within the sole competence of the central government.

MAPLES SACRIFICED TO WIDEN ROAD NEAR CITY

Splendid Row of 27 Lofty Trees on Park Street South Felled.

Work is proceeding in connection with the widening of the road at the extreme south of Park street.

In the course of operations twenty seven fine large maple trees, the smallest being about twelve inches through, and the largest about twenty-four inches through the butt end, are to be removed; these are being cut down to make more room. All tree lovers will regret their removal.

In connection with this work a camp is located at the corner of Howden avenue and Park street, consisting of two wooden shacks and two canvas tents, with a full complement of household uternsils, etc. The title of the camp is "Just married," according to a sign hanging outside.

FRENCH PRISON FOR WAR THIEF

German General Found Guilty of Stripping French Chateau of Valuables.

SENT THEM HOME

LILLE, France, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Found guilty by a French court martial of confiscating and shipping to Germany valuable properties from the Chateau he was occupying as headquarters in Northern France during the war, General Von Nathusius, a German commanding officer, was sentenced yesterday afternoon to a year's imprisonment and payment of the costs of the trial. The conviction was a vote of four to three.

General Von Nathusius, who a year ago was tried by default and sentenced to six years in prison on the same charges, was caught in French territory recently and brought to trial in person.

Three questions were put to the court martial. The first two concerned the alleged confiscation of cloaks, furs and clothing. A negative verdict of four against one was given on these two. The third question dealt with the confiscation of tableware. The court martial found the officer guilty on this charge by a vote of six against one, and refused to consider extenuating circumstances.

Nine witnesses were called but they were unable to give much testimony dealing with packing cases in which the general was accused of having packed chinaware, furs, carpets, women's hats and cloaks to send to his home in Coblenz. The officer representing the prosecution declared that the defendant left with far more baggage than he had when he arrived.

LASHES FOR INCEST

EDMONTON, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Twenty strokes of the lash and seven years' imprisonment in the Prince Albert Penitentiary was the sentence imposed on Fred. Krotz, a farmer of Brudenheim district, by Judge Taylor in the district court yesterday when the accused pleaded guilty to a charge of incest. The lashes will be distributed over the first two years.

CANADA SHARED CARNEGIE GIFTS FOR EDUCATION

Halifax University Received $600,000 During Fiscal Year of 1923-24.

ENDOWMENT GROWS

Income of Seven Millions Last Year—397 Applications for New Projects.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Details of assistance rendered in Canada during the 1923-24 fiscal year by the Carnegie Corporation are given in the treasurer's report issued Thursday.

The report shows that the Corporation paid $600,000 to the University of King's College, Halifax, N.S. This amount was voted King's College in 1922-23 but was not authorized until last year. The Corporation apportioned other funds in the Dominion during the year as follows:

University of Toronto, for research relating to insulin, $8,000; University of Alberta, insulin research, $10,000; Royal Canadian Institute for International Mathematical Congress, $5,000.

$15,000 to Newfoundland.

The Corporation granted Junior College, St. John's, Nfld., $15,000 for the establishment and maintenance of Junior College.

The report announced that "for reasons beyond our control plans for educational federation in the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland are moving forward but slowly."

More money was distributed by the Corporation during the last fiscal year than in any previous year. The sum was $12,948,619.10, and it reduced to $40,252,665.68 the outstanding obligations incurred by a three-year programme undertaken in 1923.

While in the fiscal year ended last October 1, the Corporation paid out more than it had in any previous year, it incurred new obligations, amounting to only $2,448,540.94—the smallest ever authorized in a twelve-month period.

397 Applications.

The report disclosed that the original endowment of $124,936,275.44 had mounted to $133,650,024.17 by October 1, 1923, and that income during the ensuing year was $7,397,714.13. The Corporation acted upon 397 applications for new projects aggregating $40,000,000 and granted only 68, of which 33 were renewals of grants made in former years. It was announced that the Corporation would undertake a series of special duties to determine how the increasing amount of leisure time enjoyed by the average American might best be employed. It was also announced that the Corporation henceforth would seek public participation in the deliberations of the institution and would request widespread advice upon educational policies in the making.

CITY WITH A SOUL LOWERS CURBS FOR INVALID GIRL'S WHEEL CHAIR

Boundaries of Her Little World Are Pushed Back by Sympathetic and Imaginative Mayor.

EVANSTON Ill., Nov. 21.—Crippled Hildur Lima's little world has grown—another street.

She has found a new bright flower blooming on an alien corner.

Theres' a bluejay nesting in that house just over the way once so far beyond traveling distance of her wheel chair.

Now there is sunshine in Hildur's life. To date it has not been much of a life. But Hildur, just 10, has made the most of it.

When little more than a baby an attack of infantile paralysis put her in her wheel chair. And the wheel chair couldn't go far away from her house except when somebody pushed it.

Mayor builds new Curbing Just for Her

But Hildur always has longed to see that world of hers—no matter how small—by herself.

To her it was a big world. There was that corner so near and yet so far that she played in her day dreams was Paris. Some day she would go to "Paris" by herself.

The ambition could have been achieved, if it was not for a nasty curb that dropped like an abyss into the intervening street.

Hildur played the street was the ocean. But no boats were at hand to ferry her across. Day after day she would propel herself to the brink. There she would sit and dream of "Paris", the corner port.

This sort had been going on for some time when Mayor Harry P.

Pearsons heard about it.

It's a City With a Heart.

"We'll build special curbings for Hildur," said the mayor. Have them made sloping and low so that she can cross easily."

And it was done.

"I'm just so tickled, I can scarcely say how glad I am," she says.

"Now I can see Paris by myself. Aren't people just too wonderful."

"No not too wonderful," Mayor Pearson replies. "Some don't do half enough for others. Many big cities are too big to remember that to each of their citizens is due a particular responsibility.

"They say some cities are cold. But Evanston is a city with a soul."

EFFECTS OF SETTLERS REACH HIGHER VALUE

Increase of $462,872 in Six Months of This Year From U. S.

OTTAWA, Nov. 21. — (Canadian Press). — An indication of the increase in the value of effects being brought into Canada by settlers from the United States is shown in the latest report of the Department of Trade and Commerce.

From April 1st to September 30th, 1924, settlers' effects to the value of $3,129,339 were brought from the United States into Canada, compared with $2,666,467 in the same period last year, an increase of $462,872, according to the latest report of the Department. In September of this year the value of settlers' effects brought into the Dominion by former residents of the United States was $541,123, compared with $461,519 in August, 1924, and $503,437 in September, 1923.

PRAISE FOR BALDWIN

Acts Imperially and Will Strengthen Empire Relations.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 21. — (Canadian Press cable, via Reuter's).—The Melbourne Argus yesterday said that Stanley Baldwin, Prime Minister of Great Britain, not only thinks Imperially, but he acts Imperially. His conference with the High Commissioners of the Dominions, it adds, will result in a strengthened intimacy from which both Great Britain and the other nations of the Empire will derive fresh inspiration.

CHARGE OF INFANTICIDE.

HULL, Nov. 21. — (Canadian Press).—Sarah McCastlin, of Low, Que., will stand her trial on a charge of infanticide, as a result of the death of an infant which she gave birth last Thursday, and for whose death the young woman was held criminally responsible by a coroner's jury.

IMMIGRANTS VICTIMS OF TAXICAB DRIVERS

VANCOUVER, B. C. Nov. 21.—Operating in the corridors outside the United States immigration officers here a number of taxicab drivers have been doing a good business promising to drive into the United States unsuspecting immigrants legally barred from entering that country because of immigration regulations, according to officials of the department.

Several of these men have been under surveillance for some time and two were caught in the act Wednesday, but escaped before the police arrived.

The victim is charged from $40 to $50, the United States officials declare and is then taken to a lonely spot at the border. He is left here, believing he is in the United States learning his mistake only when he walks into the arms of a patrol.

WEST HASTINGS FIGHT HUMMING

Murdock Offers to Resign if Recent Porter Rumor Substantiated.

MANY MEETINGS

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Nov. 21. — Hon. James Murdock, minister of labour, in the King administration, yesterday offered to retire from public life if a statement which it has been alleged has been made in the interest of the opposition candidate in the present by-election can be supported by one bit of evidence over the signature of an accredited official of the brotherhood of railway trainmen.

Meeting a large number of railroad men at the Canadian National terminal here Thursday in the interests of Mr. Hanna, Mr. Murdock was told that a statement had been circulated by Mr. Porter or some of his friends that there had been something wrong in Mr. Murdock's relation to the railway strike of 1910 or in his connection with the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

Hon. Mr. Murdock said: "My challenge is that if Mr. Porter can produce one tittle of evidence over the signature of any responsible officer of the organization concerned to such a statement if made I will retire from public life."

All Fronts Active.

Last night Mr. Meighen, Mr. Boys, Senator Bennett and Mr. Porter spoke at Stirling. Mr. Murdock spoke at Trenton along with J. C. Elliott, K.C., M.P. of London, Hon. Duncan Marshall and Mr. Hanna, while at Moira, Hon. H. R. Motherwell and Mr. Thos. Marshall spoke in Mr. Hanna's interest. At Monkroad school house Alex. McWhinney, M.P.P., and Thos. McMillan held forth and at Harold J. L. Haycock and Hon. T. A. Low delivered addresses.

Afternoon Meetings.

Yesterday afternoon Dr. Manion and Senator Bennett addressed the Liberal-Conservative women of Belleville at the great war veterans' hall. Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture, addressed a meeting at Moira last night on behalf of the Liberal candidate, Charles R. Hanna.

THE WEATHER.

The lowest the thermometer reached last night was 40 degrees; the lowest yesterday morning, 34 deg. These are high figures for the last half of November. Up to a day or so ago all west of Lake Superior had been in the grip of winter, but a change has taken place there, and much of the snow has disappeared. In this section of Ontario there has been a marked deficiency in the rainfall since the first of September, and it is probable that later on there will be an outcry of dry wells and shortage of water in the various streams.—W. GOVERNOR OF SUDAN SUCCUMBS TO BULLETS OF CAIRO GUNMEN

Major General Sir Lee Stack Died Last Night From the Wounds Inflicted During a Bold and Determined Street Attack on Wednesday.

BRITISH CABINET IN SPECIAL SESSION

CAIRO, Nov. 21. — (Canadian Press).—Major General Sir Lee Oliver Stack, governor-general of Sudan and Sirdar of the Egyptian army since 1919, has succumbed to the bullets of assassins. He died late last night in a Cairo hospital.

The Sirdar was attacked Wednesday by a group of men who failing to achieve their purpose with a bomb, opened fire on him with revolvers. General Stack was wounded in the abdomen, the hand and the foot, one of the bullets passing under the lung. From the first his condition was serious, and there was very slight hope this morning that he would recover. After an operation, performed Wednesday, he passed a fairly good night but the loss of blood was so great that two transfusions were necessary.

Died at Midnight.

He remained conscious until the afternoon, then a change for the worse occurred and he gradually slipped away, dying about midnight. Lady Stack, who had been induced over night to take a much needed rest, remained by her husband's bedside almost the entire day.

The whole country is profoundly shocked at the outrage, and the gravity of the situation is everywhere realized. The press denounces the crime in the strongest terms. The Zagloulist papers unanimously declare that Egypt's honor demands the discovery of the culprits and their exemplary punishment. Nothing, they assert, will be neglected "to wash away the bloody stain on the country's honor."

Thus far the assasins have not yet been traced, although several arrests have been made on suspicion.

LONDON AROUSED.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press).—The announcement from Cairo of the death of Major General Sir Lee Stack has aroused tense feeling in London. The British cabinet held a specially summoned council Thursday, probably for the purpose of discussing the outrage and the policy to be followed. At that time, however, the Sirdar had not succumbed to the wounds inflicted by assassins.

Although the King of Egypt and the Sudan authorities have taken a correct attitude, it is expected that British government will despatch a strong note insisting on prompt satisfaction for the assassination and guarantees for the cessation of anti-British propaganda.

PRINCE OF WALES' THANKS TO CANADA

President of Wembley Exhibition Congratulates Dominion on Display.

LONDON, Nov. 21.— (Canadian Press Cable.) — The Prince of Wales, president of the British empire exhibition, has written a congratulatory letter to the Canadian high commissioner, Hon. P. C. Larkin, with reference to Canada's part in the big show at Wembley this year.

"As president of the British empire exhibition," the Prince says in his letter, "I wish to congratulate Canada on the splendid display made at Wembley Park of her resources and national life. Those who never have had an opportunity of seeing the great dominion were able by visiting your pavilion to realize its great achievements and greater possibilities.

"I found much to learn there myself, though fortunately Canada is familiar to me.

"I trust that many practical benefits will accrue to the Canadian people from their participation in the exhibition. The benefit to the people of the home country in affording them a real knowledge of Canada does not admit of question.

"Please convey to your exhibition commissioner, A. W. Tolmie, and all others who have taken part in Canada's striking display at Wembley Park, my sincere thanks for their work."

PADDLING TO ROME

Toronto Canoeist Resumes Hazardous Journey From London.

CALAIS, France, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press Cable via Reuter's).—G. H. G. Smythe of Toronto, who mastered the stormy waters of the English Channel in his frail canoe a few days ago after almost losing his life a short while previous in attempting the crossing, left here yesterday for Rome, on the second stage of his paddling trip from London to the Italian capital for a bet of $10,000. He resumed his journey on the St. Omer canal going down throughout the Department of Pas-de-Calais to Paris, then via Dijon, Lyons and Marseilles to Monte Carlo. After a short stay at the famous gambling resort he will paddle down the Tiber on the last stage of his trip which took his from Nova Scotia, Canada.

CHRISTMAS HAS STARTED EARLY IN POST OFFICE

Careful People Are Already Mailing Parcels For Overseas Delivery.

12 DAYS REMAIN.

Acting Postmaster C. Lacheur Advises on Technique of Mail Despatch.

Christmas business has already started at the Post Office, where parcels for overseas and distant points are being mailed by those who desire unhurried handling of their gifts through the mail. A well-packed gift, properly addressed and posted now, is worth half a dozen ill-packed improperly addressed or late posted gifts.

Many people every year leave their overseas presents to the last mail, while others miss even this. This year, however, better judgment seems to prevail, and scores are sending off their parcels in good time. One thing should be remembered, the sailing of the last mail boat can no more be postponed than can Christmas itself, and those who desire to remember their Old Country friends in gifts, must conform to the arrangements made by the steamship companies.

Only Twelve Days.

There are only twelve working days left in which to prepare parcels for delivery in the British Isles before Christmas. The last mail closes in Peterborough on December 5th, going by S. S. Minnedosa, which leaves St. John, on December 10th. This, Acting - Postmaster Charles Lacheur says, is absolutely the last overseas Christmas mail. He advises the posting of parcels within the next week in order to ensure careful handling and certain delivery.

May be Insured.

Parcels for England may now be insured, and this is advised by the Post Office. The Insurance rate on parcels to the Old Country are: Up to $50 value, 12 cents; up to $100 value, 30 cents. This is in addition to the parcel post rate, which is 24 cents for the first pound and 18 parcel may weigh more than 11 pounds.

It should be remembered that customs declaration must be affixed to all parcels for overseas. To assist citizens in preparing their parcels, Mr. Lacheur has arranged to give out these forms at the post office, to be filled in at home, while making up the parcel. This will simplify the work considerably, as senders are often unable to recall in the rush of mailing just what is in the parcel and what the value is.

The person who desires his parcel to reach his Old Country friends in time and in good condition, will do well to carry out the hints given by Mr. Lacheur.

CALEDONIA CLUB.

Dance and Auction Sale Features of Good Programme.

The Caledonian Club had a very jolly night in Victoria Hall last evening, when the members, their wives and children, to the number of about one hundred, assembled for a dance and auction sale. The auction was the main entertainment of the evening, and proved to be a hilarious affair. The articles were donated by the ladies, and the condition of the auction made the highest price for each box the sum of twenty-five cents. The auctioneer, Mr. Andrew Jackson, and his clerk, Mr. Robert Gilman, got a great deal of fun out of the various exhibits, which were opened in full view in the middle of the hall.

Dancing concluded the program, with old-time eightsome reels and jigs, to pipe music furnished by Alex. Milne.

The Caledonian Club will hold a St. Andrew's Night, in honor of the patron saint of Scotland, next Friday evening, November 28th.

LAKEFIELD HUNTERS.

Fourteen Deer Brought Out By the Party—Private Car Provided.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 21. — The Lakefield Hunt Club arrived home last evening from the annual hunt at Pakesley, in the Parry Sound district.

The party brought home seven fine bucks and seven does, one of the best lot of deer ever brought out by this club, the buck averaging around 200 lbs. each.

This is the thirteenth year that this party have hunted in the Parry Sound district and they report this to be one of the most successful expeditions in their experience.

The trip was made in private car, provided by the C. P. R. to Pakesley, and the last leg of the journey over a private road owned by the Schroeder Lumber Co.

The party was composed of the following: Messrs. Nathan Payne, J. H. Payne, Percy Spence, R. H. Little, R. W. Little, Albert Darling, of Lakefield, E. R. Hamblin, Paul Payne, Rufus Payne, of Dummer, Webster Blewett, W. A. Davern, Walter Nugent of Peterborough, Chas. Gow of Hazelton, B.C., and Martin Thurston, of Lindsay.

Ford now has nearly 10,000 "authorized sales and service dealers" in the country. In addition, more than 28,000 service stations.

Common impression is that Ford's gigantic success is due mainly to his manufacturing genius. Quite as important and efficient as his sales organization. He leads all manufacturers in following his goods to market and seeing that they sell instead of accumulating in stock.

Manufacturers' goal used to be merely to sell to the dealer. Now they recognize the dealer only as a link in a chain, with the consuming public the real customer.

MEXICO ADOPTING AMERICAN METHODS

Natives of Mexico Are Bitter Against the Yankees.

HAMBURG, Nov. 20. — Mexico is becoming rapidly "Americanized," in the opinion of Dr. Karl Sapper, geographer of the University of Wuerzburg, who has recently returned from a tour of Central America, Colombia and Venezuela. The tour was undertaken at the request of the Geographical Society of Hamburg.

Prof. Sapper had not been in Mexica since 1902. The outstanding impression gained was that of the infiltration of United States ideas and methods into Mexico. While the German, Spanish, and English contingents in Mexico seemed to him to be about the same as in 1902, and the increases in the French colony was only slight, the North Americans are playing a much greater role than formerly.

Despite the hatred of Yankees, which Dr. Sapper says he found among a part of the native population, "the process of Americanization is in full swing," he declared.

Another change which struck the German scientist was the spread of Bolshevist ideas throughout Mexico.

GRAVEL ON HIGHWAY ROUGH FOR TRAFFIC

Macadam Section Southwest of Peterboro in Good Condition.

BAILIEBORO, Nov. 19.—For some time the Provincial Highway between Port Hope and Fraserville has been very rough for cars to travel on. There have been many shallow holes worn in the road and this makes the road very uneven and rough to ride over in a car.

For some time large trucks have been employed hauling gravel from the head of Rice Lake and distributing a light coating over the surface of the road, but the gravel is a poor grade, as there are many large stones mixed in it. These, however, are being raked and drawn off on the sides of the highway.

The macadamized road between Fraserville and Peterboro has been in excellent condition throughout the entire season.

Ploughing Unfinished.

There are very few of the farmers who have as yet finished up their fall ploughing in this township.

There is still a large acreage of land to be ploughed. Many of the farmers had only nicely commenced to do their ploughing when the ground froze up.

Owing to the late dry fall the farmers have been unable to get at their ploughing.

McDONNELL'S FARM HAD BUMPER POTATO CROP

One Plot Produced 106 Bags From Less Than Four Bags of Seed.

An illustration of the abundant crop of potatoes harvested generally thise season is afforded by the production from part of Mr. E. J. McDonnell's farm immediately north of Jackson Park. In an area of 75 yards by 22 yards Mr. McDonnell planted three bags and five pecks of White Stars which yielded a total of 106 bags. They were all of excellent quality and ran to large sizes. Mr. McDonnell believes that few farms in the country can surpass his in its potato output this season.

RICE LAKE FROZEN OVER MONDAY NIGHT

Early Ice Remained for Day, Driving Ducks Off to South.

BAILIEBORO, Nov. 20.—During Monday night and Tuesday morning the atmosphere was so cold that Rice Lake froze completely over with a glittering surface of smooth ice. The ice remained on the lake all day Tuesday.

This is somewhat earlier than usual for the lake to freeze over for the first time.

On both Monday and Tuesday mornings the majority of thermometers in this district were registering zero.

The motorists travelling on the highways found great difficulty in keeping their cars from freezing up, and many cars were noticed travelling along with steaming radiators, which looked as though they hadn't succeeded in preventing them from freezing.

A number of the people in this vicinity didn't realize that the air was so frosty and so neglected shutting their cellar windows. But alas in the morning their were a number of cellars visited by Jack Frost and considerable damage was done to both fruit and vegetables.

Ducks Take Wing.

When questioned as to what kind of a season that this fall has been for duck hunting, some of the old hunters have stated that there have been fewer wild ducks in Rice Lake and Otonabee river this fall than there have been in years.

The ducks they state were late in coming to these waters this year, and not nearly so many ducks accumulated as there have been in previous years.

There have been very few ducks taken out by any hunter in one day.

On account of the ice on the lake the ducks have left these waters and have gone to open waters, and only an occasional duck can now be found in the openings in the Lake.

SULPHUR SOOTHES AN ITCHING SKIN

The First Application Makes Skin Cool and Comfortable.

If you are suffering from eczema or some other torturing, embarassing skin trouble you may quickly be rid of it by using Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist.

This sulphur preparation, because of its germ destroying properties, seldom fail to quickly subdue itching, even of fiery eczema. The first application makes the skin cool and comfortable. Rash and blotches are healed right up. Rowles Mentho-Sulphur is applied like any pleasant cold cream and is perfectly harmless. You can obtain a small jar from any good druggist.

MARMORA LADIES' SOCIAL EVENING

Murvis Jones Entertained His Friends at Birthday Party.

MARMORA, Nov. 21.—A social under the auspices of the Ladies Aid of the Methodist church, was held on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. P. Sopha.

During the evening a program was rendered as follows:

Piano solo, Miss Myrtle Potts; piano solo, Miss Osborne; piano duet, Misses Osborne and Sopha; reading Mrs. S. Osborne; violin solo, Mr. A. Anderson; harp and violin duet, Misses Bonter and Colster; solo, "I passed by your window," Mr. Lester; violin solo, Miss M. Hart; song, Mr. Lester; violin solo Mr. James Mullen; solo, Mr. Harry Dunlay.

Ice cream was sold during the evening and a dainty lunch was served by the ladies.

Those present spent a very enjoyable evening and a vote of thanks was given Mrs. Sopha for the use of her spacious new home. Proceeds over $21.00.

Birthday Party.

Master Murvis Jones entertained about twenty-five of his young friends at a birthday party on Thursday evening last. A very jolly time is reported.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS

PETHERICKS CORNERS, Nov. 21.—Miss Alma Simpson entertained a number of the young people at her home on Monday evening last.

The weekly prayer service will be held as usual on Thursday evening. Mr. Everett Fairman having charge of the meeting.

Miss Gladys Mackenzie was the guest of Mr. Alfred Simpson on Sunday.

The young people are having a rehearsal of the play entitled, "When your wife's away," as they have been asked to put it on the stage at a concert to be held in the town hall in Hastings in the near future.

The Ladies Aid met on Wednesday last in the hall and finished two quilts which will help to fill the boxes which they have been accustomed to sending away at Christmas time.

A number of the members of Zion church met on Wednesday and applied a layer of shingles to the roof of the shed

NEW FORTUNES WON ON STOCK MARKET

Sales on Thursday Broke Volume Record in Present Upswing.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Breaking all records for the volume of business transacted in the post-election boom, the stock market yesterday swept upward to new high levels under the leadership of the low-priced railway shares. Sales on the New York Stock Exchange totalled 2,594,300 shares, the heaviest day's trading since Dec. 21, 1916, when the frenzied trading which followed the "leak" of President Wilson's peace note sent sales above the 3,000,000 share mark.

The avalanche of buying orders for the speculative rail issues which poured into the stock market was instrumental in carrying the general price average to a record high for all time. Sixty-three individual high records were established during the day's trading, in which 550 issues were dealt in, as compared with yesterday's high of 574.

Rich Get Richer.

New millionaires have been created, and those already in that category vastly richer, by the bull market in Wall Street since election. Financial gossip attributes tremendous profits to many who participated in the spectacular operations since November 4.

Among those mentioned are the notable trader Bernard Baruch, George F. Baker, the banker; William C. Durant, motor car manufacturer; James Cox Brady, Charles M. Schwab, Arthur Cutten, who made millions recently out of wheat in Chicago; C. E. Chapman and Joshua P. Cosden, the oil man, who was a host to the Prince of Wales during the British heir's Long Island vacation.

BUILDINGS BATTENED FOR WINTER'S BLASTS

Cavan Farmers Spurred By Monday's Frost—Ploughing Stopped.

CAVAN, Nov. 20.—The frost has put a stop to all ploughing, at least for a time. There is much ploughing yet to be done.

Farmers are busy preparing their buildings for winter, some are cementing, others are putting in extra panes in the stables. There are usually some broken during the summer. Other are getting their supply of wood into the sheds and doing the many small jobs which should be attended to before winter comes to stay.

Threshing is not yet finished. Mr. Isaac Fallis' mill has moved back to Cavan Centre this week to complete his jobs there.

Produce Prices.

The price paid for butter at Cavanville this week is thirty-two cents. It retails at thirty-five.

For eggs forty cents is paid and they are sold out at forty-five cents a dozen.

Mr. Dewart at Cavan elevator got in a car of salt this week which he is selling to the farmers at eighty-eight cents a hundred in bulk or three dollars a barrel.

BLACKS BEAT OXFORD

OXFORD, England, Nov. 20. — The famous New Zealand rugby foot ball team, the "all-Blacks," which has been touring England and winning all its games to-day defeated Oxford University by the score of 33 to 15 before a record crowd.

The New Zealanders will visit Canada in January and probably will play a game at San Francisco, Calif, on their way back to New Zealand.

DEFYING THE LAW.

The Town Council of Sturgeon Falls has passed a resolution ordering its Chief of Police not to enforce the Ontario Temperance Act.

When the plebiscite was taken the people of Sturgeon Falls voted 10 to 1 for Government control, so that it is very evident the Ontario Temperance Act has few friends in the northern town.

But whether Sturgeon Falls likes it or not, the fact remains that the Act is on the statute books of Ontario and the Chief of Police is in duty bound to attempt to enforce it.

No one community can make laws for itself that fly in the face of Provincial legislation, and the Sturgeon Falls Council is adopting a pig-headed attitude in its instructions to the head of the Police Department.

The Ontario Temperance Act is the law of the Province, and Premier Ferguson has left no doubt as to his intentions of enforcing it in compliance with the wishes of the majority of the electors who exercised the franchise on October 23rd.

That being so, Sturgeon Falls might just as well accept the situation gracefully.

Otherwise the Attorney-General, who does not give the impression of being a man who is to be deterred from doing what is manifestly his duty, is most certain to accept the challenge and deal with the rebellious town with the Provincial force—a proceeding not likely to be too pleasant in its effects upon those who persist in defying the law of the land.

THE NIGHT SHIRT BRIGADE.

It is disquieting to learn through the arrest of a Ku Klux Klan organizer that some progress has been made toward the establishment of a branch of the hooded order in the Hamilton district.

The Provincial Police and the Mounted Police, the public is, however, assured, are in touch with the movement, and will act immediately there are any indications of a desire on the part of the organization to engage in any unlawful act or to take the law into its own hands.

There is nothing about the Ku Klux Klan that should appeal to a citizen of Canada.

In the first place, any organization that is based upon creed and racial hatred should be shunned by everybody who realizes that the less bigotry and racial rancor there is in any country the happier and more prosperous are its people.

We don't want any order in Canada that feeds upon dissension and ill-feeling; what we do need is a better understanding of each other.

Secondly, we are too satisfied with the general administration of law in this country, too proud of the records of British justice to be content to see the administration of law seized by irresponsible mobs, hiding behind the bed sheets of a mysterious organization, conceived in a spirit of intolerance, and operating through creed and racial ill-will.

If there is any way of nipping the movement in the bud the authorities should see that it is taken as speedily as possible.

OVER THERE AND OVER HERE.

Although unusual efforts were made to persuade United States electors to turn out and vote in the recent presidential election, and despite the fact that here political organizations were in the field and at non-partisan society had been formed to encourage voting, the figures show that the indifference noted in Canadian centres on such occasions is also to be found across the border.

Ralph M. Easley, the Chairman of the Executive Council of the National Civic Federation, who has been analyzing the returns, declares that the statistics indicate that the percentage of voters who actually went to the polls this year was smaller than at the presidential election four years ago.

Fully thirty million voters remained away from the polls, and the federation which has been interesting itself in this aspect of politics is issuing a questionnaire in the hope of being able to ascertain the chief reasons for this default on the part of so many electors.

Greater New York, in contrast to the general result, made a small gain, less than 33.4 per cent. over 1920, with the women's vote a fraction less than four years ago.

The total eligible vote in the United States in the last election was 60,000,000, and less than half of those on the list actually went to the polls.

The presidential campaign lasts much longer than the usual political contest in Canada, and is always hotly fought, yet the general results so far as securing a large vote is concerned are no better than in this country.

This failure to have any voice in the selection of a Government remains a mystery, and apparently one end of the Continent is no better than the other in this respect.

BUTCHERY OF DEER.

Ernest Thompson-Seton made a fine appeal at the Canadian Club luncheon in Ottawa Saturday for consideration for wild life. He touched on various aspects of the worthiness of wild life, whether of animal or bird, and pleaded for restraint in the destruction of it.

Which reminds us of the butchery of deer which occurs every year in this part of the world by driving with dogs, says the Ottawa Journal. A party of so-called hunters came back to Ottawa recently from a trip in the Gatineau country, having killed sixteen deer in the water—and fifteen of them were does. A wonderful sample of how to kill out wild life!

Deer, when hunted by dogs, make for water. They can swim twice as fast as any dog. Also deer, when pursued, usually keep on fixed paths, alias "runways" which are easily noted. Accordingly, the men who use dogs to hunt take up their positions on runways leading to lakes, before they turn loose their dogs. Hunted by the dogs, the deer make for the water, and are shot in the water by the men who have been waiting near the runways.

That sort of shooting is not sport, but butchery. In the woods a deer has a chance. If a man still-hunts—that is if he hunts individually, endeavoring to see a deer before it sees him—he has his work cut out, and a heap of exercise provided. If he takes part in a "drive," where some of the party try to round up deer and scare them towards others ambushed near runways, he usually gets only a shot at a deer going past him at 20 miles an hour or so. In any case, most everybody has to do a lot of stiff tramping. And there is some real sport to the hunting. But a deer in the water is a mere pot-shot.

Driving deer by dogs should be prohibited. It is a means of slaughter which sooner or later, if tolerated, will extinguish the deer. Shooting of does should be prohibited under all circumstances. Such shooting is another sure way towards rapid extinction of the deer.

THE KIWANIS CLUB.

The Peterborough Kiwanis Club, whose winter fair next week is attracting so much attention, is an organization that deserves the cordial support of the community because of the many activities for the general good that have been carried on since the launching of Kiwanis in Peterborough.

Even at this late date there are people, however, who have not the faintest conception of what such an organization as a Kiwanis Club really is.

They read about the weekly luncheons and conclude that the main object is to gather around the festive table and have an hour or two's fun.

The social side of the movement, however, is only incidental.

Behind the amusement is the ideal of service, of devoting one's self to activities that make the world a happier place for people whose outlook has not been bright.

Thus we find the Peterborough Kiwanis Club co-operating with the Health Association in providing an ideal summer camp at Jackson Park for children whose health is below par.

We see the Kiwanians erecting a dining-room for the children one season and the next establishing a swimming and wading pool where the little folks can splash to their heart's content and in perfect safety in the long hot days of mid-summer.

We see the Kiwanians, too, bringing something of the joy of Christmas into homes that but for their help would be sad indeed, and we find a helping hand held out in many other quarters by the same organization.

Peterborough is a better place because of the advent of Kiwanis, and the citizens will doubtless remember that fact in connection with next week's fair, the proceeds of which are to be used for extending the work of the club along the same lines so successfully followed in the past.

GETTING THINGS MIXED.

It seems a pity that the Government ever tampered with Armistice Day. Already the Armistice Day Act has resulted in a confusion which is the more to be regretted because of the psychological effect it is apt to have upon future observance of the day. This last November 11 was scarcely marked in Ottawa. The street cars did not stop, the management stating that they did not know which day was proper, Sunday or Tuesday. The railways ceased operation for two minutes, and in the Civil Service by individual orders of deputy heads work stopped.

Armistice Day has been decreed by Dominion statute to be the Monday in the week in which November 11 falls. Thanksgiving Day, when proclaimed, is to be observed on Armistice Day. So far, Thanksgiving Day has been proclaimed to be on Armistice Day.

The significance of such a day as Armistice Day will become less tangible with each succeeding year. November 11, however, is not apt to be forgotten for some generations. Yet under the Act November 11 becomes the ninth, or the eighth or the seventh or even the sixth, and how is it to be explained to school children?

Over the cables comes news of hushed thousands in London Tuesday morning thronging Whitehall and standing silent in honor of their million dead as Big Ben tolled eleven. "Throughout the British Isles the same two minutes were given over to silent remembrance of the Empire's dead." Why not throughout the British Empire?

Armistice Day was a full holiday in France this year, and every city and village had its ceremonies. It was also a legal holiday in many States of the Union.

Better have moved Thanksgiving Day to a Sunday than to have uncertainty over the remembrance of November 11. The Act this year resulted in the Armistice Day service being held on Sunday, the day being observed with Thanksgiving Day on Monday, and many business organizations and public utilities ordering a cessation of activities at 11 o'clock on Tuesday because they very rightly felt impelled to do so.

Armistice Day and Thanksgiving Day are two very different things, and should be observed separately. The former should be observed here as it is observed in England—on November 11, and on no other day; Thanksgiving, as formerly, by proclamation. Otherwise we shall have the confusion that resulted this year, with the observance of Armistice Day becoming less and less real with time.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

So crowded are their papers with political news Belleville readers think they are lucky these days that enough room is left for the probs.

Judging by the number of political big guns in West Hastings, Ottawa must be a deserted village.

John D. Rockefeller only cleaned up 111 millions during the year. But, then, it must be remembered it was a bad year for making money.

Give your home city a Christmas present this year by buying your gifts from Peterborough merchants.

When Western politicians have nothing else to talk about, they organize a deputation to go down to Ottawa to discuss the return of natural resources to the Western Provinces.

With White River heard from, winter cannot be very far away.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Wise and Otherwise.

No man thinks a woman is good enough for him unless she is too good.

A husband who wouldn't think of darning socks can't see why his wife hates to build a fire.

Men have a hard time deciding what to order in restaurants, yet kick at home when the food doesn't suit.

Women's clothes are funny. They are almost as funny as men's would be if the men had the nerve.

Men have worn neckties a thousand years and laughed at the foolish things women wore.

A man who doesn't feel dressed up unless he has a shave, will object to his wife's using rouge.

A man whose hair has never been more than a few inches long, will say women have no right to bob theirs.

A man who doesn't do the things he shouldn't is considered as foolish as the woman who does.

Very few men would work if they had to ask the boss daily for what they needed, as their wives do.

A man can't see why a woman shouldn't quit a steady paying job to work for him for board and lodging.

A bachelor is always considered one from choice; an old maid is considered one from lack of choice.

Another great danger a woman faces is she is always likely to fall in love with some man who has a mustache.

And when a woman reaches thirty her stock dwindles, while a man just begins to make money at that age.

A solution of alcohol and ginger ale is a bad solution of the booze problem.

Jumping from the frying pan into the fire may turn out all right if you keep on the jump.

The greatest crime in the movies is the way they select their heroes.

DO YOU KNOW — In the months of September, October and November, 1923, the amount of grain inspected in Canadian Pacific cars at Winnipeg was 145 million bushels. The total inspected at Winnipeg, during that period, was 238 million bushels—68 million more than all the grain inspected at Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago put together.

The Grain Centre of the Empire

THE start of Winnipeg's rapid growth to the proud position she occupies today, dates from the laying of the first rails across Canada by the Canadian Pacific.

From the very first development of that great grain empire, when the riches of the prairies were first uncovered, Winnipeg, midway on the highway between the oceans, became the distributing centre and the grain market of the West.

Many years ago the Canadian Pacific showed their faith in Winnipeg's future by building then the Royal Alexandra, one of Canada's largest and finest hotels.

Measure Winnipeg's importance in the world of commerce by the miles of trackage required for her growing trade.

The Canadian Pacific yards at Winnipeg, consisting of 303 miles of track, are the largest in the world! Supplementing the terminals are the extensive Canadian Pacific car and locomotive shops covering an area of 143 acres.

This is a gauge, truly, of the magnitude of the Western empire of which Winnipeg is the centre. It explains the massive structures that house Winnipeg's great mercantile firms and the industrial plants that have sprung up to serve the growing population of the plains.

Yet Winnipeg's strength lies not in her piles of concrete and steel, but in the men that guide her business affairs. Winnipeg shows an enterprise in business and aggressiveness in merchandising that is an example for the world.

PEPS

the real breatheable tablets, make the throat, chest, and lungs cold-resisting. When a nasty cold or a coughing bout foretells the revival of your old bronchial trouble, the best thing to do is to take Peps at once to strengthen and the chest. When a Peps tablet is taken from its preserving silver wrapper and allowed to dissolve in the mouth, it gives off powerful medicinal and germicidal fumes that immediately circulate with the breath through all the air-passages, and destroy any germs that have got into nostrils and throat. At the same time the sore, inflamed membrane is soothed, healed, and protected, phlegm is released from the bronchials, breathing is made easy, and that distressing cough and throat soreness disappear.

By this direct treatment Peps keep trouble off the

LONDON CABMAN WINS RACE TO SICK MOTHER

He Sailed From Here Without Passport —Is Rushed to Hospital by Fellow Taxi Drivers.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Jack Kreger, the London taxicab driver who rushed home from New York without passport on account of his mother's illness, visited her early Tuesday in Bancroft Infirmary when the Mauretana put in Saturday at Plymouth. The formalities of landing were waived for him and he reached Paddington after midnight.

He was met by his father and twelve of his fellow cabmen from Aldwych. He was driven direct to the infirmary and was at once admitted to his mother's bedside. She recognized him and was just able to ask about Jules, her other son, who is hurrying home also from New York. Kreger stayed with his mother until 6 o'clock and found a number of fellow drivers waiting outside of the hospital to drive him home.

Not matter what happens, there is always some one who knew it would.

ROSENEATH MAN WAS APPOINTED

Reeve Thomas Honey Becomes Overseer of One Thousand Acres of Reforestration.

ROSENEATH, November 19. — Reeve Thomas Honey of Alnwick township, has been appointed overseer of the one thousand acres of reforestation in Haldimand Township, purchased by the counties of Northumberland and Durham.

Mr. Honey is completing his second term as Reeve having served three years previously on the council board. He has also held the positions of assessor and tax collector for a number of years before taking his seat as councillor.

He spent his boyhood days in Percy township, near Warkworth, after which he spent some time as a cowboy in the Northwest when travelling was mostly by wagons or stage coach. On his return he married Miss Annie Weir of Warkworth, twenty-nine years ago, and settled in Alnwick township, of which he has been a continuous resident with the exception of three years, when he lived in Percy. By his first marriage there were five children: J. Gordon of Roseneath, Earl of Gilroy, Sask., Harry of Toronto, Mrs. Archie McCracken of Roseneath, and Mrs. Merrill of Dartford. While the children were small he lost his first wife, and a few years afterwards married Miss Harriet Witcher.

Mr. Honey has always been an adherent of the Methodist church, and in politics a staunch Conservative, being one of the political whips of the township, acting as Deputy Returning Officer under the Conservative Government at several elections. He has always been a great worker for his party but had the highest respect of the opposition because his work was always clean and above reproach. He also received the appointment of enumerator during the Borden administration.

He is a member of the local L.O.L., No. 261, and R.B.P. No. 1088. In the former he has held almost every office including Worshipful Master. Three years ago he was made an honorary member. He is also a past District Master of Cobourg District, and Past County Master of Northumberland. His son J. G. Honey is at present Worshipful Preceptor of No. 188, also the District Master of Cobourg District.

A short time ago Mr. Honey disposed of his farm stock and implements, including a herd of pure bred Hereford cattle, and is prepared to assume his new duties as soon as the overseer's house is completed on the new forest grounds. Mr. Honey is a man who has taken a very active part in the business of the township and will be greatly missed by a wide circle of friends who wish Mr. and Mrs. Honey a long life and the best of health in their new home.

Death of John A. Macklin.

The death of the late John A. Macklin of Dundas, formerly of Roseneath, took place on Thursday, from his brother's residence (Mr. Howard Macklin), to Bethany cemetery, for interment. Besides his widow, who was Miss Lucia Wilson of Bolton, Ont., he leaves two little girls, Aileen and Kathleen, to mourn his loss.

Mr. Macklin until a year and a half ago resided on his farm two miles south of Roseneath, and lived in the community all his life where he was widely known and respected. At that time he sold his farm to Mr. Arch. Waldie and went to Dundas, buying a dairy farm.

A short time ago he received a scratch on the hand from a buckle on the harness, blood poisoning resulting and inside of three weeks he was dead. The community join in extending their deepest sympathy to the bereaved family.

Finish of Plowing Match at Alderville.

Inexperienced Class: 1st Howard Smoke, $10 2nd, John Tobico, $8; 3rd, William Fleming, $6; 4th Oliver Crowe, $4; 5th, Steve Smoke, $3.

Boys' Class: 1st, James Bigwind, $6; 2nd Leslie Marsden, $5; 3rd, Edgar Marsden, $4; 4th, Gerald Franklin, $3.

Best strike out and finish for boys of $2 each, were both won by Leslie Marsden.

The plowing match will be open to the township next year.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Duff were given a miscellaneous shower on Friday evening. The house was crowded beyond its capacity and the presents were numerous and costly. The guests were entertained by cards and dancing, music being supplied by Mr. and Mrs. Wellwood.

Mr. T. G. Linton is suffering from an attack of blood poisoning.

Mrs. William R. Taylor received the sad news on Friday of the death of her brother, Mr. Thomas Robins of Montana.

Finally found health in Kellogg's Bran after suffering long with constipation

Mr. Patch writes that Kellogg's Bran "solved his problem." It has solved the problem of constipation—mild and chronic—for thousands of others. It has brought relief when all else has failed because Kellogg's Bran is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective. Read Mr. Patch's letter:

Dear Sirs:

I have been a constant sufferer from constipation and have wondered what was the cause of it. I have tried about all the cereals I could think of, and finally tried Kellogg's Bran. This solved my problem. I feel 100 per cent better and I owe it to your Bran. . . . Thanking you very kindly for the great cereal, I am

Very respectfully,
Chester C. Patch.
(Address on Request.)

For the permanent relief of constipation, eat Kellogg's Bran regularly—two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. It sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestines. It rids them of the dangerous poisons that lead to other diseases. It is guaranteed to bring results, or your grocer will return your money.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is delicious with milk or cream. You will like its nut-like flavor—so different from ordinary, tasteless brans. Sprinkle it over the cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Eat it in Kellogg's Bran muffins, griddle cakes and many other wonderful recipes given on the package.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is made in Toronto, Canada and is served by the leading hotels and clubs everywhere. It is sold by all grocers.

Do You Need Help? This Advice is Well Worth Reading!

Kirkton, Ont.—"I have found Doctor Pierce's Anuric Tablets to be an excellent medicine. I have been troubled with inflammation in the neck of my bladder for about eighth years. I doctored but failed to get cured, so I decided to try Doctor Pierce's Anuric (anti-uric-acid) Tablets and they have relieved me greatly.

"I also can recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for expectant mothers. I have a fine, big baby boy. My nurse asked me what I ate to make his so strong. He looked like a child four or five months old when only three. I certainly would advise every prospective mother to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."—Mrs. John Simpson, R.R.1.

PRESENTATION.

Robert Sherwin Sold His Farm and is Going to Move to Orono.

COBOURG, Nov. 20.—Mr. Robert E. Sherwin has sold his farm near Fenella and is about to remove with his family to Orono. He has been for some time the superintendent of the Sunday school there and friends in the school and community desired to honor Mr. and Mrs. Sherwin before their removal. Consequently a community gathering was arranged in their honor and occasion was taken later to present them with a handsome brown leather club bag. Mr. James Knox made the presentation and Mr. Fred Halling, superintendent, read the following address:

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sherwin:

Dear Friends,—A number of your friends met in the Sunday school hall last evening to express to you in a humble way their heartfelt gratitude for the very kind, willing and efficient service you have always rendered to the community, the Sunday school and to the church, and their deep regret that you are so soon to take your departure from our midst. The Sunday school, the Bible class and many others have requested me to express to you, Brother Sherwin their most sincere gratitude for your kind, willing, faithful and most efficient service in the community and in the church, and for the influence for good which always seemed to flow out from your presence and instruction. We are indeed sorry to lose you, but we are are well assured that our loss will be some one else's gain. And we sincerely hope that God's richest blessing may attend you and Mrs. Sherwin wherever you may go. Therefore as a little token of our love and gratitude we ask you to accept this club bag to remind you from time to time that your old friends are still thinking of you and praying that God's richest blessing may attend you and yours. Signed on behalf of the Sunday school, Adult Bible class and your pastor, J. N. Lovelace.

Mr. Sherwin made a very suitable gift and the kind expressions of regard shown him.

Money AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

The majority of men are always ready to give advice on what stock some one else should buy, consequently it is easy for a man to convince himself that he is investing when he follows a tip. He isn't though; he is just gambling.

The average man gambles a little at some time during his life. If he works himself into a frame of mind receptive to gambling on stocks, he is likely to ask friends what they think is a good buy.

Most of his friends will probably have definite views on the subject. The chances are that the friends know little or nothing about the stock they are advising him to buy, and that the friends have always lost money on stocks. Yet they will almost always insist that some certain stock is a wonderful investment.

The man thinks he has an inside tip. If he makes money, his friend is smart; if he loses, his friend is "dumb." In either case he thought he was investing, when in reality he was indulging in a mere gamble, no surer of success than flipping a coin.

ONE PIECE SOLD TWICE.

The Canadian Sculptress, Miss Katherine E. Wallis, formerly of Peterborough, and now of Paris, exhibited three pieces of her work at the Autumn Salon, recently held in Paris. One piece, the head of a Faun, in bronze, was sold twice, the second purchaser being Tiffany of New York, for their New York house.

It is a matter of congratulation that one of Peterborough's native daughters, has achieved success in the world of Art.

CHRISTMAS BALE FOR MISSIONARY

Women of Millbrook Church Will Send Comforts—League Meeting.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 19. — The November meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of St. Thomas church was held on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. T. Harkness, the president, Mrs. (Canon) Allen, being in the chair.

The attendance was the largest for some months and showed that interest in the work is growing. Several new members have been enrolled during the year and all branches of the activities of the Auxiliary are in a prosperous condition.

The monthly Bulletin of news from the various mission fields was read and the items discussed. Following its usual custom the Auxiliary will send a Christmas bale for the personal use of the clergyman on some home mission field, the address to be supplied by the Board of Managers in Toronto. Such devoted workers often find their salary hardly sufficient for living expenses and luxuries of any sort are completely out of the question. A bale at Christmastide makes possible an enjoyment of some of the season's joys which would otherwise be totally lacking.

The study book, "The Church and the Foreigner," was taken up, Miss R. Macnamara and Mrs. (Rev.) M. Williams, reading the chapter for the month.

The December meeting will be eliminated and the annual meeting beheld in January at the home of Mrs. E. Westmacott.

A social hour was enjoyed before the guest left for home Mrs. Harkness and her daughter, Miss Gertrude, serving refreshments at the close of the business and devotional meeting.

Young People's League

A special missionary programme was given in the Young People's League on Monday evening, about sixty members and visitors being in attendance. The president, Miss Estella Hetherington, took the chair for the opening devotional period, and Mrs. G. W. Sayles, missionary vice-president, whose devotion to the duties of her position has provided many interesting and educative programmes during her tenure of office, had charge for the remainder of the evening.

Red or blue ribbons were pinned on each person as they entered, and the sides, captained by Jean Burnham (Blues), and Marjorie Sayles (Reds), ranged on either side of the room. A brief story of the missionary activity of the Canadian Methodist church in West China was read by Mrs. Sayles, the question and answers being based upon the information given by the vice-president.

Each contestant was furnished with a card bearing either a letter or a number, and when the leader gave out the question, the captains, the captains spelled the words of the answers the persons having the figures of letters which formed the words being asked to step forward and line up in correct order as rapidly as possible. The side having the answer correctly spelled out first counted one point. The contest resulted in a tie. So much interest was taken and the manner of impressing the missionary facts found so helpful, this contest, or one along similar lines, will be given again before the year closes next April.

Marie Kenyon gave a reading, "A Boy's Influence", and a chorus, "Land of Our Birth" by Walter Sayles, Keith Barnard, Nelles and Lawrence Rowland, George Sayles, Albert Doak, Jean Burnham, Margaret Howard, Marjorie Sayles Marie Kenyon, and Etta Peel, were the final numbers before the benediction.

Mr. Sayles provided a treat of home made candy at the close.

Miss Lazelle Brown, secretary of Albert College, Belleville, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Byam this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sotheran of Chapleau, were in town on Monday to attend the funeral of the late Mrs. J. Steele.

Among those from this vicinity who will attend the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto this week are: W. F. Fallis, and N. McDowell. The latter is exhibiting some poultry from his farm of White Leghorns at the Fair.

Sunlight—for your Washing Machine

A WASHING machine is made to wash your clothes without rubbing or boiling — and it succeeds just in proportion to the value of the soap you use.

Sunlight Soap dissolves quickly and completely in hot water and works up into an abundant suds. This is very necessary so that its rich cleansing ingredients may search through and through the meshes of the clothes and dissolve the dirt and soil spots. Then, when rinsing comes, all dirt and soapy matter runs entirely away, leaving your clothes sweet, fresh and snowy clean.

The pure lather of Sunlight Soap cleanses the clothes naturally, not chemically. The $5,000 Guarantee of Purity is stamped on every tablet of Sunlight Soap.

Pare half a cake of Sunlight into hot water in your machine and stir into generous suds. Put in the clothes and operate the machine—your clothes will be clean.

THE THIEF OF BAGDAD

BY ACHMED ABDULLAH

Hayah! Ho! Jao!" the sorcerer repeated, and a quivering shout of awed wonder rose from the crowd as they saw there, high up on the rope, come out of nowhere into which he had disappeared, the boy clinging like a monkey. The next moment he had slid down and was going the round of the audience, asking for bakshish that was contributed generously; and even Ahmed was on the point of obeying the impulse and had already reached into his baggy trousers for a coin, when a throaty, guttural cry of rage caused him to turn quickly. There, like a plum-colored, obese goddess of wrath, stood the Nubian cook who had come from the interior of the palace. She saw the bowls of food; saw that impious hands had toyed with their contents; saw the munching, chewing Ahmed; and, putting two and two together, went for him, brandishing her heavy iron stirring ladle like a Sarazene battle ax.

Ahmed considered and acted at the same fraction of a second. He launched himself away from the balcony railing; leaped straight at the magic rope; clutched it; and so there he was, swinging in mid-air; the cook calling down imprecations from above, the Hindu echoing them from below. And be it mentioned—in Ahmed's favor or to his shame, exactly as you prefer—that he replied to both, impartially, vituperatively, enthusiastically, insult for insult and curse for curse.

"Come back here, O Son of a noseless Mother, and pay for what you stole!" yelled the cook.

"Come down here, O Came-Spawn, and be grievously beaten demanded the sorcerer.

"I shall do neither!" laughed the Thief of Bagdad. "It is airy up here and pleasant and most exclusive! Here I am, and here I shall remain!"

But he did not.

For at last the Hindu lost his patience. He made another magic pass, whispered another secret word, and the rope gave, brent, flicked from side to side, shot down to the ground, and sent Ahmed sprawling. Almost immediately he was up again, his agile fingers clutching at the rope. But the Hindu's hand was as quick as Ahmed's, and so they stood there, tugging at the rope, with the crowd looking on and laughing, when suddenly from the distance, where a Mosque peaked its minaret of rosy stone overlaid half way up with a faience tiling of dusky, peacock-green sheen, a muezzin's voice drifted out, chanting the call to mid-day prayer, stilling the tumult:

"Es salat wah es-salaam aleyk, yah auwe! khulk Illah wah khatimat russul Illah—peace be with Thee and the glory, O first-born of the creatures of God, and seal of the apostles of God! Hie ye to devotion! Hie ye to salvation! Prayer is better than sleep! Prayer is better than food! Bless ye God and the Prophet! Come, all ye faithful!"

"Wah khatimat russul Illah——" mumbled the crowd, turning in the direction of Mecca.

They prostrated themselves, touching the ground with palms and foreheads. The Hindu joined them, chanting fervently. So did Ahmed, though not so fervently. Indeed while, mechanically, automatically, he bowed toward the East and while his lips formed the words of the prayer; his roaming, lawless eyes noticed the magic rope, between him and the Hindu. The latter, occupied with his devotions, was paying no attention to it. A moment later, watching his chance, Ahmed had picked it up and was away, fleet-footedly, across the bent backs of the worshipers. He ran at a good clip through the wilderness of little Arab houses. He increased his speed when, not long afterwards, he heard in the distance the view-halloo of the man-chase as the Hindu, rising from his devotions, noticed that his precious rope had been stolen.

"Thief! Thief! Catch thief!" the shout rose, bloated, stabbed, spread.

He ran as fast as he could. But his pursuers gained on him steadily, and he felt afraid. Only the day before he had watched a thief being beaten in public with cruel rhinoceros-hide whips that had torn the man's back to crimson shreds. He shuddered at the recollection. He ran till his lungs were at the bursting point, his knees ready to give way under him.

He had turned the corner of the Street of the Mutton-Butchers when his pursuers came in sight. They saw him.

"Thief! Thief!" the shouts echoed and reverberated, sharp, grim, ominous, freezing the marrow in his bones.

Where could he turn? Where hide himself? And then he saw, directly in front of him, an immense building; saw above him, thirty feet up, the invitation of an open window. How reach it? Hopeless! But, the next moment, he remembered his magic rope. He spoke the secret word. And the rope uncoiled, whizzed, stood straight like a lance at rest, and up he went hand over hand.

He reached the window, climbed in, drew the rope after him.

The house was deserted. He sped through empty rooms and corridors; came out on the roof and crossed it; leaped to a second roof and crossed that; a third; a fourth; until at last, slipping through a trap door, he found himself—for the first time in his unhallowed existence—in a Mosque of Allah, up on the ceiling rafters.

"There is prayer to Allah in everything," he said, "in the buzzing of the insects, the scent of flowers, the lowing of cattle, the sighing of the breeze. But there is no prayer to be compared to the prayer of a man's honest, plucky work. Such prayer means happiness. Honest, courageous, fearless work means the greatest happiness on earth!"

A sentiment the opposite of Ahmed's philosophy of life.

"You lie, O priest!" he shouted from the rafters; and he slid down and faced the Holy Man with impudent eyes and arrogant gestures.

There was an angry growling, as of wild animals, among the devotees. Fists were raised to smash that blasphemous mouth. But the priest raised calm hands. He smiled upon Ahmed as he might upon a babbling child.

"You are—ah—quite sure, my friend?" he asked with gentle irony. "You know, belike, a better prayer, a greater happiness than honest, courageous work?"

"I do!" replied Ahmed. For a fleeting moment he felt embarrassed beneath the other's steady gaze. The shadow of an uneasy premonition crept over his soul. Something akin to awe, to fear, touched his spine with clay-cold hands, and he was ashamed of this feeling of fear; spoke the more arrogantly and loudly to hide this fear from himself: "I have a different creed! What I want, I take! My reward is here, on earth! Paradise is a fool's dream, and Allah is nothing but a myth!"

Again the angry worshippers surged toward him. Again the Holy Man held them back with a gesture of his lean hands. He called after Ahmed, who was about to leave the Mosque.

"I shall be here, little brother," he said, "and waiting for you—in case you need my help—the help of my faith in God and the Prophet!"

"I—need you?" mocked Ahmed. "Never, priest! Hayah! Can a frog catch cold?"

And, with a ringing laugh, he was out of the Mosque.

Ten minutes later, he reached the dwelling place which he shared with Hassan el-Toork, nicknamed Bird-of-Evil, his pal and partner. A snug, cosy, secret little dwelling it was, in the bottom of an abandoned well, and there he spread his loot before the other's delighted eyes.

"I love you, my little butter-ball, my little sprig of sweet-scented sassafras!" mumbled Bird-of-Evil, caressing Ahmed's cheek with his claw-like old hands. "Never was there as clever a thief as you! You could steal food from between my lips, and my belly would be none the wiser! Gold—Jewels—purses . . ." he toyed with the loot—"and this magic rope! Why, in the future there will be no wall too high for us, no roof too steep, and . . ." he slurred, interrupted himself as—for the abandoned well was only a stone's throw from Bagdad's outer gate—a loud voice called to the warden to open it:

"Open wide the gates of Bagdad! We are porters bringing precious things for the adornment of the Palace! For tomorrow suitors come to woo our royal Princess!"

The Caliph in those days was Shirzad Kemal-ud-Dowlah, twelfth and greatest of the glorious Ghaznavide dynasty. Lord he was from Bagdad to Stambul, and from Mecca to Jerusalem. His pride was immense, and, beside his Arabic title of Caliph, he gloried in such splendid Turkish titles as: Iman-ul-Muslemin—Pontiff of all Moslems; Alem Penah—Refuge of the World; Hunkiar—Man-Slayer; Ali-Osman Padishahi—King of the Descendants of Osman; Shahin Shahi Alem—King of the Sovereigns of the Universe; Hudavendighar—Attached to God; Shahin Shahi Movazem ve-Hillulah—High King of Kings and shadow of God upon Earth.

As to Zobeid's beauty and charm and surpassing witchery, there have come down to us, through the grey, swinging centuries, a baker's dozen of reports. To believe them all one would have to conclude that, compared to her, Helen of Troy for the sake of whose face a thousand ships were launched, was only an ugly duckling. We choose, therefore, with full deliberation, the simplest and least florid of these contemporary accounts, as contained in the letter of a certain Abu'l Hamed el-Andalusi, an Arab poet who, visiting for reasons of his own a young Circassian slave girl in the Caliph's harem, happened to glance through a slit in the brocaded curtain which separated the slave's room from the apartment of the Princess, and saw her there. He wrote his impressions to a brother-poet in Damascus; wrote as follows:

CHIEF NEWHALL WOULD PROTECT MAN ON STREET

Suggests That Sirens to Warn of Approaching Fire Trucks Be Installed.

NOT EXPENSIVE

In Search for Safety Plans Chief Gives Approval to Noisy Horn.

Sirens that will sound continuously when the fire apparatus approaches are proposed as a safety measure for Peterborough streets. Chief of Police Samuel Newhall, who has been investigating the possible plans since Inspector Reid's narrow escape at Charlotte and Park streets, has put his seal of approval on the sirens as being the most practical and most economical for use here.

These sirens can be installed at all busy intersections such as Park and Charlotte, Hunter and George, Brock and George, and McDonnel and George, to clear the streets for the passage of the fire trucks. They can be operated singly or in multiples, manually or automatically, and can be connected on the existing fire alarm system or used independently on batteries or a lighting service.

Mounted below a red or green light above the fire alarm box at a street intersection, the siren would start to screech as the fire apparatus approaches and continue to give warning until it has passed. The noise can be heard above all other street sounds, and would be a signal to every vehicle and pedestrian to clear the way for the apparatus. If, despite the warning, an accident occurs through disregard of any citizen, the city is absolved from blame, Chief Newhall says.

The incident in which Inspector James Reid figured, the head of the department thinks, is an example of what might happen at a busy intersection at any time. On that occasion Inspector Reid was actually watching the fire truck and keeping others back when it struck him.

The sirens would simplify the work of the drivers of the fire trucks protect citizens; and save the city trouble in case of accidents, Chief Newhall believes.

LAKEFIELD A.Y.P.A, LITERARY EVENING

Mrs. Trude Waldon Won Prize in Contest on Authors' Names.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 20.—The A.Y.P.A. held a literary evening on Monday night in St. John's school room. After the routine business had been discussed the society was favored by a couple of readings, one by Rev. Walter Cox of Overton, an English humorist, and "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" by Mr. Ernest Robertshaw.

A contest on authors' names was won by Mrs. Trude Waldon and Mr. F. C. Webster won the consolation prize. A Book Romance, which was a decided novelty was won by Mr. Robertshaw with honorable mention by Rev. W. Cox and Mr. Fred Webster. Misses Odell Watson and Mae Mahood were tied for the consolation prize. After simple refreshments were served, the prizes, which were donated by Miss Mason, were presented by Mr. Cox.

Free Lecture.

A free illustrated lecture on the work done in the National Canadian Institute for the Blind, will be given by Mr. Gustar in the Queen street theatre on Tuesday, November 25th at 8 o'clock under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the G.W.V.A.

Rev. Walter Cox will be in the chair; there will be a short musical programme and an exhibit of basketry. This will be a genuine treat and it is hoped that many will avail themselves of the opportunity to hear a good entertainment gratis.

Personals.

Mrs. Northcott and Mrs. Trude Waldon, who spent the past month visiting relatives in Detroit, returned to the village on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gillman were in Toronto last week, called there by the death of Mr. Gillman's mother.

Miss Ella Moore has returned to the village from the hospital, Peterboro, where she underwent a serious operation.

The Strickland party have returned from Eels' Creek and report a good time and good luck.

Mrs. Fred S. Brown and Miss Miriam have returned from a months' visit to Madoc and other places.

Miss Irene Madill spent the week-end in the village visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Laverne J. Walton are guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Moore. Mr. Walton expects to leave this week for Buffalo where he has secured a position. Mr. Moore will follow in a few weeks.

Mr. Bert Davis has returned from Toronto where he spent a few weeks. He is much improved in health.

Mrs. E. T. Shewen and Master Claude of Nassau are visiting friends in the village.

PLOWING STOPPED AT TRENT RIVER

Farmers Busy at Wood Cutting—Personal Mention.

TRENT RIVER, Nov. 21.—The quarterly official board met at Havelock Monday night.

The ground has frozen and ploughing has been stopped. The farmers are busy at the wood cutting.

Mrs. A. Peer has returned to Norwood from visiting Mrs. Wesley Redden.

Mr. E. Parsons returned to Toronto yesterday from the Cook cottage. Mr. Parson had some excellent sport at the duck shoot while here.

The stork visited the home of Mrs. Lloyd Vanvolkenberg Monday and left a young daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Matt Greenly of Hastings are moving to Havelock this week where Mr. Greenly has rented a blacksmith shop.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rose have decided to spend the winter here at "Ye Olde Mill" instead of returning to Toronto as in previous years.

Mrs. D. Davidson and Gordon left yesterday to spend the winter in Toronto with her daughter, Mrs. Dingman.

KING'S WHARF NEWS

KING'S WHARF, Nov. 21.—Mr. Edward Morrissey has returned from Grand Prairie, Alta., with some horses and machinery which he brought here from his ranch and has rented his ranch and intends to remain here for some time.

Miss Lillie Herlihey is spending a few days the guest of friends in Peterboro.

Mr. John Winn who is seriously ill in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterboro, is somewhat improved and all hope for a speedy recovery.

Mr. John McManus left on Monday for Peterboro where he will reside in future. He has been living alone for some time and his friends thought it much better to move him.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. O'Neill and family spent Saturday the guests of friends in Peterboro.

Mr. James O'Neill and son of Chicago, Ill., left for home Tuesday after spending some time the guests of relatives here.

Mr. Leo Flood of Ennismore spent Sunday the guest of friends here.

Miss Geraldine Harrington of Ennismore, teacher at S.S. No. 15 here, spent the holiday at her home.

Miss Mary Twomey has returned home after spending a few days the guest of her sister, Mrs. Thos. Perdue in Peterboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Perdue were business visitors to Lindsay Saturday.

The Misses Mary and Dot Flood of Toronto spent the holiday the guests of their sister, Mrs. Jos. Guiry.

Mr. Dennis Begley and bride arrived home Wednesday evening and we welcome Mrs. Begley to our midst. Mrs. Begley who was Catharine Sheehan of Douro was married in Douro Nov. 4.

Miss Ada Guiry of Lindsay spent the holiday the guest of her brother Joseph here.

Miss Lucy Sullivan of Lindsay spent the week-end at her home here.

The Misses Mary and Nora Harrington of St. Joseph's Academy, Lindsay, spent the holiday the guest of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Harrington.

Mr. Fred Fitzpatrick and sister, Miss Gertrude motored to Peterboro Satuday to see Mr. John Winn their brother-in-law who is seriously ill.

The hard frost of a few nights ago has stopped the ploughing and Pigeon Lake is all frozen over, a rare thing for so early. The farmers here are in need of rain and all around within distance of the lake have to drive their stock there for water and the water is very low in the marsh.

FARM IMPLEMENTS FOR THE CHINESE

The Canton Christian College has been instrumental in introducing small farming implements into China from this country, and by their use the capacity of the small farmer is greatly increased. It is now possible to support a family of five upon a two-acre truck patch.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Nov. 20.—Stockers and feeders were in demand this morning and one firm sold a load of very plan 950 lb feeders at $4.35 a cwt. Canner cows were wanted but those who had them refused to sell these without including the fat cows. Good to choice handyweight butchers sold at $6 a cwt. A number of heifers were bought for export at $6 and $6.50 was paid for four steers. Export cows were $4.25 and $4.50 and export bulls $4 to $4.50 a cwt. Some of the poorest butcher cattle sold at $2 and $2.50 a cwt. This morning's business will see practically all cattle offerings disposed of.

Calves are steady at the decline of a dollar a cwt., but there were few real choice calves on sale. One calf, 220 lbs., sold at 10½ cents and other good ones at 9 and 9½ cents.

The small number of lambs in, sold about steady and the only drag in this market is the too heavy lambs. Light lambs sold at 11¾ cents. Real heavy lambs only brought 10 cents.

Hogs close the week firm at $9 a cwt. f.o.b., and $10 off cars. Hogs are not coming too fast, and this is strengthening the market.

MONTREAL, November 20.—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here to-day as follows:

Sterling demand, $4.62¼.

Sterling cables, $4.62 7-8.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, November 20.—The export business in grain here to-day was reported dull owing to their being very few firm bids in the market from foreign buyers.

The car load trade for domestic and country account was also slow, and the tone easi with Ontario No. 3 extra malting barley quoted at $1.09, No. 3 grade at $1.08 per bushel, ex-track, while odd cars of Ontario No. 2 white oats sold at 62c; No. 3 grade at 60c; and No. 4 grade at 58c per bushel, ex-store.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20. — Grain suffered an all-round decline in value to-day owing largely to wheat market depression in Liverpool. Beneficial rains in Argentia were reported and there were optimistic reports about the wheat yield in Australia. The wheat market here closed heavy 3-8 to 2½c lower. December 1.49 3-8 to 1.49 5-8, and May 1.57¼ to 157 3-8 with corn 1 1-4 to 1 3-4c off; oats 3-8 and ½ to 1c down, and provisions varying from 12c set back to 35c gain.

WINNIPEG LIVESTOCK.

WINNIPEG, November 20. — Arrivals 937 cattle, 2000 hogs, 150 sheep and lambs.

Improved demand imparted a firmer tone to the cattle market this morning with prices generally around 25c in advance of last week's close.

The hog market was steadier, thick smooths ranging from $7.85 to $8.00.

On the sheep and lamb market, good lambs sold at $11.50 while sheep were disposed of between $6 and $7.

EGG PRICES.

OTTAWA, November 20. — A fairly active business continues to be done in eggs and the tone of the market is very firm. The demand for domestic consumption is principally for storage grades owing to the limited supplies of strictly fresh available, and in consequence stocks on the spot are being steadily reduced. The demand for export has ceased for the present.

Toronto jobbing fresh specials, 68c; extras 64c; storage extras, 47 to 48; firsts 43 to 44c; seconds, 37 to 38c.

BEER RELISHED IN TUT'S TIME

More than 2 Per Cent. Beer Drunk in Balmy Days of Egypt.

IGNORES DREAMS

LONDON, Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—Prohibition may or may not have been in effect 3,299 years ago, but recent gifts to the British Museum indicate that the ancient Egyptians were at least affected by a thirst for something stronger than 2.75 percent beer.

One of the gifts is a pottery pocket flask, similar in shape to those exhibited in the windows of many jewellers to-day, and of sufficiently large capacity to gratify the most thirsty. The other consists of fragments of a great vessel upon which is boldly painted the insription: "Beer Which Ignores Dreams."

The inscription, in the form of early hieroglyphics, depicts a jar, with three strokes to indicate a number of jars; then the symbol for "ignores,"—an owl representing knowledge, and a pair of hands turned down to denote "nothing doing"—a chicken, denoting sound, and an eye, denoting wakefulness. Officials of the Museum vouch for the translation of the devices.

Other archæological finds have indicated, according to museum officials, that beer was the great beverage of the Egyptians 3,000 years ago.

LABOR SILENT TO PLEA FOR SOVIET FROM ENGLISHMAN

Convention at El Paso, Tex., Heard British Delegate Without Response.

EL PASO, Texas, November 21.—Fraternal delegates from England, Germany and Canada, united on Wednesday at the convention of the American Federation of Labor in condemning communism and the attempts of the Bolshevik propagandists to get control of the trade union movement in their respective countries.

The speakers were C. T. Cramp, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the British Labor Party; A. B. Swales, President of the British Trades Union Congress; Peter Grassman, Vice-President of the German Federation of Trade Unions, and John Colbert of the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress.

Mr. Cramp denounced "communism" and "all its works," and "the mumbo jumbo of Leninism." However, he and Mr. Swales urged that the trade unions of the western countries consent to friendly relations with Soviet Russia while insisting on adhering to their own methods and opposing dictatorship from the outside.

Mr. Grassman, the first German delegate to be heard in a convention of the American Federation of Labor, explained that the German trade unions had been a target for Moscow, but that Bolshevism had been rejected, so that communism in Germany to-day was of no account.

Cold to Soviet Recognition.

The suggestion of the British delegates that American labor agree to friendly relations with Russia was received in silence. The Federation has for seven years been strongly opposed to recognition of the Soviet.

The fraternal deelgates received a warm welcome, but the Americans refrained from any manifestation when the British speakers made several suggestions that have been bitterly debated and defeated in past conventions of the Federation. These suggestions included amalgamation of small trade unions into large, powerful federated organizations; tolerance for radicals of all kinds within the ranks and refusal to dismiss them from participation in union activities; formation of a labor party and recognition of Soviet Russia.

Mr. Swales stated that in the last four years amalgamations of a large number of small unions into a few big ones had affected 3,000,000 workers. This year had seen the joining of three organizations among the general and semi-skilled workers into one great union of 500,000 members.

"More unionists and less unions" was the slogan of the "back to the union campaign," which, according to Mr. Swales, had been fostered by the General Council of the British Trades Union Congress.

"It is the hope of many, including myself," he continued, "that some day the hundreds of unions now affiliated with the Trade Union Congress will be reduced to the smallest possible number of unions, containing every worker by hand or brain in the entire country, and under the direction of one united general council. And I am not alone in believing that this day is not so far distant as many people are inclined to believe."

After saying that Mr. Cramp would describe the victory of the British Labor Party in 1923, Mr. Swales went on:

"I want to express, if I may, one of the hopes of the British workers I represent. It is that we hope that it will not be long before you are as well organized politically as you are industrially and that you will soon be in a position to challenge the old order of capitalists and autocrats and take over the government of this great country, not in any selfish one-class or one-party interest, but in the interest of the whole of your peoples."

British Extremists Sobered.

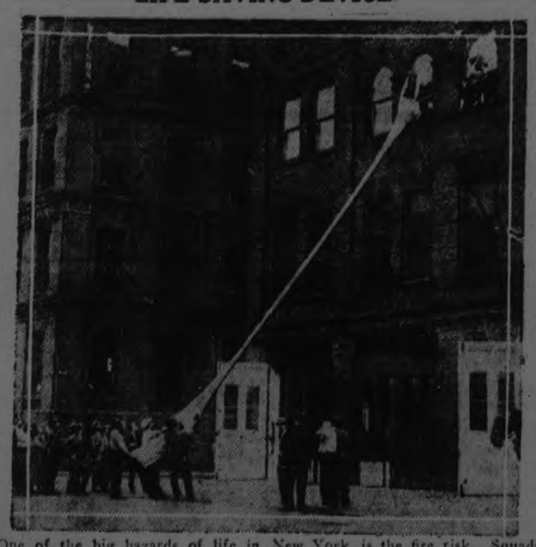
The present "proud position" of the political Labor movement in England, Mr. Swales asserted, was due in no small measure to the trades union movement. "So well were the representatives of the people managing our great national and international problems," he added, "that a combination of political forces of the capitalist class defeated our Labor movement and a general election had just been completed when we sailed from England."

Labor was not discouraged by its defeat but was looking forward to the time when it would be the dominant party in British politics, he added.

Extremists had failed to cause a split in the English unions. "We have our critics within our ranks," he said. "We suffer a certain amount of abuse and at times our discipline has been upset, but I must say that only good-will comes from the introduction of this new blood and new spirit. I always remember that when I look about me at my colleagues at home that many of them, most of them in fact, that are now what may be called sane, constitutional trade unic leaders, were once young, enthusiastic firebrands, extremists, men who wanted the whole social system changed overnight. But as they have carried on and slowly taken up their work in the movement and responsibility has come to them, they have sobered down, not to talking about problems but to the work of solving them in a feasible and practical manner.

"We have always welcomed young enthusiasts—I was one myself once, and I hope to remain a rebel against present-day society—and results are showing that our policy of tolerance toward the impatient ones is bearing fruit.

LIFE-SAVING DEVICE



One of the big hazards of life in New York, is the fire risk. Squads of firemen are organized for special drills in life saving and they try out every new device that may help them. Pictured here is the latest, a long tube of heavy silk encased in thick netting. Persons trapped on the upper floors of burning buildings dive into the tube and slide to the ground.

WESTWARD LEAP OF THE EMPIRE

VICTORIA, B.C., Nov. 20.—Seldom has a historical celebration done more to set the history of British Columbia in trite perspective before Canadians than has the Methodist Missionary Centenary, which reaches this city next week after a big swing across the prairies. Advance copies of the centenary pageant have been received here, and the manuscripts reveals an accuracy in the essentials of this province's story that is refreshing.

Instead of suggesting that British Columbia dates from the agitation for a transcontinental railway in the '70's, the scenes reveal a colony already boasting considerable white settlement in the late '50's of the last century.

Rev. J. H. Arnup, D.D., who was set aside two years ago by the Methodist Missionary Society to supervise the historical aspects of the proposed celebration, has evidently done his work well. In general, the pageant, which is now being rehearsed by groups of young people in the various churches of Vancouver and Victoria, is a review of the century and a challenge to Christians of all denominations. The celebration also includes a convention and an exhibition, with the pageant, "One Hundred Years of Victory," as the principal public feature.

In a pictorial "march past" of Methodist worthies, the representatives of British Columbia are given proper place ahead of such more recent missionaries as the McDougalls' and Youngs', who went into the prairies in the '70's. Ephraim Evans and Ebenezer Robson have been selected as the most striking figures among the pioneer missionaries to Vancouver's Island and British Columbia. They came out in 1858-9, and this is so stated in the pageant text. Farther down in the roll of honor comes Thomas Crosby, announced as "Heralds of the Cross up and down the North Pacific Coast." And after him appear the first missionaries to Japan, the first missionary superintendent of the Northwest Territories, and the founders of the West China Mission.

Such accuracy is essential if the facts of history, which underlie the situation of to-day in this Dominion, are to be properly appreciated. Robson and Evans, with Edward White and Arthur Browning, were Ontario men, whose coming to the Pacific province suggests the problem which only the railways and the Panama Canal have overcome. They had to travel overland from Toronto to New York, thence sail to Panama, cross that isthmus, re-embark on another vessel and sail up the coast, landing at Victoria after weary and hazardous months. That was 65 years ago, yet they found a remarkable progress of exploration, settlement and development. The convention will celebrate their achievement in founding missions among both white and Indian population, reaching miners, trappers, lumbermen and fishermen in the most remote localities within the next two years.

The exhibition will display evidence of this labor and success. In addition, there are included many features which, in speech and curio and pageant, will bring home to the conventions of British Columbia ministers and laity the salient facts of missionary triumph in the other provinces of Canada.

In 1858, Canada and the Canadian Methodist Church still included only Ontario and Quebec. But in both Church and State there were lively anticipations of a wider field. A party of British commissioners were in the Northwest to investigate and advise the Home Government regarding the future of that great area, and the facts are duly recorded in Methodist Missionary Annals as a warning to the church of greater things to come. In the Wesleyan Missionary notices of May 1st, 1858, occurs this passage: "From recent despatches it appears that the Imperial Government has about decided that Vancouver's Island in the Pacific shall be a British colony, not to be confined within its shores but to stretch away eastward to the Rocky Mountains, and Canada is likely to have an opportunity of settling and governing immense tracts on the east of the mountains, altogether an area perhaps equal to the present dimensions of Canada."

The matter was discussed promptly by correspondence with the Missionary committee of the Wesleyan Church in England. They encouraged the project of a mission to the Pacific Coast, under Canadian control, and voted $500 towards expenses. Almost simultaneously came a request from one, Mr. Pidwell of Victoria, backed by resolution of a public meeting which had formally decided to invite the opening of a Methodist mission. When that news got out, unsolicited offers of service began to pour in. Several chairmen of districts, and not less than twelve superintendents of circuits, volunteered to join a pioneer party to the coast. Four were chosen, started out on December 18, 1858, ended their 6,000-mile journey at Victoria on Thursday, February 10, 1859, and held service the next Sunday. Thus began the development which to-day receives recognition at the hands of a grateful church throughout Canada.

UNEMPLOYED INCREASING

Nearly 11 Per Cent. of Workers in British Isles Were Unemployed.

LONDON, Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—Nearly 11 per cent. of workers in Great Britain and Ireland were unemployed on September 28, according to figures published by the Ministry of Labor Gazette. The number of applicants for employment registered at the employment exchanges had grown from 1,152,000 at the end of August, to 1,205,000 on September 29.

The Gazette also records another advance of four points in the cost of living on Octover 1, the index figures being 76 against 72 on September 1 and 69 on June 1. These figures indicate a percentage advance in prices over the pre-war level.

GERMAN EMIGRANTS HEAD SOUTH.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 21.—Dr. Preusse Sperberg, representing the German Emigrants Confederation, has arrived here with the purpose of investigating conditions for a further increase of German emigration to Argentina. He believes that the South American countries will be called upon to receive a great part of Germany's excess population.

THREW BULLET IN STOVE FARMER MAY NOT LIVE

QUEBEC, Que., Nov. 21.—A farmer named Azarie Boutet, of Portneuf county, was transferred to the Hotel Dieu yestreday morning, victim of a serious accident, which may cause his death, but surely means the loss of his left eye.

The victim was preparing a gun to start hunting when he found a bullet which had been left in the bore of the gun. Thinking that the bullet was unoladed he threw it into the stove. The bullet exploded and Boutet was struck in the eye. Transfer was ordered immediately to the Hotel Dieu.

The new hero today is handsome, dressy and talkative. The strong, silent man has gone.

Perhaps it is the life of the jazz age, which is so swift, that has brought the new hero to books and to the stage.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

"THE REAL CHRISTIAN AND CHURCH UNION."

To the Editor:

An American diplomat tells of visiting the General Synod of the Russian Church, in Moscow, in 1917. Although Russia then was bleeding from every artery, while revolution and murder filled the land, for three days the priests of that Synod sat and discussed petty questions of creed and form and, worse still, of vestments. What did such trifling questions mean to staggering, ruined Russia in 1917? No Wonder the Russians turned with loathing and fury from such a church. The Red shadow over Russia to-day is a horrible testimony to the failure and corruption of their co-called Christian church.

To our everlasting shame we may behold a similar spectacle in our own fair land to-day. We have every type of race and creed scattered over the great frontier of this Dominion. Left to themselves they will sow the seeds of hate and revolution to bring forth a harvest in future generations. We have mining and lumbering settlements in our own Northern Ontario where the Gospel is not being preached because the church lacks the men and money. The only way the situation can be successfully met is by uniting our forces as the Allied nations did to win the war. Yet, alas! We behold many so-called Christians, like those Russian priests, spending their time and talents quibbling over petty questions of form and creed and threatening to withhold their givings to the Mission board just because they cannot have their own way in matters that mean but little to the growth of Christ's Kingdom.

We all love the Great Presbyterian Church, with her great history and traditions, but should we not love Canada and His Kingdom more?

Anyone who knows or cares much about the Home and Foreign Mission situation knows that church Union is the great need of the hour, and if successfully carried out would be the most important move in the history of the church in Canada. Let us consider well the Master's words: "If any man would come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow Me. For whosoever would save his life shall lose it, and whosoever shall lose his life for My sake shall find it."—Yours, etc. H. J. L. WOOLEY.

ORTHODOXY AND CHURCH UNION.

The following letter from Rev. R. Pogue of this city appeared in The Globe.

To the Editor of The Globe: A number of letters have appeared in the press lately in which the attempt is made to make orthodoxy verus heterodoxy the issue in the present Church Union situation. Some have attempted to make this the issue all along, but they have signally failed in their purpose. But the attack has been launched with renewed vigor in the last while, in the hope, it would seem, that simple and sincere people may have the real issue clouded and be stampeded into voting against Union in order that by so doing they may preserve for themselves a sound creed and a pure Church.

I absolutely deny there is any such issue before us in the coming vote. Nor can any one honestly make it an issue who is acquainted with the facts. If this were the issue, I know where I myself should take my stand; it would be among those who believe the Bible to be the infallible Word of God, those who accept the creed of historic Christianity. My position in matters theological is well known to many of my brethren throughout the Church. I can heartily subscribe to the five doctrines which the General Assembly of the United States in 1910 affirmed as essential to the Christian faith, namely, first, that the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments are infallibly inspired; second, that our Lord Jesus Christ was born of the Virgin Mary; third, that He died to satisfy Divine justice and reconcile us to God; fourth, that He was very of very God, and, fifth, that He wrought the miracles attributed to Him in the New Testament.

I hold these doctrines, and yet I am going into the Union, I am a premillenalist—not the narrow kind—and yet I am going into the Union.

If it were true, which it is not, that there were no modernists in the Presbyterian Church and that such teaching abounds in the Methodist Church, then, and only then, could we make orthodoxy versus heterodoxy an issue. If it were true, which it is not, that all modernists in the Presbyterian Church were going into Union, and all who held the faith uncorrupted were staying out, I know with which company I should identify myself.

But this, let me repeat, is not so, I venture the assertion, which can easily be proven, that there is a larger percentage of those holding the modern view of the Bible staying out of Union than there is going into it. The most prominent minister leaders in the anti-Unionist ranks are modernists.

Of course, in all fairness, it must be said there are different shades of modernism. I know many on both sides who hold modern views in varying degrees, and yet they are faithful ministers of Jesus Christ. Whom am I that I should sit in judgment on men who may hold a different view of inspiration, for example, to me, but who know Jesus Christ in a heart experience, and trust Him as Saviour and Lord, and whose ministry God owns and blesses?

As I see the members of our Church lining up just now, I see a number opposing Union because they think the Ark of God is in danger. I see a much larger number equally devout, reverent, sincere, holding the doctrines of our evangelical faith as firmly as any, going into the Union. When, therefore, men try to make the membership of our Church believe that the issue is one of sound versus unsound doctrine, they are giving an exceedingly misleading impression, and they are saying what is not true. It simply cannot be made an issue.

NO RIGHT TO MAINTENANCE

Claims Which Would Lead To Suicide.

Forgetting the Customer.

The Truth About the Demand For Work.

(CONTRIBUTED).

Those of us who can carry our memories back a quarter of a century or more cannot fail to experience a sense of satisfaction when we contemplate the arrangements that have been made in this land of ours to avoid the horrors which were formerly common, of men and women perishing through want and children going hungry to school. It is of the first importance that we should all understand what it is that makes these arrangements possible, that we should comprehend the economic basis upon which they rest, and that we should not allow ourselves to be deceived, or drift into a frame of mind which might undermine the whole social fabric and bring us to a worse condition than that from which we have escaped. Life is a constant struggle with the forces of nature, and only by maintaining in the most vigorous way our part in the struggle can we win from nature the nourishment we need and those amenities which, in ever-growing quantities, are regarded as necessities. If effort is relaxed—if, indeed, we forget that there is the necessity for exertion—we place ourselves in danger.

An Unsound Claim Exposed.

As human beings we have no right to anything that we will not ourselves produce, and it is proper subject for study and argument as to what sort of incentive is required to make us perform the necessary duties of production. To say that we have any rights in this matter of maintenance may sound attractive and may appear to be in line with the political notion of a man's position in the world, but it is contrary to the real truth, namely, that all we have is responsibilities.

Socialists claim "work or maintenance"—sometimes even work or maintenance at full trade union rates—and claim it as a right. Let us see how we imagine a community consisting of ten men. One man becomes diseased or incapacitated, and the nine remaining, out of the goodness of their hearts, say that they will maintain him. They submit to a tax of one-ninth of their income in order to make provision for the tenth man: That puts no hardship upon anybody; it is a practical, a charitable and a humane arrangement. If a second man finds himself unable to pursue his vocation and the community still takes the view that all are responsible for each, then the eight remaining workers would have to submit to a further tax in order to maintain the two who could not work. The burden becomes greater as the out-of-works increase, and if, presently, the stage is reached that we have now reached in this country to-day, and a party arises which says, "We have the right to maintainance," it is obviously only necessary for the whole ten to accept that view for every bit of maintenance to disappear.

Economically the maintenance idea leads to straightforward suicide. The man who talks of charity or human kindness in these days of political "right is considered out of date, but it cannot be long before it is again recognised that any measures taken by the public for the assistance of those who may be in temporary difficulties are—whatever they may be called—nothing more nor less than charity, and that the attempt to get away from this idea will, if persisted in, lead us to disaster.

There is a very general feeling that it is desirable to remove the taint of pauperism from public assistance, that it is right to wipe away any trace of stigma from such things as doles, and we are encouraged to regard these things as belonging as of right to a citizen—an attractive notion which we should all be very glad to endorse if it were not for the knowledge that it has only to be accepted widely enough to bring our society to an end. Fortunately, there is in each of us a sufficient sense of right and an instinctive desire to work which saves us from the damage that our political folly would otherwise do to us.

The Demand for Work—On Terms.

When we examine still further this demand for work or maintenance, we begin to see how far from the path of economic truth we are travelling. The trade unions, on the one hand, and scientific organization in industry, on the other, have developed a state of affairs which, if properly understood and used with sense and understanding, is full of potentiality for good for all of us, but which is to-day being used for highly destructive purposes.

The demand for work is not for any work, it is for work on our own terms at our own trade, in our own way. If a carpenter is out of work the demand is that he should be maintained until there is more carpentering to be done, and we have developed a system of organization which actually forbids the carpenter to do anything but carpentering. It is necessary to get back to first principles, to think these things out afresh and to ask ourselves why we work and how work arises.

The only excuse for the existence of a carpenter is that his fellow-citizens require carpentering to be done. The carpenter does not toil with wood and saw for the pleasure of it, or for his health; he does it because his neighbours require wood to be sawn, and if he will saw wood to their satisfaction they are willing to give him, out of their production, other things upon which he can live. That being so, the position arises when the carpenter's fellow-citizens say, "We do not require any more carpentering just now, but we want a little digging done." Obviously the carpenter, if he is a true citizen, desiring to do his share of the general work of the community in providing comfort for all, will put down his saw, pick up a spade and fill up his time with digging. He can certainly have no rights upon his fellows unless he is prepared to do any reasonable form of service that his fellows require, and yet, in these enlightened days, we have permitted a system to grow up amongst us which limits each one of us to some highly specialized function, which forbids us to do anything but one job, which calls us "blacklegs" if we move to the right or to the left from the narrow path that has been allocated to us. Then we say we must have work or maintenance! Could anything be more absurd!

The Way to View Work.

The trouble is, as has been pointed out, that we look on this question of work upside down. We regard work a an end in itself—as something which the worker must have for his own benefit. We think only of the worker; we have almost forgotten the job which he does and completely forgotten the person for whom he does it. We must get back to a totally different point of view. We must keep our minds fixed upon the purpose of the work and the consumer of the work. We must start with the fact that we work to serve others; that if others had no wants there would be no work for us, and that if we do not render good service and give satisfaction to the others, we are failing in our duty.

Such a point of view leads to all sorts of interesting and old-fashioned notions which need to be revived. If each of us, in doing a piece of work, would ask ourselves whether we are giving satisfaction, whether we are giving good value, whether we are creating in the minds of the consumers a desire for more then the unemployment problem would disappear and the absurd doctrine of the right to maintenance with it.

These are questions which all of us need to ask ourselves—not only the working man, but the manufacturer, the merchant, the wholesaler and the retailer. The mentality which allows us to ask how long we can take over job and how much we can squeeze out of it for ourselves is far too common amongst us. It creates at the other end of the scale—in the breast of the consumer—a feeling of irritation and dissatisfaction, a determination to do without us as far as possible; it kills trade, reduces demand and creates unemployment. Having worked ourselves into this wholly false and most unfortunate position, arising from our own stupidity, we turn round and say to the very persons whom we have declined to serve that we have upon them some right to maintenance. We want to hold as long as ever it is possible—and it should always be possible if we act rightly—the proud tradition that in our land no man shall starve, but we are jeopardising the continuance of tha position if we allow ourselves for one moment to entertain the notion that there is any right in the matter. We all have grave responsibilities and we should concentrate on these.

FUTURE MISSIONARY CONVERTED BY BRAHMIN.

BELMAR, N.J., Nov. 21.—Dr. Henry Jackson, senior foreign missionary of the Methodist Episcopal Church, who died here recently, aged 84, was born in Devonport, England, converted at Bombay through the influence of Narayan Sheshadri, a Brahmin, then served four years in the Wesleyan ministry in Canada and returned to India as a missionary in 1860.

ECCENTRICITY OF ONE GENIUS

Leonardo da Vinci was a very accomplished person, as most every one knows, and versatile to the last degree, but his communications were very difficult to read, or rather translate, which seems to be the word better suited for his case. He wrote from right to left after the fashion of the Semitic group and the letters were reversed as well. His writing is what is known as mirrored, such as would be observed when examining a normal script through the reflection of a mirror. He had his own system of abbreviation and used no punctuation whatever.

THE POPULATION OF AN ANT HILL

Wishing to arrive at an approximation of the population of ant hills, a scientist abroad gassed the ants and then undertook to count the contents of three hills of average size. The largest contained 93,694 and the smallest 17,828. Allowing ten thousand ants for those which escaped and which were out at the time of the gassing, it makes the population of an ant hill more than one hundred thousand.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Mr. Edward E. Stephens Passed Away Last Evening—Social Events in Town.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov 21.—Mr. E. E. Stephens, who had a stroke on Wednesday died Thursday night, about six o'clock, at his home on Frank street. The funeral date has not been arranged for yet, as the friends are waiting to see if some relatives who live at a distance, will be able to come.

Shower for Miss Dunk

About thirty friends of Miss Ruth Dunk, River Road, met at the home of Miss Katie McArthur, Queen St., on Thursday night to give her a miscellaneous shower in honor of her marriage next week. The house was decorated in white and rose paper. Streamers reaching from the electrilier to each corner of the parlor. The first of the evening was spent in dancing, cards and music, after which lunch was served. Mr. Percy Tweedie of Stirling, the groom-to-be, was also present and he and Miss Dunk, opened the gifts and read the verses sent with each one.

There were a lot of very pretty and useful present. Mr. Tweedie on behalf of Miss Dunk and himself, thanked those present for these gifts and hoped that they would have the pleasure of having all the guests come to see them in their home in Stirling after which all joined in singing "For they are jolly good fel lows' 'and "Auld Lang Syne" (formed in a ring). The male sextette, composed of Messrs. McArthur, Cochrane, Thomas, Kunions, O'Sullivan and Nicholson, favored the company with several populad songs, accompanied by Mr. Arthur Collison The rest of the evening was spent in dancing and social intercourse.

The young people are grateful to Mr. and Mrs. McArthur and family for their kind hospitality. The best wishes of all will follow Mr. Tweedie and Miss Dunk in their future life together. Mr. P. Monaghan played the violin for the dancing.

CONDITIONS UNCHANGED.

Solomon Altman, of Toronto, May Not Recover From Effects of Accident.

COBOURG, Nov. 21.—(Special).—There is no change to-day in the condition of Soloman Altman, of Toronto, who has never regained consciousness since the motor accident east of Brighton Wednesday, when Mr. Kayler was killed and others of the party of six, who were en route from Wellington to Toronto, injured. Altman was brought to the hospital here. His condition is regarded as very serious, and his recovery is not expected.

PRICE CUTTING WAR.

Chatham Laundrymen Bid For Business at Reduced Prices.

CHATHAM, Ont. Nov. 21.—Local Chinese laundrymen are engaged in a price cutting war. The war started when a new arrival from Hamilton issued circulars announcing his prices. His competitors promptly adjusted prices. Chinese laundries in all sections of the city are bidding for the business at reduced figures.

DIED THIS MORNING

MARCEN, OHIO, Nov. 21.—Florence Kling Harding, widow of late President Warren G. Harding of United States, died here this morning.

End came at White Oaks San itarium of Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, where she has been fighting for her life for the last few weeks. Her death was due directly to kidney complaint from which she suffered for years.

PREPARING MESSAGE.

President Coolidge's Address To Congress Will Deal With Economy.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press.)—President Coolidge's message to Congress, preparation of which he began yesterday will deal largely with economy and will call attention to failure of the senate to act on world court.

It is hinted that executive will place much emphasizes on his world court recommendation, particularly since discussion of court affords means of engaging senate, while house is laboring on appropriation bills.

Issue of adhering to protocol of court will be raised by interested organizations before date set for delivery of message and therefore president will not seem to be digging it up from waste basket. World court and railroad legislation have been rated important topics for session for new congress if one is held.

EDDY STRIKE ENDS

Nearly $100,000 Loss in Wages During Two Months' Idleness.

HULL, Que., Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press).—The strike of the match factory employees of the E. B. Eddy Company, which has been in progress for two months, affecting about 300 employees, ended yesterday afternoon, and the factory will open again Monday morning. Nearly $100,000 in wages have been lost through the strike, which caused the company to have it's match output directed from its Deseronto, Ont., factory.

STILL AFTER TOWERS.

Man Who Escaped From Custody Still at Large.

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., Nov. 21.—Police are still scouring the country for William Towers, the self-confessed Vancouver jewel thief who escaped from custody Tuesday night when passing through Medicine Hat en route to Vancouver from Ottawa in charge of a detective. It is learned that he doubled on his tracks and re-entered the city by way of the railway bridge, enquiring his way on four different occasions. He crossed the whole city and obtained access to the south country, where he may have made a clean get-away by means of the Crow's Nest Pass Railway.

IMMIGRATION LOWER.

OTTAWA, Nov. 21. —(Canadian Press).—In seven months ended Oct 31st last immigration into Canada totalled 92,137 as compared with 106, 508 in same period last year, or dedecrease of 13 per cent. During August, 1923, however, 11,000 British harvesters were brought into Canada so that if that number be deducted from total for seven months ending Oct. 31st., last year, that period's showing is 95,508 making the decrease in the same period this year.

DECLARES WAR ON RATS.

ROCHESTER, Nov. 21.— The population of this city is going to be reduced by about 1,000,000, according to Dr. George W. Goler, the city health officer. A war on rats in the city, which the health office estimates number 1,000,000, ha sbeen declared.

DANCE AT MARMORA

Good Reports From the Hunters—Personal Mention.

MARMORA, Nov. 21.—The dance put on by the young men's club of St. Pauls' church at the Town Hall on Monday evening was well attended. The committee comprised of Messrs. W. R. Gray, H. R. Pearce, and C. Jones. Roseneath five-piece orchestra made their first appearance locally and gave great satisfaction. Supper ws served at midnight of the usual good quality.

The regular monthly meeting of the management committee of the Deloro Social and Dramatic Society was held on Monday evening when items of importance were discussed. Everything augurs well for a successful winter's season.

Mrs. Syd Brown is very ill in Havelock hospital having undergone an operation there on Saturday for appendicitis.

Mr. Fred Paquet witnessed the McGill-Varsity game in Montreal on Saturday.

Good reports continue to come in from the hunting grounds.

Mrs. Pinkerton of Toronto is visiting at her sisters, Mrs. Milliken, Deloro.

Mr. M. E. Grant moved on Monday into the house recently occupied by Mr. Warren Hickey. Other moves will now ensue.

HER 88TH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. David Hunter of Cavan Is Hale and Bright.

CAVAN, Nov. 20.—On Saturday November the fifteenth, Mrs. David Hunter celebrated her eighty-eighth birthday.

As is their custom the family gathered for the occasion at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. Swain.

Mrs. Hunter is particularly bright and well for her age, and enjoys meeting her friends just as much as in the past. Her many friends and neighbors join in wishing her many happy returns of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Swain, Valentia, were out for the occasion, staying over until Sunday and calling on other friends.

There is an epidemic of mumps just now, particularly in Whitfield's school section.

MANY SETTLERS WILL GO HOME FOR CHRISTMAS

Special Trains Will Be Run From Western Provinces To Montreal.

HAD GOOD CROPS.

More Settlers Will Spend Christmas at Home This Year Than Ever Before.

MONTREAL, Q., Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press.) — More people from Western Canada will spend Christmas and the New Year in Great Britain this year than at any time since the war, according to R. C. Creelman, passenger traffic manager of the Canadian National Railways at Winnipeg, who was in Montreal on business yesterday. Already, according to Mr. Creelman sufficient applications have been received from the three prairie provinces to warrant the operating of at least two special trains. And as the last boat does not sail until a few days before Christmas, he is of the opinion that probably four special trains will be required to care for the large number of passengers that will make the trans-Atlantic trip during the holiday season.

Mr. Creelman attributes this increase in ocean travel at Christmas to the fact that while the farmers have not grown as much grain during the past season, they are receiving better prices for their crops and are in reality, better off than they were last year with a record harvest. This explanation would seem to be logical as reports from the central regions also indicate a large increase in overseas holiday traffic next month. The situation with regard to this traffic is so definite that passenger traffic officers of the system have been able to allot cars to various centres to care for the traffic and to complete arrangements for the running of special trains from Montreal to the Atlantic seaboard.

Passengers from Toronto and other points in Ontario will be brought to Montreal in special cars and here these cars will be made up into special trains for despatch to Halifax.

The first boat is the Regina, which sails from Halifax on December seventh for Glasgow, Belfast and Liverpool. The Andania sails on December 8 from Halifax for Plymouth, London and Cherbourg and on the same day the Saturnia sails for Glasgow. The Pittsburg sails for Cherbourg, Southampton and Hambourg respectively on December eleventh, while the Canada and the Carmania sail on Dec. 14, the Canada calling at Glasgow, Belfast and Liverpool and the Carmania at Queenstown and Liverpool. Special trains or through cars as required, will be operated from Montreal to care for passengers from Ontario and Quebec points.

These special Christmas and New Year overseas trips have been a feature of the programme of the Canadian National Railways for several years, but the response this year has been greater than ever before. A specially low combined rail and steamship return rate with a three month limit has been set with a two-fold object. The first of which is to give new settlers an opportunity to visit their old homes during the off season and the second is the value of the settlers in inducing others in the old country to come to Canada. Much valuable colonization work has been done by these Christmas visitors from Canada to Great Britain and for that reason every reasonable effort is made to aid as many new settlers as possible to spend the holiday season in the lands of their birth.

GOVERNMENT PLANS TO OPEN UP NORTH

Government To Pay Half Cent Per Unite For Development of Iron Ore In Ontario.

TORONTO, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Many matters of considerable importance were discussed by the Associated Boards of Trade and the Chambers of Commerce of Ontario at the first day's session of the 11th annual meeting held in the City Hall yesterday. The delegates were welcomed by Mayor Hiltz and were entertained by the city at luncheon at Sunnyside Pavilion. Here Premier Ferguson assured them of the Government's interest in Northern Ontario, and announced that it was their policy to make Toronto the gateway to the north. "Within two years," he said, "we propose that you will be able to leave Toronto by motor and go all the way by road to the mining camps at Timmins and Cochrane. We propose to construct a road between North Bay and Cobalt soon. I might say immediately, so that traffic shall be brought this way."

The Premier also announced that the Government intended to pay an extra half cent per unit for the development of iron ore, which the Dominion Government would not agree to pay, making one cent per unit to be paid by the Ontario Government. In its efforts to open up the north, the Government intended to be liberal but not lavish, he said. Hon. Chas. McCrea, who also spoke, was optimistic with regard to the attraction of British capital for the development of Ontario's mineral resources, stating that when he was in England speaking to the president of a big mining corporation, the latter said to him that of twenty-three countries were operations were in progress, Ontario headed the list for stability and fairness in its laws. The business of the morning and afternoon sessions were chiefly devoted to the consideration of resolutions. One resolution which received endorsation, calls for the licensing of automobile drivers in the interests of public safety. Another, with the object of securing legislation compelling drivers to halt their cars within fifty feet of all level crossings, was referred to the Executive Committee, with an expression in favor of it. The keenest controversy of the day, however, resulted from a resolution from the Guelph Chamber of Commerce, calling for an embargo on pulp wood. Lieut.-Col. W. Simpson, who sponsored the motion, presented a strong case. Opposition came from A. J. Young, of North Bay, who claimed injustice would be done to the farmers who depended on the sale of their wood for "grub stake."

C. T. Young, of Toronto, wished to steer the middle course, with graded export tax as a solution. The resolution was still under consideration when the meeting adjourned for the evening.

MYSTERY UNFOLDED.

Man Held in Chatham Jail Suffers From Lapse of Memory.

CHATHAM, Nov. 21 — The mystery surrounding a man who said his name was Frank Vaneck and who has been detained at the County jail since November 5 may be removed as a result of a letter from Mrs. Tasser, Kadsoe Ave., Chicago, which High Constable Peters has received. The woman wrote the police seeking information concerning her brother, the description answering the man who was arrested for vagrancy following complaints concerning his strange actions at Erie Avenue. The woman states that her brother suffers from lapses of memory, and that entails trouble.

Leaves had began to brown and the lush green of the grass was becoming a deep gold.

TRIBUTE PAID TO HENRY COCKSHUTT

Lieutenant Governor Tendered Banquet in Toronto Last Night.

TORONTO, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press).—A signal tribute of appreciation to His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Henry Cockshutt for his many services to the Province of Ontario during the three years in which he has been at the Government House was paid last night by the Boards of Trade and Commerce of Ontario at a banquet tendered to him, which was attended by over four hundred leaders of industry from all parts of the province. To unrestricted praise of His Honor, voiced by three prominent members of the association, on whom the devotive task of the evening was added appreciation of Hon. Narcisse Perodeau, Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, for Mr. Cockshutt's efforts in the promotion of La Bonne Entente between the two provinces, and that of Premier Ferguson for His Honor's unremitting attention to many problems facing the province. Lieutenant-Governor Cockshutt, in his reply, extended his thanks to all who had assisted him in the performance of the duties of his office, gave a sketch of the business contentions throughout Ontario, and concluded by expressing the unbounded confidence in the great future which lay before it. R. A. MacKinnis, of Iroquois Falls, past president of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Associated Boards of Trade, the final speaker to the toast, emphasized the splendid work His Honor had done in bringing about unity and co-operation amongst the various sections of the Province. He had been largely instrumental in linking up the interests of New and Old Ontario, and had therein shown himself to be a man of vision.

WHY SPEAK OF LOVE.

(By Cynthia Grey)

It's true enough that love makes the world go 'round. But it does a lot of odd jobs on the side, too.

Except for love, no velvet hats would be sold in August, no summer straw ones in January. There would be no beauty shops, no dance records, no plots for movies—without love.

There would be no clay-packs for men in barber shops, no sheik haircuts, no bay rum on the bald spot.

But for love, the diamonds would still be in the mines at Kimberley, and the pearls in the oysters. The perfume would still be in the roses in Grasse, and the ostrich would wear its own tail-feathers!

There would be no reducing diets, no permament-wave machines, and "Three Weeks" would never have been written.

Look at Dolly May, the miracle child of Mrs. H. D. Locke of Harperville, Ga. Dolly May has everybody in town talking about her, for the first peep into her mouth showed that she had started life with one tooth already cut! Did you ever hear of the likes?

CHINA DESIRES FINANCIAL AID

In Favor of Bankers' Conference on Refunding of Chinese Loans.

NOT "DAWES PLAN"

GENEVA, Nov. 21. — (Canadian Press). — Following reports from New York that a so-called Dawes plan for China was under consideration, Alfred Sze, Chinese Minister to the United States, who is here attending the international opium conference, yesterday said he had had no official conversations with the American State Department regarding any such plan.

Minister Sze said he was not in a position to discuss the reported project in any way, nor the report that the Chinese Foreign Minister, C. T. Wang, is planning to invite representatives of the leading Powers to a conference in Peking on China's financial status.

In Chinese circles here the impression was given that it would be deemed particularly unfortunate if any project touching the re-organization of China's finances with the help of foreign diplomats or financiers should become known as another Dawes plan. It is affirmed categorically that such an appellation would condemn it in advance to failure because the impression would be created that China, like Germany, was viewed as a vanquished power, requiring international control in order to meet the payment of reparations.

Investigation here shows that the Chinese are undoubtedly in favor of a meeting of international bankers to take up the question of refunding the Chinese loans on which the interest has long since been defaulted. The Chinese are said to desire to straighten up such matters as soon as possible. They estimate that the total Chinese debt is a little over $500,000,000, but explain that the bulk of this is internal.

The estimate of the total indebtedness is based on a dollar and twenty-five cents per head of the Chinese population which is approximately 430,000,000 people.

The Chinese are said to favor holding the bankers' conference before the proposed international conference authorized by the Washington agreement to discuss the Chinese tariff situation, as it is believed the bankers could turn over valuable information to the tariff conference which will be held when ratifications by the powers make it possible.

MONTHLY MEETING WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Omemee Ladies Met on Friday Afternoon—Visitors Present.

OMEMEE, Nov. 21.—The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. H. G. McGinness, on Friday afternoon. There were twenty-five present, including visitors, Mrs. T. E. MacPherson occupied the chair. The meeting opened with the opening ode followed by the Lord's prayer in unison. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. R. J. Cornwall, after which the roll call was responded to by several members with a Christmas suggestion. Mrs. E. W. Rowland then rendered a piano solo to the pleasure of all present, followed by the following paper by Mrs. J. Shields, entitled, "How to make our Institute a success."

It is the sweet spirit of helpfulness, together with a willingness to learn, that is going to make our Institute a success and a power for good.

We have in the Institute an organization which permits all the women of the community to meet with a common object in view, no class, church or national distinction being wrawn. Its aims are most liberal, its objects helpful and the subjects for discussion are unlimited. Institute work must be taken up on a broad basis, that it will benefit every part of the home life, of every style of home. Have high ideals in our meetings, though we may not reach the goal, we will get nearer each day by trying to attain to the ideals. Thus, we will become unselfish, sociable and sympathetic towards all womankind.

When a number of women are gathered together there must be something which will prove profitable to them in order to keep up their interest. This requires thought, not only by one, but by all. It is not the members that sit and listen to a paper being read, but the one who prepares it is most benefitted.

We should not shirk our own share of the work. When we are asked to prepare a paper, be a woman and say, "I will do my best." None of us know what we can do until we try. It should not be necessary to ask each member if she is willing, for we are always ready to put up some petty excuse.

The meetings should be interesting. If the subjects are simple and easily understood, they are interesting.

We require earnest enthusaistic members.

Encourage Girls.

The young girls should be encouraged to attend, for the girls of to-day are the women of to-morrow.

Some of the younger members have more education than some of the older ones, but the older ones have experience.

Usually, what each member has to say, during discussion is worth everyone's hearing. Do not let us get into the habit of expressing ourselves to the one next to us, instead of before the meeting.

The meeting should begin on time. It is a matter of habit when members are not punctual. We should try and increase our membership not by coaxing them to join but by inviting them to our meetings, that they may see for themselves the benefit which is received.

Miss Eva Race then contributed a piano solo.

Letters of appreciation from Mrs. F. Hart for a recent wedding gift of tablespoons, also Mrs. T. H. McQuade for fruit, were read by the secretary.

The travelling market basket was in evidence and several purchases were made by the ladies, after which the money box was opened and found to contain about $3.50 and the basket will proceed on its way until all members have contributed towards it.

Miss Ettie Jewett was appointed delegate to attend the Women's Institute convention in Toronto this week.

The president introduced the subject of the home-nursing class and after a lengthy discussion it was decided that anyone desiring to take the course (whether member or outsider) wold attend a meeting on Friday evening at Mrs. T. E. MacPherson's for the purpose of organizing. Mrs. Robert Wilson offered her home for the first class should the course materailize.

The hostesses were Mrs. H. Hall, Mrs. R. Cornwall, Mrs. McGinness and Misses L. Parsons and E. Jewett and a social half hour was enjoyed at the close of the meeting.

The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. Palmer.

Sanderson—Jackson.

A very quiet wedding was solemnized on Wednesday evening at the Methodist parsonage by the Rev. E. W. Rowland, when Hilda Maude, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sanderson was united in marriage to Harry Livingstone Jackson, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Jackson of East Emily. They were unattended. The bride was attired in a navy blue suit with sand colored hat, blouse and gloves and immediately after the ceremony they motored to the groom's home where a sumptuos dinner was awaiting them.

Dr. G. N. Earle, the medical health officer for Omemee, sent in his annual report to Toronto last week. This report was one any village might be proud of, as it contained only one death and fifteen births since Nov. 15, 1923.

Miss Hamilton, a representative of the Red Cross Society, Toronto, was here last week trying to organize a class in first aid work. A local nurse expressed her willingness to undertake the work of instructor and a class of from twenty to twenty-five would be necessary to make the venture worth while. The course would be given in ten lessons and each member of the class would pay an initial fee of $1.00. The venture is now in the hands of the president of the Women's Institute, Mrs. T. E. MacPherson.

A.Y.P.A. Sunday was observed in Christ church on Sunday. Corporal communion was administered by the rector, at the early morning service. At the evening service, Mr. Horace Hill read the Scripture lessons and Mr. Wilbert Clemett (both members of the A.Y.P.A.) sang a solo. On account of the cold, disagreeable weather, no visitors were present from outside points.

The appearance of Sturgeon street C.N.R. station has been greatly improved by the installation of Hydro, which has been a long felt want for many years.

Rev. E. W. Rowland attended a banquet for the Collegiate and Public school teachers in Lindsay on Thursday evening and assisted with the programme.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. Hurd on Saturday, Nov. 15, a son.

MANX CATS RESEMBLE DOGS.

The origin of Manx cats is now attributed to the arrival of these cats on the Isle of Man from ships belonging to the Spanish Aramada that were wrecked there. They were probably brought from Japan or Eastern Asia. They are a distinct specits with short forelegs and elevated hindquarters, and differ from other cats somewhat in call, ways and character. They vary in color. People who have owned them for long periods say they are not good mousers or hunters. In character they are rather similar to a dog, being highly companionable and having some of the qualities of a guardian.

Looking at the calendar, Mr. Mann realized that the fall season was fast slipping in upon Anytown.

TRADE SITUATION IS MUCH BRIGHTER

Hon. T. A. Low Stated To-day That Country Was in Hopeful Situation.

OTTAWA, Nov. 21. — (Canadian Press). — "An examination of the trade returns for the last twelve months reveals a very hopeful situation," states Hon. T. A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce, in a statement issued to-day. "The Canadian trade figures on September 30, at the conclusion of the first six months of the year, showed much more buoyant tendency than was the case a month earlier." He declares that was the cause of much comment when the August figures were made public has given place to substantial improvement in the total value of goods entering and leaving the Dominion.

Dealing with export trade, Mr. Low states that September last was the best month the Dominion has had in four years.

"The depression in import trade," the statement says, "during the early part of the year has resulted in the accumulation of a heavy handicap in this year's figures up to date, as compared with last year's statistics, but with an upward movement now under way and an export trade that guarantees our buying power for some time to come. Much of this handicap should be made up before the close of the fiscal year at the end of next March."

LUDENDORFF MAKES PLEA FOR MONARCHY

General In First Berlin Speech Since War, Asks Restoration of Throne.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—General Eric Ludendorff, in his first speech in Berlin since the war, yesterday called upon the people of Germany to restore the monarchy. He said:

"I call you to battle against the black, red and gold" (colors of the German republic). "I call you to battle especially against parliamentarism, that power and factor of Jewish thinking.

"I call you to battle against the Presidency of Herr Ebert. I call on you to join the Pan-German People's Union in the fight for freedom, right and honor. It will save us—nothing else can."

Fighting with his back to the wall in one more cause that seems doomed Ludendorff made this impassioned appeal to his followers in an effort to rouse them to a more active participation in the election fight and to stem the predicted collapse of the racialist movement.

Because of lack of funds there appears to be grave disunion among the leaders of the movement.

PUBLIC DECIDES.

Amendments Needed In Law To Be Made.

TORONTO, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press).—The Statute Revision Commission of Ontario has sent out notices to various municipalities, associations and corporations interested in law revision, requesting them to send to the commission a statement showing in detail the amendments which they think should be made in the assessment law. After these statements have been received by the commission they will proceed to hold public meetings.

Departed Spirits Haunt Deer Runs of the North

A hunting story of a different kind comes from the rocks around Jack's creek. It refers not to deer but to the dear departed spirits.

While tramping through the bush on a deer spoor a party of hunters came upon a bottle perched on a rock. A stick held upright in the mouth of the bottle supported a cross-piece in the form of a cross, on which was written "Gone but not forgotten". The bottle was labelled "John Dewar and Sons' Special Liqueur.

BENEFIT GAMES THURSDAY NIGHT

De Laval Credited With 4 Wins and 2 Losses Instead of 3 and 3.

In the official standing of the teams in the Softball Leagues, published the other night, there was a slight error. The De Laval team was credited with 3 wins and 3 losses and a tie game, while the correct figures for the De Laval should be 4 wins, 2 losses and a tie game, which will most likely be played next Thursday evening, when three benefit games will be run off at the Rink in an effort to raise some money for Arthur Primeau, of the Tool-Room team, who had his leg broken in a game at the arena a few weeks ago. Much interest is being taken in this benefit night, and the 700 tickets which the League Executive distributed among the different teams are now nearly all sold and a number of teams have come back the second time for more tickets. The proceeds of Thursday night's games will go towards helping to pay the doctor bills and other expenses suffered by Mr. Primeau. Three good games are expected, and it is the wish of the League Executive that the largest crowd of the season will turn out on this occasion.

STOPPED BY WEATHER.

Chief of Ontario's Forest Patrol Services Is At Point Au Baril.

TORONTO, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Captain Roy Maxwell, chief of the Ontario Government's forest patrol service, is still at Point Au Baril, where he was forced down yesterday on account of weather conditions. In a telegram to the Department of Lands and Forests, Captain Maxwell states that he may have to remain at Point Au Baril for some time until the weather conditions improve.

THE KIWANIS CARNIVAL.

Something for the Whole Family to Take Part In.

At the Kiwanis Fair next week, during the four nights when a carnival will be held in the Market Hall, from Monday to Thursday inclusive, all children under ten years of age will be welcomed free, if accompanied by parents or guardian. The admission charge to adults and older children is a very small one, so that the whole family, from Dad and Mother to the smallest kiddie, should be able to get an idea of what the Kiwanis Club does for the community in the way of entertainment and education. In the beautifully trimmed booths will be many things to delight the eye, music will charm the ear, and entertainment be provided in many "Kiwanish" ways.

The first door prize for each evening of the four will be a five-dollar gold piece.

PROFIT TAKING TO-DAY.

Trading in Stock Market Continued at Same Feverish Pace To-day.

NEW YORK, November 21. — Trading in stock market to-day continued at the same feverish pace which has been maintained since the election, but the advance in prices was checked by a heavy wave of profit taking which spead over the entire list early in the afternoon. Before outburst of realizing sales more than two score issues had scaled to new peak prices for the year on a turnover of over a million shares in the first two hours.

NEW YOUTH BUILDER.

X-Ray Works Better Than the Monkey Gland Treatment.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., November 21. — The X-ray may soon develop into a modern "fountain of youth," Dr. Willaim H. Diffenback, of New York, told the Eastern Homeopathic Medical Association in an address Thursday.

Small doses of X-ray treatment are superior to monkey glands, in restoring youthfulness to humans, Dr. Diffenback said, adding that elderly people can be entirely rejuvenated by careful and proper use of the X-ray.

Bald-headed men can get back their hair, the general apeparance of people, as well as their physical properties can be made more useful, providing the treatment is started before the glands are entirely dried up.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE.

CANADA NEEDS MORE ECONOMY

Chancellor Whidden Tells the Kiwanis Club of Need For Broad Outlook.

BUILDING NATION.

Kiwanis' luncheon to-d[illegible] was marked by the happy reports presented of progress in preparing for the Winter Fair that opens under Kiwanian auspices next week, and by an outstanding address by Chancellor Whidden.

The chairman remarked on the wonderful unanimity prevailing in the work of preparation and foretold a great success for the venture.

Winners of the booster prize, presented by Kiwanian Jack Jeffries of Richard Hall & Son's, were Charles Cummer, Walter Kidd and Charles Cook.

Dr. S. J. Graham favored the Club with two solos, "The Call," and "Give me the Open Road."

Building Greater Canada.

Chancellor H. P. Whidden, of McMaster University, ex-M.P., and a member of the Down Town Club of Toronto, spoke on "Kiwanis in the Building of Canada. It is very easy to beat the tom toms about the country but Kiwanis are endeavoring to build solidly. What is needed is a group of men of large imagination, sound sense and ability to serve. There are great possibilities in such groups as Kiwanis Clubs.

Kiwanis can help by recognizing the importance of economy in government. We are over-governed and the sooner the electorate recognize that fact the better. We need economy of interest and sentiment too.

We have at least four Canadas in Canada and the sooner we get outside our provincialism and realize the rights and interests of the several divisions the better.

"I want to urge that Kiwanians be broad minded and long sighted, and look on all parts of Ca[illegible]da as they need to be seen, in order to plan orderly progress," the speaker said.

There has to be more co-operation if we are going to build together the factors that make for the greatness of the country. The kind of constructive co-operation we need will recognize the fact that we are here as a widely distributed group of provinces that need and must find a common denominator.

Canada has unique problems of its own. Australia, for instance, has no problem comparable with ours. They set up their own models. We are exposed along the frontier to more outside influences than any other nation. The literature of United States is our literature. Our people will not support our own literature except perhaps 'Jack Canuck' and the 'Calgary Eye-Opener.'

In the Maritime Provinces the people are more closely associated with United States than with Canada and this should not be so. We won't secure the doing away with this American influence merely by damning the magazines. We must bring to bear some other influence to show them that we are prepared to back legislators to provide an effective way out of the difficulty. It is only by a far-sighted and broad-minded spirit that we can hope to secure the future for Canada.

There is a great deal of untapped natural resources in this country, but every ounce of influence we Kiwanis have to bring to bear upon their development should be given to build the best type of character and be of use to the world through having developed these resources. In this new day we know it is not conservation for greater destruction that tells but conservation in the interests of greater conservation.

It's the human resources of the country that need to be conserved primarily if we are to build a nation worth while. In the coming days all of Canada's social and educational programme should recognize the claim of the youth of the country so that they may be encouraged to live, plan and prosper as good citizens in a strong moral country.

Kiwanian G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., in thanking Chancellor Whidden, remarked on his great ability and responsibility and classed him among the great men of Canada.

SEVEN SAILORS RESCUED.

Lived In Open Boat For 53 Hours Off Virginia Cape.

BOSTON, Nov. 21. — (Canadian Press).—Stirring story of shipwreck, long exposure in open boat, hunger and thirst and distress that sometimes comes to women and men, who go down to sea, in ships, was told to-day by Mrs. L. B. Bishop of Malden, sea going wife of skipper of Tern Schooner Susane B with Miss Katherine Woodworth of Rockport, her 18-year-old niece, Capt. Bishop, John Bishop, their son, who was Schooner's mate and three members of the crew, 60-year-old woman, who has been to sea 27 years, was landed here after her first shipwreck by steaer City of Atlanta, which had picked up party from yawl, 150 miles off the Virginia cape.

Little group of seven bundled in open boat for 53 hours with food rendered uneatable by salt water saturation, attracted attention of their rescuers by waving blanket. Three times previously other vessels had passed them. Their lookouts failing to see skirts and petticoats waved by women.

"We could not have stood it much longer," Mrs. Bishop said.

GAVE ADDRESS LOCAL COUNCIL

Miss Leta Brownscombe Describes Work of Travellers 'Aid Society.

The regular monthly meeting of the Local Council of Women was held yesterday afternoon in the Green Room of the Young Women's Christian Association, Mrs. A. Stevenson presiding. Mrs. J. Wearing read the minutes of the previous meeting, and Mrs. N. D. Seaton gave the treasurer's report, recording a total of $11.44 from the recent meat demonstration in the Market Hall, also referring to the affiliation of the Women's Liberal Association with the Local Council.

Mrs. A. Mowat read the correspondence, including a letter from G. A. Gillespie, manager of the Peterboro Milk Products, Limited, Mr. Gillespie spoke of the statement made at the meat demonstration that seventy-five per cent. of the disease in animals rejected at the abattoirs as unfit for human consumption, was of tubercular origin, and stated that while meat, in the cooking process lost a certain percentage of these tubercles, milk from such animals in an unpasteurized condition constituted a menace, particularly to the children. Saying that pasteurization was not confined alone to the Peterboro Milk Products and was a process open to all milk dealers, Mr. Gillespie extended a cordial invitation to the Local Council to visit his plant in a body. It was decided to make this visit at the conclusion of the next monthly meeting.

Meat Demonstration.

Mrs. G. Helson reported on the successful attendance at the recent meat demonstration held under the auspices of the Local Council in the Market Hall. A good deal of criticism was voiced by several of the ladies as to the manner in which the demonstration was conducted by the gentlemen in charge, one fault found being that of a lack of detailed practical information as to the various cuts of meat and their origin.

Miss Brownscombe's Address.

Miss Leta Brownscombe, secretary of the Y.W.C.A., gave a very interesting discourse in an outline of the work carried on by the women who interest themselves in Immigration and Travellers' Aid work. Extracts from the annual report of the Travellers' Aid Society were read, showing the actual service rendered travellers by this organization, and the follow-up system which keeps in touch with them until they become an integral portion of the land of their adoption. The service given covers a very wide range. Special arrangements have been made with the Colonial Secretary in the Jamaican Islands, whereby every unescorted girl leaving the islands registers at the port, and note of her destination is sent on ahead. The Canadian Commissioner at Ellis Island also sends advance information as to the destination of girls arriving from Europe, and they are looked for by the Society's agents at various centres.

An outstanding case cited by Miss Brownscombe was that of a young Japanese girl, travelling alone in Canada, and knowing very little English. Her progress across the continent and the various excursions she made to different cities on the way were under the direct guardianship of officials of the Travellers' Aid Society, aided largely by the Y.W.C.A., which acts as assistant at all times in their endeavours.

Special service is given travellers in the border cities, where detention for examination and various regulations often compels the obtaining of temporary employment and housing accommodations for transients. Another special service is that rendered in the case of deportations. The immigrant, having broken all ties in his home land, and being compelled to turn back from the new country where he is not wanted, finds himself at times in sorry plight. The Travellers' Aid extends a helping hand in these cases, as in the situations where such things as food and clothing is needed for the children of new arrivals, help in locating lost luggage, making provision for food and equipment on their journey to their destination, notifying their relatives, translating their desires into a language with which they are often unfamiliar, and acquainting them of the values of new currencies and regulations.

On the Board of the Travellers' Aid Society are representatives of the W.C.T.U., the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A., the Salvation Army, the Girls' Friendly Society, the Council of Jewish Women, the Catholic Women's League, and the social service boards of the Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian and Anglican churches. Fifteen associations reporting last year, recorded a total of 81,759 trains met—one place reporting 15,000 and two places 10,000 each. Sixteen associations reported the number of persons assisted as 98,046, in ways that included police and charity cases, aged persons helped, employment secured, legal advice employed in cases of desertion, foreigners looked after, children under sixteen travelling alone supervised, missing people located, interference in the white slave and narcotic drugs traffic, marriages witnessed and suitable housing provided.

In the city of Montreal for one year, the number assisted was over 6,000, of which total 700 were men, 2,000 women, 1,700 young women, and 1,200 were children. In many cases, a thorough knowledge of the immigration regulations and kindred laws, also the language, of various foreign countries is an absolute necessity.

Miss Brownscombe, in speaking of the follow-up work, said that one of the hardest things encountered was the constant change of address by the new arrival, and made a strong plea for two things in connection with the assistance rendered by the local "Y" in this work: first, for the loan of a car on occasional mornings to facilitate speed in visiting; and, second, for club leaders who would take a real interest in the work carried on among the girls who are strangers to the country.

General Business.

Yesterday being nomination day for the officers who will be elected at the January meeting, the system of nomination in the Local Council was explained by Mrs. A. Mowat, the corresponding secretary. The Council sends out nomination forms to its various affiliated societies in plenty of time for them to take such nominations and return the forms to the secretary. The total lists are then carefully compiled and the results sent on again to the affiliated societie for their vote, and the final tabulated returns comprise the roster of names for the ensuing year.

On motion, it was decided to send out the nomination forms in blank to the affiliated societies this year, and ask them to nominate whom they pleased, without any reference to former office-bearers being made on the forms.

Mrs. F. A. Hodgson extended a cordial invitation to the Society to attend the tea being held at her home to-day, under auspices of the Catholic Women's League.

BACON RAISING ON THE PRAIRIE

Six Boys Arrived in Toronto To-day, to Take Part in Hog Judging.

TWO TO A TEAM.

TORONTO, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—The winners of the bacon hog raising competition in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberto, six boys ranging in age from twelve to twenty-one years, arrived on the Winnipeg train on the Canadian National Railways this morning to compete for the prairie provinces' championship in hog judging. The boys constitute three teams of two lads each, the teams representing each province. These teams were selected as the results of severe competitive provincial tests, and were chosen from the numerous boys and girls' clubs throughout the three provinces. The prize for the winning team will be a handsome silver cup donated by Mr. W. D. Robb, vice-president, Canadian National Railways, while each one of the lads will also receive a special gold medal with his name suitably inscribed thereon. A dinner will be given to the teams to-morrow evening in the King Edward Hotel, where Mr. W. D. Ross will personally present the prize.

The competition, which is brought to a conclusion at the Winter Fair, is the outgrowth of a plan conceived by the Canadian National Railways to encourage boys and girls in developing swine husbandry in Western Canada in which the Canadian National worked in co-operation with the Provincial and Federal Departments of Agriculture, although the movement is a comparatively new one. So great has been its success that many of the Western farmers who previously did not consider the raising of stock have now a considerable number of hogs and other live stock upon their farms.

Some idea of the success which has been achieved by the members of these clubs can be gleaned when it is known that pigs have been marketed that graded 50 per cent. select, both on the Winnipeg and Edmonton stock yards.

The case is cited of one lad who bought eight young pigs in the spring and sold two of them a few weeks ago for the amount he paid for the eight. The lads who are in Toronto to compete for the western championship in hog judging are as follows: Manitoba — Nelson Schumacher and Fraser McQuarrie of Grandview: Saskatchen — Everett Lunan and Raymond Neefs, of St. Louis; Alberta — Peter Wyllie and Albert Jones, of Vegreville.

The cup donated by Mr. Robb for annual competition, and prominent representatives of the various agricultural departments of the provinces together with representatives from the Federal Department, will be present at the banquet when the presentations of the cup and medals are made.

A Monkey-College to Make Chimpanzees Human

Very Interesting Plan of French Government Scientists to Educate Generations of Primates in the Expectation That Some Day They May Talk and Act Like Human Beings

Close-Up Photograph of Intelligent Young Chimpanzee of the Type Considered Eligible for Monkey College Tuition.

Below, Putting a Young Chimpanzee Through a Course of Exercises.

THE most extraordinary experiment in the history of animal psychology is about to be undertaken by the Pasteur Institute and the French Government in Africa. A site has been chosen in French Guinea, near Timbo, where a luxurious "college" for apes will be built this year.

Hundreds of chimpanzees and orangs will be put to school there and treated as nearly as possible like human children.

The experiment will be carried on for generations in an effort to see whether prolonged education and environment can, in the end, teach apes to talk and read and write and think like human beings.

No experiment conceived on such a scale has ever been tried before. Dr. Calmette, of the Pasteur Institute, will be president of the "Monkey College." Young chimpanzees and orangs will be captured and brought up in it with all the comforts and advantages of a high-grade boarding school. Native women will nurse them and European teachers will educate them.

A startling and significant announcement is that these teachers will not be animal trainers or zoologists or men trained in animal psychology—they will be chosen experts in human child psychology!

They will foster the intelligence of the primates along human lines and discover if their brains can be developed along human standards.

A regular diet of cooked food will replace haphazard feeding, and they will sleep in comfortable beds instead of in the treetops.

The main building of the "Monkey College" will be four stories in height. On its top floor will be dormitories fitted up with regular beds or cribs like those in a children's nursery. There will be a dressing room with mirrors, where nurses will teach the young apes to dress themselves and brush their hair.

On the floor immediately below will be a bathroom fitted with all modern appliances, a gymnasium and an elementary "Monkey Kindergarten," where the apes will be taught to play with blocks, build little houses, draw pictures and use simple tools.

On the next floor will be a "monkey schoolroom," where, with the aid of blackboards and by the reiteration for days of simple sounds and syllables, human teachers will endeavor to teach them to talk and to read and write.

On the ground floor will be a dining room, where human servants will wait on the monkeys at table, where they will be taught table manners, and how to eat with knives, forks and spoons.

A larger room on the main floor will be the monkeys' drawing room, where they will be taught to dance, and will have opportunity to listen to phonograph music and to the radio.

When the project was first broached objections were raised on the ground that it was immoral to spend large sums of money to surround monkeys with such luxuries and advantages when many human children went uneducated and hungry.

To meet this objection the Pasteur Institute is arranging to use the same settlement as a headquarters for experiments with serums in yellow fever, typhoid, scarlet fever and other ills.

"Johnny" Has a Weak Chest and Likes Nothing Better Than to Have It Massaged with Oil.

Apes, like human beings, vary tremendously in intelligence. Some are exceedingly bright and quick-witted, some are average and others are thick-headed and dull. The plan is to select only the very intelligent ones for admission to the "Monkey College," and to use the others for serum experiments.

Only those who are familiar with the extraordinary progress that has already been made in animal training and animal psychology can realize how good the chances are for something really startling to result from this experiment.

It has been discovered by anatomical research that the higher apes have all the mechanical appliances in their throats necessary to the formation of words, including larynx, vocal cords and special muscles, and that there is no anatomical reason why they cannot be taught to speak if sufficient time and patience are exercised.

When there are records of casually trained apes which exhibit intelligence of high degree, no one can safely say what the outcome will be when hundreds of picked chimpanzees, the most intelligent of the ape tribes, are sent to a regular "college." Results of the most astonishing nature are confidently looked for.

Young New Yorker Ships as Poorest-Paid Saidor From Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 21.—Willetts Wagner, Jr., son of a New York merchant, shipped out from Baltimore today as a member of the crew of the steamship Santa Malta, bound for Pacific Coast ports with a general cargo. He takes his first trip as the poorest-paid sailor of the crew.

Young Wagner is listed as clerk, an unusual classification for a freighter. For his services he will receive 25 cents a month. As it will take the Stnta Manta about two weeks to reach San Diego, he will get 12 cents at the completion of his voyage.

The young man is bound to California to enter business. He was signed as a member of the crew of the Santa Malta because the big freighter is not permitted to carry passengers, and as the ship had a full crew list, there was no open berth for him.

HOWARD CARTER BACK.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Howard Carter is expected to arrive in Cairo in a few days to resume work on the tomb of Pharaoh Tutankhamen, according to the Daily Mail.

The work will be controlled by the Antiquities Department of the Egyptian Government.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

STETSON'S "UNCLE TOM CABIN" COMPANY

The greatest of all American classics "Uncle Toms Cabin" will be presented by the original Stetson company, which is the oldest "Tom" show in existance, having been touring the country constantly since February 17th., 1870, at the Grand Opera House, for two nights with matinee on Saturday, starting on Friday, November 21st.

Regardless of the fact that seventy-two years have elapsed since Harriet Beecher Stowe laid the foundation logs for the "first cabin' on the American stage, the structure has withstood the ravages of time and today is attracting crowds the same as it did in grandfather and grandmother's childhood days. As in the case when a circus strikes town, the old fellows and any number of elderly women will offer that time honored alibi, they have attended the show on account of the children; but deep down in their hearts they know differently. There will be more than one dainty handkerchief dampened when Little Eva ascends to heaven, and grandpa will take chances of loosing his false teeth roaring over the antics of Topsy or the droll remarks of Lawyer Marks.

To quibble over the fact that the company is not able to furnish real ice for 'Liza to slip over on or that the lines seem pathetic and the strummed plantation music old fashioned in these days of movies and jazz, is beside the real point of the spectacle; that all of us occasionally like to see a melo-drama, melolwed even with antique, and enjoy lines even if they are lachrymose and saccharine. As a dramatic production there is not much to thrill even a first timer, but as an educational feature the production is more than successful. Not only is it the actual performance of America's propaganda play, but it instructs also as a typical melodrama, to which the American stage was devoted for several decades.

"CRANSTON'S LADY" A POWERFUL STORY FULL OF THRILLS

Fox Screen Version of Celebrated English Novel is Here.

The powerful story of a man who buys and pays for a woman's title and social position, considering love as "simply amusement for fools," is "Gerald Cranston's Lady," which opens to-day at the Capitol Theatre. The central character, Gerald Cranston, is a veritable giant in the industrial world of London, with fortune and power, an ambition to possess more but lacking the one thing that he feels necessary to complete his ultimate happiness—social recognition.

In a peculiar way he is afraid of women, not timidity or a genuine physical fear, but rather a terror of the power of love, believing it to be a force that might prevent his concentration on commerce, interfere with his freedom of action and limit the sweep of his ruthless and growing power.

Still a certain social position is necessary and with this object in view he marries a woman of beauty and pride of ancestry and establishes her in his luxurious home. His social position, through this alliance is assured, and he prepares to go forward and conquer new worlds of wealth. Gerald Cranston and his lady understand that their marriage is simply a barter—his wealth for her position.

Gerald Cranston's life will not run according to his carefully thought out schedule, but runs along more tremendously exciting than he had expected, to a destination, a catastrophe that is unlooked for.

PICTURE COST NEAR A MILLION

Frank Lloyd's Production of "The Sea Hawk" a Mammoth Spectacle.

Continuing its policy of presenting to the local picturegoers the biggest of cinematic productions, the Capitol Theatre, on Monday, presents, for the first time, Frank Lloyd's First National picture, "The Sea Hawk," adapted from the best seller by Rafael Sabatini, auther of "Scaramouche," and regarded by critics and producers as the greatest sea story every brought to the silver sheet.

Dealing with a spectacular romance and the piracy of the late Sixteenth Century English, Spanish and Moors, "The Sea Hawk" is reputed to possess an extraordinary amount of thrilling incidents, red-blooded action and tender romance amid many quaint and massive settings, and in the hands of the producer of "Ashes of Vengeance," "Les Miserables," "Black Oxen" and "Madame X," the Sabatini narrative is said to have lost none of its highly entertaining drama, but rather to have been greatly enhanced in its adaptation to the screen.

The transfer of Mr. Sabatini's original epic to the screen has made necessary the expenditure of nearly a million dollars, the building of a fleet of four mammoth seacraft of the sixteenth century, $85,000 in wardrobe and the use of over a thousand men in some of the brilliant naval combats; yet its previewers state "The Sea Hawk" is bigger than just the investment which has made it possible, indeed one of the truly great master-pictures of the films, with thrilling action and big situations to make each succeeding reel more fascinating than its predecessor.

Milton Sills plays the dual character of Sir Oliver Tressilian and Sakr-el-Bahr, the hawk of the sea, and Enid Bennett is seen as his fiancee, Rosamund Godolphin. Lloyd Hughes assumes a character part for the first time in his meteoric screen career, playing Lionel, Oliver's brother and Wallace Beery essays the role of Jasper Leigh, a renegade who kidnaps Oliver from England and later returns there with him as his faithful lieutenant. Frank Currier, Marc MacDermott, Wallace MacDonald, Mme. Medea Radzina, Kathleen Key, Lionel Belmore, Claire du Brey, Fred de Silva, Hector V. Sarno, Bobbie Bolder, Christine Montt, Albert Prisco, Kate Price and Louis Morrison are others prominent in the big cast.

PARACHUTE LEAP OF FILM STAR BEATS GREAT FEAT OF SOLDIER

Jack Holt as "The Lone Wolf" Performs Sensational Stunt Before Camera.

Not long ago the newspapers carried big stories of the sensational four-mile parachute leap by a flying officer at Kelly Field, San Antonio, the young aviator landing safely from an altitude of 21,500 feet and establishing what is believed to be a record. This stunt, which was accomplished in twenty-five minutes, seems almost incredible, yet a feat of even greater magnitude is performed by Jack Holt in the Associated Exhibitors' big production of "The Lone Wolf."

As Michael Lanyard, "The Lone Wolf," Holt and Dorothy Dalton, the heroine of the Louis Joseph Vance picture, take to the air in mad pursuit of another plane, bearing Alphonse Ethier as Eckstrom, the international spy, who is trying to get away with the secret plans belonging to the United States government.

As Holt's machine overtakes Ethier, a maneuver is made whereby Holt leaps from one plane to the other overpowers Ethier physically, recovers the valued papers and then, unleashing a parachute, descends through space until his own plane, coming below, enables him to reach it without any harm. It is a marvellous stunt, but just one that furnishes heart thrills in "The Lone Wolf," that S. E. V. Taylor directed.

In addition to the stars, there is a great cast that includes Wilton Lackaye, Tyrone Power, Charlotte Walker, Lucy Fox, Edouard Durant, Robert T. Haines, Gustav Von Seyffertitz, Alphonse Ethier, Paul McAllister and William Tooker.

It's an S. E. V. Taylor production, with Mr. Taylor not only adapting the Vance novel for the film but personally directing it.

AT THE ROYAL.

"DANGEROUS BLONDE"; CLEVER MODERN COMEDY

"The Dangerous Blonde," at the Royal, which began its run yesterday, is the second starring vehicle of Laura La Plante, recently promoted to stardom by the Universal Pictures Corporation. The first, recently shown, was "Excitement." It is worthy of comment that the leading man with Miss La Plante in "The Dangerous Blonde" and the continuity writer and director were associated with her in the first picture. The leading man is Edward Hearn and the scenarist and director Hugh Hoffman and Robert F. Hill.

"The Dangerous Blonde" tells the story of a young college girl called upon by her father to help him out of a "scrape" right at the point when her sweetheart, the college star full-back, is particularly jealous and watchful. He doesn't know the "old silk-worm" is her father, and follows them to the city with "blood in his eye."

Miss La Plante enacts the role of wise daughter and helpful advisor of her father's troubles with a natural and graceful charm. Edward Hearn is the football player, and other members of the cast worthy of comment are Arthut Hoyt, Philo McCullough, Margaret Campbell, Rolin Sedan, Frederick Cole, and Eve Southern.

The direction of the picture has the same qualities evidenced in "Excitement," "Jack o' Clubs," and other entertaining pictures Hill has produced.

Comedy of a satirical sort features the action and, coupled with the subtitles by Bob Hopkins, gives the production plenty of laughs for the audience. Doubtless many parents will squirm a little in their seats to find themselves so satirized, but that's all in the game of presenting a natural and funny story.

VALUABLE PRIZES FOR KIDDIES AT ROYAL TO?MORROW

On display in the window of the Royal are the prizes to be given to children on Saturday afternoon. It looks as if the kiddies will have their choice of a variety of articles—Drawing books, story books, balloons and other novelties. Andy Gump, Chester and Min and Uncle Bim, and also William Duncan in "The Fast Express," are all on the same programme.

GETTING THE OLD PEP.

Mae Murray believes that jazz and dancing provide the "pep" that persons who are indoors a greater part of the day need. Miss Murray should know what she is talking about, for she is an expert in the modern dance herself.

"They may criticize jazz music as 'savage,'" she says, "but the fact remains that it stirs something inside of you that sort of peps you all up and makes you feel good—you believe the world is a pretty good place after all."

Miss Murray does several novel dances in her newest Metro picture, 'Mademoiselle Midnight," coming o the Royal on Monday.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

MILLBROOK, Nov. 21.—The Women's Missionary Auxiliary of the Methodist Church was entertained at the home of Mrs. J. H. George, Fallis Line, on Wednesday afternoon, about forty members and visitors motoring over for the meeting.

Mrs. F. W. Howard, president, occupied the chair for the opening business and devotional period, after which Group "C" took charge, Mrs. A. Weatherup acting as leader. Readings, descriptive of the chapter in the study-book, "China's Real Revolution," to be taken up at the November meeting, were given by Mrs. Irwin Hatherly, whose subject was "The Two-fold Condition of Prevailing Prayer," Mrs Stella Hetherington, who outlined "The Literary Revolution in China," Mrs. F. P. Johnston, who continued this with "The Wisdom of the New Tide of Thought." Mrs. A. J. Brown gave a synopsis of chapter three, the plea from the Chinese schools and colleges being "Do not stop sending us Missionaries, but send us better ones."

Heralds reported for the "Watch Tower" as follows:—Mrs. R. H. Edmunds, China; Mrs. A. J. Brown, Japan; Mrs. T. Luxon, Oriental; Mrs. J. Hatherly, French work; Miss S. Hetherington, Christian Stewartship; Miss P. Burnham, the World.

Leaders reported attendance at the meeting for the different groups, the result being encouraging:—Group A, two present; Group B, six present; Group C, six present; Group D, two present; Group E, four present; Group F, six present.

The annual offering for the "Rest Fund" was taken up, and amounted to over eight dollars. This will be augmented from the treasury, unless other personal contributions come in, to ten dollars—the sum usually sent for this worthy department of W.M.S. work. Several of the life members give their annual membership fee to the Rest Fund.

Mrs. George, assisted by the members of Group C, served refreshments at the close of the meeting, when the men who had given the use of their cars for the afternoon joined the guests about the tea-tables, and an enjoyable social hour was spent.

The Christmas meeting will be held the second Wednesday in December, when an appropriate programme will be presented, and Group D will be in charge.

Jim Larmer has been chosen the representative from this district for the Annual Boys' Parliament, which meets at Queen's Park, Toronto, during Christmas week.

Mrs. Offa Williamson is the newly-elected superintendent of the "Sunshine" Mission Band of the Methodist Church, and is calling the November meeting for Friday, Nov. 21st, at 7 p.m., in the League Room at the church. An interesting talk on "Life in the Sahara Desert" will be given, and steps taken to reorganize the activities of the boys and girls along missionary lines for the year which closes in April, 1925. The Band annually sends $30 for the upkeep of the "Millbrook Sunshine" Cot in the Women's Hospital, Chentu, West China.

Rev. T. Cosgrove, of Ashville, N.C., was in town this week, arriving on Sunday, called here by the sad news of the death of his only sister, the late Mrs. John Steele.

Mr. and Mrs. J. McKnight, Mrs. J. Todd, and Mrs. W. Tremaine were visitors to Peterborough on Thursday.

Mr. Harry Griffin, of Springville, was a visitor to Peterborough on Thursday.

ALBERTA BOYS WON ROBB CUP SWINE JUDGING

C.N.R. Competition in Three Western Provinces.

HAD 265 POINTS.

Vegreville, Alberta, Is Place Which Won the Honour for the Province.

TORONTO, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press)—The W. D. Robb Cup, given to the winners of the bacon hog raisers and judgers of the three prairie provinces on the Canadian National Railways lines has been won by a team of two boys from Alberta. Vegreville is the place which won the honor for the province. The C.N.R. competition was held in the three provinces in conjunction with the Dominion and Provincial Governments and following a severe selective test a two boy team from each province was chosen. The high honor of winning the W. D. Robb Cup was decided to-day at the Royal Winter Fair, when the six lads met in the stock ring of the Royal Winter Fair. At a banquet held to-night in the King Edward Hotel, Mr. Robb, vice-president of the Canadian National Railways, presented his cup to the victors.

The members of the team which won the cup made the high score of 265 points out of a possible 300. Gold medals donated by the Canadian National were also presented to them by Mr. Robb, as well as to the members of the two other teams. The Vegreville team is Peter Wyllie an Albert Jones, the members of the Manitoba and Saskatchewan teams to whom Mr. Robb also presented gold medals are Nelson Shoemaker and Fraser McQuay of Grand view and Everett Lunan and Raymond Neefs of St. Louis. An interesting feature of the affair was the fact that boy teams from the Maritime Provinces were also present. These lads were prize winners in hog judging contests in Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick, thus six of the nine provinces were represented by Junior Stockmen. A pleasing touch was added by the presence of the two girl winners of the Canadian Pacific Railway Cup for hog judging, in Manitoba and their chaperon and Mr. Robb in his address paid high tribute to their success and to the road which brought them to Toronto while transportation rivals. Mr. Robb stated that it was a friendly rival railway and he wished to extend his sincere congratulations to the girls. In opening his address Mr. Robb emphasized the fact that the Canadian National was a sincere friend to the farmer and that it was ever ready to help him in what ever way possible to the boys from the east and the west I want to say one word of advice and that is, stick to the farm. By doing so you will do more to assist the country than anything else.

Mr. Robb then congratulated the winners of the cup and the gold medals and spoke of their fine achievements he pointed out that all though the boys had been given a trip to Toronto from the Prairies, it was an educational trip and back of it all was the desire to have the farmer produce more and better stock. As a lad, who once was on the farm Mr. Robb declared emphatically it was a paying proposition.

No farm is complete without livestock of all kinds, Mr. Robb continued, and no farmer can continue to succeed unles he is raising horses, cattle, sheep, swine and poultry in addition to grain. I am informed that you represent some 26 swine clubs in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta tributary to the lines of the Canadian National Railways. I also find that these clubs have a total membership of 700 and that collectively you have raised 1,800 pigs during the past year. I have learned also that the pigs which you marketed cooperatively have graded in some cases 50 per cent select. This I consider a real achievement since the markets at both Winnipeg and Edmonton show less than four per cent select hogs for 1924. It would appear that the swine club members have been much more successful in the production of bacon hogs, than the farmer of our great plains. It is a significant fact also that the districts where swine clubs have been in operation for a few years have established a reputation for the production of hogs of high quality. Hogs from these localities are in demand elsewhere in Canada and the United States for breeding purposes. In my opinion the swine industry is in a very favorable position it is the only class of livestock for which we have a satisfactory export market. It is true that we export live cattle and dressed beef, but there are many difficulties in connection with the marketing of our cattle either alive or dressed in Great Britain. While the American tariff seriously hampers our trade to the south. We are importers of lamb and mutton and it is not likely that our own production in this line will equal our requirements for many years. But there is an almost unlimited export market for our bacon. A market which will take care of our surplus for many years to come providing we supply a satisfact product. I would like to say just a word about the bacon hog competition you have not been given a trip to Toronto, merely to see the city, but rather that you may gain more knowledge about livestock and particularly swine. I believe that hogs are a necessary part of every farm and I am convinced that there is a bright future for the swine industory if every farmer and farmer's son will apply himself diligently to the production of bacon hogs. The purpose of this competition is to stimulate your interest in the production of good livestock. Among those present at the head table were Miss Cora Hinds, farm expert of the Manitoba Free Press, a representative of the Ontario Government and the livestock commissioner of the province of Alberta, Dan Johnston, general agricultural agent, Canadian National Railways presided. To-morrow the boys will visit the C.N.R. shops at Stratford and London.

TO HEAR APPEAL

Case of $600,000 Fine Will Be Re-opened.

TORONTO, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press).—The appeal against the imposition by Chief Justice R. M. Meredith of a fine of $600,000 jointly on Peter Smith the Amelius Jarvis will be made in the Ontario courts. Leave to appeal was granted by Justice Middleton this morning. Both Jarvis and Smith are serving prison terms, the former of six months and the latter of three years.

Two were convicted of conspiracy to defraud the Province of Ontario in connection with the sale of bond issue, marketed by the Jarvis firm.

Counsel for Jarvis based their application for appeal on the grounds that the sentence was harsh and oppressive, that it was bad law to impose the fine jointly on two people to specify in the judgment that either or both might remain in jail until the fine was paid, and that Jarvis was entitled to a proportion of the profit his firm reserved because their administration admittedly had netted the province about $2,000,000 because the bonds were placed in the best market.

EXPERTS SELECT THREE GREATEST HALFBACKS IN U. S. RUGBY, JIM THORPE, GRANGE AND MAHAN

By BILLY EVANS

Who are the three greatest halfbacks of all time?

Since the opening of the football season I have put that question to at least 50 gridiron experts, many of them leading coaches of the country.

On one player they are agreed. All of them immediately replied:

"Well, Jim Thorpe is certainly one of them."

Unquestionably Jim Thorpe, a famous Indian, who first gained fame at Carlisle School under the direction of "Pop" Warner, is recognized as the greatest all-round half-back that ever toted a ball.

For 20 years Jim Thorpe has been a gridiron star and he is still at it. This season he is a member of the Rock Island professional team, an outstanding star.

Thorpe Outstanding Star

Jim Thorpe was one of those players who could do everything well. He was a wonder on offense, a whale on defense. He could run, buck, kick, tackle in fact excelled in every feature of football play.

Seldom hurt, he could be depended upon to give you his best from start to finish.

Almost as big a favorite as Thorpe in the opinion of the experts, was Eddie Mahan of Harvard. His valorous deeds on the gridiron are now a part of Harvard tradition. His name will live forever in football.

Thorpe and Mahan deserve to be rated as two of the best three halfbacks of all time.

What about the other member of the trio?

Knute Rockne of Notre Dame thinks the late George Gipp entitled to that honor.

Grange Popular Choice

Then there is Coy of Yale Brickley of Harvard, Heston of Michigan, Eckersall of Chicago and so on down the line.

Just at the present time Harold "Red" Grange of Illinois looms up as one of the best bets to be ranked with Jim Thorpe and Eddie Mahan.

Grange is without doubt a wonder football player. One of those athletes who bobs up about every 25 years He is one of the very few of a distinct type of greatness.

Like Thorpe and Mahan, Grange does everything well and is a glutton for work and punishment.

Despite the fact that he is a marked man; depite the fact that he is the victim of a vicious tackle every time he is downed, Grange seems almost immune from injury.

Picking the three greatest halfbacks of all time is a matter of opinion.

However, it would be difficult to select a more efficient or brilliant trio than Thorpe, Mahan and Grange.

M'KELVEY MAY PLAY SATURDAY

Coach Hughes Indicates Probable Lineup of Queen's Against Tigers.

KINGSTON, Nov. 20. — Coach Hughes announced yesterday that it was still uncertain who would start in "Red" McKelveys place but he felt that Airth might get the call though he would not commit himself definitely on this. Airth had been doing great work at middle in the practices this week and has shown rare form.

Coach Hughes stated that the line up for Queens would look about as follows for Saturday: flying wing, McLeod; halves, Leadley, "Gib" Mc Kelvey, Batstone; quarter, Baldwin; snap Lewis; insides, Muirhead, Brown; middles Airth, Reynolds, outsides Thomas, Wright; subs, Abernethy Voss, Chantler, Burley, Adams, Hannon, Skelton, Grondin, Barrie, Howard, McCrimmon.

NURMI DELAYED

Finnish Runner Not Sailing for America Until Dec. 5.

NEW YORK, November 21.—The invasion of the United States during the indoor track season by Paavo Nurmi, the famous Olympic champion has been delayed, acording to the latest advices. The great Finnish runner was said to have sailed from his native land a week ago, but it now develops that he does not intend to depart until December 5th, arriving here just before Chirstmas, and competing for the first time here early in January under the auspices of the Finnish-American A.C.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE.

RUGBY CLASSIC FOR SATURDAY

Peterboro and Toronto Humberside Collegiates in Sudden Death Semi-Final.

FINAL WORK-OUT

Saturday is the classic day in local rugby. From the time that the Humberside Collegiate squad and the P.C.I. team trot out to do battle on the old gridiron at Riverside Park, from the first down till the last whistle, the fans are promised the sweetest game of the year.

Humberside Collegiate is the winner of the Toronto district. Humberside have played a superior brand of rugby all season and the crowning victory was staged before eight thousand fans at Varsity Stadium when they defeated Jarvis Collegiate by the narrowest of margins.

Tomorrow Coach Browne's team will have their hopes realized. All year they have been playing to get a chance at Toronto. Year after year it has been a Toronto team that has beaten the garnet and grey in their climb for the championship. But this year from the very first practice it has been the determination of every member of the squad that they would trim the Toronto representtaive and wipe out those old defeats. To-morrow will see.

Confidence reigns supreme around Central Park. Coach Browne had the whole squad out in uniform yesterday afternoon and a stiff scrimmage followed. Each side knew the signals and the line had great chances to show how they could cover and protect the plays. All the team is on edge.

Coach Browne met the team this afternoon to work out the final plan of campaign and to give last minute pointers. All is set.

Here is the line up that will carry P.C.I. hopes tomorrow.

Flying wings—Cheu, O tram.
Halves—Cole, Bookhout.
Quarterback—Pogue.
Snap—Yelland.
Insides—Killaly, Craw.
Middles—Rye, Ebbs.
Outsides—Henry, Wood.
Subs — Amys, Fraser, Goheen, Neal, Morrison and Martyn.

DEMPSEY GETS OFFER

Purse of $475,000 for Fight With Wills Next Summer.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y., November 20. — An offer of a purse of $475,000 for a heavyweight championship fight between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills, in West Chester County on July 2, 1925, was telegraphed to-day to Jack Kearns, the title-holder's manager, by George B. Doolan, of White Plains, a real estate operator, who announced that he was working for a syndicate of White Plains business men.

BOSTON, November 20. — Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, the heavyweight boxing champion, now presenting daily boxing exhibitions at a Boston theatre, said to-day he was not interested in the offer of a $475,000 purse for a bout between the champion and Harry Wills at White Plains, N.Y., on July 2nd, next.

"I get plenty of these offers," Kearns said.

SOCCER NOTES

On Saturday afternoon the Quaker Oats and the Thistle will meet in an exhibition game at King Edward Park. Kick off at 2.30. Referee, Alex. McKinley. Both teams will include many new faces to soccer, also the Quakers will be greatly strengthened so as to make it interesting.

When The Examiner interviewed the Canadian Woollens representative in regards to the publicity of the game, he replied: "We have had a fair and accurate report all season. None of our players have had any kick and all satisfied. It was a fair report on the game."

The Thistle representative gave his reply to the question: "We have had a splendid service in all games. You could follow the game as you read the fair details in every report."

The next meeting of the P. and D. F. A. will be held in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms on Monday evening, Dec. 1st, 1924. Business will be of importance.

During the week, Mr. David Ross, the Thistle half-back, was taken to Nicholls Hospital to undergo special treatments again to the severe wounds he sustained in the war.

The Quakers expect to include Wilson at inside left in the game scheduled for to-morrow.

It is puzzling to us that no original young genius has yet thought to refer to a football eleven as an "avalanche."

The champion swordsman of Berlin has been jailed and soon we ought to know whether the sword is mightier than the "pen."

Walter Hagen's story, "Bunkering a golf course,' is interesting.... Now who'll write the sequel, "Bunking a golf public"

It is said Gene Tunney is the most retiring boxer in the game ..... We have noticed he retires rapidly when Mr. Gibbons' name is mentioned.

The Spokane Bible teacher who has gone into the fight game ought to be told he'll need more than a prayer.

The world has four poles, writes a scientist, but the Covelskies and the Zbyszkos are the only ones we're interested in.

Things are shaping themselves in such a way that no fighter can get a match with Dempsey or Leonard without first qualifying as an actor.

We suppose on his showing to date, Red Grange is at least sure of his job with the ice company next summer.

Bucky Harris got his raise out of Clark Griffith ....It was almost as sweet as the rise he got out of McGraw.

Experts say the huddle system is all wrong ....And if they mean the guys who huddle in front of burlesque show posters, just as we are passing, we agree with them.

Don't open till Christmas is a phrase which was never designed for the lips of a baseball magnate.

BOUT CALLED OFF.

NEW YORK, November 20. — Bartley Madden, the Irish heavyweight, has called off his scheduled match at Culver City, Calif., with Tony Fuente as a result of the Mexican's legal mix up following his recent bout with Fred Fulton. Madden was to have left for the coast to-day but postponed his trip until after January 1st.

LANDIS' GIFT TO SENATORS.

PIONEER SETTLER OF CAVAN, JOHN McNEIL, PASSES AWAY.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 20.—John McNeil, one of the pioneer settlers of Cavan Township, passed away at his residence, Lot 16, Concession 8, Township of Cavan, yesterday, at the age of 80 years. Mr. McNeil was born on this farm, which was given to his father by the Crown. He was a staunch Conservative and an active member of St. John's Anglican Church, Ida, Ont. He leaves one son, Leonard, on the homestead, and three daughters, Miss Bertha, at home; Mrs. L. W. Smith of Cavan and Mrs. Chas. McNeil of Manvers. His wife died in 1918. The funeral will be held from the family residence on Friday at 2 p.m.

THE BALL PLAYERS SEE PARIS

Jackson: So this is Paris!

McGraw: Naw, your poor tripe; this is a movie set for the Battle of Shiloh and you can expect David Wark Griffith here any minute now.

* * *

Gowdy: Well, how'd you boys like the Latin Quarters?

Kelly: So far as I am concerned they can keep 'em. And them francs too. I never could savvy foreign money anyhow.

* * *

Jennings (giving Rodin's masterpiece, The Thinker, the up and down): I don't know what he is thinking about, but if he was a baseball man he'd be trying to figure whether to pitch high or low to Ruth.

* * *

Young: Where do they get this stuff about the French being eccentric? They look all right to me.

Frisch: Well, don't forget they thought Carpentier could beat Dempsey.

* * *

Picinich: Aw, this town's the bunk. I taxied five miles to see some Apache Indians and they weren't nothing but hard boiled bums that needed a shave.

* * *

Falk: Brother, you said a page full but don't let anybody tell you Illinois couldn't give 'em a battle.

* * *

Cvengros (ordering his third crem de menthe): What I can't understand is why you guys have all these statues of Napoleon III. There was only one Napoleon.

Waiter (in his best Cedar Rapids French): Whaddamean, there's only one Napoleon?

Cvengros: Why, Napoleon Lajoie. Now there was a bird who could hit all kinds of pitching and.....

* * *

Ruel: I think I'll go down to the Louvre and see Mona Lisa.

Clancy: Well, if she's anything like those French Janes I saw at Maxim's last night I would't walk across the street to see her balance a ship's anchor on her left eyebrow.

* * *

Mostil: (registering lofty scorn), That proves that he never tried to buy a silk shirt in this town.

* * *

Guide (passing historical square): And right here on this very spot King Louis XVI lost his head.

Faber: Bet anything the girl was one of those dizzy blonds from Ziegfeld's.

BYNG OF VIMY WANTS TO MEET MANY CITIZENS

Reception at Armouries in Forenoon of His Day in Peterboro.

TOUR OF CITY

School Children to Assemble at Central Points to Greet Governor-General.

The details for the reception of His Excellency Lord Byng, the Governor-General, and Lady Byng on November 28th have been arranged by a special committee of the City Council, and all that is needed is the hearty co-operation of the citizens, which they will be glad to give, to make it a notable day in Peterboro.

The one wish expressed by Lord Byng was that he might meet as many of the citizens as possible, and with this in view it has been arranged that His Excellency will hold a reception at the Armories, where he may meet the citizens. Very many will be anxious to meet Lord Byng as the Governor-General and also as the commander of the Canadian soldiers in France and the man under whom Peterboro men served. Lord Byng was the Commander of the Canadians at Vimy Ridge and other important engagements and was one of the outstanding generals in the world war. Citizens are invited to meet His Excellency at the Armories at 11.30 o'clock.

A civic address will be presented to His Excellency, also at the Armories, immediately preceding the reception.

The War Veterans will assemble in the Armories and be present when Their Excellencies arrive and during the ceremonies.

It has been arranged that the pupils of the King Edward and Sacred Heart Schools will assemble at the King Edward School; of the Prince of Wales' and Queen Mary Schools at the Prince of Wales' School; of the St. Mary's and St. Peter's Schools at the St. Peter's School; of the King George and Immaculate Conception Schools at the King George School, and of the Central and Queen Alexandra Schools at Victoria Park, and Their Excellencies will be taken to these points on the drive around the city. It is requested that the members of the City Council and the Board of Education and other citizens who may wish to do so, join in this drive around the city.

Citizens are asked to decorate their homes and places of business. It is especially requested that this be done along the streets over which Their Excellencies will drive.

The Governor-General and his party will arrive at the Canadian National Railway Station at 10 o'clock on the morning of Friday, November 28th. From the station they will be taken on a drive over the following route:

BREAKFAST.

Quit eating breakfast if you want to have fine health, says Dr. Vinola M. Kimmel, food specialist. Theretically she ma ybe right, but practically she's wrong. Breakfast furnishes to the empty stomach the fuel we need for generating energy to carry on the day's work.

Lunch is the meal that should be light, or even abolished.

Nature intended us to loaf or sleep at least 20 minutes after every meal Immediate return to work after eating sends to other parts of the body the blood needed by the stomach in its first digestive assaults against food.

FRANKS'S FATHER IN COURT

Testifies Against Two Boys Convicted of Threatening His Life.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—Jacob Franks, whose son was kidnapped and murdered by Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, again visited the Criminal Court building Tuesday, this time as complainant witness against two boys, Walter Boyrca and Ignatius Ciombras. During the Leopold-Loeb trial the boys had sent Mr. Franks a letter demanding $8,000 and threatening the lives of himself and his daughter.

Defense counsel asked for leniency, saying the boys never had been in trouble before and already had been in jail six months.

Judge Thomas Lynch seatenced them to jail for another six months.

CHIC SPORT OUTFIT

Here is a cap and kerchief set that would appeal to the girl who goes in for sports and the one who likes to add a dash to a commonplace costume. It is made by crocheting together various shades of green silk thread ranging from the brightest to the softest of greens. The scarf is finished with hand-tied fringe and the hat is made over an ordinary soft turban frame.

NEW YORK GLIMPSES

Dempsey Breaks Theatre Record With $41,000 for Week.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Two girls in front of the Waldorf buy horse race charts, eagerly turn the pages and read down the columns of winners and also-rans.

Two sportive chorus girls, methinks. Not a bit of it! Their grandmother is just a pace behind them.

"Did you win, dearie?" she asks.

"No, the nag ran third," one of the girls answers.

Eugene is a cynical headwaiter. "People who come in here don't know what boobs they are," he told me the other evening. "In all likelihood the booze we sell is watered before we get it. We add enough water to get twice the volume. Then the boobs come in here and pour the stuff into ginger ale and ice, further weakening it. But they think they're getting a great kick out of it."

With Jack Dempsey as the feature Loew's State Theatre took in $41,000 in one week. That was $12,000 more than the house record, set by Eva Tanguay.

A want ad. in a Sunday morning paper for an office assistant brought almost 200 answers. Seventy-five per cent. of the applicants were married women. Most of the married applicants were under 25 and were willing to work for $18 a week, or less.

Those aren't just dry statistics. They reflect the domestic situation in New York—hundreds of young couples living in furnished rooms, unable to get along unless husband and wife both work.

That condition, in turn, offers food for thought for those interested in the race suicide question.

Mrs. Gertrude Koropsky was happy when she secured one day's work as scrubwoman in a Bronx apartment house. One of the tenants insisted on giving her a drink of whisky. A few hours later Mrs. Koropsky was stricken blind.

ANOTHER NOTE TO BE SENT TO RUSSIA

Letter Will Include Stiff Demand That Red Propaganda Cease.

LONDON, Nov. 21. — (United News).—At the direction of the Conservative Cabinet, the British foreign office is drafting a note to be sent to Russia affirming the authenticity of the letter said to have been written by Gregory Zinoviev, president of the Communist Internationale, exhorted British Communists to overthrow His Majesty's Government.

Along with the affirmation will be a stiff demand that such propaganda cease.

The Zinoviev letter became public during the closing days of the British campaign and it contributed to the overwhelming defeat of the Socialists by the Conservatives. It was never demonstrated to the satisfaction of Ramsay MacDonald and his Socialist Cabinet that the letter was genuine.

STOLE NARCOTICS.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Jung, a Chinese servant, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary on a charge of selling narcotics, in Police Court on Thursday morning.

WILL COUNT FARMS.

ALBANY, Nov. 21.—The census of farms in the state of New York will begin December 1, according to announcement by Berne A. Pyrke, state commissioner of farms and markets. The last census was taken in 1920.

OBITUARY

MRS. FRED. DUMMITT.

The death took place last night, after a lingering illness, of Bertha May Bouck, wife of Frederick Dummitt, 51 Alfred street. Mrs. Dummitt had been an invalid for many years, but apparently rallied lately. The worry occasioned by the illness of Mr. Dummitt's mother, followed by her death on Sunday, however, caused a relapse, from which his wife failed to recover.

There are left to mourn her loss, two brothers, Frank of Bancroft, and Fred of Vancouver, and a sister, Mrs. J. Worth, of Vancouver. An only daughter, Dorothy, 4, is now left motherless. Mrs. Mary Allen, an aunt, was Mrs. Dummitt's constant attendant.

The funeral will take place from the family residence to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be made in Little Lake cemetery, Rev. J. D. Paterson officiating.

CHARLES CROWE.

Shortly after eleven o'clock last evening, the death occurred at his residence, 45 Sophia Street, of Charles Crowe, one of the old and respected citizens of Ashburnham, in his eighty-third year. The deceased had been in comparatively good health up until a week ago, when he suffered a paralytic seizure.

The late Mr. Crowe was born in the County of Monaghan, Ireland, and came to Canada sixty-four years ago. He resided in Peterboro and the district during most of the intervening period, living for the past thirty-five years in Ashburnham. He was well and widely known, with a large circle of friends in the city, and was a faithful member of the Orange Order, which he joined at the age of eighteen years.

Mr. Crow's wife pre-deceased him two years ago, and one daughter also passed away three years ago. Four sons and five daughters survive: William, Sidney and George, of Peterboro, and Wesley, of San Jose, California; Mrs. A. Nellist, Sophia Street; Mrs. B. Morrison at home; Mrs. F. P. Champion, of Paris, Ont.; Mrs. L. Sager, of Buffalo, N.Y., and Mrs. Wm. White, of Windsor.

The funeral will take place at 3 o'clock on Saturday, from the late residence, to the Lakefield Cemetery, Rev. R. Bamforth of Mark Street Church, of which the deceased was a member, officiating.

SUICIDE LEFT NOTE.

San Francisco Man Supposed To Have Committed Suicide.

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Nov. 21. United News.—"Never mind the body; what I want back is my suitcase," Mrs. J. Scharf told the police after she had handed them a note left her by her husband, in which he expressed the intention of jumping off a ferry boat.

Before Scharff left home he appropriated his wife's overcoat and a suit case. The police believe that Scharff did not commit suicide, but wrote the note as a ruse.

BALDWIN GOVERNMENT DECLINES TO RATIFY RUSSIAN TREATIES

Austen Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary, Informs Soviet Representative In London That The Government Is Unable to Recommend Them to Parliament.

CURT REPROOF OF PROPAGANDA

LONDON, Nov. 22.— The new government has shown its hand as regards its policy towards Russia by publishing communications addressed to M. Rakovsky, Soviet representative in London, in continuance of the correspondence on the famous Zinovieff letter, so suddenly interrupted by the downfall of the MacDonald administration.

Most important is the somewhat curt notification that the British government does not intend to ratify the treaties concluded with the Soviet government by the MacDonald ministry.

A suggestion was made in Russian quarters for the renewal or reopening of the negotiations, but apparently from the tone of the correspondence this is a closed chapter so far as the Baldwin government is sconcerned, any any further initiative in this direction must come from the Soviet government. It is assumed, however, that there is no idea of going back on recognition of the Soviet, accorded by the MacDonald administration.

Zinovieff Letter.

Concerning the Zinovieff affair, the government stands on the authenticity of the Zinovieff letter and in comparatively mild terms reiterates the strictures against Soviet propaganda made by former Premier MacDonald.

"The activities of which His Majesty's government complain," says the note, "are not confined to that particular letter, (the Zinovieff letter) but on the contrary extend to the whole body of revoltuionary propaganda, of which the letter is a fair specimen, and which is sometimes conducted in secret and sometimes, as you rightly remarked, not concealed."

The Foreign Secretary's letter to M. Rakovsky regarding the Russian treaties is quite brief, merely stating that the government had the treaties under review and, after due deliberation, found it was unable to recommend them to the consideration of parliament or submit them to the King for ratification.

Mr. Chamberlain's long note is a reply to M. Rakovsky's note of October 25 and declares that His Majesty's government cannot accept the Charge's assertions supporting his theory that the Zinovieff letter was a forgery. The foreign secretary declares these assertions were disproved by reference to official publications and the daily press of the Soviet union.

Will Not Discuss It.

He adds that it is unnecessary to enter into details, "for the information in the possession of His Majesty's government leaves no doubt whatsoever in their minds of the authenticity of the Zinovieff letter and His Majesty's government, therefore is not prepared to discuss the matter."

Continuing the foreign secretary states: "I must further observe that you would entirely misapprehend the character of representations made to you by my predecessor if you supposed they dealt with Zinovieff's letter only.

"Activities of which His Majesty's government complain are not confined to that patricular letter but on the contrary extend to the whole body of revolutionary propaganda, of which the letter is a fair specimen, and which is sometimes conducted in secret and sometimes, as you rightly remarked, not concealed.

"Pronouncements of M. Zinovieff, which have been broadcast throughout the world, are in themselves sufficient evidence of the propaganda in which the third international with the knowledge and consent of the Soviet government perpetually indulges and it is this system which, in the view of His Majesty's government, is inconsistent with the solemn undertaking given by your government.

Encourage Revolution.

Mr. Chamberlain then quotes the letter of J. T. Gregory, of the foreign office, to M. Rakovsky, written October 24, which staed that no government will ever tolerate an arrangement with a foreign government by which the latter while in correct formal diplomatic relations, at the same time allowed such a propagandist body (the Communist internal) to encourage and even order plotting and revolution.

"This is true," the secretary's note concludes, "and the Soviet government would do well to weight carefully the consequences of ignoring this pronouncement.

The Gregory letter to the Soviet charge was re-issued by the foreign office, the purport of this action being that the new foreign secretary has no intention of departing from former Premier MacDonald's decision that the Russian note regarding the Zinovieff letter is one which His Majesty's government cannot consent to receive.

Next Move Up To Soviet.

Mr. Chamberlain, also like the former premier, declines to accept the Russian note demanding an apology from the British government and proposing arbitration to establish the falsity of the alleged Zinovieff letter. The tone of the correspondence ,although fully supporting the line taken by Mr. MacDonald in regard to propaganda and reversing the latter's policy regarding the treaties is not considered such as is calculated to aggravate the relations between the two governments, but leaves the next move to the Soviet government.

According to the generally accepted accounts here, the present government has never seen the original of the Zinovieff letter and up to the present no report of the findings of the cabinet's committee of inquiry on the genuineness of the document has been published.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

FRANK BARNED

LONDON, Ont., — Man charged with murdering his wife's friend Smylie Muirhead at Niagara Falls, Ont., on Sept. 27, by deliberately driving onto the sidewalk and running him down while Smylie was walking with Mrs. Barned, whose leg was broken by the car. Barned was committed on Thursday for trial at the Spring Assizes.

TALE OF PIRACY BELIEVED HOAX

Weird Sea Yarn of Liquor Looting Spun By Schooner's Skipper.

ASKED FOR A TOW.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Captain Paul C. Grening, of the United States liner, President Harding, a mail boat, docked his ship yesterday, convinced that he had been fooled by a weird sea yarn when the British auxiliary schooner Veronica held him for two hours in the North Atlantic last Wednesday night while her bearded master spun a tale of high seas piracy.

Captain Grening related that at dusk Wednesday he turned the liner about on perceiving S.O.S. flares and rockets 100 miles off Cape Sable and headed for the vessel signalling distress. The ship proved to be the Veronica. Strangely enough, according to the Harding's master, the Veronica, with all sails set, started off, as though in flight. Puzzled, Captain Grening ordered a pursuit and got within hailing distance in an hour.

Gift of Whisky.

Chief Officer Wilkinson put off in a small boat and went to the schooner, whose crew greeted him by lowering a case of whiskey into his craft. A second case was started but Wilkinson promptly ordered this stopped, whereupon the Veronica's master, a picturesque, long-bearded individual, began a megaphone conversation with Captain Grening. His vessel had been boarded two days before by hi-jackers, the skipper said. The Veronica's crew was herded into the forecastle and the ship looted of its liquor cargo. The rum pirates then had cut away his anchor, taken the magnets from his compass and made off with other instruments of navigation, leaving the Veronica to drift helplessly.

The Veronica's skipper asked for a tow into port, Captain Grening said but the latter explained he could not do this as the President Harding carried mail. Then the Veronica's master asked that the Harding radio a message to the schooner's owner, whose name, he said, was F. K. Warren, of Halifax. Captain Grening agreed and then offered water and provisions, but this aid was not accepted, although the Veronica took some navigation instruments. The ships parted company and the schooner got under weigh, apparently making for Halifax.

Appeared Loaded.

Wilkinson reported that the Veronica had a crew of probably thirty men. Eight men usually man a vessel of the type. Another strange circumstance, he said, was that a tall man of distinguished appearance and with no savor of the sea about him, stood behind the bearded master throughout the dialogue but made no sound. The skipper's statement that he had no cargo seemed questionable to the President Harding's crew, who said the Veronica did not appear "light."

Further complications crept into the affair when Captain Grening was told that Halifax news despatches had quoted F. K. Warren as saying he had nothing to do with the Veronica. Captain Grening said he had sent a message to Warren and had received in return acknowledgment of its receipt by Warren.

County Council Receives Itemized Statement of Fees and Other Expenses of McGaughey Trial.

CREATES DEFICIT

LINDSAY, Nov. 22.—The members of Victoria County Council received a huge jolt Friday afternoon when they went into session as the Finance and Assessment committee. The jolt followed the presentation of accounts in connection with the trial of Fred McGaughey for the murder of Beatrice Fee. Clerk McNeillie informed the council that the county's share of the cost of this case, if the judgment of the court is carried out, would be $3,000 and would create a deficit for the county.

The big item in connection with the case which the county would be called upon to pay would be the fees of Dr. Armour, one of the expert witnesses for the Crown. His bill amounted to $668.60, but this was forwarded to the Deputy Attorney-General, and that official forwarded it to Crown Attorney Anderson of Lindsay, with the request that it be submitted to Mr. Justice Logie, who presided at the trial.

Justice Logie allowed Dr. Armour $150.00 a day and $10.50 for expenses, the total amount being $610.50. An itemized statement of the doctor's account was as follows: Preparation, $50.00; four days at court, $600; expenses $28.60. Other expenses borne by the county in connection with the trial were: Jury, $732.50; other Crown witnsses, $407; constables, $121.35; expenses in maintaining jurors, $83; for men on guard, $300.

All the accounts were paid save that of Dr. Armour's, which will be forwarded to the Attorney General's Department, the council considering it unreasonable.

QUEBEC BAR FUNCTION.

Legal Lights of Canada at Anniversary Banquet This Evening.

MONTREAL, Nov. 22.— Representatives of the bench and bar from all parts of Canada, and members of both the federal and provincial government will attend the banquet given by the bar of Quebec here tonight. Four hundred guests will be present at the function, which not only commemorates the incorporation of the Quebec bar, but also the 75th anniversary of the foundation of the Montreal, Quabec and Three Rivers section.

The solicitor-general of the United States, Hon. James Beck, will be among the guests of honor and will address the gathering.

Hon. Narcisse Parodeau, lieutenant-governor of Quebec, Hon. L. A. Taschereau Premier, and Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, are to deliver addresses.

The Canadian bar association and the law society of Upper Canada will be represented by Hon. Wallace Nesbitt while Stuart Jenks, K.C., will attend on behalf of the bar association of Nova Scotia.

The Right Hon. Doherty, P.C., will be present as well as Sir Lomer Gouin.

HOLIDAY EVERY TWO WEEKS.

DRIVER OF DEATH CAR GETS YEAR IN PRISON

Leonard Reid Found Guilty of Manslaughter in Newfoundland Court.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., November 22.—Leonard Reid, son of the late Sir William Reid, founder, and one-time head of the Reid-Newfoundland Railway, was found guilty by a jury in the Supreme court here on Friday of manslaughter.

He was sentenced to twelve months imprisonment.

The charge of manslaughter was based on the death of six men, two of them veteran officers of the world war, and two of them officers of H. M.S. Constance, in an accident last September, when the automobile which Reid was driving, hit a group of veterans, and then overturned in a ditch, killing four of the occupant.

STACK FUNERAL IS HELD TO.DAY

Egyptian Government Promise Reasonable Satisfaction For Slaying of Sirdar.

MILITARY DISPLAY.

CAIRO, Egypt, November 22. — Orders for the funeral to-day of Major General Sir Lee Stack, Governor General of the Sudan and Sirdar of the Egyptian army, who died on Thursday night from wounds he received at the hands of assassins the previous day, have been issued by Lieut.-General Sir Richard Haking in command of the British troops in Egypt.

There will be a great military display, troops of all arms lining the route of the funeral cortege, with batteries firing salutes at minute intervals. The members of the Egyptian senate and chamber will stand in the public square as the funeral procession passes, and the members of the cabinet will attend the service at All Saints' church.

Yesterday large crowds made up of all nationalities filed reverently past the coffin in All Saints' church. The coffin was covered with the Union Jack while the Sirdar's helmet and sword rested on the lid.

The Egyptian government and the press express the view that just and reasonable satisfaction will be given the British government for the assassination of General Stack, but "declare that should the British demands "exceed the limits of equity and make the crime a shield for realiation of Imperialistic aims" neither Premier Zugloul nor any other Egyptian premier can satisfy them, and a grave crisis might arise.

JERSEY CITY FIRE SEEN FROM A PLANE

This is a remarkable airplane view of the $5,000,000 Jersey City (N.J.) fire, at its height. More than 1,500 families were made homeless it is estimated when a dozen tenement houses were destroyed. Three large factories also were razed. Firemen from Jersey City, Hoboken and New York fought the flames for several hours before the conflagration finally was brought under control.

KING GEORGE LAMENTS MURDER OF GEN. SLACK

Feels Bitter Indignity Inflicted Upon the Army In Officer's Death.

LONDON, November 22. — His Majesty King George yesterday in common with the people and the press of Great Britain, expressed his feelings of intense indignation at the assassination of Sir Lee Oliver Stack, Sirdar of the Egyptian Army,, at Cairo.

In a message to Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, the British High Commissioner in Egypt, he said:

"I am deeply grieved at the death of Sir Lee Oliver Stack and feel bitterly the indignity inflicted upon my army by this cruel murder of one of its most distinguished officers."

Charged With Destroying Neighbor's Tobacco Crop

CHATHAM, Nov. 22.—After several months of investigation Wm. Myers has been arrested on the charge of having destroyed three acres of tobacco the property of Arthur Houle, Dover township.

The alleged offence is said to have been committed on August 14. Myers elected to take his trial before Magistrate Arnold and pleaded not guilty. The case was enlarged until November 26.

SOLD HIS HOME FOR $600 FINE

Lindsay Barber Brought Several Bottles of Liquor From Montreal.

WINE HAD KICK

LINDSAY, Nov. 22.—Strong resentment is being expressed by many of the citizens because of the severity of the fine meted out to a local barber in the police court here on Thursday for an infraction of the Temperance Act.

Notwithstanding the statement given out by the authorities, the young man carried liquor in one valise only, and consisted of a couple of six ounce bottles and two quarts, which was for his own use. He has borne an excellent record in town, and is obliged to sell his home in order to pay the fine—$600. It is pointed out by those who claim that the fine is too excessive, that a man in Oshawa was fined only $200 this week for selling liquor. It is believed here that the case was the result of information given out by a "stool pigeon" who informed the authorities that the young man had left for Montreal. Provincial Officer Storey on advice from the License Inspector, drove to Omemee and boarded the Port Hope-Toronto train. The young man had gone to Montreal for the purpose of buying equipment for his tonsorial parlor.

Another surprise was sprung Friday when an information was laid against a well known confectioner for selling over strength wine. It appears that the confectioner had had this wine in stock for some time and had sold it over his soda fountain along with other soft beverages. The License Inspector purchased a bottle, forwarded it to Toronto for analysis when it was found to be 29 percent over strength.

N E ARLY MILLON EXTORTED FROM KASHMIR PRINCE

Sensational Blackmail Case Revealed in London Court —Prince's Name Suppressed.

OLD "BADGER GAME?"

English Woman Denies Plot to Lure Indian Potentate —Gang Fought Over Spoil.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—A pretty blond English woman, fashionably gowned, testified for five hours here Friday afternoon of her intimate relations with an eastern potentate of fabulous wealth, which have rocked England and threaten an international scandal.

The woman is Mrs. Charles Robinson, wife of a bookmaker, and the alleged pawn in an extortion conspiracy by which a blackmail gang extorted upwards of three quarters of a million dollars from the eastern princeling.

A fashionable audience which crowded Lord Darling's court to capacity heard the testimony.

Mrs. Robinson proved an obdurate witness against efforts of the defense to show that her husband was a member of the blackmail gang and readily admitted her relations with the potentate, whose name has been kept secret for fear of international complications.

Withstands Attack.

For five hours she withstood a gruelling attack by Sir John Simon, chief defense attorney, and retired with flying colors when court finally adjourned at 7 p.m. until Monday.

The witness wore a chic Kilinsky coat, a stunning street gown and a long rope of pearls.

"I first met Mr. A. (as the princeling has been called throughout the trial in 1919 at the Victory ball," she said.

"I was there in fancy dress—as a grasshopper. The costume was to advertise my patient medicine business.

"I was playing around and without introduction met a number of the potentate's suite and later the prince's colored secretary.

"Next day I saw the secretary on the street and he asked me to accompany him to the potentate's home. That was the first time I actually met the prince.

The witness said the acquaintance ripened into love and she met the dusky potentate several times in December, 1919.

"The potentate visited my home in Chapel street, Mayfair, several times," the witness said, "and when he left for Paris late that month I made several trips there to see him. Finally we were discovered in his room in a hotel."

Writes Out Question.

Sir John Simon caused a sensation when he began cross- examination by saying:

"I must ask you an intimate and painful question. It is better I do it in writing."

The barrister then showed a slip

SHOT WITH THE INTENT TO KILL

Urban Snider, of Odessa, Was Committed For Trial This Morning.

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 22. — (Canadian Press).—Urban V. Snider of Odessa was committed for trial Friday morning by Police Magistrate Ruttan in the County of Lennox and Addington Court at Napanee on a charge of shooting with intent to do bodily harm in connection with the wounding of the boy, Percy Clark, on Hallowe'en, although, according to information given to the press by Mr. W. S. Herrington, K.C., counsel for the defence, it is questionable whether he ever comes up for trial as he has been examined by Dr. E. Ryan, medical superintendent of Rockwood Hospital for the Insane, and an application will be made for his commitment to an asylum. "It is quite evident," said Mr. Herrington, "that Snider is not mentally normal."

WINTER GOODS PLENTIFUL IN PETERBORO NOW

All Fixings That Go To Make Up Christmas Table Coming In.

SPICES ARE HIGH.

Spanish Grapes Disposed Of At Auction and Varied From American Market.

All the fixings that go to make up a successful Christmas table are coming into the city in bags and boxes and bales. Soft-shelled almonds from Tarragona and filberts from Sicily, Brazilian "nigger toes" from South America, where century-old trees send their hard-shelled white meats to northern tables, oranges from Japan, dates from Persia, with veiled harem ladies on the ornamental packages, luscious table figs from Turkey, where they use them for filling in the layers of their thin, delicious pastry, braided necklaces of cooking figs in round baskets that come from Spain, "budded" walnuts from California and shelled walnuts from far away Manchuria. The Orient and the Antipodes, the sunny slopes of European vineyards and the orchards of Asia send their quota to the Christmas table of the Canadian. The horn of plenty runs over with the offerings of the markets of the world.

Spanish grapes are coming into the Port of Montreal in large quantities this year, and auctions of them are being held. The price is comparatively low, on account of the action of the United States in barring them from their tables, on the excuse, while favoring their own Californian vineyards, that the Malaga grapes may prove host fruits for pests of various sorts.

Figs and dates also are reasonable in price this season ,and dried fruits are well within the reach of every housewife. The new trade treaty being arranged between Australia and Canada, in line with British preference activities, has been held up for some unexplained reason, consequently dried friut prices are still unadvanced.

The "sugar and spice and everything nice" that is involved in the manufacture of the Christmas cake have their ups and downs. Never since 1914 has so much under-production been evident in spices, so the dealers declare. Small crops, combined with higher rates for Oriental labour and the diversion of much of such labour to other more productive fields of activity, are responsible for higher quotations, which it is anticipated will prevail for many months.

The seedless Navel oranges are on the markets, two weeks earlier than last year, in excellent quality, and at lower quotations than a twelvemonth back. Christmas oranges, therefore, should not be high in price, although this year's crop is reported as being less than that of last season.

California budded walnuts are high in price, asking 42 cents a pound wholesale, but Brazil nuts are cheap. The American pecan crop is estimated as slightly lower than last year's total.

Oysters this year are high enough. Time was when the succulent bivalves might be purchased for as little as thirty cents a quart, against the present quotations of $1.50 for the same quantity. However, dealers point out that in recent years much less water is being used in the shipment of these fish, that formerly, the "juice," as it was called, formed fifty per cent of the purchased bulk while now solid meats are sold. Most of our oysters come from the United States, but the Malpecque shell oyster from the Maritimes has a flavor that cannot be duplicated elsewhere.

Roots are plentiful this year, and prices are fairly low. The potato situation in wholesale circles is rather irritating. Farmers have the potatoes in their cellars and are not disposed to let them go. The trials of one local wholesale dealer may be gleaned from the difficulty which he encounters at times. A recent shipment required the supplying with it of sacks for the potatoes. The express on the bags had to be paid to their destination, then the freight charges met on return, and the vegetables finally disposed of to retail dealers at 60 cents a bag in hundred-bag lots, and 70 cents in smaller quantities. "Just enough cleared to pay for the gasoline" is the finale of this story.

A higher price for potatoes in the spring is the general prediction. Toronto, it is said, is only a few days from an actual famine in potatoes, should any unforseen checking in shipments materialize Toronto consumes around thirteen car-loads, or over 6,000 bags a day, and few dealers have more than a few days' supply on hand at present.

Ontario potatoes are rumored to be showing considerable rot, different from the ordinary variety in that the potato must be examined closely to notice it. It is first offered by a dark spot on the skin, which, instead of turning wet, as in ordinary decay, appears to dry up, but the longer the tuber is left standing, germeates the whole of it eventually causing it to dry up. However, this rot is also noticeable in shipments from New Brunswick as well as those from Ontario.

The sugar market, according to wholesalers, is acting very badly. The sugar year just closed at the end of September established new record in world crops. Canadian prices have been wobbling of late because of British sugar being offered in Montreal markets for the first time in some seasons and also because of the large sugar beet crop in Europe.

Teas and coffees are climbing steadily in price, and matches, owing to labour difficulties, are also on the up grade. The advance in soap prices seems to have altered with the naptha brand, which registers an increase in wholesale prices of about 40 cents on the hundred-bar case.

Canned goods are also in what is described as strong market, with the possible exception of canned apples and many of the nuts, noticeably filberts and almonds, which cost now in the wholesale 16 cents a pound, instead of 12 and 14 cents, as formerly, are also higher in price than usual. Since the opening, Brazil nuts have advanced one cent on the pound.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

E. G. Stephens' Funeral on Sunday Afternoon—Personal Mention.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 22.—The funeral of the late Edward E. Stephens will be held on Sunday afternoon, leaving the house at two o'clock, service to be in the Tabernacle Church on the English Line. The late Mr. Stephens was born in Algernon, Cornwall, England, ninety-four years ago last May. At ten years of age he came to Canada with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Sloggett, who settled at Cherry Valley, in Prince Edward County, near Picton. When he was twenty he moved to Seymour East, where he lived on a farm till about eighteen years ago, when he came to Campbellford and lived on the Havelock Road. About three years ago he bought a house on Frank Street, where he lived up to the time of his death. He was an only son and had only one sister, who died years ago.

He was married three times. His first wife was Miss Susanna Potts, of Seymour, by whom he had three sons and six daughters, four of whom are still living: Mrs. J. W. Cumming, Strathclair, Manitoba; Mrs. Ernest Luxton, Brandon, Man.; Mrs. Emma Merrill, Edmonton, Alta., and Robert in the States. The second wife was Mary C. Archer, of South Monaghan. There were three sons and a daughter by the second wife, three of whom are living: John of Peterboro, Mrs. Wrigley of Bancroft, and Dawson of Toronto. The third wife was Mrs. Brady of Seymour, whom he married about twenty years ago. There was no family by the third wife.

The late Mr. Stephens has forty-five grandchildren and twenty-four great-grandchildren.

He has always been a busy man, and since coming to town, he busied himself with a large garden and fruit orchard till about three years ago, when he sold that property and retired from very active work. He has always been a Methodist. He was present at the armistice service held in the Regent Theatre on November 9th, and seemed in good health up to the time he took a stroke on Wednesday of this week.

Next Sunday is third Sunday of the 70th anniversary month of Christ Church. Rev. C. E. Clarke, rector of Christ Church, Belleville, will have the services for the day. Monday night the Willing Workers and Advisory Board each have their meeting, and on Tuesday afternoon the Junior Auxiliary meet, Tuesday evening the Girls' Auxiliary, Thursday afternoon the Women's Auxiliary and Friday the Boy Scouts.

Rev. Mr. Forde, late of Wheatley, will preach both morning and evening, in the Baptist Church, on Sunday, November 23rd.

Mr. Thos. Moran, of Codrington, spent Wednesday in town.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Nadoo and daughters, Inkerman Street, who motored to Markham last week to visit friends, returned to their home on Wednesday night.

HANDKERCHIEF'S HISTORY.

The pocket handkerchief was first known as "kerchief"—couvre-chef—a covering for the head; then it became handkerchief, a covering for the head carried in the hand; and at last pocket handkerchief, a covering for the head held in the hand and kept in the pocket.

Pratts COW REMEDY

NEARLY MILLION

of paper to the judge who offered to discharge two women jurors if they so desired. They choose to remain, however, and the judge handed the paper to the jury with the remark:

"I'm sorry but you will have to read it."

Contents of the mysterious note was not divulged.

Resuming her testimony, Mrs. Robinson said she and a Mrs. Bevan and a colored secretary occupied a single suite in a Paris hotel which the potentate (generally believed to be a very wealthy and powerful Indian prince) had engaged for them.

Both the women signed their real names to the hotel register.

It was shortly after Christmas that Montague Newton, alleged head of the blackmailers, broke into a room and discovered her and the prince, shouting: "Now I have my evidence."

The witness denied she unlocked the door so that Newton could enter without difficulty.

"I recognized Newton the moment he came in the room," the witness said, "and told the prince: "I must get back to England before that brute reaches my husband.

"I distinctly told Mr. A. Newton was not my husband. Mr. A. left the suite six minutes later and I packed up and went back to England."

It was after this, the defense contends, that the blackmailers extorted huge sums from the prince.

The trial grows out of an action brought by Robinson against the Midland bank for cashing a check for 125,000 pounds made out to him by the prince and to whom he alleges his signature was forged, presumably by other members of the gang who double crossed him.

Britain Amazed.

The whole country was amazed on Thursday that the victim of one of the most gigantic swindles in history should not be properly named in court, and the judge took the first opportunity offered to present the explanation. He said:

"Nothing would induce me to keep his name out simply because he was a person of rank. It is for reasons of state not connected with the question of rank. I am allowing the name of his English aide de camp to be omitted because if mentioned it would possibly identify the ruler."

The fact is that the aide de camp's name is Captain Arthur. He was in desperate financial straits when he helped a clever gang of crooks catch Hurri, or Harri, Singh, a Kashmir prince in a compromising situation in a hotel in Paris.

Hiding in China.

Captain Arthur, for whose appointment as Henr' Singh's aide the British Government is responsible, is now hiding in China.

One of the many amazing features of this case is that Captain Arthur, after having received his share of the plunder immediately, lost a large part of it playing a card game called "Slippery Sam" with his unscrupulous confederates.

Photographes of the hapless Hindoo prince which were secretly circulated among newspapers here show him to be a remarkably handsome young man. He is dark skinned, with a slight moustache, and is of a commanding mien.

Woman's Own Story.

Mrs Maudie Robinson, who says she fell deeply in love with "Mr. A," testified in support of the claim of her husband, Charles Ernest Robinson. She is pretty and petite, with shining blue eyes. Coolly and collectedly she told her story of the Hindo prince's advent into her life.

She with a friend, Mrs. Lillian Beven, attended the Victory ball in London in 1919. Seated in the box next to them was "Mr. A." with his suite. She became acquainted with him, and her acquaintance, she admitted, developed into more than friendship with the Hindoo in the following month.

Lord Halsbury, her husband's lawyer, asked:

"What sort of a man was Mr. A.?"

She replied with emphasis:

"Splendid!"

The material part of her story she told as follows:

Previous to knowing "Mr. A." she had arranged to go to Mentone, on the Riviera, "Mr. A." and his secretary said they wanted to join her and Mrs. Bevan in Paris.

Lord Halsbury asked:

"Were any arrangements made for the future?"

The witness answered:

"Yes, there were plans for houseboats and different things. He wanted Mrs. Bevan and me to go to India."

Lord Halsbury said:

That means he wanted you to go to India as his mistress?"

She answered.

"Yes, and Mrs. Bevan would have been the mistress of the private secretary."

Their Christmas Party.

The two women went to Paris and met the Kashmir prince and his secretary.

Lord Halsbury queried:

"On the night of Christmas Day you had been dining out?" The witness replied:

"Yes. We did not get home until 6 o'clock in the morning. When I went to my room, Mr. A. was with me. About 8 in the morning there was a knock on the door. Thinking it was my friend Lillian Bevan, I unlocked the door. Then, to my amazement, I saw Newton standing there. He pushed by me saying he had got me at last and that I would hear more of it."

"Newton" was Montague Noel Newton, alleged leader of the band of blackmailers.

Lord Halsbury said:

"It is said that when Newton came you acknowledged him as your husband to Mr. A. Is that correct?" She answered:

"Oh no."

The witness said that when she returned to London her husband was angry with her.

Husband on Stand.

Sir John Simon continued to put searching question to Robinson when the hearing was resumed today. The lawyer sought to show that the plaintiff did not quarrel with his wife, but after the party in Paris he accepted money from her. This Robinson denied. He admitted that he had been robbed through a conspiracy but he denied that he was a party to any conspiracy.

Judge Darling asked him:

"If you recover the 125,000 pounds which you claim from the bank, will you regard yourself as trustee and give it back to Mr. A. who you think was robbed?"

Robinson answered:

"I do not know what I should do with it."

"But according to your own declaration this was stolen money."

"I thought of giving it to my wife."

To this Judge Darling said.

"You are robbing Peter to pay Paul. Would any decent man or woman take this money? Don't you think you ought to offer it to Mr. A. first?"

Robinson answered:

"I would not mind in the least if you say I should do so."

Prince Hurri Singh Heir to Throne of Great State.

As heir to the throne of the largest of India's native states, save for the Rajputana Agency, Hurri Singh is one of the greatest princes of India. Kashmir, which embraces five provinces, has an area greater considerably than the New England States and nearly as great as the combined territory of England, Scotland and Wales.

The enlightened ruler of the maharajas of Kashmir is attested by the fact that while three-quarters of the population are Mohammedans, the reigning house has been for over a hundred years Hindu; elsewhere throughout India adherents of the two religions are divided by bitter hatred.

It was to Kashmir, as Moore's poem relates, to the gardens amid its lakes, that the Mogul Emperor Jahangir, son of the mighty Akbar, fled from court and camp to pleasure with the "Light of the Harem," the beautiful Nourmahal.

It is even better known to this generation as the background of Laurence Hope's Idian love lyrics. It is famous for its magnificent scenery, its nightingales and roses, its palaces and temples. The Prince is white, of the Aryan race.

WALTER WOOD ANSWERS CALL

Court Crier in Peterborough Court Passed Away Last Night—A Picturesque Figure.

The man who for twenty-five years issued the call, "Oyez, Oyez, Oyez! good people of the County of Peterboro, any person having any business with His Majesty's Supreme Court Judge of the Province of Ontario, draw near and give your attention," has himself answered the summons to the bench of the Supreme Judge. Walter Wood, crier in the County and Supreme Courts in Peterboro, died last night at his home at 300 Pearl Avenue.

In his passing, Peterboro has lost one of its most picturesque figures. Gowned in his court robes, at his seat under the judge's dais, Mr. Wood had seen the tangled skein of human life unravelled under the hands of judgesand juries year after year. He had sat there through trials of all kinds, seeing murderers convicted and condemned to die, and honest citizens get their due. He had been brought in touch with all the pathos and with the seamy side of life.

The late Walter Wood was 74 years of age. He had been ill six weeks, and had been missed by all his friends from the last sittings of the Court when his absence was commented on by Hon. Mr. Justice Orde. He was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, and the funeral service, which will be privately conducted on Monday, will be in charge of Rev. Robert Pogue. There are left to mourn his loss his widow and a grand child, Stewart Hayes.

NEWS OF HASTINGS.

Hunters Return With Quota of Deer—News of the Hunt.

HASTINGS, November 22. — The first party of hunters returned on Thursday evening. Those who made up the party were: Messrs T. A. Coughlan, J. Armstrong, H. T. Lambert, J. F. Walsh, T. J. Walsh, John Keoan, George Lynch, H. Waterhouse, A. Ryan and John Burns of Lindsay, formerly of Hastings.

Their camp was situated at Crooked Lake, which is in the northern part of Hastings county, and eighteen miles east of Bancroft. The journey was made by rail as far as Delton, from thence by horses into the camp, about sixteen miles.

The weather was quite warm in the first part of the hunt but ideal for the latter part.

Although the deer were not as plentiful as in former years, the party got their full count, which were of good size and are said to be one of the finest bunch of deer brought out from this section of the wilds.

Mr. Ryan got a few shots at a bear but as he was distant from it was not lucky enough to get it. All of the party look none theworse for their holiday and from all indications it is expected that Chef Waterhouse will develop into a sharp shooter in another year.

A Choral Society.

A public invitation has been issued locally to all those interested in vocal numbers. Mr. R. T. Cowell, A.R.C.O., of Campbellford, will be present at a meeting on Tuesday evening, November 25th, for the purpose of discussing the formation of a choral society for Hastings, and is giving piano and vocal lessons.

Special week night services are being held in the Methodist church during the past week and will continue through next week. Speakers from Warkworth, Lakefield, and Campbellford had charge of the services and other speakers will address the congregations for the coming week.

The winners of the prizes at the Women's Catholic League Progressive party, on Wednesday night were: For the ladies' prize, Mrs. M. Murphy; for the gentlemen, Mr. Fred. Lynch, Consolation prize, Miss Grace Logan.

Mrs. Rose Payne and Mrs. William Crofts of Peterboro, are the guests of the former's mother, Mrs. S. Carter.

Col. and Mrs. N. F. McNachtan of Cobourg, spent the week end as guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Fowlds.

Rev. D. A. Thompson was in Peterboro on Monday attending a special meeting of the Peterboro Presbytery.

Mrs. N. Welman and daugthers, Jean and Ilene, of Norwood, were in Hastings on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Black of Trent Valley Lodge, were in Peterboro this week.

Mrs. J. W. Fairman, of Campbellford, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. A. V. German on Friday.

Mrs. M. J. Baker has returned from a visit with friends in Toronto and Burlington.

POST THEM EARLY.

Do your Christmas shopping at home, and do it early, and having attended to that end of the gift-giving, don't forget the Post Office staff and the letter-carriers.

You can ease the holiday burden of these servants of the public appreciably by posting your gifts early.

The usual tendency is to endeavour to time the mailing of gifts so that they will reach those for whom they are intended on Christmas Eve or Christmas morning.

That is a very nice piece of sentiment, but, unfortunately, it doesn't bring joy to the postal staff, those who have to sort the mail and the others whose task it is to get it delivered.

Much of the last-minute congestion could be avoided if the gift-sending were to be spread out over a period of two or three weeks instead of being crowded into the last few days as is too often the case.

It only costs a trifle to buy "Don't open until Christmas" seals to warn your friends of the Yuletide nature of the parcels, so tha tthere is no sound reason why many gifts could not be mailed weeks ahead of Christmas, in contrast to the usual habit of leaving them until the postal employees are almost at their wits' end to sort and distribute the volume of mail in time for Christmas.

A little thought in this respect will make Christmas a more joyful occasion for the postal clerks and letter-carriers.

A TOURIST ASSOCIATION.

The Peterborough Chamber of Commerce has been successful in having its resolution calling for the formation of an Ontario Tourist Association approved of by the annual meeting of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, and the committee of that organization has been authorized to take steps towards the formation of the tourist body.

The objects, briefly, are to advertise the charms of Ontario from a tourist viewpoint, furnish information to visitors and co-ordinate the work now being carried on by independent organizations, such as the Trent Waterway Development Association.

The local Chamber of Commerce deserves credit for its vision and initiative in this matter.

The Trent Waterway Association has shown what can be done for one district in the way of publicity, and it is clear that if a co-operative effort by representatives of the municipalities of one particular section can produce such splendid results that great things can be expected of a Provincial-wide organization backed as it undoubtedly will be by the Provincial Government.

A tourist association in Quebec has been able to do much for that Province, and similar results can be looked for by the new Ontario organization, for the launching of which the credit must go to the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce.

HURTING PROHIBITION.

Trere must be many occasions upon which sane prohibition leaders wish that their cause could be saved from its friends.

For instance, at the recent meeting of the Quebec Prohibition Federation when an enthusiastic speaker declared, "When the liquor traffic is got rid of the tobacco cause will be tackled and abliterated."

It is difficult to imagine any remark that could do more harm to the cause of prohibition than to have its advocates threaten a campaign upon tobacco next.

The opposition is thereby provided with a most potent argument that can be used effectively—and will be so used.

"First they cut off liquor, next tobacco, then theatre-going and the movies, then friendly card games. Who can tell what the end will be?" is the sort of thing anti-prohibitionists will use as a reason for opposing temperance measures, and who can blame them for seizing upon a weapon thrown into their hands by such fanatics as the individual who made himself ridiculous at the Quebec gathering.

During the war there was a sample of this type of folly in the attempt made by a few over-zealous and narrow-minded women to stop the sending of cigarettes to Canada's soldiers at the front.

That silly action caused great indignation among the soldiers and their friends, and its effect lasted even until the recent plebiscite campaign when it was used as an argument against supporting the Ontario Temperance Act.

The cause of prohibition is weakened when fanatics are allowed to take the floor.

A BATTLE ROYAL.

Down in West Hastings the "battle of the century" is being waged in the by-election caused by the resignation from the Federal House, as a result of the charges he made against Hon. Jas. Murdock, Minister of Labour, of Mr. E. Gus Porter, the Conservative member.

The House sustained Mr. Murdock, making it obligatory upon his accuser to resign, hence the by-election in which Mr. Porter is being opposed by Mr. Charles Hanna, former Mayor of Belleville.

The fight, as far as an outsider can judge, is an exceedingly warm one.

The candidates have been attending half a dozen meetings each day, and talking so much that the Liberal standardbearer has completely lost his voice, while whole batteries of orators from outside the riding have been in action.

Both the Prime Minister and Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, the Opposition leader, have made their appearance, and other star performers on both sides have hurled their eloquence at the electorate.

In addition, the two Belleville papers, the Ontario fighting the Liberal battle and the Intelligencer carrying the Conservative colours, have been engaged in a real old-time hammer and tongs journalistic feud, which every possible argument and many that are impossible have been introduced.

Normally, West Hastings is a "safe" Conservative seat. Mr. Porter has been its representative at Ottawa for a score of years, and at the last election was returned by over 1,000 majority.

In this particular contest the fact that the Liberal candidate is widely known and recognized as a hustler and a "live wire" may have considerable effect upon the result.

Whatever the verdict, however, the contest has given West Hastings a merry month's campaigning.

HUMAN NATURE AT ITS WORSE.

Some people are always "reporting" clerks, porters, deliverymen and street car conductors for such terrible offenses as incivility, discourtesy or slow service.

In its chronic form, this "reporting" is a sympton of diseased nerves—sometimes of mania.

All of us have it, at times. Psychologists explain: The individual encounters many disagreeable things in the course of his daily business—things which he must swallow in silence, for fear that a retort would injure his own welfare. For instance, a bullying boss "rags" an employee who dare not talk back, else he lose his job.

Resentment piles up inwardly and finally is vented on some unfortunate Pullman porter or clerk who forgets that we should be fawned over, no matter how nasty we become, and commits the unpardonable sin of neglecting to play up to our vanity.

Most of us are Chinese emperors at heart—particularly when we are buying goods or services.

Complaints are necessary at times, it would be ridiculous to claim otherwise. But nearly always the complaint is exaggerated in the making. A porter or conductor, as an illustration, silently stands for a lot of gaff from the travelling public. If, incensed, he explodes with even a single sharp retort, the kick that is made to headquarters magnifies that retort even to the claim of attempted physical violence against the kicker.

Why can't people be fair and human in complaining?

Why exaggerate? Why lie? The kick may result in the firing of an employee driven to distraction and sharp retort by troubles at home—such as illness of a wife or financial desperation.

Would you knowingly throw such a man into the breadline and deny his wife medical services? Of course, not. Yet that is exactly what many of us have done when we have "reported" an employee unfairly.

These clerks and conductors and others who serve us in our buying and travelling are human beings. We might treasure them as warm friends if we knew them intimately.

Sensible and Christian are members of the Appreciation League, who "report" only good service and courtesy—and overlook incivility as something that eventually delivers its own punishment by keeping the doer from becoming successful or happy.

ST. LAWRENCE DEEP WATERWAY.

Interest in the St. Lawrence River improvement in Eastern Ontario has lately grown to the point of organising public opinion in the towns along the river to support the proposed deep waterway. In the United States, it has the support of some of the most influential men in the land, including President Coolidge and Mr. Hoover.

Even though in recent years Canada has built some very costly public works, with very little prospect of deriving any national benefit from the heavy outlay, this Dominion cannot afford to obstruct the pressure of the middle west for greater access from the lake ports to the ocean. The movement to deepen the St. Lawrence to accommodate the biggest grain ships is simply in accordance with the general trend of trade and industry in the western world.

Almost the only opposition in Canada comes from Montreal. It is inconceivable that the Montreal harbor authorities are opposed. The deep waterway would enormously benefit the port of Montreal. The bulk of the grain would still be carried from the head of the lakes to Montreal by specially-designed freighters of cheaper and lighter construction than ocean vessels. The grain would still be transferred from lake vessels through the Montreal elevators; but they would be 600-foot freighters, which at present cannot come farther down the lakes than Buffalo.

When the deep waterway project is combined with the plan for the development of power on the St. Lawrence between Prescott and Cornwall, it becomes of tremendous significance to the whole of Eastern Ontario. It is calculated to move the centre of gravity of American industry from the States that have hitherto been served by Pennsylvania coal to the banks of the St. Lawrence. Electrical power would be available in such abundance, and at terms, it would tend to put coal out of the industrial market.

Opposition to the whole project is said to come from private power interests. They realize the value of the St. Lawrence water-power resources, but wish to keep the privilege of power development under private monopoly for themselves. The time will come when it will be very costly for this Dominion to be associated with a policy of dog-in-the-manger.

The Federal Government is taking the right course in making no move to commit Canada to joint action with the United States without first making sure that it is in the national interest to go ahead. But the doubt that Canada is obstructing, or stalling, should be cleared away. The best terms possible for Canada should be obtained in making the international treaty. But after reasonable time for ascertaining that it would be beneficial to Canada to make the treaty, the Dominion should be ready to proceed with no less spirit of confidence than the United States.—Ottawa Citizen.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Nov. 21.—The highest price paid for export steers this week was $7.25 a cwt. plus freight, and this was the top for the week before. Most of the other steers cost from $6.50 to $7. Short keeps for Glasgow cost $5.50 to $6.75, but those at the latter figure were extra good. Heifers were not much wanted for overseas this week, but a number were taken to hold at $5.50 to $6.50. Export bulls were bought from $4 to $4.50 and cows were lower by 25 cents a cwt. at $4.25 to $5 a cwt.

Only a limited number of good and choice handyweight butchers were in the market, and these were firm from $5.50 to $6.25 a cwt. Good medium mixed butchers sold from $4.75 to $5.25; mixed butchers went from $2 to $3.50 a cwt. Fat butchers' cows were easy at a decline of 25 cents a cwt., but there was an unfilled demand for canners and cutters, which caused an advance of 25 cents a cwt. Bulls were also firmer, and some for export sold up to $5, while bologna bulls were readily taken at $2.75 to $3.25 a cwt.

A heavy business was done in stockers and feeders this week. Many farmers in for the stock show took back loads, but prices were not high and this helped out the dearer feed prospect. Breedy yearling stockers were $4.00 to $4.25 but common ones were had down to $3.00 a cwt. Feeders 900 lbs. and over cost $4.25 for the plain and a dollar a cwt. more for the good kind. Milchers and springers are selling, but the prices are none too good and top cows are not much over $80 each. Rogers and Maybee will want up to 1,000 head for export next week and there is a sure demand for any butchers of quality and finish.

Calves have dropped about a dollar a cwt. this week and are not too certain at present. Real choice 200-lb. calves will make 10 to 10½ cents; good calves 9 to 9½ and mediums 7 ot 8 cents. Heavy calves sell around 6 cents and grassers are fairly firm at around 4 cents a pound.

The market has been very steady for lambs, the price for the light ones holding from 11½ to 12 cents. Heavy lambs have to be peddled at and below 10 cents. Choice handyweight sheep are steady and wanted up to 7 cents.

After striking on bottom of $8.75 a cwt. for a few days hogs have turned firmer again and $9.00 was the general f.o.b. price on Thursday. Dependent on light runs a further advance will not come as a surprise.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.— Corn suffered a sharp setback in price today as a result of enlarged offerings from the new crop. Other grain was unsettled as a consequence, but held within relatively narrow limits. The corn market closed heavy, 2 1-8 to 4 cents net lower, May 1.19 1-8 to 119 1-4, with wheat nervous at the same as yesterday's finish ,to half cent higher; December 1.49 3-4 to 149 7-8 and May 1.57 5-8 to 1.57 3-4. Oats 3-8 to 5-8 off and provisions varying from 17 cents decline to a rise of 20 cents.

MONTREAL GRAIN

MONTREAL, Nov. 21. —There was no improvement in the foreign demand for Canadian grain here today and exporters generally reported business very dull for the season of the year. The trade in cash grain on spot was also of a very limited character and prices were unchanged with car lots of Ontario No. 3 extra malting barley quoted at $1.09 No. 3 grade at $1.08 per bushel ex-track, Ontario No 2 white oats at 62 cents No. 3 grade at 60 cents and No. 4 grade at 58 cents per bushel, ex-store.

The box social held on Friday night last was a huge success. A splendid programme was rendered, having some of the talent from Bobcaygeon.

Mr. Anderson, Bobcaygeon High School, teacher, expressed in a few words the attitude of the Bobcaygeon Hockey Club towards the Dunsford Club. They are living in expectation of winning back their own trophy from the Dunsford Club, which they carried away last season.

A number of handsome boxes were sold at good prices.

Mrs. W. J. Thurston is spending a few days with Mrs. Arthur, Perry Street, Peterborough.

The Methodist W.M.S. meeting was held in the home of Mrs. W. M. Thurston on Tuesday last, which was a great success. Rev. Mrs. Carmichael gave a splendid report of the missionary convention held in Toronto.

At this special meeting of the society they nominated delegates to attend the convention to be held in Lindsay on Dec. 4 next. Delegates: Mrs. J. E. Thurston and Mrs. W. M. Thurston.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. W. M. Thurston's hospitality for the wonderful buffet lunch, and kindness of her home.

CANADIANS RETURNING FROM UNITED STATES

Five-Sixths of Those Coming From U.S. Were Born in Canada.

OTTAWA, Nov. 22.—During the seven months ending with October, 30,966 immigrants came to Canada from the United States. The extent of the flow from the other way is not known as the figures are not made public, but the department of immigration states that it is decreasing.

Of the above total, 25,985 were born in Canada, 3,026 were British subjects with Canadian domicile, and 1,955 were naturalized Canadians.

Total immigration figures for the seven months are not yet available, but they will show a decrease, although for the twelve months there will be an increase of about six per cent.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES HELD AT FLEETWOOD

Rev. Mr. Hie of Bobcaygeon, Preached on Sunday.

JANETVILLE, Nov. 22.—Anniversary services were held at Fleetwood on Sunday and Monday last, and were pronounced very successful. Rev. Mr. Hie, of Bobcaygeon, preached excellent sermons in the afternoon and evening to good congregations, while the Janetville Methodist choir furnished the music. A leading feature of the choir's effort was a male quartette entitled "The Wayside Cross."

On Monday evening a fowl supper was served to a large gathering, and the Janetville Male Quartette was again in evidence. Addresses were delivered by Revs. Hie and Dafoe, pastor of the circuit; while other vocal and instrumental music was furnished by local and visiting talent.

Shooting Match.

Great excitement prevailed at the shooting match held at Burns' Mill. The contest was well managed. Six persons formed a club, each paying 25 cents. Each of the six fired one shot at a 50-yard mark, and the best shot took the duck—the owner of the fowl receiving $1.50 for each duck, out of which he paid for the shells used in the contest.

Evey Stinson Riley Magill, Charlie Deyell, Dr. Mamilton of Bethany, Mossom and Percy Walker and Thos. Howe were among the winners of fowl. There were quite a number of sportsmen present.

CONSTIPATED CHILDREN.

Constipation is one of the most common ailments of childhood and the child suffering from it positively cannot thrive. To keep the little one well the bowels must be kept regular and the stomach sweet. To do this nothing can equal Baby's Own Tablets. They are a mild but thorough laxative; are pleasant to take and can be given to the newborn babe with perfect safety. Thousands of mothers use no other medicine for their little ones but Baby's Own Tablets. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Sunday evening Church service was very sparcely attended.

The regular Woma's Institute meeting was held on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Richard Batten is the appointed delegate to the conentio in Toronto.

Rev. Mr Cox, of Lakefield addressed the ladies present, who were unfortunately very few. His subject was "Personal Responsibility." A synopsis of his address does not do it justice, as every word he said counted: "Every person in the world is responsible for something, there is no one who is not." Anything that is worth doing is worth doing well—If you belong to any society, if it is worth while, push it, if it is not worth while, do not belong. Some people shirk responsibility. They think the other fellow can do it better than they. If anything needs to be done, let all join in to help. No matter how large any undertaking may be, it becomes easy if every one does his part. In Church or Mission work or society there are other teings besides money to give, which can always be given; a smile, a happy word, a hearty handshake One complained she had gone to a meeting and gotten nothing; when asked what she gave, she had given nothing. Why expect to get, where you do not give? Why try to get something for nothing?

He spoke of visitors of the sick. Some are so mournful; hope the patient may feel better; keep a long face, and tell all the sad things they can; why not tell the happy things, and cheer patients? A cheerful patient has a greater chance for recovery.

Mr. Cox said that just living is wonderful. He gets a great deal of fun out of it. People could make the world so happy, and there is absolutely no one, who cannot give a smile, a cheerful word, or a hearty handshake.

On Thursday evening last the very slimly attended annual Bible Society meeting was held in the Baptist Church. Mr. Patterson, the speaker of the evening, began by saying he believed in foreign missions, but he believed in putting one's own house in order first.

He described his work in the North West where he spent fifteen years. He was sent out by the Anglican church to organize churches.

When in the part to which he was sent he found he could not well organize churches. About all he could do was to visit the families, give a Bible, to each, and try to persuade them to erect a family altar. His district covered about 8,000 square miles. In winter he used snow-shoes and in summer a canoe. H described some of the homes. One family in particular he knew, who had come to make a home, for two and one half years lived on bread and pork and beans without the pork.

The Bible Society aims to place a Bible in the home of each new comer, that Bible to be in their own language.

These foreigners are coming into our country, we cannot help it. They must not be allowed to be a menace but must be made good citizens and the only way is by means of the Bible. If people only knew the conditions of these new comers, they would be more alive to the work and anxious to help.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell who accompanied Mr. Patterson, had an exhibit of Bible for those who cared to wait and see. There were Bibles of all sizes, large and small print and in the different languages.

On Tuesday evening of last week, the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Galvin gathered at Mrs. Galvin's parent's, home and gave the young couple a shower and social evening. The neighbors gave her a very hand some buffet. There were many other gifts of household linen, various pieces of china, and a good supply of aluminum and granite cooking utensils. Only two articles, were duplicated. The gifts were brought in in a large clothes basket, just before supper, and after opening the parcels Mr. and Mrs. Galvin each thanked the donors and said they hoped to see each and all visit them.

After supper, there was dancing and cards.

For the time being Mr. and Mrs. Galvin are living in the new house with Mrs. Galvins parent's, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Matthews.

FRUIT TREATMENT FOR CONSTIPATION

Quick and Permanent Relief By Taking "Fruit-a-tives"

What a glorious feeling it is to be well! What a relief to be free of cathartics, salts, laxatives and purgatives that merely aggravate constipation and are so unpleasant to take and so weakening in their effect!

What a satisfaction to know that the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes will absolutely and permanently relieve constipation. By a certain process, the juices of these fruits can be concentrated and combined with tonics—and it is these intensified fruit juices that correct constipation, relieve headaches and biliousness, and make you well and keep you well.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold everywhere at 25c. and 50c. a box—or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

BIG PLANTS TAKE ON MEN.

American Locomotive and General Electric Companies Increase Forces.

SCHENECTADY, N.Y., Nov. 22.—Signs of improved business conditions are seen in this city in increased employment in the American Locomotive Works and in the radio department of the General Electric Works. The locomotive works has increased its personnel from 2,647 to 3,287, with the probability of further increases to meet the demands of new orders.

At the General Electric Works, where a lay-off has been general, despite the company's plan to manufacture goods for stock, at least 200 employees have been added to the radio department to meet the seasonal demand for radio sets and equipment.

SOUTH END CIRCLE.

A.Y.P.A. of St. George's Church Held Mock Council.

On Monday evening the regular weekly meeting of the A.Y.P.A. took the form of a "Mock Council." Mr. S. Robertson filled the role of Mayor, Miss E. Parkes being City Clerk. The committees, with their chairmen, were as follows:—Board of Works, "Alderman" Rev. J. L. Hughes; Fire and Water, "Alderman" W. Parkes; Health, "Alderman" M. Huxley; Utilities, "Alderman" J. Dossett; Education, "Alderman" I. Parkes; Finance, "Alderman" D. Allen. "Mayor" Robertson carried through the proceedings in a most successful manner, his fund of wit and humour restoring order when the hammer, or threat of expulsion, failed. The hammer was certainly very much in evidence. The reports of the Fire and Water and Health Committees met with szvere criticism. The Finance Committee reported that owing to the lavish expenditure of the various committees, especially that of the Board of Works in purchasing a dustless sweeper, as petitioned for by the residents on Braidwood Ave., McGill and Lock Streets, the monthly proportionments had been overspent by about $1,550. As a measure of economy it was resolved by the "Aldermen" to cut out the "Mayor's" monthly allowance of $13.13 for expenses, and to place the "City Clerk" on half-pay. The "Council" adjourned at 10 p.m.

Wear and Tear

Twenty years of usage under every condition of the climate and road has established beyond question or argument one great outstanding feature of Ford superiority—strength.

In winter driving, no feature is more important, strength to withstand the strains of heavy driving in drifted snow and on rutted roads, strength to resist the wear and tear of many gear changes and sudden brakings in congested traffic, strength to defy the daily gruelling month after month, year in year out, to endure where other mechanisms fail.

There is no substitute for strength in a car. Too much depends upon it. The Ford's resistance to wear and tear has become a tradition.

LATEST-FARM-NEWS — FARM-PROBLEMS

The modern majesty consists in work. Wha a man can do is his greatest ornament, and he always consults his dignity by doing it.—Carlyle.

OLDEST INDUSTRY IN CANADA EXPECTS GREAT IMPROVEMENT WITH INCREASED EXPORTATION

Implement Sales Promise to Grow in 1925—Farmers Need Machines.

GRANARY OF EMPIRE

Farm Machine Building Antedates Confederation—Romance of Industrialism.

By THOS. BRADSHAW.

The farm imp ement industry is one of the oldest in Canada, ante-dating Confederation. Its progress and expansion has been one of the romances of industrialism. To-day Canadian-made implements are found in practically every agricultural country in the world and their reputation for quality and efficiency is widespread. It is an industry which has its proper place in North America, and especially in Canada, because of the enormous tracts of fertile and uncultivated land on this continent, as well as the scarcity of labor. The welfare of the farmer and the implement manufacturer is based upon a community of interest, and this close relationship is self-evident. The latter helps the farmer to prepare the soil, sow the seed, harvest the crop, as well as market it.

It is impossible for the farmer, under present-day conditions, to attempt to operate successfully without the aid of efficient and labor-saving implements. A modern farm machine with a low initial and operating cost, will replace the labor of several men and will enable the Canadian farmer to meet world competition, which means competing against cheap land and cheap labor. A recent investigation has proved that if it were not for modern machinery, the farmer would be forced to employ four times the amount of labor which he at present requires.

On the other hand, the implement manufacturer, although he may have markets at home and abroad, has only one class of customer—the farmer. This is not the case with most other manufacturers who can pick their customers from many classes—in country and city. As the welfare of the farmer is to a great extent dependent upon the uncertainties of nature, it it, therefore, almost impossible for either him or the farm machine manufacturer to estimate in advance the outcome for any year.

Canada is now called the Granary of the Empire, producing about one-third of all the wheat of the British Empire. When it is realized that only one-sixth of the land fit for farming is at present under cultivation, some idea of its agricultural possibilities may be obtained. It is due to this industry that Canada's economic progress has been so rapid. Without the modern and efficient implements, which have been supplied by Canadian implement concerns, the agriculturists of Canada could not have met foreign competition which necessitated meeting foreign costs of production.

For the past few years, the industry has suffered severely, due to the loss of many of its foreign markets and to the distressed condition of agriculture generally. Before the war, Europe was its most important export field; since that time the business in that area has been greatly curtailed. Fifty per cent. of the European trade was done in Germany and Russia. Both fields are now, and have been for some time, inaccessible. Chaotic financial conditions, lack of credit and abnormal exchanges on that continent, have been the main causes. During recent months, however, much progress has been made in several of the European countries towards the economic readjustment of some of these factors; and what has been accomplished in those countries will undoubtedly have a beneficial effect on similar problems in other portions of Europe, and will accelerate their solution.

A new condition has arisen in those markets which has to be faced by implement manufacturers of this continent. Since the conclusion of the war an intense nationalistic feeling has developed in practically every European State, and an endeavor is being made by them to produce within their own boundaries what they require. Due to the ingenuity demanded by the exigencies of war, the production and perfecting of many articles, which were formerly imported, has developed, and many of the European countries, in which the more simple farm equipment was produced, are now making some progress in the manufacturing of these highly specialized machines which were formerly supplied by this continent. In order to encourage the home manufacturer, tariffs have been strengthened and trade walls erected. Even in our own Empire this is noticeable. Australia may be cited as a country which has a tariff barrier against agricultural implements approximating forty-five per cent.

Crops Not Good.

To add to the immediate difficulties, a number of grain producing countries have this year experienced an indifferent harvest. The yield of wheat, according to the International Institute of Agriculture, has decreased in Europe alone approximately 150 million bushels as compared with last year. This shortage means that a large number of farmers have had a poor crop; on the other hand, those who have had good crops will benefit by the increased prices for grain the world over. It is believed, however, that the net result will be, in view of the fact that, on an average, there has not been good crops, a temporary curtailment of expenditure on the part of the agricultural classes for all commodities, including farm implements. The requirement of Europe for farm equipment is very substantial, and although, as indicated, it is endeavoring within itself to supply in part this need, there must be for some years to come, on the assumption of the countries' and farmers' economic status improving generally, a good volume of business for the concerns which are equipped to handle it.

To Grow Watermelons With Handles On Them

Cy Partins, the Luther Burbank of Deans, New Jersey, is hard at work on a navel watermelon. "I've almost got it, too," says Cy. "There's one growin' in my hothouse now that contains only eleven seeds." Asked how he could tell the number of seeds it contained, Cy explained that he had had an X-ray picture taken of it. "After another month of experimentin'," Cy continued, "I'll have an absolutely seedless or navel watermelon. As soon as I get the seedless feature perfected, I'm going to start work on another feature that will revolutionize the watermelon business. One reason why people don't buy more watermelons is that they're too hard to carry. I intend to grow 'em with handles. 'Tain't necessary for me to say that a seedless watermelon with a handle ought to be a big seller."

BINDER CONCLUDES TALE OF THE MOON

Ox Thresher of Gaul Would be Amazed to See Modern Thresher in Operation.

In last week's installment the moon had just told of her witchery in enveloping lovers in her spell. To-day, the moon concludes the fairy tale of the wonders of modern farm life.

"And how the fingers of the wind made harps of the trees," added the Moon.

"Winter is the season for meditation," the Binder went on, after musing a few moments, "a time for new, picturesque worlds to appear. Every little while I get a clue, and then a new world springs into view—the world of wings, the world of waters, the world of music, the prairie word, the world of mountains. One night a mink came to my winter quarters and gave me a glimpse of the world of misfortune, told me of my brother over on the Dolittle farm, who had been left outdoors. It was my lot to have company in a dry tool shed; his fate, to be alone, exposed to zero weather and blinding snowstorms. Such are the ways of neglect and destiny in the mechanic world. One night two buff cochins came to roost on my keel, and thus I had a peep into the mysteries of the poultry world.

But the most fascinating of what I might term my winter excursions," concluded the Binder, "was my talk one day with a fluent little cultivator from Zanesville. He had exciting news from the far Northwest, a letter from a cousin who had seen my uncle, the steam harvester, creeping through prairie fields after a traction engine. Imagine the sensations of my old ancestor in Gaul, had he gazed on that scene—a long stream of coal smoke twisting and blowing behind the engine, and, for variety, a prairie fire with wildcats and jack rabbits escaping from the burning field. Also there was news from my rich half-uncle in California, a resident of the San Joaquin Valley. His cutting device was twenty feet long. He was combined with a thresher and propelled by thirty mules. The dust from his operations could be seen forty miles. He could reap one hundred acres a day. The story goes that he served his country loyally, and died at the rare old age of nine years, six months and ten days."

Such was the tale of the Binder. In all her travels the Moon had scarcely found anyone so interesting. In her voyage she had smiled on the Statue of Liberty, and in passing had thrown kisses to Independence Hall, but when it came to real service and the importance of an occupation she was strongly inclined to yield the palm to the plucky Binder and the arena of its activity, the little farm two miles from town.

HARVESTING THE ICE CROP

May Be Done Economically and Pleasantly With Little Thought.

The ice crop is not the pleasantest one the farmer has to handle, as it is usually pretty cold and wet work. Lots of good company while working at the job is a great help, and therefore co-operative effort should be carried out in this line of work. The job can be done more efficiently, quickly, more economically and under more pleasant conditions than by the single-handed method. The job is worth while, and, if gone about in a sensible manner, is not too objectionstanding at the tail-end of a threshing machine.

The Department of Physics, O.A.C., Guelph, will gladly supply bulletins and blue-prints describing ice-houses, small cold storages and refrigerators, and describing in detail how the harvesting is done. Write them early.

A NEW HYBRID

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 21.—Oats and corn growing on the same cob is a new hybrid grain discovered by C. W. McBride of Edmonton. Recently he discovered this strange hybrid in his experimental plot. The oats were growing on an individual stem having forced their way out from the corn cob. The oat stems connect with the main corn stem to which its grain is attached, and from all appearances would have ripened if the cob had not been removed. Although Mr. McBride has conducted experiments on a small scale he could advance no explanation of this unusual connection, as there were no oats growing on his plots.

WHERE TO KEEP LEGAL PAPERS

Farmers, As Well As Small Business Men, Are Too Careless.

DEMANDS ACTION.

A FARMER who is ratcd as more than ordinarily intelligent and progressive, came into my office to talk over getting a loan. He was buying an adjoining farm and needed a few thousand dollars. As he was in a hurry for the money, my first question was as to his abstract of title.

He scratched his head in despair. "It's somewhere about home, but where?" was his ejaculation. "Blamed if I know. I'll ask Mary."

From the delay, he and Mary must have been on a par about knowledge of their possessions, for it was not to be found and a new one had to be made in a hurry. A valuable document, costing perhaps $50, had been mislaid hopelessly.

There are people who come in with rat-chewed, rain-beaten, pocket-soiled, tattered legal documents, and unblushingly spread them out for people whose time is valuable, to decipher. One client took from a dirty pocket a tobacco-stained document, and without apology thrust it into the hands of the abstracter.

The abstracter was an elderly man with failing eyesight, and it was almost impossible to erase enough of the tobacco to make it readable. Even a younger man could hardly have peered through the dirt to get the right meaning.

Protect Against Fire.

Just why a little more care is not given to deeds, mortgages, contracts, abstracts, notes and returned checks, is hard for me to figure out. The very least every farmer ought to do is to encase each and every valuable document separately in a stout manila envelope and srite on the outside what it contains. Of course, this is no precaution against fire or theft, but it does enable other members of the family to recognize at a glance that this is no paper to be burned at housecleaning time.

Better still is the tin box that rats and mice cannot invade. Any kind of tin box with lid will do, but it is well to have some air holes in the lid to prevent mustiness in damp weather. weather. Such boxes are made especially for legal papers.

The best plan of all is to put your papers in your own safety deposit box at the bank, along with your bonds and securities. Even if you have no bonds, it pays to put your legal documents in a safe box at the bank. Your will, and every farmer should make a will, should also be in this box. When you want to transact business you know exactly where to go for your papers.

If fire consumes your dwelling, and few country houses are ever saved if they catch fire, you will not have to worry about your documents. If some row money on real estate you can lay your hands on your abstract at once.

Don't put it off. Begin to-day to put everything in a safe place. Somebody may have to settle up your estate and you want to make it as easy as possible for your widow and children in that case. Get together your insurance policies, contracts, notes, mortgages, accounts, bonds, abstracts, deeds, and all other valuable papers and make them safe. You will never regret it, and you may be thankful all the rest of your life for the few minutes work. —A Farm Loan Secretary.

GERMANY IMPROVING

Despite slight decreases reported in wheat and rye acreage in Germany, the barley, oats, potato and sugar beet acreage has increased in greater proportion since last year. In wheat and rye, the severe winter killings have been largely made up by the spring seedings.

RUSSIA HAS SURPLUS

Despite severe loss from drought, Russia will have enough grain to meet its own requirements this year, and a large surplus for export, according to a recent government survey. This year's production of the chief grains will be more than 50,000,000 short tons, about the same as last year.

WOMAN HOG RAISER

An Ohio woman has raised a litter of pigs to a ton of pork in 180 days and so has qualified for membership in the Ohio Ton-Litter Club, an honorary organization of hog producers sponsored by Ohio State University. he woman is Miss H. Anna Quinby of Columbus.

LESS SUGAR IN BEETS

While the beet crop throughout the world will be much greater this year than last, the sugar content of this product has not risen in proportion. The crop in European countries has increased nearly 4,000,000 tons over the 15,889,000 tons produced last year.

ROUP CAUSING HUGE LOSS TO POULTRY YARD

This Is An All Year Round Disease, But Gets Worse in the Fall.

HARD TO CURE.

The First Symptoms Are Sneezing, Coughing, Running Eyes and Nostrils.

Although roup is an all-year-round disease of the poultry the worst epidemics come with the shifting weather conditions of fall and spring. The disease causes considerable loss and appears to be increasing from year to year. Requests for information on the disease are very frequent during fall and winter.

"The term roup covers a number of ailments," according to G. L. Stevenson. "It includes colds, bronchitis, catarrh, canker, diphtheria, roup proper, and perhaps chicken pox. It usually come with colds, which start when birds have been exposed to dampness, drafts and chill. The germs seem to be everywhere and anything which tends to lower a bird's vitality and resis'ance may start an epidemic. Most forms of poultry are subject to its ravages.

"The first symptoms are sneezing, coughing, watery eyes and running nostrils. Sometimes it ends with this stage, but oftener it goes on till the characteristic roupy stench develops and the nasal sinuses fill with a thick mucus and puff out near the eye or angle of the jaw. Canker may show up in th mouth and throat as yellowish white ma ses which may invade the wind pip and strangle the bird. When this condition evelops, the bird breathes with a wheeze and with the mouth open. In the later stages, the comb and fac turn purple from a k of air. In bad cases, stringy mu us collects in the throat and forms a ort of diphtheretic membrance which also trangles the bird. In other cases, th external symptoms are no alarming, bu birds will suddenly collapse from the internal absorption of the disease poisons."

No Sure Cure.

St.venson states that here is no sure cure for roup known, and when the disease gets a good start, or is of a virulent na ure, no remedy but the axe seems effective. Vaccines have been used, and in some cases seem to get results, but on the whole have not as ye been very satisfactory for the ordinary poultry man. He advises correcting the wrong conditions which enable th disease to get start d by stopping drafts from blowing on birds on the roost, providing good ventilation, so that fresh air may come in and the damp foul air may escape, and keeping quarters sanitary, by thorough cleaning and disinfecting. If it is possible, the poultry man suggests removing and isolating all ailing birds as soon as they ar noticed. In mos cases, it would be well to dispos of such birds rather than turn them into the flock again. Often the diseas becomes chronic, or the bird becomes a carrier of the germs, and although it appears well, it may infect the whole flock again.

"Give all exposed birds a physic of epsom salts, using one pound to one hundred birds" Stevenson adds. "Dissolve the salts n warm water and stir into a mash feed. Distribute the mash well so that all birds will have an equal chance at it. To prevent the spread of the disease through the drinking water, potassium permanganate is used, dissolving the amount that will stay on a dime for each gallon of water. If the hen house can be closed rather tightly, good results are to be had from boiling of disinfecting vapors, like oil of eucalyptus and ordinary sheep dip or burning pine tar. Some benefit is often derived from dipping the heads of the birds in boric acid solution or salt water, but if these solutions can be squirted up the nostrils or in the cleft in the roof of the mouth or in the eyes, results are better. If eye swellings appear, they may be lanced, the core removed, and the wound treated with tincture of iodine. Canker in the mouth may be scraped loose and the sore spot treated with sheep dip or tincture of iodine. As a rule, it is better to kill and burn the real bad cases. If birds are kept warm and dry they make a quicker recovery."

WATER-PROOFING SHOES.

Mix a Pound of Petroleum With Two Ounces Of Beeswax.

A pound of petrolatum or petroleum jelly and two ounces of beeswax are the only materials needed in making shoes waterproof, says the United States Department of Agriculture in the bulletin entitled "The Care of Leather." The instructions are that these ingredients are to be mixed together by warming them carefully and stirring thoroughly. Better penetration is obtained if the grease is applied warm. Grease thoroughly the edge of the sole and t e welt, as this is where shoes leak most, and completely impregnate the sole with the grease.

The sole can be most conveniently waterproofed by letting the shoe stand for about fifteen minutes in a shallow pan containing enough of the melted waterproofing material to cover the entire sole. Rubber heels, however, should not be allowed to stand in the grease, as it softens the rubber. Other simple formulas which the department has found to be successful for waterproofing shoes, and which are mixed and applied in the same manner, y as follows:

I.

Neutral wool grease	8 ounces
Dark petrolatum	4 ounces
Parafin wax	4 ounces

II.

Petrolatum	5 ounces
Parafin wax	3 ounces
Wool grease	4 ounces

PIN-FEATHERS.

It is better to know the work of the individual hen than the average of the flock.

Feeding skim-milk has a tendency to whiten the flesh.

Pullets that have been improperly grown will be correspondingly slow in starting to lay.

In France they feed spices and herbs with the food for fattening fowls, to impart a delicious flavor.

The turkey feather market is best from now on until early spring.

The hen that lays 20 eggs in November, and an equal number the next month, is a money-maker.

The best time to fatten geese is in November.

DUCK IS RIVAL TO LAYING HEN

Indian Runner Gives as Many as 300 Eggs in the Year.

NEW INDUSTRY

Ducks that lay 300 eggs a year are numerous in England, and there is considerable discussion concerning the chances of these fowls to crowd hens' eggs out of the markets, because of the greater ease of obtaining them and the greater certainty of the product. The particular fowl that is thus praised is the Indian Runner Duck, which is already recognized, it is stated, as a dangerous competitor in the egg market of the Leghorn hen. Willard C. Thompson, a poultry husbandman, writing about the Indian Runner, says:

"My attention was first called to the commercial importance of the lighter type of ducks in England when, on a motor trip between Cheltenham and Circenchester, in Gloucestershire, our party made a stop at the farm of the Johnson brothers. These live-wire poultrymen have been conducting, with fine success, the Gloucestershire egg-laying trial on their poultry farm during recent years. We passed through the old English farmyard and on up to the site of the egg-laying trial.

"My gaze was immediately diverted from the contest by hundreds of white specks dotted over a ten-acre field next to the contest, a field growing a magnificent crop of clover and grass. The white specks were young Indian Runner ducks. Mr. Johnson immediately explained that there were over three thousand young ducks in the field, and that the farm usually carried over two thousand laying ducks through the year. That indicated a real business interest in the Indian Runner.

"The owner proceeded to tell us that theirs was only one farm out of several in that country which were active managing laying flocks of Runner type ducks. The average net profit per duck is about $2.50 in our money.

"A more surprising fact was soon divulged to us by a walk across the range. We found ourselves in a small lot in which was located a huge U-shaped series of small, low pens, built consecutively and enclosing all but one side of a hollow central area about twelve feet wide and over one hundred feet long. It was the trap-nest, or, more correctly, the trap-pen series, in which the ducks are trapped to determine egg production.

"So English laying ducks, as well as hens, are being trapped and pedigreed. I saw the same thing in many different parts of the country. They have not only developed a real business in the breeding of laying ducks, but have developed them to the point wherein they demand high-record individuals in their breeding pens. The ducks are let into the enclosure at 5 p.m. Each little pen is open, with its trap-door set. One duck can enter each pen. It remains there until the next morning when it is released and recorded.

"Ducks lay during the morning hours, so that method is practicable. Runners and Khakis are entered in all the English egg-laying contests. The same methods were seen in use at the Bentley laying trial, the Harper-Adams trial, and the Lancashire trial, up near Preston. The records made are wonderful, and average as high as, if not higher than, the average Leghorns in the contests of this country."

COWS NEED CLEAN WATER

Milk is Often Given a Bad Taste by Cows Drinking Dirty Water.

Dairy cows should drink from five to fifteen gallons of water a day, depending upon the size, but largely upon the kind of feed given. An animal's body is 70 per cent. water and milk is 87 per cent. water. What one thing is needed more than water? In winter a cow won't drink enough water if she has to suck it out of an ice hole. Besides, an immense amount of feed is required to warm what icewater she drinks.

And in summer there is the same problem as to water on a very great many farms. Standing pools will do in a pinch if fresh running water goes into them; but usually this is not the case. Milk often is given a bad taste because of the green scum that forms on the surface of standing pools. Obviously, it pays to provide clean drinking places and clean water.

It takes about 6 pounds of seed corn to plant an acre.

Crude turpenting gum	2 ounces
III.
Tallow	12 ounces
Cod oil	4 ounces

The grease used for waterproofing shoes and boots in summer should be harder than that used in winter. In summer, the quantity of grease used should not exceed the quantity that the leather will take up without leaving its surface greasy.

PASSING OF A QUARTER CENTURY IS MARKED BY INCREASES IN PRICES FARMERS MUST PAY FOR EVERYT HING FROM HEAD-DRESS TO WAGES

Lady's Hat Might Be Purchased Twenty-Five Years Ago for a Quarter—Hubby Might Get an Overcoat for $3.75.

HOUSE COULD BE RE NTED FOR $3 MONTH

Farm Produce Also Was Cheap—Cabbage Offered at 8 for a Dime—A Basket of Grapes for Fourteen Cents.

A comparison of present-day prices for household commodities with those of a quarter of a century back is enough to make any man or woman, who is burdened with household maintenance, heave several sighs of envy. In those halcyon times, ladies' hats sold at a quarter apiece, and a man could buy an overcoat for $3.75. Beef was a few cents a pound, and coal $4.75 a ton.

In those bright days, that have gone forever, the populace appeared to be undisturbed by the hectic incidents of to-day. They wot little of movie shows or automobile accidents, and their main amusements seemed to be centred in church "sociables" and decorous evening parties. When a man and wife had reached the happy stage when they were able to have a silver wedding anniversary, they invited all their friends, and published a full list of their guests' names, with a summary of the various pickle forks and pie knives received from each. The visit of a stock company to the old opera house received a small and decorous notice, and there wasn't any advertising worth speaking of. The stores that did advertise were mainly of the clothing variety.

One could get married in those days for far less than it costs now. A marriage license was worth only two dollars in 1898, and a house could be rented for anywhere from three dollars a month up. A double store was advertised at $8.50 a month rental, and a large dwelling house could be leased for $150 per annum, "without taxes."

Lamb, in front and hind quarters, was eight and nine cents a pound, fresh pork was seven and eight cents, and boiling beef anywhere from four to six cents. Tea could be purchased for 25 cents a pound, and mince pies were 10 cents apiece.

Groceries, in those days, were not sold evidently on the value of printed information as to their offerings. The only discernible grocery advertisement is that of Mr. James Sutherland, who was in business at that time (1898) on George Street. According to Mr. Sutherland's lists, citrons could be bought for four and five cents each; tomatoes were three pecks for a quarter, or ten cents a basket; cabbage were eight for a dime; Snow and Bellflower apples fifteen cents a peck, and other qualities ten cents a peck; grapes were fourteen cents a basket. Fifteen bars of soap could be purchased for twenty-five cents.

In those cays, when $1.50 was a good day's pay for a laborer, and bricklayers were in the moneyed class at $3 a day, shoes were one and two dollars a pair, surah silk was 35 cents a yard, and heavy table linen "from Belfast" 38 cents a yard. A man's suit was worth $3.97, and a good violin could be purchased for $3.

The ladies, who appear from the advertisement cuts, to have had a fondness at that time for much clothing and always were clad in heavy things of peculiar cut, wore clouds and shawls and jackets, and the children wore tam o' shanters. A ladies' coat, "black or colored," was priced at $2.98, French kid gloves were 39 cents a pair, and black cashmere stockings (silk stockings are not mentioned) were three pairs for a dollar. Fur gauntlets were much in vogue and could be bought anywhere from $2 to $12 a pair, a "rich ruff" was anywhere from $1 to $15, a muff the same, a fur-lined cloak twenty-two to thirty inches long, was priced from $15 to $50, and fur jackets, with skimpy bodies, flaring hip pieces and tight sleeves, were $25 to $35 each. A man's coon coat was worth $15 to $60, according to quality.

Candy was five cents a pound, chocolates fifteen cents, oranges were twelve cents a dozen, and lemons fifteen cents. Nuts were fifteen cents a pound, and cigars were $1 for a box containing twenty-five.

A "gents' silk tie" was twenty-five cents, a boy's ulster $1.99, and English Wilton carpet, made and laid, was $1.25 per yard.

Hardwood, in four-foot lengths, was $4.25 per cord; in twenty-two inch lengths $4.50. Four-foot tamarac was $8.25 a cord, and four-foot mixed wood was $2.75 a cord.

A note at that time regarding the Industrial Exhibition at Toronto, records a profit for the 1898 exhibition of $26,135.02, with assets placed at $218,201.33 and liabilities of $99,452.55.

An article, that concludes with an admonition to Denmark to beware of expecting too much success in competition with Canadian cheese and butter, because "we are coming up fast," places the output of the 116 cheese factories then existing in Ontario at 1,455,937,916 pounds of milk and 137,362,916 pounds of cheese. There were 66,104 patrons, and the value of the cheese was placed at $11,719,468, and of the butter at $1,408,609.

French Canadian Horse Is Best In Existence

Gus Langelier, superintendent of the Cap Rouge Experimental Station, Quebec, says that the French-Canadian horse is "acknowledged to be the best general purpose horse in existence, strong enough for farm work and fast enough for the road. It is acknowledged that he is not so strong as the drafter, though pulling contests will probably one day show that he is stronger per 100 pounds of live weight. It is also acknowledged that he is not so fast at the trot as the standard, breed, nor at the gallop as the thoroughbred, but these two breeds have their places in a different sphere and do not, in fact, can not, compete with the French-Canadian as an agricultural horse."

Some stallions of this breed weigh around 1,500 pounds; mares are several hundred pounds lighter. Some Canadians call this breed "The Little Iron Horse."

HUGE SUM PAID TO MENNONITES

Land in Manitoba and Saskatchewan Bought for $1,620,000.

MOVE TO MEXICO

WINNIPEG, Nov. 21.—At a cash price which is understood to have been $1,620,000, some 60,000 acres of lands belonging to Mennonite colonies in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, have been sold to F. Heath-Jones of London, Eng., accordin g to the announcement made here by J. F. D. Wiebe of the Mennonite board. The transaction represents the largest land deal made in Western Canada for some years. Of the lands which have changed hands, some 32,000 acres are located in southern Manitoba, chiefly in the districts of Winkler, Plum Coulee, Gretna and Morden. In Saskatchewan 28,000 acres are involved, chiefly in the district of Hague.

The original intention was that the great ranch of B. C. Johnston, consisting of 120,000 acres should be accepted by the Mennonites in part payment, the price for the latter being understood to be on the basis of $6 an acre. As the negotiations progressed, however, the exchange idea was dropped. It is understood that the purchaser of the western Canadian tracts proposes to sell the lands to incoming Mennonites at a price averaging about $30 an acre.

The Mennonite settlements in Mexico are located in the states of Chilhuanhua and Durango where some 32 flourishing villages are now made up of emigrants from the Canadian West. It is stated that about 6,000 more are to leave this part of the country, after which the exodus will cease. The Mennonites, while they thrived under Canadian conditions, became dissatisfied with their lot here owing to the insistence of the provincial governments that they should conform with the school laws and send their children to public schools.

Simple Household Tasks Are Art To Woman Who Recognises Chance For Showing Her Culinary Skill.

By NELL B. NICHOLS.

I used to think that the culinary art consisted of cake-baking and fancy-cooking stunts. However, I have reached the conclusion that preparing a good pot of coffee, tea, cocoa, or chocolate is a greater accomplishment.

The first requisite for making good coffee is a scrupulously clean percolator or pot. I never wash the coffee container in soapy water. I use an abundance of scalding water, a little brush to clean the spout and corners, and steel wool to remove any brown deposits. Occasionally I apply a small amount of friction soap for scouring purposes, but this is rinsed off most carefully with hot water.

The kind of coffee used is of great importance. Many homes are again installing the coffee mill, in which the berries are ground immediately before the coffee is made. Some manufacturers pack ground coffee in vacuum-sealed cans, so the fragrance will not escape.

From many unhappy experiences I found that the size of the percolator is of importance. For instance, one cupful of good coffee cannot be made in a percolator which will hold eight cupfuls of liquid. My rule is to use two level tablespoonfuls of ground coffee to every cupful of water.

Frequently, at club meetings or social gatherings, it is necessary to make a large amount of coffee. I have a recipe which has been used many times in our neighborhood with success. Here it is:

Allow one pound of ground coffee to every gallon of water. When as much as ten gallons of water are used, we always decrease the amount of coffee one pound; that is, to ten gallons of water nine pounds of coffee are added. Place the cold water in a clean wash boiler; after tying the coffee in cheesecloth bags of several thicknesses, drop it in the water. These bags should be large enough that the grounds will have room to expand or to triple in bulk. Do not put more than one pound of coffee in each bag. Let the water come to a boil slowly, allowing about two hours for this process. Allow the coffee to simmer three minutes, then move to the back of the range where it can keep hot but not boil. Serve as soon as possible.

I make iced coffee by pouring the freshly made, hot beverage into glasses filled with cracked ice. I serve it with cream and powdered sugar.

I know of nothing that can kindle fond memories and stimulate happy dreams more than the fragrance of tea on a dull, dreary afternoon. The particular brand used will depend on personal choice. Tea tastes best when it is made in china, glass, or earthen pots, which are scalded thoroughly after use and are not washed in soapsuds.

I make tea in the following way: The pot is heated by being filled with boiling water or by being placed in a warm oven. One teaspoonful of the leaves is allowed for every cupful of water. The water is boiling when poured over the tea, and is brought to the boiling point immediately before being used. After the desired amount of the leaves is measured, and placed in the pot, one cupful of boiling water is added and the lid is put on. Black tea is steeped three minutes; green tea, ten minutes. Then the leaves are removed and the rest of the water is added. I serve it immediately after it is prepared.

Iced tea is made in the same way, only I use two teaspoonfuls of the leaves for each cupful of water. When the tea has steeped the required number of minutes, I pour it into glasses filled with cracked ice and serve it immediately.

(Mrs. Nichols will tell on the next Farm Page how she makes cocoa and chocolate.)

BY ACHMED ABDULLAH

"Her face is as wondrous as the moon on the fourteenth day; her black locks are female cobras; her waist is the waist of the she-lion; her eyes are violets drenched in dew; her mouth is like a crimson sword wound; her skin is like the sweetly scented champaka flower; her narrow feet are twin lilies."

The letter continues with slight Oriental exaggeration that Zobeid was the Light of the writer's Eyes, the Soul of his Soul, the Breath of his Nostrils, and—than which there is no praise more ardent in the Arabic language—the Blood of his Liver; it mentions such rather personal items that the Circassian slave girl when she saw the desire eddy up in the poet's eyes, was for scratching them out on the spot; and comes down to earth again by saying:

"Never in all the seven worlds of Allah's creation lived there a woman to touch the shadow of Zobeid's feet. Brother mine!—as a garment she is white and gold; as a season, the spring; as a flower, the Persian jasmine; as a speaker, the nightingale, as a perfume, musk blended with amber and sandalwood; as a being, love incarnate . . . ."

So the letter, today yellow and brittle and pathetic with age, goes on for several pages. Small wonder, therefore, that throughout the Orient Zobeid's fame spread like powder under spark, and that there were many suitors for her small, pretty hand—not to mention the great kingdom which she would inherit on her father's death—and chiefly Asia's three mightiest monarchs.

The first of these was Cham Sheng, Prince of the Mongols, King of Ho Sho, Governor of Wah Hoo and the sacred Island of Wak, Khan of the Golden Horde, Khan of the Silver Horde, who traced his descent in a straight line back to Gengiz Khan, the great conqueror out of the Central Asian plains, and who had brought under his spurred heel all the North and East, from Lake Baikal to Pekin, from the frozen Arctic tundras to the moist, malarial warmth of Tonkin's rice paddies.

The second was Khalaf Mansur Nasir-ud-din Nadir Khan Kuli Khan Durani, Prince and King of Persia, Shah-in-Shah of Khorassan and Azerbaian, Khan of the Kizilbashis and Outer Tartars, Chief of the Shia Moslems, Ever-Victorious Lion of Allah, Conqueror of Russia and of Germany as far as the Oder, Warrior for the Faith of Islam, Attabeg over all the Cossacks, and descendant of the Prophet Mohammed.

The third was Bhartari-hari Vijramukut, Prince of Hindustan and the South from the Himalayas to Cape Comorin, descendant of Ganesha, the elephant-headed God of Wisdom, on his father's side and on his mother's—slightly more modestly—descendant of an illegitimate union between the Flame and the Moon.

All three were due to arrive in Bagdad on the morrow; so the slaves and servants and majordomos and eunuchs of the Caliph's palace were hustling and bustling and yelling and rushing about and perspiring and swearing and appealing to Allah in a fever of preparations for the princely visitors; and loud was the clamoring at Bagdad's outer gate:

"Open up! Open up, O Warden of the Walls! We are porters bringing rare food and rarer wines for tomorrow's feasting!"

Ahmed heard the tumult and turned to Bird-of-Evil.

"Come, O ancient and malodorous parrot of my heart!" he said, climbing up the rope ladder that led to the mouth of the abandoned well.

"Where to?"

"To the palace!"

"The palace?"

"Yes," replied the Thief of Bagdad. "Often and greatly have I desired to see it—from the inside. I wager there is loot in there worthy of my agile fingers and cunning brain."

"Doubtless! But they will not let you in!"

"They may!"

"How?"

"I have an idea, Bird-of-Evil!" And, when the other commenced asking and arguing: "I have no time to explain now. Come. And don't forget your black camel's-hair cloak."

"It is not cold today."

"I know. But we shall need the cloak."

"Why?"

"Wait and see, O son of an impatient father."

They were out of the well, ran down the street, and just beyond the corner caught up with the tail-end of the procession of porters that moved through the broad, tree-lined avenue toward the Caliph's palace. There were hundreds and hundreds of them. Most of them were gigantic, plum-colored, frizzy, tattooed Central African slaves, and they stepped along with the tireless lope, the swaying hips and long body-pull of their jungly breed, balancing bundles and bales and baskets and jars on their kinky polls, with Arab overseers trotting on either side and driving on the lagging with knotted, rawhide whips. At the end of the avenue, surrounded by a huge garden ablaze with flowers, the palace closed the vista like an enormous seal of marble and granite. Rising high in even tiers, curving inward like a bay of darkness dammed by the stony sweep of the crenellated, wing-like battlements, soaring North and South into two cube-shaped granite towers, topped by a forest of turrets and spires and domes, it descended beyond the horizon in a bold avalanche of square-clouted, fantastically painted masonry. The frontal gateway was covered by a door—rather a diphanous, but strong, almost unbreakable net—of closely woven iron-and-silver chains, that rattled down into a groove as the captain of the gate wardens saw the porters approaching and motioned to his armed, turbaned assistants.

The porters passed in singly and by twos and threes. The last was a tall negro who carried an earthen jar filled with golden, flower-scented Shiraz wine. But—wait!—here came still another porter. Not a negro he, but a lithe young Arab, naked to the waist, his legs covered by silken, baggy breeches, and balancing on his head a squat bundle that was hidden by a black camel's-hair cloak.

Just as the man was about to cross the threshold, the captain's narrow eyes contracted in slits. Quickly he motioned to his assistants who raised the chain door.

"Let me in!" demanded the young porter. "Let me in!"

"No, no!" laughed the red-bearded, pot-bellied captain. "No, no, my clever bazar hound!"

"Let me in!" repeated the other. "Let me in, O gross mountain of pig's flesh. I am bringing a hundredweight of precious Bokhara grapes for the morrow's feating!"

Again the captain laughed.

"Soul of my soul," he said, "these grapes of yours are curious grapes! Behold! They move—as if they were alive! Hayah! Hayah!"—raising his lance and pricking the bundle which thereupon squirmed, squeaked, squealed loudly—"a bunch of grapes with a human voice! Precious grapes, indeed! Most wondrous and unique grapes of Allah's creation!"

"Pah!" The Thief of Bagdad spat disgustedly. He let drop the bundle which, the camel's-hair cloak dropping away, disclosed Bird-of-Evil, vigorously rubbing his haunches where they had struck the pacement and wailing noisily.

"My darling," continued the captain, nor unkindly, "the Caliph's palace is not a healthy place for robbers."

"How dare you . . . ."

"I can see it in your eyes," the other interrupted. "They are humorous eyes—yes! Likable eyes—yes, yes! But not honest eyes! And so—" came the cryptic warning—"be pleased to consider the fate of the donkey?"

"What donkey, O swag-bellied ruffian?"

"The donkey who traveled abroad looking for horns—and lost its ears! Beware, my friend! All day the place is watched by the Caliph's soldiers. And all night—look!"—he pointed through the iron mesh of the door—"do you see these traps, these grooves and grottoes and cages? They contain the warden's of the night: man-eating striped tigers from Bengal, black-maned Nubian lions, and long-armed, dog-toothed gorillas from the far forests! Take heed, my clever bazar hound!"

"It was your fault, Bird-of-Evil!" Ahmed turned to his friend when the captain had walked away. "Why did you move just as I was crossing the threshold?"

"I could not help it! A flea bit me!"

"And now a mule will kick you!" Ahmed raised his right foot.

Bird-of-Evil squirmed rapidly away.

"Wait! Wait!" he implored. "Wait until tonight! Then we shall climb the walls!"

"Impossible, fool! They are too steep!"

"You forget the magic rope!"

"Right—by the Prophet's toenails!"

And so when night came, closing in overhead like an opaque dome of dark-green jade encrusted with a shimmering net of stars, dropping over sleeping Bagdad with a brown, clogging pall of silence, Ahmed and Bird-of-Evil went quietly on their way, the magic rope coiled about the former's left arm. They reached the palace. It stabbed up to the sky's dark tent with fantastic, purple outlines pierced here and there, where the slaves were still about some late duty, by glittering pencils of light. They stopped in the shadow-blotch of the outer wall that, at a height of twenty-odd feet, was crowned with an elaborate balustrade of carved, fretted, pink marble. They waited; listened, sucking in their breath. They could hear a captain of the night watch going the rounds, the steady tramp-tramp-tramp of his booted feet, a faint crackling of steel, the swish of his curved sabre scraping across stone flags. The sounds died away. Came other sounds—the voices of the savage beasts that guarded the palace, prowling and slinking about the garden: the vibrant growl of the lions beginning in a deep basso and ending in a shrill, stabbing treble: the angry hissing and spitting, as of enormous cats, of the great, ruddy Bengal tigers; the chirp and whistle—ludicrously in contrast to their size—of the long-armed gorillas.

Ahmed uncoiled his rope.

"Can you make it?" whispered Bird-of-Evil.

"Easily."

"But—the lions and tigers . . . ?"

"Beyond the outerwall—I noticed it this afternoon—at a distance of a few feet is a second wall, a broad ledge with a door set in. Once on top of the outer wall, I can leap across to the ledge and fool those jungly pets. Then through the door and—for the rest—I shall rely on my nose, my fingers, and my luck."

"May Allah the One protect you!" mumbled Bird-of-Evil piously.

"Allah? Bah!" sneered the Thief of Bagdad. "It is mine own strength and cleverness that will protect me! Wait down here, O ancient goat of my soul. Within the hour I shall be back with a king's ransom tucked away in my breeches."

He tossed the rope into the air. He spoke the secret word. The rope obeyed. It stood straight up. A minute later, climbing hand over hand, Ahmed was on top of the outer wall. He looked down into the flat, emerald-green eyes of a tiger that crouched below, swishing its tail from side to side and doubtless thinking that here was a late supper provided by Fate itself. Then, measuring the distance to the ledge with his eyes, he fooled both tiger and Fate by leaping across, neatly, lithely, and safely. He opened the door that gave unto the ledge; and found himself in an empty hall. So, softly, warily, on naked, silent feet, he walked on through rooms and rooms and again rooms. All were empty of life. Some of them, beneath swinging ceiling lamps, lay ablaze with raw, clashing colors, others were in dull, somber shades which melted into each other; on through corridors supported by pillars whose capitals were shaped into pendant lotus forms or crowned with fantastic, lateral struts carved into the likeness of horsemen or war-girt elephants.

Finally he came to a great, oblong room. There was no furniture here except a tall incense burner on a twisted gold stand giving out spirals of scented, opalescent smoke, a number of large, iron-bound chests and boxes, and a profusion of silken pillows where three enormous palace eunuchs, dressed in yellow gauze that gave a generous glimpse of the brown flesh beneath, were snoring loud enough to rouse the dead.

"By the itching of his palms as well as by the sight of the boxes, the Thief of Bagdad knew that he had arrived in the Caliph's treasure chamber. And, while the three eunichs continued to sleep the sleep of both the just and the unjust, he crept over to one of the chests; found it locked; found, furthermore, that the key to it was fastened so tightly to one of the eunuchs' waist shawls that it was impossible to remove it; then, softly, slowly, inch by inch, he slid the chest along the floor until, without waking the sleeper, he was able to lift the key to the lock.

He turned it. The lock opened. He raised the lid; looked, suppressed a cry of pleasurable excitement.

For there, in a shimmering heap, were jewels from all the corners of Asia: jasper from the Punjaub, rubies from Burma, turquoises from Thibet, star-sapphires and alexandrites from Ceylon, flawless emeralds from Afghanstan, purple amethysts from Tartary, white crystal from Malwa, onyx from Persia, green jade and white jade from Amoy and from Turkestan, garnets from Bundelkhand, red corals from Socotra, pearls from Rameswaram, lapis lazuli from Jaffra, yellow diamonds from Poonah, pink diamonds from Hydarabad, violet diamonds from Kafiristan, black, fire-veined agate from Dynbulpore.

"If my breeches were only large enough to hold them all!" thought the Thief of Bagdad. "What shall I take first?"

And he had just decided to start with a goregous string of evenly matched black pearls, had it already in his hand, when suddenly he sat up and listened. For, from not very far away, he heard the plaintive, minor cadences of a one-stringed Mongol lute; heard a high, soft voice lilting a Mongol song:

"In the pagoda of exquisite purity
I hear each day the tinkle-tinkle
Of my lost love's jade girdle gems.
Looking from the carved, broad window
Of the pagoda of exquisite purity,
I see the unsullied waters of my grief
Flow on in bleak undulation.
I see a stray cloud of my Mongol home land
Above the spire of the pagoda of exquisite purity,
And the wild geese of Tartary flying over the river dunes . . . ."

CHAPTER III.

"And the wild geese of Tartary flying over the river dunes . . . ." the voice quivered, light as thistle-down.

It was the voice of Fount-in-the-Forest who had been captured in battle seven years ago beneath the steel-shod tusks of the war elephants when the Caliph of Bagdad had gone into the East to fight the growing menace of the Khan of the Middle Horde. Daughter of a Mongol prince, Fount-in-the-Forest had never, forgotten the steppes and snow-clad mountains of her far country; had always hated this Western land of Islam with a smoldering, undying passion. She was attached to the personal service of the Princess Zobeid; and it was her duty, each night, to play and sing until her mistress fell asleep.

So to-night.

Her voice quivered on:

"In the pagoda of exquisite purity,
My thoughts roam—
Roam out beyond the Jewel Gate
Pass . . ."

She cut off her song at a high note, in mid-air. She looked at the Princess who lay on a canopied couch; turned to Zemzem, another slave girl, an Arab, entirely devoted to her mistress; put a finger to her lips.

"The Heaven-Born sleeps," she whispered; and the two slaves stepped softly from the apartment, the sounds of lute and song growing fainter and fainter:

"Looking from the carved, broad window
Of the pagoda of exquisite purity,
In vain do I seek for the outlines of the White Jade House."

The trembling cadences receded and Ahmed rose, the string of pearls in his hand.

"Charming!" he thought, for he had a pretty taste in music. "Let us see if I, the Thief of Bagdad, am thief enough to steal a look at the singer!"

He left the hall. He leaped up a flight of stairs, side-stepping a huge Nubian watchman who was squatting on one of the steps, fast asleep, his ape-like arms crossed about the grip of his two-handed sword; he followed the sound of the music until he reached another staircase that swept down into an oblong room in an audacious curve of glistening, olive-veined marble; and, bending over the baluster, saw there, veiled by the thin silk of the canopy, the slumbering Zobeid.

Was it his fickleness? Or was it a sending of Kismet, of Fate?

The ancient Arabic records which have brought down to us the tale of the Thief of Bagdad, are silent on the point. But they do tell us that, at that moment, at once, immediately and completely, Ahmed forgot the singer in whose quest he had left the treasure chamber; saw only the sleeping Princess; thought only of her. That flower-like little face down there, on the silken pillow, drew him like a magnet. He vaulted over the baluster; landed on his feet softly, with a plop like a great cat; crossed over to the couch; looked at Zobeid; listened to her gentle breathing, and felt a new sensation—a strange sensation, a sensation that was sweet with a great longing yet gall-bitter with a great pain, tugging at his heart-strings.

"Love at first sight," the ancient records call it laconically.

But whatever it was, love at first sight or love at second sight—and he did look a second time, looked long, looked ardently, could not turn his eyes away—it was to him as if, suddenly, they were alone, she and he, alone in the palace, alone in Bagdad, alone in all the world. The canopy which peaked above the couch seemed charged to the brim with some overpowering loveliness of wild and simple things, like the beauty of stars and wind and flowers, with something which all his life subconsciously his heart seemed to have craved in vain, compared to which his life of yesterday was only a drab wretched, useless dream.

Hardly knowing what he was doing and why, he crouched by the side of the couch. Hardly knowing what he was doing and why, carelessly dropping the necklace for the sake of which he had risked so many dangers, he picked up one of the Princess' tiny, embroidered slippers. He pressed it to his lips.

The next moment Zobeid stirred slightly in her sleep. One narrow, white hand slipped over the edge of the couch.

The Thief of Bagdad smiled. Obeying a mad irresistible impluse, he bent over the little hand.

He kissed it. Kissed it so gently. Not gently enough. For the Princess awakened. She gave a startled cry. She sat up, flinging the silken, padded coverlet aside. Quickly Ahmed dropped to the ground; and it was his luck that the coverlet fell over him, swathing him in its heavy folds, hiding him completely from the Princess' sight; from the sight, too, of the slave girls who came running at their mistress' outcry, and of the eunuchs and the Nubian watchman who rushed in, curved sabres poised in brawny fists, searched for the miscreant.

They looked all about the room, finding nothing, while Ahmed crouched beneath the coverlet, motionless, sucking in his breath.

"The Heaven-Born must have dreamt it," said the Mongol slave girl to the Princess who insisted that somebody had touched her hand, and she persuaded her finally to close her eyes again. But the chief eunuch whispered to the Nubian that, indeed, a robber must have entered the palace since one of the treasure chests had been opened; and so the three eunuchs, the Nubian, and the Arab slave girl went to make a thorough search of the other rooms in this part of the harem, while Fount-in-the-Forest remained behind, once more singing her plaintive Mongol song:

"In the pagoda of exquisite purity
My heart sighs—sighs for the bright moon

until, gradually, Zobeid fell asleep again.

Fount-in-the-Forest stopped to pick up the coverlet. Then, suddenly, she became frozen into frightened immobility, swallowed the cry that bubbled to her lips when a brown fist, armed with a dagger, jerked out from the silken folds, and a low voice whispered warning:

"Keep quiet, little sister! Turn your back! Gently—gently does it!" as, the dagger pricking her skin, she obeyed, turning on her heel and facing the other way. "And now—walk slowly! Toward the door over yonder! Do not turn and look! Gently! Gently! This knife of mine is thirsty for young blood!"

She was helpless. Propelled by the pricking, tickling dagger, she preceded Ahmed to a narrow door set into the farther wall. With the help of a small cushion that he had picked up on the way he propped the hilt of the dagger against the door jamb and quickly withdrew his hand so that the point of the weapon still remained resting lightly against the slave girl's bare, smooth skin. She was not aware of the trick, and stayed rigid and motionless, while he turned softly, to make his escape. But before he left the room he decided that he would take one more look at the sleeping Princess. He hurried back to the couch. He stared at Zobeid who was slumbering peacefully. He felt again love sweeping through his soul as with the mighty whirring of wings; and he bent . . . when, suddenly—"Hai!"—a stifled scream warned him, brought him up standing, made him turn.

"Hai! Hai!"

Again the scream. For Fount-in-the Forest had discovered the trick of the propped dagger. She was yelling for help. Already, from the next room, came hurrying footsteps, clamoring voices.

The Thief of Bagdad laughed. He picked up Zobeid's little slipper. He left behind him magic rope and pearl necklace. He ran toward the window; leaped through; landed in a tree not far from the garden wall. The tree curved beneath his weight, and, using it like a catspult, he launched himself across the wall and dropped to the ground on the street outside, a short distance from the place where Bird-of-Evil was waiting for him.

"Ah!" exclaimed the latter, excitedly. What loot did you bring? Pearls? Diamonds? Red, red rubies?

"No," replied the Thief of Bagdad. "I found a far greater treasure! More precious than all the jewels in the world!"

"Show it to me!"

"I cannot!"

"Why not? Where is it?"

"It is here!" replied the Thief of Bagdad, holding high the little slipper. "It is here!" he continued, touching his forehead. "It is here!" he wound up, putting his hand on his heart.

And, refusing to say more, Ahmed stalked off into the fantastic, purple night, while Bird-of-Evil followed him, puzzled, perplexed, speculating, trying to read the riddle of the other's words.

"It is here . . . ?" he echoed. "And here? And here? But—where—where—where . . . by Beelzebub, Father of Lies and Fleas . . . ?"

They reached the abandoned well.

"Where—where? Tell me—where is it?" he repeated.

Ahmed did not reply. He lay on his couch, unable to find sleep, staring into the void, silent, brooding, morose; and, silent, brooding, morose he lay on the ledge near the fountain on the Square of the One-Eyed Jew the next morning, hardly noticing the festive crowds that thronged the streets of Bagdad the Golden to welcome the three great Princes who came to-day as suitors for Zobeid's hand.

There, seeing his friend day-dreaming, regardless of the loot that might be his for a twisting and tugging of his agile fingers, all at once the answer to the riddle came to Bird-of-Evil.

"It is here—and here—and here!" he laughed. He addressed Ahmed. "Tell me—are you in love?"

"I am!" admitted Ahmed. "Hopelessly!"

"Hopelessly . . . ?"

"Yes!"

"Why? Who is she? Is she Ayesha, the daughter of the rich saddle-maker? Or Fathma, first-born of the Syrian goldsmith? Or is she belike . . . ? Wah!" Bird-of-Evil interrupted himself. "Just tell me her name. I myself shall be the marriage broker. I am a clever hand at that sort of thing. Well—who is she?"

"She is Zobeid, the daughter of the Caliph! Allah—" Ahmed sighed. "She is unabtainable—like flowers of air!"

"Nothing in the world is unobtainable," said the other, who loved the younger man dearly, deep in his gnarled old heart.

"You cannot catch the winds of heaven with your bare hands! You cannot fish for the moon reflected in the water!"

"And why not? A Princess, is she? What of it? Once upon a time a Princess was carried off under the very nose of her father, the great Caliph Haroun el-Rashid."

"How was it done?" demanded Ahmed.

"With the help of a subtle Egyptian drug. Eat that drug. Drink it. Or simply smell it. It will put you to sleep!—will make you helpless. I shall get you the drug. To-day. Immediately. And then we shall enter the palace . . ."

"Enter the palace? How?" asked the Thief of Bagdad.

"Ahee!" laughed Bird-of-Evil. "Why does love render its victims so helpless, so foolish, so utterly silly?" He was silent as from the distance came the loud rubbing and thumping of silver kettle drums and the bull-like roar of long-stemmed trumpets. "Listen to the drums," he went on. "The heralds are announcing the arrival of the princly suitors at the city gates. Come! We have little time to lose." He took Ahmed by the arm and ran with him across the Square. "I shall go and procure the drug. Do you in the meantime go to the Bazaar of the Persian Silk-Weavers and see if your hands are less dreamy and useless than your head. For we need costly raiment. Embroidered cloaks! Gold-threaded slippers of state! Gorgeous turban clothes! A few handsome jewels! Some fine weapons! And—before I forget it—go to the caravanserai of the Tartar traders! Get us a horse—and a donkey . . ."

"What for—what for?" demanded Ahmed.

"To attain the impossible! Flowers of air; ropes of tortoise hair; horns upon a cat; and—the hand of the Princess Zobeid! Hurry—hurry! And meet me, within the hour, at the Gate of Lions!"

And they ran off while—bang! banng! bannng!—thumped the distant kettle drums, while the Princes of Asia rode through the crowded streets of Bagdad, and while Zobeid watched from behind her screened window.

Early that morning, while Fount-in-the-Forest had slipped from the apartment upon a devious and gliding purpose of her own, Zobeid had called Zemzem, her faithful Arab slave.

"Zemzem!" the Princess had said. "I am afraid of the future. Allah! Allah! What does the future hold for me?"

"Ask Therrya, the Bedawin fortune-teller," Zemzem had suggested. "She will read the tale of your Fate in the shifting sands."

They had sent for Therrya, who had come, had squatted down, had heaped a handful of Meccan sand on a porcelain tray and—by this time Fount-in-the-Forest had returned from her mysterious errand and was watching tensely—had blown upon it until, slowly, gradually, the golden sand grains had taken on the hazy outlines of a rose.

"Heaven-Born!" the fortune-teller had said. "The signs are clear. Whoever of your suitors will be the first to touch the rose tree in your garden—the great crimson rose tree just below your window—him Allah the All-Powerful has destined to be your husband!"

And now, as the gates opened to admit the three Princes, Zobeid's eyes glanced anxiously at the rose tree—the rose tree that spelled her Fate—the rose tree below her window that was straight in the path down which her suitors had to come on their way from the outer gate to the broad entrance door of the palace itself.

There was a loud bellowing and roaring and trumpeting as a huge white elephant ambled through the gate, carrying upon its back, sitting cross-legged in a golden howdah, a tall man attired in a splendid cloth-of-silver costume, the arms encircled by jewelled bracelets, shimmering necklaces of pearls and moonstones hanging to his waist shawl, a naked, straight, six-foot blade across his knees. He was preceded and followed by mounted retainers, all gorgeously dressed, their beards dyed red with henna or blue with indigo, and curled and split on both sides of their brown cheeks so that they stabbed up like rams' horns.

The Caliph's herald turned to the Bagdad dignitaries, the officers and green-turbanned priests, the chiefs of tribes and ministers of the household and rich, paunchy merchants, who thronged the garden.

"The Prince of all the Indies!" he announced in a clear, ringing voice, waving his diamond-tipped staff of office. "The Ruler of the South! The Descendant of Hindustan's many Gods! The Harrasser of his Foes! The Cousin to Vishnu, Shiva, and Brahm! He whose palace it said to glow with the crimson sheen of a hundred thousand rubies!"

"Ah!"—whispered Zemzem into Zobeid's ear—"he is rich and powerful and glorious!"

"Indeed!" Zobeid stared through the marble screen that covered the window. She scanned the Prince's face. She made a little grimace. "No, no!" she continued. "I do not like him for all his rubies! Haughty he seems—and cold—and stern—and forbidding!" She raised clasped hands. "O Allah!" she prayed fervently. "Grant that he may not touch the rose tree!"

And Allah listened to her prayer. For suddenly the elephant swerved and turned to one side. Zobeid laughed happily; then looked toward the gate as the herald announced the Prince of Persia, surrounded by mounted, raw-boned, steel-clad, hard-riding warriors, while he himself was reclining luxuriously on a silken litter slung between two shaggy Bactrian dromedaries, occasionally dipping a plump, be-ringed hand into a jeweled box and helping himself liberally to pink and rose-red sweetmeats.

"Khalaf Mansur Nasir-ud-din Nadir Khan Kuli Khan Durani, Prince and King of Persia," proclaimed the herald, "Shah-in-Shah of Khorassan and Azerbaian, Khan of the Kizilbashis and . . . ."

"Oh! Zemzem! Look at him!" exclaimed Zobeid while the herald continued the recital of the many grandiose titles. "Dost he not look exactly like a pig—with his fat, pink cheeks—his fat, pink button of a nose—his short, round body? And his little mustache! Is it not exactly like a pig's curling tail . . . ?"

An unflattering description. But true. For, whatever his tough-thewed ancestors, this Prince of Persia had forgotten their prowess in the pleasures of the table, was valiant with steel only where the carving of juicy mutton joints and not the cutting-off of enemies' heads was concerned; and the ancient Arab chronicles relate that it took three strong men to lift him to his throne, and seven yards of cloth to make a shawl for his enormous stomach.

"His nightly dinner," says the ancient chronicle, "consisted of a goose stuffed with a duck, the duck stuffed with a chicken, the chicken with a quail, the quail with a pigeon, the pigeon with a lark, and the lark with an oyster. He had a thirst worthy of those Scottish barbarians of whom our travelling merchants bring fantastic tales. He looked, to the casual observer, like a huge balloon filled with seventy times seventy pounds of grease and wobbly flesh . . . ."

A statement to which Zobeid agreed.

"A balloon!" she exclaimed. "Why—the man is made of lard! Oh—Allah—do Thou keep this mountain of fat from touching my rose tree!"

But there was small danger of that. For, even had he wished it, even had he known the fortune-teller's prophecy, his huge bulk would have made it impossible for him to lean from the litter and touch the odorous, red-blooming tree.

"Praised be Allah the One!" exclaimed Zobeid while, without her noticing it, Fount-in-the-Forest, an idea shaping rapidly in her shrewd brain, slipped out of the room, down a secret stair-case into the garden where a few minutes later, a veil hiding her features, she mingled with the retinue of Cham Sheng, Prince of the Mongols, who just then was entering the palace grounds with pomp and circumstance.

CHARGED WITH HAVING LIQUOR

James Akey and W. Eastland Arraigned in County Court.

EVIDENCE OPENED.

Magistrate O. A. Langley's police court was again crowded today when James Akey and William Eastland were arraigned on charges of keeping liquor for sale. There was only standing room half an hour before court opened and several leaned against the wall throughout.

J. F. Strickland represented the prosecution; J. A. OBrien appeared for Eastland and V. J. McElderry for Gibbs and Akey.

Provincial Constable N. F. Maker told of seizing a quantity of liquor on November 7 at the farm in North Monaghan where Eastland was apparently in charge. Akey said Eastland was his hired man. A car belonging to Harold Gibbs was found outside the house with two cases of beer in it. After a search in the house a further hoard was uncovered.

License Inspector Joseph Stewart told of the seizure and produced a report from the provincial analyst on a bottle of whiskey and a bottle of beer taken from the goods seized submitted for test. He only sent beer from the car and none of that found in the house. All the beer was labelled alike; the bottles were reputed quarts.

In cross-examination Mr. O'Brien asked whether Inspector Stewart keeps a notebook or diary "such as your friend Mr. Newhall does."

"No."

The Inspector admitted he might not give a word for word repetition of the conversations between the parties on the day of the seizure, but his rendition would be substantially correct. He did not hear anything about a lease, and he would pledge his oath there was nothing said about it.

Mr. O'Brien produced a paper which Inspector Stewart said appeared to be a lease. "It might have been drawn yesterday, for all I know," he added.

Mr. O'Brien waxed indignant and replied in a tone that the Inspector resented, both being called to order by the Magistrate who stopped an arugment by reminding counsel and witness that both are subject to his ruling.

Both Gibbs and Akey helped to bring the liquor to the city, the Inspector said.

Says No Case.

Mr. O'Brien thought there was no evidence against his client, since a man has a right to have liquor on his private premises. There was no charge laid against Akey and Eastland of having liquor in the car. That is the charge against Gibbs.

"I know it is weak", His Worship replied, noting Mr. O'Brien's claim that the onus under the act depends upon the question of possession. There is no proof at all that Akey ever had possession of the goods, and any inference of this kind is reputed by Inspector Stewart.

Under section 84 of the O.T.A., Mr. O'Brien said, if two or more offenders are charged jointly only one conviction can be made.

Mr. Strickland said the onus has been put upon both the accused and both should be called upon for a defense.

His Worship reserved judgment on the contention to give his decision as to whether Akey should produce his defense. There was no doubt, he said, as to Eastland. The case will proceed at 11 o'clock on Monday forenoon.

NORTH WELCOMES IRON ORE BOUNTY

Expected To Stimulate Ore Development In Lake Superior Region.

PORT ARTHUR, Nov. 22.—Premier Ferguson's announcement that it is the intention of the government to increase the bounty on iron ore from a half cent per metallic unit to one cent, is regarded here as the most important news the northwest part of the province has had in many years.

It was on an equal footing with the introduction of the Laurier policy under which the iron and steel business of Nova Scotia was built up with this difference, that whereas that policy allowed the bounty on manufactured iron and steel from foreign ores, the Ferguson proposal applies to the production of Ontario ores brought to commercial value.

It may be confidently expected that as a result of the bounty active development of iron ore bodies will be undertaken by both Canadian and United Staes owners of ore deposits in the Lake Superior region.

Men interested in iron ore express satisfaction at the outcome of the campaign which has been carried on for some time in an effort to secure the sympathy of the government in the development of a line of business that had become one of the most important in the province.

That large deposits of iron ore are located in the country westward from Sault Ste. Marie to the Rainy River has been proved. Some of the biggest aggregations of capital in the United States have holdings, while a number of small owners are to be found in various parts of Canada and the United States.

It is understood that at least two if not three companies will have men in the field next year.

HUNT FOR GOLD IS OFF.

Treacherous Weather Off the Virginia Capes Sends Divers Home.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(Canadian Press).—The hunt for Merida's gold is off until the spring, because of the treacherous weather off Virginia Capes during the winter, which makes it impossible for divers to work without endangering their lives.

The Foam and the Spray have been recalled to New York.

The two trawlers which managed to locate the sunken Merida, lost since she went down in collision in 1911, laden with gold, silver, copper and jewels, are now laid up in Brooklyn.

Prominent New Yorkers who financed the expedition of the Foam and Spray—Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., and several friends — were loath to comment yesterday on the return of the trawlers. It was simply said the return had been forced by weather conditions and had been expected.

It is known that the backers of the Foam and Spray are elated rather than discouraged.

WHOLE WHEAT GRIDDLE CAKES.

BAZAAR AT BETHANY.

St. Paul's Anglican Church Had a Social Evening —Personals.

BETHANY, Nov. 22.—The annual bazaar held by the ladies of St. Paul's Anglican Church on Thursday evening was a decided success. It being a very bright and clear evening, the Town Hall was well filled, and all partook of a delightful supper served from a group of small tables, and attended to by young ladies of the congregation.

The tea-room was divided from the rest of the hall by a hedge of evergreen trees, where Mrs. F. Reynolds acted as hostess.

The entire hall made a very pretty scene with streamers of green and white from the ceiling, and the different booths being decorated with trailing vines of mauve and white around the lattice work of each booth.

Mrs. W. McCartney had charge of the country table, where all kinds of eatables were sold.

Mrs. McGrath and Miss L. Morton had charge of booths, where all sorts of fancy work and small articles were sold.

Mrs. Twigg and Mrs. Morton sold plain sewing and knitting, while Miss Mary Sisson and Miss Fierheller had charge of the home-made candy booth.

Ice cream was sold during the evening and a real social time was enjoyed by all preent.

Mrs. J. Hamilton being president, acted a general convenor.

Rev. and Mrs. Williams, of Millbrook and Rev. and Mrs. Weir, of Omemee, attended the bazaar and renewed old acquaintances.

HAVE THE BEST ALWAYS

When buying a newspaper the same rule should apply as when buying goods. You want the best for your money. There is one "best" in Canada and it should be in every home. You should have your own local paper without doubt, but you should also have the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal. It is undoubtedly the greatest family and farm paper on the continent, and at the low price of Two Dollars it is a wonderful bargain. This year the Family Herald is giving to each subscriber a chance to win as much as Five Thousand Dollars cash, and each subscriber receives a large calendar with a fascinating picture that would adorn any home. For those who secure new subscribers there are some very handsome rewards, which are described in a catalogue obtainable free.

SLAYERS WERE ARRESTED

Driver of Taxicab Identified Men Who Killed Sir Lee Stack.

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press).—The driver of the taxicab in which some of the assassins of Sir Lee Stack, Governor-General of the Sudan, and Sirdar of the Egyptian Army, made their escape, and who were arrested the same night, has confessed. He has identified the Effendi, who made the attack, and they were arrested last night.

King Fued sent a message yesterday to the Acting Sirdar at Khartoum, recalling General Stack's loyalty, sincerity, good qualities and valuable services, and requesting the Acting Sirdar to communicate his mesage to officers and men of the Egyptian army.

KING PUT BLAME ON GUSS PORTER

Belleville Greeted Premier at Overflow Meeting—Election On High Plane.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 22.—(Canadian Press). — Premier Mackenzie King, who spoke here last night in the Opera House before 1,500 people, was compelled to speak later to an overflow meeting of over 1,000 people in the Armouries, which had gathered to hear him champion the cause of Charles Hanna, Liberal candidate in the by-election to be held here on Tuesday next. The issue of the by-election was placed on a high plane. It will not render a verdict that will affect the Government, which has a lease of power for one or two years yet, said the Premier. It is not a verdict on James Murdock that can be given but it is a judgment which the electors will give as to whether they are anxious that the institutions and customs of Parliament, which have all been preserved in the investigation of the Murdock charges shall be overthrown.

The by-election, the Premier said, was brought on by the act of E. Guss Porter and was not occasioned in any way by the acts of the Government.

GREEK SHOT IN PARIS.

Naval Attache Attacked By Fellow Countrymen in Serious Condition.

PARIS, Nov. 22.—A man entered the Greek legation here this afternoon and fired five shots from a revolver at M. Papalexipoulos, the Greek naval attache, who was struck several times and was taken to a hospital where his condition was declared extremely serious.

The assailant, who was arrested, gave his name as Verikakis, a former officer of the Greek gendarmerie. He is said to be long to the Venizelos party, but the affair today appears to have arisen from a personal quarrel between the two men.

SUNDAY'S SERMON MARMORA CHURCH

"Forgiveness of Sins" Was Subject Spoken on in St. Paul's Church.

MARMORA, November 20.—"The forgiveness of sins," formed the topic of the Rector's address at St. Paul's on Sunday morning. Dealing with the story of the palsied man as found in St. Mark's gospel, he declared that if it were not in the Gospels our whole future would be a changed one. Jesus was not so easily reached as the man's friends had thought. They were only just able to catch the words of wisdom and life spoken by that wondrous voice from within the house.

However they found ways and means of reaching Jesus. When we determine to reach Jesus we shall find ways and means to accomplish our purpose. As a parish this incident might be taken to heart. The friends of the paralyzed man knew that at the feet of Jesus there was healing power. They did not know that what would happen in the next few minutes would concern te whole of humanity.

What happened then, concerned every living soul since and is of extreme importance to-day. Jesus knew something about that man which was unknown to the crowd. He knew fully where he was a sinner and pronounced upon him the forgiveness of his sins. His paralysis he made the means whereby to prove the forgiveness of his sins. The man found out that Jesus had an understanding of him beyond that of his kindest friends. Wonderful thoughts are suggested by this story. Jesus sees things in us which no one else can see or understand. We can sit besides loved ones and friends in the church which we attend, and even they do not know us as we are to be known. Then again we do not always strike the things others need as we serve them. If we are in need ion should be aware that Jesus did to whom we can go. People who hold back from taking the Holy Communion should be aware taht Jesus did not expect us to be glorified saints before partaking of it. It is our privilege and bounden duty to go because in it Jesus gives us Himself. The palsied man did not give it a thought that he was too wicked and sinful to receive the cure at Christ's hands. We must come to Jesus to feel the realization of sin forgiven. We have to make confession of our sins. We can come to God as Father, Son and Holy Ghost through what is spoken of as the ministry of reconciliation with God. Another way is open. We can make voluntary confession to the clergyman in accordance with prayer book exhortations. Everyone of us wants to go upward despite all that is holding us down. We realize how helpless we are of our own selves and should pray for insight to be given whereby we see ourselves as God sees us and so act as to hear from Him "Son, thy sins be forgiven thee," "Daughter, thy sins be forgiven thee."

At Methodist Church.

A very interesting discourse was delivered in the Methodist church on Sunday evening last by the pastor, the Rev. D. R. Clare, B.A., B.D. The minister based his subject upon Luke 10:3: "Behold I send you forth as lambs among wolves."

Jesus was a very very humble man, but also a very self conscious man. Had He not been self conscious His humility might possibly have overwhelmed Him and made Him a wreck. He was also a brave man, the bravest of the brave. Napoleon's marshals displayed marks of their gallantry on the battlefield, on their uniforms. Jesus wore no badge to betoken His bravery. Some people become heroes all of a moment; Jesus was always brave, and He carried His bravery with a calm dignity. In Gethsemane He exhibited a bravery that was almost superhuman. His bravery came from consciousness of the fact that He was not His own agent. He was hardly a free-will agent. He was the agent of God. God so inspired Him that He could do naught else but His Father's bidding. "I and the Father are one," He declared, and also "He that sent Me is with Me. The Father hath not left Me alone." Was there anything human in Jesus sending His Disciples forth as lambs among wolves? The world would answer "No." Yet this is what He did. He did it because there was One greater than the wolves, One mightier than all the enemies against them. Nothing could happen to the little lamb that was under the care of God. Nothing can be wrong with us if truly Jesus hath sent us forth. Jesus was conscious of the omnipresence of God.

He went to sleep in the tempest of Galilee because He knew the raging sea to be the plaything of God, in so far as He could control it. He climbed the mountain top at the time of His transfiguration because He was conscious that God was up there. He looked heavenwards and saw in the vast blue lying between the stars, the face and form of God. He saw in the little flower of earth not only its shade and color but the handiwork of God. The flower to Him was beautiful because He saw it in the beauty of God. Looking into Peter's heart, He saw God, for there God had revealed unto Peter, the Divinity of His Son. Jesus Christ lived in a spiritual atmosphere that vibrated with God. God was in Him speaking continuously to His heart. Another thought coming to us from the text is that of Jesus as the great commissioner.

John the Baptist spake of himself as being a voice in the wilderness. Jesus so forgot Himself that He became a voice, the voice of God crying in the world. In sending forth His disciples as lambs among wolves, He gave them warning. They could turn back if they desired. He Himself was a lamb among wolves. He was brought as a lamb to the slaughter; and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so He opened not His mouth. St. John gives us the incident of Jesus being turned out of the temple in winter time. The great commissioner passed on His Commission which He had received from His Father. Christianity is a great life of sacrifice. The matter with the world still is that too many want a good time and are pleasure-seekers rather than Christ-seekers. A lot of people too are talking about religion who never should have let it pass their lips. Was Christ's commission meant for you and me? Haven't we asked for an easier way? The sacrificial life of the Christian is implied in Christ's commission. It is the commission of peace. The wolves are the messengers of hate and malice. The lamb was to teach the wolf the lesson of peace that they might lie down together. The commission conveyed also a message of mercy and salvation and gave a warning of the consequences of rejecting it. Why do people not come out more to church to-day? Chiefly because the Gospel proves unpleasant. Still Jesus has said, "He that heareth you heareth Me." He realized that He was going forth into His disciples as the commission was being passed on to them by Him. Unkind things continue to be said about those who are trying to be Christians. To such Jesus has spoken, "He that receiveth you receiveth Me, and he that despiseth you, despiseth Me." The preacher next referred to the revival in North America some years ago, where those affected kept the morning watch. These went forth and labored not in vain as results to-day show. "I would," continued the Rev. Clare, "that we permitted ourselves to come to such a consciousness of God's presence that we feel the call of God like those who have given their lives and counted them not dear for the Master's sake. He felt the call of God because He and His Father were one and we shall feel the call and respond when we can say that we and Christ are one."

WILL REMAIN IN JAPAN.

TOKIO, Nov. 21. — (Canadian Press).—Major Pedro Zanni, Argentine world flier, has been instructed by his home Government to remain in Japan until the spring, when he will continue his journey. He was also offered and has accepted the post of military attache in Tokio, thus enabling him to complete his arrangements for crossing the Pacific Ocean.

PALE ANAEMIC GIRLS

Find New Health Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

There must be no guesswork in the treatment of pale, anaemic girls and children. If your daughter is languid, has a pale, sallow complexion, is short of breath after slight exercise or on going up stairs, if she has palpitation of the heart, a poor appetite, or a tendency to faint, she has anaemia —the medical name for poverty of the blood. Any delay in treatment may leave her weak and sickly for the rest of her life. Delay may even result in consumption, that most hopeless of diseases. When the blood is poor and watery give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, coupled with nourishing food and gentle out-of-doors exercise. The new, life-giving blood which follows a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills stimulates the nerves, increases the appetite and brings the glow of health to pale cheeks. Mrs. W. E. Armour, Havelock, Ont., says: "My little girl got into a very poor state of health. She was weak, very much run down and as the doctor did not seem to do her any good, I thought I would try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After taking six boxes of the pills she got nice and rosy and strong again. I would recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to anyone weak or rundown."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail postpaid at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NEWS FROM MADOC.

Hunters Return With Good Reports—Death of Mrs. T. Burnside.

MADOC, Nov. 22. — At her home in Madoc there occurred the death of Annie McCoy, beloved wife of Thomas Burnside. Mrs. Burnside had been in poor health for some time, but her death came as a shock at the end. The funeral was held from her late residence to the Methodist church, Madoc, where the funeral service was conducted by Rev. A. H. Foster, thence to the Methodist cemetery at Hazzard's Corners, for interment. Mrs. Burnside was widely known, always taking an active part in social as well as church affairs. The very large number of floral tributes testify to the esteem in which she was held. Besides her husband, as well as a number of brothers and sisters, she leaves to mourn her loss a daughter, Mrs. Fr. Nickle of Merrickville, and a son Bob, of McMaster University, Toronto. The sympathy of the community is extended to the sorrowing family.

Personals.

Mrs. Henderson of Foxboro is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. H. G. Henderson of Madoc.

Miss Halliday of St. Agathe, Que., who was visiting the Misses MacIntosh's, has returned home.

Mr. Bob Burnside of McMaster University, Toronto, was called home to attend the funeral of his mother.

Miss Annie Way, who had the misfortune to fall and injure her hip, is on the way to recovery.

On Sunday last Master J. Marrin had the misfortune to break his arm while attempting to crank a car. In some manner the crank flew back, striking his arm and breaking it in two places.

The hunters are returning every day, laden with spoils of the forest. They all report an abundance of deer and in some places they have succeeded in shooting bear.

The organ recital held in the Methodist church, Madoc, on Monday, November 10th, was largely attended and enjoyed by all. The Deloro orchestra rendered some delightful numbers. Miss Valeri Rightmyer of Belleville, and Miss Ella Barnes of Ivanhoe were some of the entertainers.

Word was received to-day that the home of J. L. Newton was destroyed by fire during the absence of the family. Mr. Newton had one of the finest houses in the vicinity of Tweed —situated about two miles west of Tweed.

At the Quinte Hotel, Belleville, on November 13th, a sumptuous banquet was tendered the cheese makers, presidents and ex-presidents of Hastings county. About 500 were in attendance. Mr. F. E. O'Flynn, barrister, acted as chairman. Toasts were proposed and speeches made by Hon. R. McRay, Minister of Public Works, John Elliott, manager of the Standard Bank, W. S. Cooke and others. Readings were given by Jean McIntosh, elocutionist. An enjoyable afteroon was spent by all who attended.

The shoe store formerly owned by Hoard and Moorecroft, has been taken over by the Neill Shoe Co.

Mr. George White, Barrister of Toronto, has moved to town, and taken offices in the Furham block. He has moved into the house recently occupied by T. E. H. Stewart.

Fire Destroyed School At Bexley In Victoria

LINDSAY, Nov. 22.—The school house at Bexley, Victoria County, was totally destroyed with all its contents this week. The fire broke out in the rear of the building, and had gained considerable headway before being noticed. The loss will be a heavy one for the school section as the building was a new and up-to-date one, having been built four years ago. The loss is partly covered by insurance. There was a splendid library in the school, and this is also a total loss.

One of the best grades of Italian cheese is sold only after it has been seasoned for at least four years.

NEWS FROM APSLEY.

Deer, Bear and Wolves Fall To Guns of Hunters.

APSLEY, November 22. — The hunting season is over and most of the parties in this vicinity have had very good success, the majority getting their legal number of deer while several also bagged a bear, and one at Eagle Lake, managed to secure a wolf.

A very pleasant dance was given on Friday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wilson, at their home, which was attended by over 50 guests. The function was in honor of Mrs. Wilson's brother, Herb Bullied, who is recently married, and who was present with his bride.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Stephen's church, Chandos, on Wednesday, November 19th, when Lauretta Tanner, eldest daughter of Robert H. Tanner, one of the pioneer settlers of this township, became the bride of Walter Reginald Couch, son of George Couch of Loon Lake, the Rev. C. A. G. Spence, officiating. The church was filled with the friends and relatives of the bridal couple, when to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss M. Spence, the bride entered on the arm of her father, and attended by her two bridesmaids, Misses Louella Couch and Minnie Tanner, sisters of the groom and bride respectively. The bride's dress was of white silk, trimmed with radium lace. She also wore a veil and wreath of orange blossoms.

Miss Louella Couch was attired in a poudre blue crepe de chine, with hat to match. The bride's bouquet was white carnations, and the bridesmaids' white chrysanthemums. Wilbert Tanner attended the groom.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's father, which was largely attended. The presents were numerous and useful, testifying to the high esteem in which the young couple are held in the township.

Mr. and Mrs. Couch will reside near the old homestead on Loon Lake.

A very pleasant social evening was held at the Eden Methodist church, Haultain, on Monday last, with the Rev. and Mrs. Ogden in attendance. An enjoyable impromptu concert was given by the members and dainty refreshments were served.

A sharp reminder of the nearness of winter came on Monday night, when the thermometer registered five degrees below zero, a low figure for November.

RADIO ON A FREIGHTER'S LIFEBOAT

LONDON, Nov. 22.—(Associated Press).—The first lifeboat with radio to be carried on a cargo vessel was taken on the steamer Geraldine Mary, 7,200 tons, which left the Clyde for Newfoundland recently. The 26-foot lifeboat, fitted with a seven horsepower gasoline engine, has a triangular aerial hoisted on two masts, and the transmitter is operated by an alternator.

ADDRESS BY MR. JUSTICE RIDDELL

The Examiner has been requested to publish at length the address given on Friday evening last, by Hon. Mr. Justice Riddell. The subject on which he spoke is one that vitally concerns all people, and a perusal of the statements and facts as set out, both by those who listened and those who were not present, should serve to impress on the attention of all right-minded citizens the very important duty that exists in a community the size of Peterborough that such steps as may be taken should be had in reference to the public health.

James Russell Lowell had the faculty of evolving pregnant sayings, sometimes indeed put in the mouths of rather unworthy persons. One of these is the statement by the "Candidate":-

"... civilysation doos get forrid
Sometimes upon a powder cart."

This does not mean—as even the Candidate is careful to explain—that war is desirable for "war is horrid"; but horrid as war is and must be, good has sometimes come out of its evil and civilization has got forward upon the powder cart.

When Canada sent her sons in hundreds of thousands to fight for freedom and our form of civilization, she did not stay to count the cost—she did, however, confidently expect that each one would do his full duty. Most of her gallant soldiers did all men could do and their glory liveth forevermore.

But many there were even of these selected and chosen Canadians, who, when civilization and freedom were trembling in the balance, who were physically disabled—some from crossing the sea, some from joining their comrades in the battlefield. These not only diminished the number of the fighting force by their own absence, but they kept from other service, doctors, orderlies and nurses.

All too many of these so disabled owed their incapacity to diseases which were preventable, and especially to what are euphemistically called social diseases. For example, in a small Military District No. 2, of which the headquarters was Toronto, there were as many as 500 men in the hospital at one time. The great loss of man-power and the necessity for a very considerable extra expenditure caused by these diseases in the war brought the matter acutely to the attention of the Government. They called a meeting at Ottawa to consider the whole situation: and the result was the formation of a voluntary and unofficial body for the purpose of combating these diseases throughout Canada—civilization had got forward on the powder cart.

As time went by, we widened the field of our activities and have now adopted the name, "Canadian Social Hygiene Council."

The term "social hygiene" is a comparatively new one. The first reference I have been able to find to it, is in the title of the book by Havelock Ellis, "The Task of Social Hygiene." Havelock Ellis, in the first paragraph in the introduction of this book, makes the statement that the study of social hygiene includes the study of all those things that have to do with the welfare of human beings living in society. He suggests that it is a normal development of the social reform movement which went on in the latter part of the last century. It thus is seen to be in some measure an enlargement and broadening of the scope of "public health." "Public health" has been understood, until recently, to be a term descriptive of certain specific activities which have to do with the elimination of disease from the community by direct methods, the diseases being dealt with by public health authorities being on the whole of communicable types. Now, however, we have come to a point when we realize that in developing public health activities we are elaborating measures for the prolongation of human life and for the development of human efficiency and happiness. Social hygiene recognizes the fact that more than a direct attack on disease is necessary if we are to achieve such ends and that the way in which people live, their education, their recreation, their development as normal functioning units in society, must all be considered in working out the details of our task.

As all else, social reform must have an incentive and no greater incentive can be found than the welfare of the human race.

A distinguished British statesman some years ago made a very interesting and instructive statement concerning his own education. Mr. Fisher suggested that, for a social reformer, a knowledge of medicine, if not a 'sine qua non', was at least of great importance in developing a correct point of view, and that a knowledge of the preventable physical disabilities from which human beings suffer, and of their relation to social organization and education, starts the social reformer with the correct point of view from the outset.

Much so-called social reform has been and too much continues to be sentimental and unscientific. The modern social reform which is "social hygiene" should be based on a knowledge of things as they are and the relationship not only between bacteria, disease, disability and death, but of much else which may lie behind even a bacterial source.

It would be well here, perhaps, to give some idea of the development of measures undertaken for the prevention of disease.

To Prevent Diseases.

Before the beginning of the last century, preventive medicine as a science could scarcely be said to exist. The one outstanding discovery in the field of public health before this time was the discovery of vaccination by Edward Jenner. In previous centuries smallpox was a veritable plague which periodically swept over the world, destroying hundreds of thousands of victims. Nearly everybody got smallpox: it was unusual, for example—as an old writer says—to find faces entirely free from pock marks on the streets of London. The result of vaccination has been, that in the civilised parts of the world at least, smallpox as a plague is seen no more. This is true in spite of the fact that Edward Jenner never discovered the cause of smallpox. In those days the cause of communicable diseases was unknown: the science of bacteriology had not come into existence. The communicable diseases which we know of now as occasional causes of death then existed in the form of veritable plagues. Antiseptic surgery did not exist. The amputation of a leg or arm or of a finger, a slight wound on the field of battle or an accident, not uncommonly meant rapidly spreading infection and death. Surgical operations, which are now considered comparatively simple, were then impossible, and such a disease as appendicitis, for example, went on to happy or unhappy conclusion with practically no interference on the part of the physician and none by the surgeon. In lying-in hospitals the appearance of an infection in a single case frequently meant the spread of similar infection through the entire hospital with fatal results to many mothers. In those days a confinement was frequently an extremely serious matter, not from any normal risk, but because the physician frequently, unknowingly, infected his patient with his own hands with fatal results.

Such diseases as bubonic plague, yellow fever, malaria, typhoid fever, diphtheria and many others were allowed to pursue an almost uninterrupted course because no one knew how they originated or what measures should be taken to either prevent or cure.

No essential change came in the situation until the '70's when, with the advent of Louis Pasteur, who must be credited with being the founder of all modern public health, a great change gradually came about. Pasteur made the discovery that communicable diseases are caused by tiny organisms called bacteria; and that there is a separate type of germ for each of the communicable diseases. For example, typhoid fever is caused by a bacillus called the "bacillus typhosus," diphtheria by "Klebs-Loeffler bacillus," tuberculosis by the "bacillus of tuberculosis," pneumonia by the "diplococcus of pneumonia," syphilis by a certain "spirochaete," etc.

With the development of this conception by Pasteur there gradually came about a knowledge of the characteristics of different bacteria and of the means by which an infection travels from one person to another. For example, in the case of diphtheria a person comes in contact with another person who has an infection caused by the presence of diphtheria bacteria in the throat. Perhaps by a cough or a kiss these tiny organisms of bacteria pass from one throat to another with the result that there is an infection.

In the case of typhoid fever the germ of typhoid fever, which is an intestinal infection, contaminates sewage, sewage in its turn affects the water supply and so typhoid is very generally contracted by drinking contaminated water.

Combating Diphtheria and Typhoid Fever.

In the two instances which I have given, knowledge of the methods of growth of these two organisms and of the reaction which they produce in the human body has made it possible to elaborate methods of prevention. In the case of diphtheria careful quarantining of diphtheritic patients developed first. After some further investigation by another famous Frenchman, antitoxin was developed. Antitoxin is a substance produced—generally in the blood of a horse—by the injection of increasing doses of the poison formed by diphtheria bacilli growth in beef broth. The development of antitoxin is an entrancing story by itself but I must not take the time to tell it here. The important thing is that a material has been developed which, injected under the skin of a diphtheritic patient, will absolutely cure diphtheria—so that if an early diagnosis is made and if antitoxin is given immediately the child infected with diphtheria need not die of that disease.

Before the discovery of means for controlling diphtheria it was not uncommon for diphtheria in a family, containing a number of children, to result in a wiping out of almost the entire family: many are the pathetic inscriptions on tomb-stones erected previous to 1890, detailing a series of juvenile deaths in a family within a short period of one another which are the result of deaths from diphtheritic infection. (As a personal matter I may be allowed to say that a young brother of my own died some half a century ago; and the lives of the rest of us, we believed, to be saved by relentless "swabbing" of our throats with "lunar caustic" by Dr. Richard H. Clarke).

Another important discovery in this field recently is the so-called Schick reaction by which immunity to diphtheria can be detected: and still another is that of the toxin anti-toxin for preventing diphtheria. The result of these two discoveries last named has been that it is now possible to go through any body of individuals, school or otherwise, determine the persons who are susceptible to bacterial infection and immunize such persons. This means that theoretically at least it is possible to prevent any diphtheria infection in a community.

In the case of typhoid fever development has been in a different direction. Generally speaking, to make sure that a city water supply is pure and uncontaminated means the elimination of typhoid fever from that city. Therefore, proper sewage disposal, proper filtration of water supplies and occasional chlorination when necessary have affected the practical elimination of typhoid fever from our large cities. There is a very cogent saying that for every death by typhoid fever, someone should be hanged. Let municipal authorities beware!

There are many disease of which we hear little, which in other countries have had extremely serious results. Among these are such diseases as malaria, yellow fever, sleeping sickness, Malta fever and some other diseases which are found particularly in tropical countries. The conquest of the two diseases, yellow fever and malaria, provides an extremely brilliant example of the possibility of doing away with disease in a community if we understand the methods by which that disease is transmitted.

Malaria and Yellow Fever.

Malaria and yellow fever in the regions in which they have existed have been extremely serious problems. It used to be supposed that malaria was caused by the vapor or mist arising from swamps: and the curious fact that few who slept above the ground floor were attacked by malaria was supposed to indicate that the vapor was heavy and could not rise so far. Yellow fever, while the exact cause was unknown, was known to be communicable; but it was supposed that it was carried from person to person by means of what is known as 'fomites,' that is, dishes, bed clothes, utensils, etc., which carried disease as well as by personal contact. By a series of elaborate investigations undertaken in various parts of the world, it was finally discovered that these two diseases also are caused by bacteria of their own and that the previous conception of the modes of transmission was incorrect. Both diseases are carried from person by mosquitoes, two different varieties being involved in the two diseases. The offending mosquito bites an infected person, draws up a small quantity of infected blood from that person, then flies off and injects it under the skin of a theretofore uninfected individual and he promptly develops the disease.

The history of the discovery and proof of the facts stated here is also extremely interesting. In the case of yellow fever the greatest amount of credit goes to the medical service of the United States Army. Through careful investigations undertaken by officers the facts of the situation were accurately determined. The services of volunteers were utilized; certain men who had otherwise not come in contact with the disease were asked to allow themselves to be bitten by mosquitoes which had already been allowed to bite patients suffering from yellow fever: these men all speedily developed the disease. Other volunteers were asked to live for weeks in houses just vacated by yellow fever patients, these houses still containing the utensils, bed clothing, etc., which had been left there by the yellow fever patients. The houses, however, were screened by means of mosquito netting and no mosquitoes were allowed to enter. None of these men developed yellow fever. Similar experiments were carried out with regard to malaria.

Several brilliant results came about immediately. Major Gorgas, a major in the Army Corps of the United States Army, carried out a plan of eliminating yellow fever and malaria from Havana, which previously had been infested with these diseases. He put mosquito netting on all houses, cleaned up all places in which mosquitoes might develop, poured oil over pools which had previously been breeding grounds of mosquitoes with the result that malaria and yellow fever disappeared. Shortly afterwards, he was given charge of sanitation in the Panama Canal zone, and to him is due to a large degree the credit for the making of the final building of this canal possible. Various attempts had been made to build this canal previously: they had all failed because white men could not live in that region by reason of malaria and yellow fever. It will be remembered that one of the most pathetic efforts was made by the late Count DeLesseps, the distinguished French engineer, who, on account of the mortality among his workmen, was compelled to leave the area and abandon all his machinery. The Panama zone is now recognized as one of the healthiest areas in the western hemisphere.

Many other communicable diseases have also been dealt with, with the result that for the last twenty years the mortality from all causes has been falling very rapidly.

There are other diseases, however, upon which the attack is only commenced. The four greatest causes of death among diseases are tuberculosis, pneumonia, cancer and syphilis. Of these the attack on tuberculosis has got a good start, the prevention of cancer is very largely a thing for the future. Some work has been done on pneumonia and also considerable scientific and organization work has been done in the direction of curing and preventing venereal diseases.

As to Tuberculosis and Venereal Diseases.

In dealing with tuberculosis and venereal diseases in particular one realizes the relationship between social conditions and disease. For example, it would appear to be obvious, that tuberculosis in a crowded tenement district is a more serious thing and much more likely to spread than in a district in which the families live more comfortably and under conditions in which crowding does not appear. Similarly, it would appear to be more or less obvious that good food, sunshine, fresh air, short hours of work and good working conditions are factors which assist in limiting the development and spread of tuberculosis in any community. And, indeed, it may be said that these factors are involved to some extent in most diseases. In the question of venereal diseases, however, the social factors as we shall see are even more important.

Another extremely important problem which has been brought home to us during the last fifteen years is that of the feeble-minded. It is found in this field that there is a relationship between the mentality of the individual and the increase of poverty, delinquency and the spread of disease, all being more or less closely inter-related. It has been found that a certain percentage of the population is of a definitely inferior mentality and that many such are apparently incapable of education beyond a certain point. These are what we call the feeble-minded. They are not insane; they are simply undeveloped mentally: and a recognition of their existence in the community brings before us some entirely new problems.

Following Family Strains.

Some conception of what the feeble-minded mean to a community may be obtained from the history of two famous families whose records have been gone into carefully by the authorities in the field of mental hygiene. These families are known as the Jukes family and the Kallikak family. The Kallikak family is of particular interest because it has been possible to trace two strains of the family since the time of the American Revolution. These two strains of the family both originated in a soldier of the Revolutionary War named Martin F. Kallikak. The first strain originated in an illicit union with a feeble-minded maid who was a servant in a tavern. The result of this union has been a long series of descendants, all of whom have been mentally defective. In this list are found prostitutes and criminals almost exclusively. There is scarcely an individual in the entire line who was not guilty during a large proportion of his or her life of anti-social acts.

The other strain of the Kallikak family originated in the marriage of Martin F. Kallikak with the daughter of a prominent Revolutionary family. This union resulted in a series of persons who have filled positions of distinction in every part of the United States. Judges, university presidents, great manufacturers, authors, have been the characteristic product in this family, while in the entire list there is no trace of anti-social activity or of mental defect. The prevalence of the feeble-minded brings us face to face with the necessity for doing something to prevent children being brought into the world who would be simply an added burden to the community.

Curiously enough the most formidable of all public health problems and the one which is of the greatest significance when considering the social aspects of disease prevention was the last of all to be seriously attacked—I mean the problem of venereal diseases. The two venereal diseases—gonorrhoea and syphilis—as causes of misery, disability and death outrank all other diseases. They are much more widespread than any other and syphilis alone kills more people than any other disease. In addition, is the appalling fact, that its terrible effects are not limited to the generation in which it originates but pass on to afflict later generations as well.

How We Neglected Precaution.

These diseases were neglected in some degree for the same reason that other communicable diseases were neglected. The spirochaete which causes syphilis was only discovered in 1905 or '6. The Wassermann reaction which has been of the greatest assistance in revealing unsuspected cases was not discovered until 1910. Gradually, however, during the first years of the present century physicians were beginning to feel that in this disease as well as in its sister there was a problem which demanded energetic action. This was particularly so after the discovery of the Wasserman reaction and the things which it revealed. In 1913 as the result of an agitation carried on by some of the most prominent British physicians, including Sir William Osler, the Asquith Government appointed a Royal Commission under the chairmanship of Lord Sydenham to investigate the venereal disease question. This commission, the "Royal Commission on Venereal Diseases," sat for three years and in April, 1916, brought in a report of an astounding character. This report contained the statement that probably ten per cent. of all persons living in urban centres of Great Britain were infected with syphilis, that there is much more gonorrhoea than there is syphilis and that there are probably 850,000 fresh venereal infections each year in the British Isles. In other words, the report stated that there are more fresh venereal infections each year than there were casualties in the Great War. Other statements with reference to venereal diseases, some of which came from the report of the British Royal Commission and from other authorities are as follows:

1. Syphilis and gonorrhoea between them are the two greatest sterilizers.
2. Syphilis and gonorrhoea are responsible for more than half of all blindness.
3. Syphilis is responsible for about fourteen per cent. of all male admissions to asylums.
4. Syphilis in that it affects the nation generally has a profound influence on infant mortality.
5. Syphilis causes the largest percentage of abortions and miscarriages in women.
6. Syphilis is the only cause of general paralysis of the insane, one of the most serious types of all insanity.
7. Syphilis is the one cause of locomotor ataxia.
8. Syphilis causes nearly all cases of apoplexy in individuals so affected under the age of 45.
9. Gonorrhoea is responsible for about one half of all major operations performed upon women for ailments peculiar to women.

While the Royal Commission was still sitting, war broke out: and it was immediately discovered that venereal diseases constituted the most serious medical problem with which the army authorities were confronted. In all countries in the world the same thing happened. It was discovered that a very large percentage of the young men coming up for enlistment were infected, that as the war went on soldiers acquired fresh infections and that there were so many men in hospitals that it actually had a serious effect in that it reduced materially the fighting strength: indeed, thousands of men were in hospital at once. The result was that in the army it was recognized that something must be done immediately not only in the direction of looking after infected men but of educating men so that they might avoid infection. The result was that army officers were soon found to be lecturing men on subjects which should have been dealt with by their own parents years previously.

The army also stimulated the civil authorities to take action with the result that treatment facilities were provided by various governments. In Great Britain, a scheme came into effect whereby local authorities were reimbursed to the extent of seventy-five per cent. of all monies expended in the treatment of venereal diseases.

In Canada, as we have seen a council was organized under Government auspices—this at first had the name of the "Canadian National Council for Combating Venereal Diseases." We are now more appropriately named but we have not forgotten our original and primary purpose.

The Canadian scheme involved support from the Dominion Government—not direct indeed to our organization, but through the provinces. The importance of this support, it would not be easy to overestimate, the scheme involved a far-reaching step because it meant that for the first time in the history of the Dominion, the provinces and the Dominion were co-operating in a Dominion-wide health programme. For each dollar spent by the Dominion, the province was required to spend additional money to an equal amount, raised by the province itself. This made it certain that the provinces would be stimulated to spend money on health which otherwise would not have been spent at all. This had much to do with the formation of the Dominion Department of Health under a Minister of Health—an ideal which had been the hope of patriotic Canadians for many years.

Must We Pause in the Work?

It is a matter of the greatest regret that at the present moment this programme is being endangered because of the fact that the Dominion Government feel that they must economize. Many think a curtailment of expenditure in this particular direction is more than unwise—it is bad business. Canada is spending millions to have a healthy immigration by the steamship: can she afford not to see to it that she has a healthy immigration by the cradle?

However that may be, the result of the study of the problems involved in working out a programme for the conservation of the health and happiness of the people is that we have now reached a point where it is widely felt that it is desirable to develop the field of social hygiene.

The social factor in disease prevention is potent in all fields; but the question of venereal disease and of the feeble-minded are of such pressing moment that the time has come when more attention and more public attention must be paid to them.

The underlying causes of venereal disease lie deep-rooted in the organization of society itself; and only when we succeed in influencing social organization can we achieve the final elimination of these and other diseases. Only when we have a community which is carefully educated and carefully organized, can we eliminate disease for it is on the whole due to lack of organization and of education. Only when we have a society in which the various units are carefully correlated with one another and their action co-ordinated can we attain this end.

We contemplate with horror the enormous loss of life in the Great War. Canada mourns the death of sixty thousand of her sons, her best and bravest. It is a cheering thought that this loss caused by German greed and German ambition can be more than made up in ten years by the faithful and universal application of the discoveries of two German scientists.

There is probably enough information extant in the world today to provide for the elimination of disease and for the development of a community which would in this respect be a veritable Utopia. Unfortunately, that information lies largely in the hands of those who do not utilize it, with the result that community progress is not so rapid as it might and should be. The units of society are apt to proceed along their own lines without reference to the other units; the educator, the clergyman, the physician, the merchant, the manufacturer, are inclined to work out their own salvation without regard

Mal-nutrition

Starving, in the midst of plenty. This is the condition of many pale, anaemic, bloodless school children who are suffering from malnutrition.

An investigation in the schools of Toronto showed that the highest percentage of malnutrition cases was not in the poorer sections, but among children who came from the best homes.

Not starved for the lack of food, but because of not eating wisely. Too much sweets and pastry. Too little of vitamin laden vegetables.

The appetite becomes fickle. Indigestion is common. Restlessness, nervousness and irritability prevail. Eye trouble, goitre, St. Vitus' dance and other ailments develop.

The anaemic child is in no condition to stand the mental and nervous strain of school work and examinations, along with the enormous burden which physiological changes put upon the system at this time of life.

The importance of good, robust health during this critical period cannot be sufficiently emphasized. It may mean the difference between invalidism and health throughout a lifetime.

Fortunately this condition responds promptly to restorative treatment and the results obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food have proven beyond doubt its suitability in such cases.

Perhaps your daughter's health or your son's health has been a source of anxiety to you. Possibly he or she has not been doing well at school.

It is worth while to try a few weeks' treatment with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. While gentle and natural in action this great restorative is wonderfully potent as a means of forming new, rich blood and building up the nervous system.

With the blood thin and watery, there is little chance to fight the germs of contagious diseases. The greatest of germ destroyers is pure, rich blood and Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most effective of blood builders.

The appetite is sharpened, digestion improves, the healthful glow returns to the cheeks and there is soon plenty of evidence of the benefit being obtained from the use of this restorative treatment.

CHLOROSIS

As a result of this bloodless condition girls often develop chlorosis. Appetite is perverted and there is a taste for chalk, pencil lead and such things.

Palpitation of the heart, constipation and other derangements of vital organs result.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food supplies exactly what is required by the system under these conditions and its use brings about complete restoration of health.

Overwork at School

Miss Irene Grey, 157 Beech St., Halifax, N. S., writes:—

"Two years ago I was going to school, it was my last year and I worked very hard day and night over my studies. I stayed indoors most of the time and my health was slowly but surely breaking down. I took a lot of medicines, but they all did me very little or no good. When the end of the term came and I graduated, I was a total wreck. I was thin and pale, my digestion was bad, I could not sleep nights, and my kidneys were in very bad shape.

"Cast on my own resources, I had to work, but finally my health broke down and I had to go away for a visit. The lady where I stayed told me of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after using three boxes I felt so much better that I got three more. I steadily regained my health, am now working every day and owe my good health to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

Boy had St. Vitus Dance

Miss Rachel Mitchell, Mount Albert, Ont., writes:—

"When my brother was eleven years of age he took St. Vitus' Dance. He could hardly hold anything in his hands and had to go to bed for about a year. Although he had a doctor attending him, he was unable to obtain relief. We read of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and decided to have him try it. While using the first box he began to improve, so we kept on using this treatment with him until he was restored to health, and he is now able to do work of any kind."

Anaemic—Very Weak

Miss Blanche B. Hall, Newtown, N. B., writes:—

"I suffered from anemia for about six years, and became so weak that I could not walk any distance without being completely tired out. During that time I doctored with five different doctors, and took several other treatments. Some of these would help me at the time, but I would soon be back where I started.

"My sister insisted on my trying Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, as she had used this with remarkably good results. I found this treatment helped me, so I gave it a thorough trial, the result of which was that I found myself walking almost any distance without undue fatigue. It is over a year now since I used this medicine and I have had no return of that tired feeling."

Suffered Much Pain

Miss Olive Illerbrunn, Deemerton, Ont., writes:—

"I used to suffer great pain periodically, and would be confined to my bed for days. A friend one day brought me Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to try, and this medicine has helped me wonderfully. After suffering for years it was a great relief to be free from pain. I had tried a number of treatments before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, but this was the first to give me permanent relief."

ADDRESS BY MR. JUSTICE RIDDELL

to others and leave out of view the common ideal of all, the welfare of the race.

The Evil of Syphilis.

The other day in the City of Brantford, a man applied to the City Relief Officer for coal and groceries for his family—he said that he had rheumatism and was unable to work. He was sent to the hospital for examination and after careful investigation the following facts were elicited. The man was found to be syphilitic, also his wife: several children had died and of the living children, the following table exhibits the condition: The eldest child was partially blind and deaf; the next two children were deaf and dumb; the fourth was a cripple; the fifth was an idiot; the sixth was mentally defective; the seventh, 18 months old, gave a positive Wassermann reaction, showing syphilitic infection.

I pause here to say a word as to this case. The existence of a family of this type in a community suggests the desirability of providing means for the detection of hitherto unsuspected disease: that it is widespread is unquestionable for proper investigation will disclose that it exists everywhere. A large percentage of the syphilitics who turn up for treatment both in clinics and in physicians' offices, do not seek assistance until the disease has made such inroads that it affects both the efficiency of the individual and his expectation of life. It would be much better if it were made possible by occasional routine examination of those who suppose themselves to be healthy to bring incipient disease under treatment. If I may be allowed a personal statement—I have myself thoroughly examined at least once a year. The same necessity exists in other fields—incipient diabetes, tuberculosis; cancer might well be detected by the same method. The desirability of routine health examination before marriage would appear to be sufficiently obvious and the establishment of prenatal clinics carefully conducted throughout the country would certainly assist greatly in reducing our present shockingly large infant mortality.

The institution of such desirable measures has come only as the result of public education and the co-operation of the physician and the layman. Social hygiene councils must stimulate such co-operation as a part of their regular programme.

Referring again to the Brantford case—here was a family of nine people which had lived in a small city for many years suffering from a dangerous, communicable disease, undiscovered, the recipients of charity from the people of the city, destined to help to fill the institutions of the province in years to come. Does this not suggest that there should be more done to educate the public as to the prevention of disease? Something is decidedly wrong when it is possible that such a condition of affairs should be allowed to continue over a period of years. Can our physicians not help?

Should We Regulate Marriages?

Is there not some responsibility cast on the sacred officers of the church? Twenty years ago a clergyman undertook to extend the sanction of religion to a union which should never have been permitted. Is it not time that the clergymen should assume some duty in the prevention of marriages which must in the nature of things produce such horrible results? The admonition, "Be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth," has not the addition "with the diseased and feebleminded"—syphilis was not known in those early days.

The educator has his part in this, too: education should not be for the single purpose of making it possible to make a living but it should also be directed to making it possible to live fully. The educator has so far done but little in the direction of educating children as to the pitfalls that are ready for the steps of the unwary and the paths along which happiness is most likely to be achieved. The educator has not educated children as future fathers and mothers, and founders of future families.

This idea could be elaborated to any extent. The practice of certain of our courts should be modified along different lines! Until very recently, the lack of full consideration towards the prostitute has been characteristic of many of our public police courts. It has not been recognized that the prostitute has been largely the product of a badly organized civilization, that she is commonly either mentally defective or an unfortunate who has missed her way because of the lack of a guiding hand. The principle of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth has generally prevailed and punishment has been the best thing we have been able to offer her. Our reformatories have too often not been reformatories at all, but rather schools for crime; and the unfortunate prisoner has emerged from the reformatory only to repeat offences against society again and again.

A Personal Experience.

An experience of my own may be interesting. Some time ago a young woman was convicted before me of manslaughter; she had killed her illegitimate child. I found that she was of low mentality and easily influenced. While in law she was undoubtedly guilty of crime; she had no real appreciation of the gravity of her act. I thought that I should rather prevent the possibility of another like crime than punish the criminal. If I sent her to the penitentiary, I could not justify a long sentence: on the completion of her term she would undoubtedly take up a life of vice. Again, if I released her she would almost certainly give herself to the next seducer, and the next—there would be a succession of pregnancies resulting in miscarriage, further crime or the saddling on the community of feeble-minded children—inevitably she would become syphilitic and a fountain of infection—a public peril and nuisance.

I found that there was in the city an organization of the charitable which took care of children without a home—that organization offered to look after the unfortunate girl if she was placed wholly in their charge: I called her before me and told her that so long as she remained with and implicity obeyed these ladies, I should not sentence her but if she left or disobeyed them, I should send her to the penitentiary for life. I gave directions that under no circumstances was she to be allowed to associate with men unaccompanied by some of her guardians. She has faithfully obeyed her instructions, the community has been spared the curse of another "unfortunate" and her illegitimate criminal and feeble-minded offspring.

I have spoken of immigration by the cradle: I insist that every child has the right and should have the opportunity to inherit as a birthright sound health, physical and mental; to enter into an environment that will ensure development into the perfect child and ultimately the perfect citizen. Slums, disease, delinquency, crime and prostitution form no part of the ideal state of society; no part of even decent and tolerable society.

The social hygiene movement affords the hope and at least opens up the possibility of achieving ideal conditions by the bringing together of the individuals and the units of the community so that they may work harmoniously together. The physician, the clergyman, the educator, the judge and the average citizen whatever unit he belongs to, each has his duty. His duty is to unite with his fellow citizen that they may together achieve the accomplishment of a task which is the eternal task of all true citizens—the building of the ideal state.

Another, the most important fact of all, I must now mention. Physician, clergyman, educator, all may do everything in their power but there is another agency without whose active assistance not much—certainly not the best result—can be expected. I mean the parent.

The parent is the true instructor: the facts of life, its inception and transmission, of disease how and by what means incurred or avoided, of vice and its awful effects, of virtue and wisdom, self-control and resistance to temptation—all these come best and most effectively from the parent.

I know well that many parents believe themselves to be and all too many are incapable of satisfactorily teaching their children these truths of tremendous importance. Those who cannot may learn and if they cannot learn may have their children taught by those who are competent.

But it is the parent we must reach, educate the parent, stir up the parent to a sense of responsibility to the child to which he has given life—life which may be a blessing or a curse according as the parent acts.

Our Canadian Social Hygiene Council is an educative body: we do not treat disease, we teach how disease may be prevented and direct where it may be prevented and direct where it may be cured: every city and every town, nay every municipality should have a branch: and we invite the co-operation of every Canadian man and woman in every rank of life, profession, trade or calling, who desires the good of our country: our boys during the war fought to keep Canada free: shall we not fight to make and keep Canada clean.

A Few Sample Cases.

(I add by way of postscript the account of four cases, including that already mentioned).

Case No. 1.—Mr. T. reported, not feeling well, and was found to have syphilis. His wife was asked to report. She was also found to be infected. The family history is as follows: Charlie, age 13 years, very strongly positive, mentally very dull; 1 child died at 8 months; Elsie, aged 10 years, very strongly positive; Hazel died, 7 months; miscarriage, 1; Joseph, aged 8 years, very strongly positive; Pearl, negative; Florence, negative; baby, negative. The family are living in the basement of a house. They started to build two years ago but only the framework is up. They are very crowded, the basement is very poorly lighted. At intervals they become public charges. The outlook is very poor for the family as the children are all very dull and are not getting on at school. Charlie, age 13, is only in the second book. Mrs. T. married twice. As a result of the first marriage there are two healthy boys. (Note: Social conditions result of syphilis).

Case No. 2.—The L. family. Married 1908. Father, general paralysis of the insane as a result of syphilis. In the asylum now. Mother, a syphilitic. History of pregnancies: First child, age 15; second, still birth: third, 12 years; fourth, 8 years; fifth, 6 years. The entire family is syphilitic. The mother and children undergoing hospital treatment. The father is in the asylum.

Case No. 3.—The following is the family history of a mother under treatment for V.D.S.: The children have been referred to the Health Department, for examination. Married in 1897. Husband, Jiacoma, age 43. First child, died, 16 months, meningitis; 2nd child, miscarriage at 4 months; 3rd child, alive and well; 4th child, died at 16 months of pneumonia and meningitis; 5th child, died at 2 months of pneumonia and meningitis; 6th child, Anthony, age 16, alive and well; 7th child, Albert, age 13, alive and well; 8th child, Paul, age 12, alive and well; 9th child, dead at birth; 10th child, dead at birth; 11th child, dead at birth; 11th child, John, age 7, not well, mentally dull; 12th child, dead at 14 months, pneumonia and meningitis; 13th child, born dead; 14th child, miscarriage, 3 years ago.

Case No. 4.—A man in Brantford applied to the city for relief. He thought he was suffering from rheumatism but on being sent to the hospital it was found that his condition was syphilitic. His family was investigated with the result that it was found first, that at least one child had died and that there were several miscarriages in the family. There were found, however, to be seven living children. Their mother was syphilitic and the following was the condition of the living children: The eldest child was partially blind and deaf; the next two children were deaf and dumb; the fourth was a cripple; the fifth was an idiot; the sixth was mentally defective; the seventh, 18 months old, gave a positive Wassermann reaction. The entire family is syphilitic. Previous to the operation of the clinic the condition of affairs here revealed had not been discovered. The entire family is receiving relief from the city and they will continue to receive relief from institutions and individuals probably for the rest of their lives.

(From an examination of the public accounts of the province, I am prepared to prove that if we could eliminate venereal disease and its consequences more than 70 per cent. of the money spent on hospitals, asylums, etc., would be saved to the province).

Zinoviev Letter Believed In England to be Genuine.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—(By Lloyd Allen United Press Staff Correspondent.)—The British press, with the exception of the Daily Herald, labor organ approved today the government notes to Moscow repudiating the Russian treaties signed by MacDonald and expressing the belief that the Zinoviev letter was genuine. Several papers, however, stress their anxiety that pleasant economic relations with Russia be mantained, The Westminster Gazette hopes "The Soviet government will understand that all parties in this country desire good relations with them". The Times says the rather severe note was "Pitched in exactly the right tone, the temper of the country as shown by the elections, Demands nothing else.

FIRE IN NAPLES.

Moving Picture Films Explode and Set Fire To Umberto Galleries.

NAPLES, Nov. 22. — (Canadian Press).—A fire yesterday broke out in the famous Umberto Galleries, in the centre of the city and threatened with destruction this monument of architecture which was built in 1887-90 and was said to have cost 22,000,000 francs.

The blaze started from the explosion of some moving picture films and gained a disquieting headway before the firemen arrived. Scores of people in apartments over the Arcades became hysterical and swung themselves to the ground by ropes and sheets which were tied together. One man was badly burned while trying to make his escape.

LESS HOME WORK.

Former Sarnia Pastor Arrested in the United States.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Nov. 22—(Canadian Press).—Members of the Woodstock Board of Education have apparently yielded to the time-honored plea of students for less home work, since the Board has passed a resolution which when enforced, should reduce to a minumum the amount of work to be done by pupils outside of the regular study periods. A recommendation was accepted from the management committee which made provisions for one and one-half hours of study in the public schools each day. This time it is intended will take the place of home work so that it will be almost entirely eliminated.

Woodstock School Board Cuts Down Work For Pupil.

SARNIA, Ont., Nov. 22.—According to a letter received at the city police department from the Crief of Detectives at Indianapolis, Ind., Armen A. Holzer, a former pastor of the Central Baptist Church in Sarnia has been arrested in that city on a charge of fraudulent conversion and will face trial next month. Previous information received here indicated that the former pastor had faced a charge in Philadelphia. Rev. Mr. Holzer was here during the war period.

CARRIER PIGEONS MADE GOOD RECORD

One Bird Holds Record of Carrying 51 Messages at War Without Being Injured.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 22—A home for United States army carrier pigeons, veterans of the World War, has been established here at the army pigeon lofts at Ross Field, Arcadia.

Including among the 200 birds at the home, all of which saw service overseas, are three honor birds, so distinguished because of their exceptional performances in action. Two of these, "President Wilson" and "The Mocker," carry scars of battle. "President Wilson" sacrificed a leg and "The Mocker" an eye in the fight for victory.

The third bird hero at the home, "Spike," appears none the worse for his war-time experiences. His claim to fame lies in his record of having carried 51 messages of importance without being injured.

Ray R. Delhauer, pigeon expert in charge of the army lofts, considers these birds heroes no less than the former soldiers.

"President Wilson," a slate-colored homer of great vitality and rapidity of flight, was first used in the tank corps. His work was so well done that he was transferred to the Meuse-Argonne sector and stationed at Cubry. About 5 o'clock one rainy morning he returned from his second flight in this sector with his leg shot off. He had brought important messages at a speed of almost a mile a minute.

On the morning of Sept. 12, 1918, "The Mocker" arrived at his station with one eye destroyed and his head a welter of blood. The message tube he carried contained information of great importance and gave the locations of several heavy artillery batteries which the Germans had been using effectively on the American troops. The American artillerymen had every enemy gun in that sector silenced within 20 minutes after "The Mocker" arrived. Thus "The Mocker" was credited with saving many American lives.

There also are a few German carrier pigeons at the home. They were captured from the enemy. Mr. Delhauer says these birds will be used for breeding and development, as they have proved superior to other varieties.

FAILED TO DO IT JUSTICE.

Despite the efforts of song writers to sing the glories of California they have failed in giving an adequate description of this land of remarkable loveliness. It is a land of perpetual summer, of romance and beauty, of rest and play. Cool, inviting mountains, sun-steeped slopes and vales, balmy breezes carrying the tang of growing fruit, bring the glow of health to the cheeks of the ailing. The world weary find rejuvenation on the sunny bathing beaches, in motoring, riding, bowling, dancing, tennis or golf, while deep sea fishing, surf riding or aqua-planing, keep the more active entertained.

There are two splendid routes to California, the first via Chicago, reached by the famous "International Limited" of the Canadian National Railways, also by late daily evening connection, observation sleeper, from Toronto. The "International Limited" is of course a daily train, and offers a service unexcelled for speed, comfort and convenience. At Chicago connection is made with all the crack trains for the south and southwest.

The other route is by the Continental Limited," leaving Montreal daily, and the "National" from Toronto, daily, via Vancouver and Victoria. This "All-Canadian" route is very popular with the regular tourists to California. It takes you through the world famous Jasper National Park, and Mount Robson Park, and the white-mantled mountains are beautiful beyond description. At Vancouver connection is made with rail and steamship lines serving all destinations in California.

Any agent of the Canadian National Railways will gladly give you complete information or make through reservations for either route.

Kiwanis Daddies Working Overtime In Effort To Make Winter Carnival a Howling Success

Physical Well-Being of Some of the Members Said to be Effected—Jack McKone and Jack Marshall in Trouble —Alec Dick's Generous Offer—Joe Wearing Has a Double-Barreled Proposition.

While the rumour may be without foundation in fact, the impression has somehow gained ground that the feverish activities necessary in carrying out the elaborate plans which the local Kiwanis Club have in mind for their forthcoming Winter Fair have been carried too far. In fact, anxious feminine members of the families of many of the Kiwanis officials are already entertaining fears for the physical well-being of their men folk.

For instance, although The Examiner takes no share of the responsibility for circulating the information, it is said that anxiety over the success of the affair has so far affected the staid habits of the manager of the Business College, Jack McKone, that, instead of setting the old and familiar copy for his novices in the art of using the typewriter, the well-known classic that says "The quick brown fox jumps over the lazy dog,' the spectacled superintendent of the institution that teaches the mastery of the stenographic pot hook and the flying key has set his pupils a line beginning "Karnival Komedy by Kiwanis Kut-Ups", and in consequence all the K's in the Business College are becoming used up with great rapidity. Also, it is whispered, the gentleman in question, who has lately begun a course in the French language, tried to induce the members to have all conversation in the booths carried on in this tongue, but the other members, most of whom don't know anything about French, put their feet down firmly on the project.

The genial president, Jack Marshall has provided such quantities of his own product for his special display that he is getting all "gummed up with the surplus stocks, and is reported to have become engaged in such a heated argument with Jack Allen the other day in his establishment that all the gum ran off the paper and stuck on the floors. The argument was over the question as to whether Jack should be permitted to place accident insurance on the lives of the members who are engaged in the hazardous occupation of providing the shiny pates for the balls that will be shied for the cigars.

Charlie Cook has already lost a lot of surplus flesh over the Fair, and he is worrying greatly over Joe John's extravagance. Joe, so Charlie thinks, is going to treat everyone to a cup of tea and as the attendance has already been estimated for the four days to about thirty thousand, Charlie says something should be done to keep Joe from going 'round in the automobile the Kiwanis Club gave him, collecting boxes for Hugh Nevin, who can't make enough of them in his factory and is getting a supply from his friends. What he is going to do with them is a mystery, but Dame Rumour has it that Walter Byers is going to put ladies' dress patterns in them and use them for door prizes.

Alex. Dick has made a generous offer of enough sawdust to cover the entire floor for the dance every night, to avoid the expense of purchasing wax for the purpose, and has also promised to "call off" for the square dances, and Walter Kidd says he will donate enough ointment to rub on all the bruises that anyone gets in attempting to make a dent in Bob Mackey's bread, on exhibit during the four days. Bob Mackey also says he may be a "dough puncher," but he isn't a cow puncher, and he absolutely refuses to supply milk with the bread that may or may not be handed out from his section.

Harry Huffman, 'sergeant at arms' has hinted that it might be a good thing for him to pass the plate among the crowd. He says he has got so used to collecting fines at the luncheon tables that he would like a chance to try his ability on a larger congregation. However, the Club, after much discussion, decided to try more gentle means of extracting the odd dime, and they also frowned on Joe Wearing's proposition that he be allowed to set up a section where anyone seeking legal advice as to divorces or alimony or line-fence disagreements might be treated free. Joe says thats' the best he can do, unless they let him sing, and the Club decided that they might consider the legal-advice proposition, at that.

Dr. Ed. Wood hasnt specified just what form his services will take. The doc's Kiwanis name, by the way, is "The Safety Valve of the O.T.A." so great things are expected of him.

Walter Stocker, self-styled "gentle man of leisure' of the Kiwanis Club, says he can't be useful and ornamental at the same time, so he has decided to be the latter, and may be consulted on any of the four days, from seven to ten or thereabouts, in the fortune-telling tent, where he will forecast the future, the past and present for the sum of two bits a head.

MILK Is The Best All-Round Food

Milk is the best food we have. There is no substitute. Save on other things if you must, but not on milk. You cannot afford to do without it—growing children especially need plenty. Buy at least half a pint of milk a day for each person in the household. No other food can take its place. Milk looks like a simple fluid, but really it is very complex. A glass of milk contains a mixture of all the important things that make up a mixed diet. One can get the same nourishment from milk as from a meal made up of meat and eggs, sugar and cereals, oils and fats, with salt and water.

One ordinary glass of milk is about equal in fuel value to:

2 large eggs
1 large serving of lean meat
2 moderate-sized potatoes
5 tablespoonfuls of cooked cereal
3 tablespoonfuls of boiled rice, or
2 slices of bread

AMERICAN LOAN TO FRANCE APPROVED

Bill For $100,000,000 Passed Both French Houses —Senate Unanimous.

PARIS, Nov. 22.— The senate and the chamber of deputies last night passed the loan bill under which $100,000,000 are to be advanced to France by American financial interests headed by J. P. Morgan and Company.

The bill passed the chamber of deputies by a vote of 535 to 29. In the senate the vote was unanimous—290 to 0.

In the preamble to the loan bill, Mr. Clementel, minister of finance, said the March loan of $100,000,000 contained a condition for repayment of the country's gold reserve if it was not paid otherwise "thus constituting a veritable mortgage on this reserve."

"The operation we now are asking the chambers to authorize for twenty-five years" the minister added, "entirely does away with this mortgage. The operation gives us security for a long time, during which we shall have at our disposal the manoeuvring mass which plays scuch an efficient role in the protection of our exchange market. Whenever the use of this manoeuvring mass becomes unnecessary for the defence of the franc, owing to improvement in our financial situation, it is needless to state that the treasury would be able to dispose of it for the regulation of sums due in America.

GERMANS RESENT TRIAL.

Press Describes Court Martial of Von Nathusius as Farcical.

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—Until it has received and examined the official protocol of the French court martial which convicted General Von Nathusius of the confiscation of private property while re was stationed near Roubaix, and sentenced him to a year's imprisonment, the German government will take no diplomatic steps in the nature of a protest nor will it demand his immediate release.

Meanwhile, official quarters make no concealment of indignation over the episode which, it is indirectly admitted, presents diplomatic complexities in addition to widespread resentment voiced in the German press. The newspapers designate the trial as a farcical drumhead procedure, especially as General Von Nathusius was denied the ordinary privilege by the Lille court of preparing a suitable defense.

BOY KILLED BEAR WITH A 22 RIFLE

Fort William Youth Was Hunting Rabbits When He Ran Into Bear.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Nov. 22.—(Canadian Press).—George Cryderman 15 years old, is hero of Conmee township. Thursday he shot and killed a bear his only weapon being a .32 calibre rifle. The boy was out with his gun looking for rabbits when his dog began to bark persistently at a brush heap and George on approaching saw a bear stand up yawning. Quick as wink his rifle went to his shoulder and a bullet entered the bear's mouth. As it approached the boy, walking on its hind legs, he fired two more bullets at heart of beast and it fell. The bear weighed 115 pounds and was one year old.

Scout LeRoy Bonnett yesterday was invested with gilt cross of boy scout organization for act of gallantry performed last spring. When a wolf was in act of springing at the throat of Tom Oldale, his chum, scout, Bonnett shot it dead with .32 calibre rifle. Boys were hunting rabbits at the time.

BERLIN'S ARTISTS DISLIKE BIZARRE

Very Few Paintings of a Freakish Nature Are On Exhibit This Year.

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—(Associated Press).—There is a decided return to normalcy in German art, if this year's "jury-free" exhibition in the Berlin Glass Palace is any criterion. This is a free-for-all exhibition in which no jury passes in advance upon what may be exhibited or what should be excluded. Its founders propose to give every artist a chance to show the public what he has done. The exhibition therefore offers an excellent bird's-eye view of current tendencies in German art.

What strikes one especially at this year's exhibition is the fact that among the 1,728 work exhibited, there are very few of a cubist or other freakish nature. There seems to be even a return to the impressionistic in preference to the expressionist school. This is especially true of landscape painting, which is for the most part as realistic as the work of Liebermann or Corot. Younger painters, like Ernst Honigberger, or Gustav Boese, however, seem to employ sharper contrasts of color than did the earlier generation of German painters.

The preponderance of conservative canvasses does not mean, however, that there are not many attempts at art which strike the layman as bizarre. There are pictures, for instance, destined for church altars which are so ugly that one wonders how the originator ever expected to make religious propaganda with them. Similarly, several sculptors have inflicted upon the public statues of women who are fat, unproportioned and homely.

But these are rather the exceptions. On the whole there is an attempt to get away from pronounced freakishness, and to make only such departures from old, accepted standards as the layman can follow.

As might be expected in a country which has gone through the depths of economic depression, the exhibition is lacking notably in humorous subjects. On the other hand, the essentially industrial character of modern Germany is indicated by the large number of paintings having to do with labor and industry.

WHICH CRIME—INSURANCE OR BURGLARY?

In addressing the Underwriters' Association last night at the annual dinner Mr. McElderry illustrated his points with several fitting anecdotes. Among them was the following:

A policeman brought a man before the police magistrate and declared "Your worship, by day this man is an insurance agent and by night he is a burglar."

"Well, which charge is he brought here on," the Magistrate asked.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE.

PENSION AWARDED VETERAN'S WIDOW

Federal Appeal Board Reversed Finding of the Pension Board.

OTTAWA, Nov. 22.—(By Canadian Press.)—The board of pension commissioner issued yesterday a statement respecting the case of the late Sergeant Isaac Walker whose widow will receive $4,000 cash and whose children will receive pensions until they are of age as a result of the department of justice ruling in the case.

The pension board statement declared that Walker suffered from suppurated right ear since childhood. During the war he was wounded in the neck on the opposite side and on discharge, the disability was estimated at five per cent Two years and nine months later he died and on a post mortem examination it was found that death was due to an abscess on the brain extending from the right ear. The pension board ruled that death was not the result of aggravation on service. The federal appeal board reversed this decision. The question of the authority by the appeal board in such a case arose and the latter was upheld by the justice department.

"The pension board has accepted the ruling and has awarded pension to the widow and children who may be eligible," concludes the statement of the board.

FOREIGN WORMS AFTER OUR CORN

A new corn pest has entered this country by way of Texas from Mexico. It is a boring caterpillar closely related to the large cornstalk borer, and it has already been responsible for serious depredations in Texas and New Mexico and is rapidly moving northward. Its march is attributed to the fact that there are two generations hibernating in the corn stubble underground. —U. S. exchange.

UNDERWRITERS' ASSOCIATION HEAR OF SUCCESSION DUTIES

V. J. McElderry Addressed Members at Annual Dinner and Meeting.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Isaac P. McNab Elected President and Edward T. Flood Vice-President.

Peterborough Life Underwriters' Association last night closed its year of activity and embarked upon a new year with optimism and confidence, arising out of a knowledge of its worth to the Insurance men of the city and backed by a strong executive chosen from the managers and the rank and file of the field workers.

The annual dinner which is looked forward to by the wide awake members of the Insurance business, was a cheery affair, not only of entertainment value, but giving every man something of worth in education in his profession. It was presided over by L. W. Scott, last year's president, and was featured by addresses by V. J. McElderry, president of the Rotary Club and Edward T. Flood, manager of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

V. J. McElderry, president of the Rotary Club, addressed the gathering on the Succession Duties Act, which he described provides for duties or tax payable to the province when estates are passing from decedents to legatees. The tax is very old. The governments found that the most inevitable thing is death, and if the decedent has acquired any worldly goods the state steps in to benefit.

The tax originated in England in 1776. Pennsylvania in 1826 enacted a collateral inheritance tax. The Ontario Succession Duties Act was enacted on July 1, 1892. At that time the province was expending large sums of money on asylums and education, and the preamble set out that the proceeds should be devoted to these charitable and humanitarian purposes. This was abandoned and the amount now goes into the consolidated revenue fund for general purposes.

In Ontario the Succession Duties Act deals with three classes of people. The immediate family of the decedent —the lineal descendants. The duties are very much lower in this class than in the other. The Succession Duties Act originally provided that where a man left property to persons in this class there was no duty payable upless the amount of the estate was over $100,000. In 1905 this exemption was reduced to $50,000, and in 1915 to $25,000.

If a man left $24,000 there would be no duty payable, but if his estate was $25,100 there is then a super-tax, the ordinary tax being graduated from 1% where the estate is $25,000 to $50,000. The super-tax is imposed above this sum.

Above $50,000 and up to $75,000 the ordinary tax is 2½% and the super-tax 1½%. Between $75,000 and $100,000 the ordinary tax is 3½% and the super-tax 2%. The ordinary tax where the estate comes to $1,000,000 is 10% and the super-tax 7½%.

In the second class of persons to whom estates may pass, including brother, sister, aunt, and their children the tax is increased since the government considers the hardship through death less in these cases. The exemption is only $10,000 in this class. On an estate exceeding $10,000 and not $25,000 the rate is 5%. Between $25,000 and $50,000 the normal duty is 7% and between $50,000 and $10,000 it is 10%. An estate of $1,000,000 in this class pays 17% normal tax. The super-tax runs from 2% up and on large estates the total tax might amount to 22½%.

The third class consists of absolute strangers by blood, and the tax starts at 7½% and is payable on estates exceeding $5,000. Between $5,000 and $10,000 the tax is 7½%; $10,000 to $50,000 it is 12½%; $50,000 to $100,000 it is 15%, and between $500,000 to $600,000 it is 27½%.

Estates passing in this way outside the family pay a very large tax.

There is no tax imposed in any of these classes until the estate exceeds the minimums set. It is often attempted to dispose of property before death so as to avoid the tax.

No duty is charged on small gifts or on bequests to charitable institutions, or on gifts made three years before death by the donor when the sum does not exceed $20,000. Property is also exempt up to $500 when given bona fide during the life of the donor.

The Succession Duty cannot be evaded by selling the property at a low figure, because the duty would be made payable on the market value. The act can reach out and take cognizance of acts done back to 1892. The tax may also be remitted on estates of persons who are killed in war service for the country.

Looks To True Value.

The tax is applied on the true market value of the estate on the date of the person's death. It is paid according to the will, which may provide that the legacy is to be duty free. If not, then the duty must be paid out of the legacy.

Debts of the deceased may be deducted from his estate, including ordinary funeral expenses, business debts and Surrogate Court costs, but the value of a tombstone, for instance, may not be deducted. The department allows eighteen months for payment of these duties, and 5% is added for delay or deducted for prior payment.

Practically every estate is subject to succession duty where it exceeds the amounts named.

Mr. McElderry read some provisions of the act and explained the relation insurance bears to it and the advantages of insurance in providing for payment of the duties.

Through the Succession Duties Ontario received $3,858,000 in the fiscal year ending October 31, 1923.

In concluding his interesting address, Mr. McElderry remarked that everyone appreciates the services the insurance give to humanity. "When you sell a man insurance," he said, "you are doing a favor to him, and to his immediate relatives."

Insurance policies are liable to Succession Duty, Mr. McElderry said, in answer to questions. If, however, the wife of the decedent has paid the premiums out of her own estate and the policy was hers, the amount of the policy is not subject to duties.

Income Insurance.

Mr. Flood described the various phases of income insurance, which he described as true insurance as opposed to lump-sum insurance which is luxury insurance. His discourse was technical, but highly interesting, as he told of the advantages in incomes rather than single payments of large sums. He urges the insurance men to harder work in bringing the advantages of this form of protection before the public.

J. P. McNab, nominated for the position of president, suggested that new blood be infused in the executive. The meeting prevailed and Mr. McNab took his position as chairman.

Edw. T. Flood was nominated for the position of vice-president and elected unanimously.

Officers Elected

In the election of officers, which followed the addresses, the following were selected: President Isaac P. McNab, manager for Central Ontario of the Dominion Life Insurance Co., last year's vice- president. Vice-president: Edward T. Flood, manager of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., Secretary-treasurer: J. W. Kenmure, cashier of the Imperial Life Assurance Co., who held the position last year. Executive: J. F. H. Wallace manager for Central Ontario of the Sun Life Assurance Co.; W. W. Richman city manager of the London Life Insurance Co., E. Lillico; David H. Moore; N. Tobin; and S. M. F. Touchburn, L. W. Scott manager of the Imperial Life Assurance Co. retiring president is an ex offica member of the executive.

All of the newly elected officers expressed their appreciation of the honors conferred upon them and pledged their support to the work of the Association.

OFFICERS OF IMPERIAL L. O. L. 2767 O F TORONTO.

The Officers of Imperial Lodge, 2767, of Toronto, attired in full Highland Dress, as they apeapered at the recent Scotch night in honor of the Grand Master of Scotland. On their visit to Duke of Manchester Lodge in Peterborough, last night, they wore formal dress.

MORE SETTLERS COMING.

OTTAWA, Nov. 22. — (Canadian Press.)—Under a joint scheme of the British and Canadian Governments to settle in Canada next year 3,000 British families, the Canadian Government is sending to Great Britain six representatives of the Soldiers' Land Settlement Board.

The men will select families to be brought to Canada.

A GOOD MUSICAL PROGRAMME

An interesting and out-of-the ordinary musical programme was given in the assembly hall of St. Alphonsus' Lyceum last evening, when the pupils of the Separate Schools of the city demonstrated before a filled hall their proficency in the Ward method of vocal training which is imparted to them by the Sisters of St. Joseph and also sang for an attentive audience several selections in Latin in the old Gregorian Chant which is being revived in Catholic muscal circles. The ancient liturgical music of the church was ably demonstrated by the fresh young voices of the children boys and girls, who took part. The youthful musicians, imbued with that love for their art which is natural in young singers, seemed to enjoy their own pretty songs and hymns. A hundred and twenty-five of them were on the programme, coming on in sections that represented each school separately The little girls from St. Mary's Convent were in white frocks with blue bands in their hair, while the small lasses from the other schools had smart white blouses and dark skirts. Singing from memory, the young, fresh voices of these bright boys and girls rang out in the music which they evidently loved. Demonstrations like these are interesting from more than one standpoint. They prove conclusively what can be done with children of tender years in the way of a high degree of training in somewhat difficult music they show the interest which youthful minds take in what is elevating and worthwhile, and they bring forcibly to the attention of parents the real value of an all-round education for their children.

The programme opened with vocal exercises by the assembled children, and included separate choruses by boys and girls from each school in turn, the members ranging in years from children of six to those of High school age. The children from the Immaculate Conception parish sang a Marching Song, followed, in Latin by the "Salve Mater Misericordia." Children from the Sacred Heart parish sang "Dearest Lord, we Thank Thee," and an "Ave Verum." Girls from St Mary's Convent were next, singing "The Spring," an illustration of second-year Ward method manual, and a Kyrie" of 16th Century Gregorian chant. The Chancel choir of St. Peter's Cathedral sang "The Grotto of Lourdes" and an "O Salutaris" of the 17th century, and pupils of St. Peter's High School illustrated a lesson in the Ward method, and a song from the charts. The whole chorus also sang "The Story," illustrating the Ward method. Applause followed the rendition of each selection all of which were under direction of Rev. J. Finn, who is the zealous teacher of the Chancel choir of St. Peter's Cathedral. Miss L. Hurley played accompaniments with her usual careful proficiency. An introduction to the vocal programme was the fine playing of the orchestra of St. Peter's High School, heard in several selections. An appreciative audience included His Lordship, Bishop O'Brien and several of the clergy of the city parishes.

The second portion of the entertainment was a playlet entitled "Aunt Deborah's Luncheon" a humourous bit put on in excellent style by pupils of the High School.

Last night, the eve of the Feast of Saint Cecilia, a martyr of the third century who is the patroness of Catholic church music, was an especially appropriate occasion for the giving of the concert by the children.

EGGS SOLD FOR 75 CENTS TO-DAY

Before Noon They Had Dropped 15 Cents, to 60 Cents Per Dozen.

BUTTER 35 TO 40.

The price of eggs reached a new "high" on the farmers' market this morning. They opened at 70 and 75 cents a dozen, dropping at a later hour to 65 and 60 cents. Butter was fairly moderate at 35 to 40 cents a pound. Fowl were as plentiful as ever, and the tables groaned at closing time with the birds that remained unsold. Chickens could be bought for 20 and 25 cents a pound, the few turkeys on view were 30 cents, geese were priced from 22 to 25 cents a pound, and ducks at 23 to 25 cents. Scalded cream was 13 cents for a half pint, without the bottle, and the ordinary raw whipping variety was 30 cents a pint.

Artificial flowers were on sale in the basket section, along with ornamental small baskets for Christmas gifts, and home made woollen socks and mitts. Comb honey of the darker variety was 20 cents. Eating pears in small baskets were 30 cents, and the downstair fruit vendor was calling oranges at four for a quarter, and big green pears at five for the same amount.

Potatoes on the open market this morning were 75 and 85 cents a bag, and seemed fairly plentiful. Turnips were 20 cents a peck and white beans 20 cents a quart, winter radish in large baskets was priced at 50 cents, parsnips were 30 cents a peck, beets and carrots 20 cents.

Honey on the open market was selling at one stand at 85, 80 and 90 cents in five-pound pails of the mixed, clover and basswood variety, and another dealer was asking 18 cents a pound for clover and 13 cents a pound for amber, which sold for $1.25 in 10-pound pails.

The shadow of the sudden striking of one of the market habitues this morning by illness had little effect on the cheerfulness of the usual crowd. There were plenty of people in the throng around the auctioneer, who disposed of a couple of horses as a portion of his morning's work. A little black driver brought $70, and its harness $14, while a big bay work horse finally went for $15.50, after half-dollar bids that crawled up slowly from its opening bid of $5.

Wood in mixed and hard loads ranged in price from $8 to $13.

Apples had a brisk sale and were of good quality, and wide range. Snows were 30 and 50 cents a peck, on different carts, winesaps, a good-looking red apple, were 50 cents also, and Tolman Sweets 55 cents a peck. Baxters were 45 cents, Honey Sweets 30 cents, Cranberry pippins and russets 45 cents, Ontarios 60 cents, and Golden pippins 40 cents. Maidens' Blush apples were 35 cents a peck, and Spies were quoted at 60 and 70 cents. Grapes by the measure were 25 cents. Pears on the open market were 60 cents for a large basket.

Herbs, dried and fresh, were on the market this morning. One man's classification of his stock was recalled as being described as "goose and turkey." Unable to remember the names of sage and savory, he identified his stock by means of the birds they were meant to embellish.

Lamb was selling at 20 and 23 cents a pound, for front and hindquarters, and pork was 16 and 18 cents. Birds in crates were prominent in the open section. Barred Rocks were $1.25 and $2 apiece, White Leghorns and White Rocks $1.

An Industrious small youth who was superintending the sale of one lot of vegetables, took to his heels with haste and joined in the general exodus of small boys that raced after "Uncle Tom's Cabin" parade. His parent said nothing. Evidently he remembered the time when he too considered a band of far more importance than the prices of carrots and beets.

IMPERIAL LODGE PUT ON DEGREE IN PETERBORO'

Toronto L.O.L. Visited Duke of Manchester Lodge 50 —Interesting Ceremony.

MUSICAL RITUAL.

Parade Around Principal Streets Followed By a Banquet With 400 Present.

Imperial L.O.L. 2767 of Toronto, the business men's and professional men's lodge of the Queen city, paid a visit to Duke of Manchester L.O.L. 50 of Peterborough last night, exemplifying a degree and joining in a banquet that lasted until four o'clock this morning. The visiting Lodge was headed by W. Bro. H. L. Hanley, Most Worshipful Master, and was marshalled by Bro. C. A. McLarty, director of ceremonies of the lodge.

Imperial Lodge, which was organized about four years ago, has visited a number of places in Ontario to exemplify the first degree, and has also exemplified this degree before a number of Grand Lodge meetings The degree was put on last night with musical ritual in a very beautiful ceremonial.

Among the old Peterborough boys who accompanied the Lodge was W. Bro Sydney B. Weir, son of Rt.. Worshipful Bro. R. Weir after whom Weir preceptory is named. Bro. Weir is at present deputy superintendent of Toronto Municipal Farm at Langstaff. Another Peterborough man with the lodge was R. W. Bro. Captain Cecil Armstrong.

The visiting lodge was met by representatives of the County of Peterborough lodges, headed by E. F. Reid, County Master, and escorted to the local head quarters Following the degree work a banquet was tendered by L.O.B.A., to which four hundred sat down. Prominent citizens were present to address the gathering, and an address was delivered by Bro. Armstrong. Mr. Armstrong said that Orangeism is growing by leaps and bounds in Canada and new lodges are opening up in every province. Like every other fraternal order, however, the Orange Order is losing a large number of members who are going to the United States. They are being driven there, he interjected, by the policy of the federal government.

Quoting instances, Mr. Armstrong said there are 120,000 persons employed in the Ford plant in Detroit and of this number 30,000 are Canadians. In the Ford hospital, sixty out of 200 nurses are Canadians.

Turning to the activities of the Orange Order the speaker said it seeks homogeny while Roman Catholics seek segregation in schools and government. Not content with common schools they seek separate schools; not content with one language they seek bilinguilism. "The Orange Order has no quarrel with Roman Catholics as religionists," he declared, "but with the political interference of Rome."

Presentations Made

A pleasing feature of the occasion was the presentation to Captain Armstrong's father W. H. G. Armstrong of an honorary membership in Duke of Manchester Lodge, of which he was a charter member in 1908 on its formation. The Imperial Lodge of Toronto was also presented with an altar-jack. Imperial Lodge presented an "Aaron's Rod" to Duke of Manchester Lodge. Mr. Armstrong presented a portrait of his father to the local lodge.

The Toast List

With Wor. County Master E. F. Reid in the chair, the following toasts were given:

Imperial L.O.L. No. 2767, proposed by Bro. Roland Denne, responded to by W. M. L. E. Hawley and P.W. M., W. H.. Elliott

TWO DAY BAZAAR WAS BIG SUCCESS

Ladies of St. Paul's Church Worked Hard for the Occasion.

The two-day bazaar held by the members of the Ladies' Aid Society, of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, in their Sunday school room, during Thursday and Friday of this week, was extremely successful. There was a splendid attendance, and the ladies who worked so energetically realized a nice sum from their efforts. The Sunday school rooms at St. Paul's lend themselves admirably to a bazaar. The small separate alcoves seem admirably adapted for such a purpose and make a very attractive and convenient arrangement. The decorations were carried out in artistic fashion and indicated a great deal of care and attention. General convenors for the occasion were Mrs. R. W. Cormack and Mrs. Chas. White. The president of the society Mrs. I. Moore, looked after the reception of the visitors to the bazaar.

Mrs. R. Jordan had charge of the pretty tea-room, where lighted piano lamps, ferns and floral decorations of red carnations, with big russet 'mums and orange tulle on the central table, made an effective setting. Supper was also served, and one of the items on the menu were the piping hot biscuits made on the premises.

In charge of the home-made cooking sale, where mauve and green streamers decorated the alcove, were Mrs. S. Taylor, assisted by Mesdames Garbutt and Morgan. A large double section was converted into a booth for the sale of handkerchiefs and dainty babies' wear, arranged with bright red and white arche., and looked after by Mesdames J. D. Cameron, A. Moir, R. W. Cormack and T. C. Elliott. Mrs. R. W. Davidson was convenor of the novelty booth, arranged with a chenille-like fringe of orange and purple paper, and was assisted by Mrs. Gray and Miss Lena Eakins. The red, white and blue section where quilts were on view, was supervised by Mrs. Frank White, and Mrs. E. J. Seawright; a pretty mauve and white arrangement formed the background for the fancy work, sold by Mrs. James Skinner, Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. Manning and Miss Montgomery, and flannels were sold at a section ornamented with autumn leaves, and a green and yellow lattice. This was in charge of Mrs. W. Graham, Mrs. C. E. Blewett and Mrs. Morrison.

Under a canopy of mauve, pink and green, with a striking central decoration of tiny umbrellas, candy was sold by Mrs. J. P. Pulkinghorn and Mrs. C. Sherwood, and aprons were on view in the green and white corner in charge of Mrs. W. Vickers, and Mrs. W. J. Hancock.

WINS OTTAWA TRIP.

Miss Pearl Petrie Secured the Highest Number of Points at Winter Fair.

Miss Pearl H. Petrie, of Otonabee, returned home today after spending three days in Toronto and at the Royal Winter Fair, Miss Petrie was successful in scoring the highest total number of points in the Girls' Judging competition held in connection with Peterborough Idustrial Exhibition last fall, thus winning the free trip to the Royal Winter Fair, this trip being the gift of Mr. Roland Denne president of the Peterborough Exhibition Board. Miss Petrie reports a very enjoytime and appreciates Mr Denne's kindness very much.

RUTHERFORD AVE. SHED WAS BURNED

Small Boys Have Been in the Habit of Playing Around Barn.

A fire of an unknown origin this morning at 2.30 o'clock destroyed the woodshed at the rear of an empty house at 153 Rutherford avenue. The fire was first noticed about 2.32 am. and an alarm was sent in, but by this time the fire had a good start and when the firemen arrived on the scene the building was in a mass of flames and nothing could be done, but to keep the flames from spreading to a barn across the lane. The building as a total wreck and the loss is estimated at about $500.00 while the barn across from it was scorched by the intense heat. The cause of the fire is unknown, but it is reported that a number of boys in this district have been in the habit of playing around the shed and a lighted match or a cigarette stub may have been the cause of the fire.

Hamilton Detective Gets Threatening Letter K.K.K.

HAMILTON, Nov. 22—(Canadian Press).—Albert Gillespie, who with Detective Bleakley, interrupted an alleged initiatory ceremony of the Ku Klux Klan and arrested Almond Charles Montieth, organizer, on a charge of carrying a loaded revolver, yesterday received a threatening letter, signed "K.K.K."

The contents of the letter were brief but pointed. Part of the letter read: "Beware, your days are numbered."

A statement to the effect that the local Orange Lodge is in no way connected with the activities of certain persons to establish the K.K.K. here was issued by the Executive Committee of Hamilton District Orange Lodge.

BRASS SCORED FIRST VICTORY OF SEASON DEFEATING PORCELAIN

Killenbeck Relieved By Mahood When Porcelain Got Six Runs—Teachers Defeat Rotary—Belmonts Trounce Bowlers.

The Porcelain took a fall from their high perch in the standing of the Mercantile section last night when the Brass unexpectedly trotted onto the field full of pep and fighting spirit and walked off again one hour later with the big end of a 12 to 8 score tucked nicely away, thereby winning their first game this season, and doing so against one of the strongest team the Mercantile league.

Nicholls was unsteady and the Brass got to him for 10 hits while his team mates gave him rather ragged support at times. Killenbeck started for the Brass and pitched a nice game for the first three innings, blanking the loosers in both run and hit columns, but he blew in the fourth, giving the Porcelain six runs and allowing six hits. Stuffy Mahood went to his assistance in the fifth inning and fiished the game, holding the loosers to six safeties in the last five innings.

TEACHERS WIN.

The Rotary nine put up a stubborn fight against the fast Teacher aggregation in the final game last night, but lost out by 10 to 3 in a nine innings game that was full of both bad and good baseball, but both teams turned in a fair game.

Gord Matthews did his stuff for the loosers. He was hit hard and often by the teachers but good support kept the score down.

Dunkerley's hooks were breaking in fine style last night and he held the Rotary gang to 5 scattered hits and 3 runs. His team mates gave him good support.

The Bowlers intended to take a fall out of the Belmonts last evening but came within a mile of doing it when the Belmonts piled up 22 runs and held the lawn artists to 3 lone tallies.

The Belmonts did a lot of clouting and turned in some nice fielding stunts, but outside of that and a few nice plays and cat ies ma:le by the losers, the game was dead.

Holyman pitched for the Belmonts and Fox for the Bowlers

TIGER FLOWERS, NEGRO SCRAPPER IS VEGETARIAN AND RELIGIOUS

Dusky Middleweight of Atlanta is Member of Stewards of Methodist Church—Iron Man of the Ring.

BY JAMES W. JENNINGS

"Please Omit Flowers." This quotation is not culled from an obituary notice, but is the invariable reply of almost every boxer of prominence offered a list of prospective opponents that includes the name of Theodore (Tiger) Flowers, the dusky middleweight of Atlanta, Ga., who is zooming along the fistic firmament like a great black comet.

The "Tiger" flopped right in the forefront of Fistiana when he won a newspaper decision over Harry Greb world's middleweight champion, in a ten-round bout at Fremont, Ohio, last August. The conditions laid down by Greb before the tilt made it impossible for him to lose his throne.

Flowers easily bested the titleholder in face of circumstances which would have made the average fighter froth at the mouth.

Greb would not consent to the match unless Flowers agreed to come in the ring at catchweights and neither was to weigh in. In addition, Harry brought along his own hand-picked reefree from Pittsburg, his home town, in the person of Eddie Kennedy, and folks don't know yet whether Ed can count past five.

Could Trim Dempsey

Greb, in a statement to a newspaper man right after the fight, said: "Flowers is the greatest boxer I ever faced in the ring. He can beat Heavyweight Champion Jack Dempsey in a contest of ten rounds. He gave me a fight I will never forget and showed me a lot of things that I never knew before."

Little was known of the new black threat, so our investigation bureau interrogated his manager, Walk Miller, and unearthed a few facts that may interest the fans, who will undoubtedly see "Tiger" in action at the Madison Square Garden before the winter is over.

Theodore Flowers is 29, and never boxed until he was 25. He is married and has a daughter 3 years old.

Perhaps the queerest angle on the "Tiger" is the fact that he is deeply religious, a devout Christian and carries a testament with him on all his tours, making it an unbroken ruel to read three paragraphs each morning and evening. At home he is a member of the board of stewards of the Methodist church in Atlanta, Ga.

Unlike his namesake, the "Tiger" is a strict vegetarian and opposed to meat in any form. He is a quiet, good-natured chap outside the ring, but a human cyclone within. Flowers has fought in Mexico and Cuba, and may have to go to Iceland unless the big battlers stop dodging him. He will fight any man living, regardles of weight, including Dempsey or Wills. What an ambitious and careles pusson.

Iron Man of the Ring.

A normal middleiweight in poundage, he has fought but two matches with men in his own class, being forced to take on light heavies and heavyweights in order to provide for his daily victuals.

Flowers is a sort of "Iron Man McGinnity" of the roped arena. He has met as many as three adversaries in one night, stopping them all. His most recent stunt of this sort was performed in Philadelphia a week ago, when he stopped two fighters insode of four rounds. He knocked out Jerry Hayes of Philadelphia in the second round and cuffed the other part, one Hughey Clements, to sleep in just four minutes of battling.

The "Tiger" has never been defeated by any fighter where the match went the limit, but was knocked out by Kid Norfolk, Sam Langford and Panama Joe Gans, lost two technical knockout affairs at the hands of Lee Anderson and Jamaica Kid and has bested all his conquerors on later dates. His string of straight victories now covers a period of two years.

He has defeated Harry Greb, Billy Britton, Andy (Kid) Palmer, Joe Lohman, Ted Jamieson, Frank Carbone Frankie Murphy, Tut Jackson, Jimy Flynn, Lee Anderson, Bob Lawson, Panama Joe Gans, Sailor Darden Jimmy Darcy, Jack Ray, Jamaica Kid Battling Norfolk and others.

OPIUM PARLEY'S SCOPE CHECKED

Japan Voted For Limitation of International Conference Action at Geneva.

LIVELY SESSION.

GENEVA, November 22. — An effort to broaden the scope of the international opium conference met with a check on Friday when the business committee, after a lively session lasting into the night, took action, seven votes to four, tending to shut out consideration of several points in the plan submitted by the United States.

China, Cuba and Italy supported the United States in its endeavor to make the conference agenda extensive enough to cover all aspects of the opium and narcotic drug evil.

Japan voted for a motion to limit the conference action, but with reservations.

M. Sugimura, the chief Japanese delegate explained last night that the subject at issue probably would be brought to the floor of the conference, and fought out at a plenary meeting.

The effect of yesterday's action is to limit the conference strictly to matters defined in the agenda as the majority interpret the agenda whereas some of the delegations want to have inluded the question of the importation of so-called prepared opium which the preliminary conference failed to settle, although it figured on its agenda.

COLORED FIGHTERS LOOM AS MENACE

Wills, Norfolk, Flowers and Brown Cause Unrest in the Fistic Circle.

BY JOE WILLIAMS

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Ebony blacks, light browns and fashionable tans are returning to popularity as sartorial effects in our leading fisticuffian circles.

Which is to say the colored man er is coming back as a prize-ring factor.

Bounce your optics over this list:

HARRY WILLS, heavyweight.

KID NORFOLK, light heavyweight.

TIGER FLOWERS, middleweight.

AL BROWN, flyweight.

Wills is no Peter Jackson, yet he is a better than average heavyweight. He is just as ring-smart as Dempsey is and a better defensive fighter besides. What he lacks chiefly is aggressiveness. He hits hard enough to demand respect and he is not slow. Dempsey would have a hard time stopping him in a short fight.

Flowers Next to Greb.

Norfolk is the least promising of the sooty four. Mainly because the Kid has been in the ring for more than 10 years and is pretty well shop worn by now. Still, they think enough of him to match him with Tommy Gibbons in a wind-up fight in Madison Square Garden. And Norfolk may give the Irishman a few anxious moments at that.

Flowers is not exactly a beginner, either, but he is far from the frazzled stage. He is he son of a Georgia parson and a southpaw. In action he resembles a cross between an agitated whirlwind and an enthusiastic typhoon. Speed is his metier. Next to Greb, the champion, he is probably the best lightweight in the game today.

The ashen-hued southerner however will never be great. His attack lacks power and precision. He is more like Dundee than Leonard as a puncher. I saw him hold Greb even some months ago in one of those no decision step alongs. Greb as usual, was in bad condition. Flowers should have won by a wide margin, but he was over-awed. Greb out-smarted him.

Brown Coming Champ?

The outside world hasn't heard much of Al Brown. In time, though, it may hear plenty. Brown is a Harlem product and shapes up like another George Dixon. He seems to have everything, speed, cleverness and a punch. Recently he knocked out Frankie Ash, flyweight champion of England.

Brown is the most astonishing freak boxing has ever known. Standing five feet, ten inches, he weighs but 112 pounds. Few fighters in the game, aside from the heavyweights, outstrip him in height. His legs are pipe stems. All his weight is in his shoulders and arms where it belongs. Fitzsimmons, the immortal Bob, was that way.

Wills, Norfolk, Flowers, Brown. Not a bad list. Flowers and Brown especially have a chance to reach lofty summits.

It is doubtful however, if any of them will ever match the illustrious deeds of some of their colored predecessors. Jackson, for instance, who was even up with Jim Corbett after 61 rounds; Dixon, who stood toe to toe with the McGoverns, Corbetts and Attells, and Langford, who dropped the Heavyweight Johnson.

NEWS FROM DOURO.

"Not Sufficient Funds" Causes Concern To Douro Farmers.

DOURO, Nov. 22.—There is a good deal of consternation among many local farmers who sold stock to a buyer well-known here, as he has been buying all summer through the district. Non Nov. 1 a carload or more was loaded at Indian River, payment being made by cheque. When the cheques were presented there were no funds. In a day or two the buyer came back offering notes due in four days. Some accepted them and some refused, but all are in the same position now, no stock and no money. Whether the buyer will return later and pay up or whether the sellers have been swindled time will tell. Local people are out from three to five hundred dollars. One good effect will likely be that farmers will patronize the Co-operative Shipping Association better.

New Members.

A meeting of the Holy Name Society was held on Sunday afternoon when a few new members were enrolled and important business transacted.

DOWNEYVILLE NEWS

DOWNEYVILLE, Nov. 21—Mrs. Bradley of Oklahoma who has spent some time the guest of her brother, Michael Garvey, has returned home.

Miss Hazel Meehan left on Friday for Detroit, Mich., where she will visit friends.

Mr. Eugene Downey spent the week-end the guest of friends in Tweed.

Mr. and Mrs. Trombley of Peterboro spent Thanksgiving the guests of Mrs. Thos. Harrington.

Mr. and Mrs. James Piggott have returned from their honeymoon to take up residence here.

Miss Delphina Piggott of Cobourg spent Thanksgiving at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fox celebrated their Golden wedding here Tuesday, November 4. In the morning Rev. Father Galvin celebrated High Mass and a reception was held at their home during the day and at 6 o'clock a substantial dinner was served to the family and grandchildren. All the family were present except Mrs. James Callahan of Detroit, who was unable to be present. Mr. Fox is 72 years of age and works his own farm, doing all the work himself. In the evening the neighbors gathered in and took them by surprise and the following address was read:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Fox,—We your friends and neighbors have gathered here this evening to join with you in celebrating your golden jubilee. It is not often we have an opportunity of extending such hearty good wishes as are due to you today. During those fifty years in this neighborhood you have proven yourselves worthy of the highest esteem.

In all our work and troubles you were ever ready to help or console us, and although your own trials were many you always looked on the bright side. As pioneer you have witnessed the growth of the community from the time it was little more than a small clearance. Many times we have heard Mr. Fox tell of the time when he walked to Peterboro, back home, then out to the cross and danced all night and we feel safe in saying that he is capable of doing it again. This has always been known as "Fox's Corner" and we hope that it will retain its name for many years to come. Your home has been a calling station for numerous travellers who were always cordially treated and welcomed to a night's lodging.

As a small token of friendship we ask you to accept this piece of gold and hope that we may be able to assemble here ten years hence to celebrate your diamond jubilee in a similar manner.

Signed on behalf of your neighbors: Thos. Lucas, Jas. Carroll, Bernard Murray and M. D. Harrington.

During the day the following address was read by Michael from their children:

Dear Father and Mother,—We, your children and grand children are assembled here this evening to celebrate an anniversay which for you as well as for us must be a happy one. Sorrows there may have been intermingled with the joys of the past but these fade from the memory as you look back on the fifty years of married life. Doubtless you have watched with pride the many rapid strides of progress made in the development of the country and though laboring in the early years to establish a home may have been difficult at times the reward gained is more deeply appreciated. Allow us to congratulate you dear parents and may God grant you peace ad contentment to the end of your days. As a parting word we ask you to accept this clock with our sincere wishes for many more days of future happiness. Signed on behalf of your children and grand children.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

PHAFF BAILED AND GIVEN A PASSPORT

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(Canadian Press). — Max Phaff, New York lawyer, who recently spent some time in jail at Brest, France, and some days in court on trial on charges of rum piracy, returned home on the steamship President Harding Friday. He announced he would file an action for damages against the French owners of the pirated liquor which was aboard the French steamer Mulhouse. It was they, he said, who had caused his detention and trial. Phaff, now at liberty on 5,000 francs bail pending further action, asserted that his trial had been irregular, that newspapermen had been barred from what he termed the "star chamber sessions" and that garbled reports of the proceedings had been given out by French officials. Finally, he said, he was released on small bail and handed a passport in an obvious effort to put an end to the proceedings.

Phaff said it was his belief that the Paris firm of Maur Francaise, owners of the pirated liquor, had caused his arrest in the hope that those really responsible would come forward to exonerate him and thus incriminate themselves.

The lawyer was accused of having aided the hijackers who raided the Mulhouse off the New Jersey coast last July 24, when her cargo of liquor and all money in her safe were stolen. Two employees of Maur Francaise who had travelled with him from London to Paris made affidavit that he had drunkenly boasted to them that he had participated in the raid. Phaff asserted that he had never drank in his life, and denied that he had discussed rum-running with his French companions.

He asserted that the Brest authorities refused to let him produce witnesses who would have given him a perfect alibi and that he was not permitted to see his attorneys.

RENTENPFENNING TO DISAPPEAR

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—(Associated Press).—The "Rentenpfennig," a brass coin issued by the Rentenbank as a stop-gap during the transition from the inflation period to complete stabilization, will soon be a thing of the past. The German Government has just authorized the issurance of 30,000,000 marks' worth of pfennig coins which are to have the pre-war name of "Reichspfennig."

FOUR GIGANTIC SEA VESSELS IN "SEA HAWK."

More Than a Thousand Sailors, Corsairs and Galley Slaves on Boats.

Having viewed the year's biggest dramas and spectacles dealing with adventure on land, local photoplay lovers are curiously awaiting the initial showing of what is regarded as the greatest sea drama ever filmed. Frank Lloyd's production of "The Sea Hawk," a First National Picture, adapted from Rafael Sabatini's celebrated novel of the same title. It will be shown at the Capitol Theatre next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

"The Sea Hawk," for five years one of the best sellers on the popular fiction shelf, and dealing with the colorful adventures of English knights and sweethearts and Barbary corsairs, has required a gigantic background for its many vivid scenes.

Four gigantic sea going vessels of the Sixteenth Century, exact in every detail and manned by over a thousand sailors, corsairs, galley slaves and officers, participate in much of the action, several naval battles, during which ships ram into each other head on, then lash themselves together, while their crews engage in hand-to-hand combat, are said to be but a few of the unique and highly exciting scenes of the production.

Having to do with the life of Sir Oliver Tressilian as a Spanish prisoner at the oars of the galleon, his escape and final elevation to the command of a Moorish gallease and all of the basha's corsairs, "The Sea Hawk" reveals many bits of historical facts never visualized before, and there is said to be many thrills and heart throbs in the episodes depicting the struggles of the late English knight to convince his sweetheart of his innocence of the murder of her brother, and to regain his lost standing among his countrymen, and in the favor of Asad, ruler of Algiers.

The sea scenes are said to be the most unique and the biggest in physical action, although they do not overshadow the gorgeousness of the early English scenes and the quaint Oriental beauty of the Algerian sequences. More than $85,000 in costumes were designed and executed for the members of "The Sea Hawk" cast that the details of early fashion might not be neglected.

Milton Sills heads the exceptional cast in Mr. Lloyd's big spectacle, playing the dual character of Sir Oliver Tressilian and Sakr-el-Bahr. Enid Bennett has been given the principal feminine role, with Lloyd Hughes, Marc MacDermott, Wallace Beery, Frank Currier, Wallace MacDonald, Hector V. Sarno, Fred de Silva, Kathleen Key, Mme. Medea Radzina, Christine Montt, Lionel Belmore, Robert Bolder and others of note lending support.

Among the many beautiful scenic effects are some of the most successful night scenes ever filmed—in particular a night battle between an English frigate manned by 400 men and a Moorish gallease rowed by 200 slaves and defended by twenty-five brass cannons and a hundred spearmen and bowmen.

The management of the Capitol Theatre will present "The Sea Hawk," with an elaborate musical programme.

CAPITOL.

"Gerald Cranston's Lady" is the refurbished title of the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre for the last two days of this week, along with Jack Dempsey in "The Health Farm Wallop," Fox News, Aesop's Funny Fables and Topics of the Day. The Dempsey picture is one of those comedies in which the big prize-fighter is the principal figure, and gets across in fine style.

The feature suffers slightly from a draggy treatment, but tells one of those stories that appeal to the romantic. Laura Jean Libby element. Alma Rubens is a seldom-seen star in Peterboro, and she enacts the role of Hermione, the aristocratic lady, to perfection. Gerald Cranston is obsessed by ambition. He has risen in life from a start as a ragged English newsboy to be a rich and successful industrial magnate of London. Then he marries a beautiful, indigent widow with a son, and they agree to leave love out of their pact. Ibbotsleigh, a former suitor of Hermoine, comes on the scene, and double-crosses Cranston in a deal over Nigeria tin mines. The lady's coldness toward her husband is combined with a certain degree of frank and cruel speaking that polite screen sub-titles rarely register. Angela, her cousin, tries to vamp Gerald and nearly succeeds in her attempt. The situation winds up to a satisfactory and sentimental finale.

One notable portion of this picture is the realistic impression gained from the "above the clouds" pictures of the aerial trip from London to Paris, when the big plane rides through a storm. The English Channel, Paris and the Eiffel Tower, and the French countryside are seen clearly from above, in a rather remarkable series of projections.

AT THE GRAND.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN.

That sterling old play, that used to thrill our grandparents, and has lost none of its punch in over half a century on the road, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," was the attraction at the Grand last night, when the Stetson Company, veterans in this classic of slave days, gave a splendid production.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" is the oldest example of what theatrical people are wont to call "hokum," this is that it never fails to move the audience. It does not matter that there could never have been a child so perfect as little Eva, a lawyer so ridiculous as Marks, a slave so sweet tempered and patient as Uncle Tom, a picaninny as mischievous as Topsy, or a slave owner quite as black-hearted as Simon Legree. People still go to the theatre to weep over the death of Eva and Uncle Tom, to laugh at the antics of Topsy, and the drollery of Marks, and to loathe the cruelty of Legree. The escape across the ice, the fight in the pass, the persecution of Uncle Tom, and all the other features of the play, seemed to have the same effect on last night's audience as they did on play-goers of decades back.

The Stetson Company has been presenting "Uncle Tom's Cabin" for over fifty years, and the old standards are maintained in the present production. A large cast handles the principal roles effectively, while scenically the show leaves nothing to be desired. A coloured quartette contributes some splendid numbers, and the company's own orchestra supplies an excellent musical programme.

All in all it is an outstanding presentation of the old classic, which will come to the Royal Theatre for a three days' run beginning Monday.

In "Mademoiselle Midnight" Miss Murray plays two character roles—that of a French lady in the court of Napoleon III., and that of a daughter of Mexico, a senorita famed for beauty, wealth and cleverness.

The supporting cast is made up of many favorites, among them being Monte Blue, Robert McKim, Robert Edeson, John Sainpolis, Otis Harlan, Nigel de Brulier, Nick de Ruiz an Evelyn Selbie. Robert Z. Leonard directed and personally supervised the picture for Tiffany Productions. It is released by Metro.

The story is about a girl who is afflicted with a curious midnight madness, which comes at unexpected moments. Renee de Quiros is the sheltered daughter of Don Pedro de Quiros, who owns a vast cattle ranch in Mexico. She has interited her peculiar malady from her grandmother, a lady in the French court of the Second Empire.

Jerry Brent, a young American meets Renee when he comes to see her father about a plan for friendlier relations between the two countries. They themselves make a good start in that direction.

One night, when Renee and her cousin, Carlos, are attending a gay fiesta in a nearby town, Manuel, an outlaw leader, raids the ranch to kidnap her and murders her father. Swearing vengeance, Renee goes to Mexico City to live with her father's brother. She is worse off than ever, for the latter is in league with Manuel, and has promised his niece's hand to the bandit.

In order to break Renee's will, her uncle has her locked in her room under surveillance, and a fake doctor tries to convince her that her mind is affected and needs treatment. When her cousin, Carlos, and the priest who has guarded her in her youth, come to call, the uncle tells them Renee's mind has gone and she cannot be seen.

Carlos communicates with Jerry Brent, and the two of them, planning to rescue Renee, discover that the uncle is head of a revolutionary organization which is planning to overthrow the government.

The revolutionists hold a wild party to celebrate their anticipated victory. Renee, escaping from her room, enters into the midst of it. The frenzy of midnight is upon her and she does a mad Saturnalian dance which stirs the bandit, Manuel, to reckless endearments. In terror she draws a dagger and stabs and wounds him.

Jerry Brent breaks into the party and tries to escape with Renee. They are surrounded by their enemies when Carlos arrives at the head of a cavalry troop. There is a terrific battle in which the revolutionists are routed, and Renee and Jerry Brent are led to church for a midnight wedding.

The picture is divided into a prologue, showing the court of Napoleon III. at the time when Maximilian is being sent upon his tragic adventure as Emperor of Mexico, and the main story of modern Mexico.

"Mademoiselle Midnight" was written by Carl Harbaugh and John Russell, and was photographed by Oliver T. Marsh.

"THE BALLAD SINGER"

Theatrical stars come and go but the "Ballad Singer" is in perpetual favor and no people on this earth owe more to him than the Irish.

Time has failed to dull his popularity. Historians and leaders of Education in America claim the "ballad singer" helped more to preserve her nationality than any other form of education or amusement. It was no uncommon sight before the war to see the "ballad singer" at the fairs and market places rendering their own compositions to groups of fellow countrymen. Credit goes to these stirring poets for keeping the fire of love for their native land alive century after century. Just as the songs of Homer kept Grecian patriotism stirred in the hearts of her people so also the praises sung by Bobbie Burns of Scotland's bonnie banks and brays which her people cherish wherever a descendant of that race if found, and will to the end of time. With the demise of the "Irish ballad singer of old" there came into being a new type—the cultured type—leaders in the musical world like John McCormack and Gerald Griffin.

Both of these highly gifted "gentlemen ballad singers" make an annual tour of the World, visiting Australia, New Zealand, New England, Ireland, the States and Canada in fact every spot where English is spoken. Yet it makes no difference as these gentlemen are linguists and sing with ease in any language and are popular favorites the world over. "Herald" has gone a step further than "John" by surrounding himself with scenery and players in an Irish American comedy, entitled, "The Rose of Killarney," by using the make-believe of the stage to give real atmosphere ot the rendition of the ballads; which by the way, he composes and sets to music himself The great artistic and financial success of these two artistic "ballad singers" goes to prove the old, old story that it takes centuries for any face no matter how long exiled they may be to loose their distinctiveness. It is unusual to find two stars of such magnitude appear almost simultaneously on the theatrical horizon like "John" and "Gerald", at the Grand Saturday Nov. 29th.

AT THE REGENT.

THEFT OF DIAMOND CREATES MYSTERY

The disappearance of a large diamond from the necklace of a wealthy woman and the substitution of a piece of worthless "paste," so-called, in its place, causes the arrest of a young jeweler's clerk in "The Great Diamond Mystery," the new Shirley Mason picture, which comes to the Regent Theatre next Monday. Trouble does not end there, however for within a few hours after the precious gem is lost the head of the diamond firm is killed—and the young clerk is accused of the murder. It happens that this same young clerk is engaged to marry a young novelist, the part played by Miss Mason who has just completed a murder mystery story based on the supposition that a murderer inevitably returns to the scene of his murder. William Collier, Jr., is seen as the diamond clerk.

How Ruth Winton, the writer proves the truth of her theory in order to save her sweetheart from the electric chair and herself from dishonor is thrillingly told in "The Great Diamond Mystery." Denison Clift is credited with the direction of this picture, which, it goes without saying, is a William Fox production.

AT THE ROYAL.

NEW MAE MURRAY FILM COMING MONDAY.

Story of Mexico With Star as Senorita.

With languorous and beautiful Mexico as a background and a thrilling story of love and intrigue set in it like a jewel, Mae Murray is said to have the best role of her career in "Mademoiselle Midnight," her latest picture, which will come to the Royal Theatre for a three days' run beginning Monday.

In "Mademoiselle Midnight" Miss Murray plays two character roles—that of a French lady in the court of Napoleon III., and that of a daughter of Mexico, a senorita famed for beauty, wealth and cleverness.

FRECKLED WESLEY BARRY ENJOYS DISTINCTION OF BEING A FILM VETERAN AT SEVENTEEN.

In his first appearances, the youthful star-to-be received $2 a day for his work in the old Kalem comedies. Now the young star's weekly salary check runs into the four figure mark, and he is one of the most widely-known figures—young or old—in the screen world.

No other "kiddies" star ever has even touched the record made by Wesley Barry. His early popularity was gained in parts that permitted him to be just Wesley Barry—all boy with a freckled face and an appealing smile that endeared him to all classes of theatre-goers. His last half dozen pictures have shown him at the adolescent age in which he has been first aid to harassed lovers, a power in the foiling of deep-laid plots by villains of the most despicable type, and a youth to whom fear was a world not known.

And now Warner Bros., who for several years, have sponsored the Wesley Barry pictures, have given the youthful prodigy a screen vehicle that permits him to do the best work of his career.

"George Washington Jr.," a picturization of George Cohan's remarkable stage success, which will play at the Royal Theatre beginning Thursday, is Wesley Barry's current offering, and the Cohan touch, combined with the Barry cleverness, form a rare combination that insures the popularity of this offering.

It seems only yesterday that "Freckles" Barry was the idol of every youngster. To-day he is a finished actor—one who readily absorbs direction and makes the most of every situation. The mannerisms of George Cohan on the stage lost none of their effectiveness and charm in the hands of Wesley Barry for the screen version of "George Washington Jr." Plenty of action, thrills galore in a fast-moving plot give the Barry "fans" an opportunity to cheer their favorite, and a supporting company of clever actors will make this picture the most enjoyable that the youthful star has yet offered.

The supporting cast consists of Gertrude Olmstead, Leon Bary, Chas. Conklin, Otis Harlan, William Courtwright and Edward Phillips.

Eleven years in studios and still a star. What youngster now featured in the films will equal Wesley Barry's record?

GERALD GRIFFIN SAYS:

Theatregoers have been fooled so often and I don't blame them for being skeptical of everything new—they do not know me, but they will after my first appearance—wherever I appear with my company for the first time—I sign two contracts—First 'My Introduction Contract' — Second 'My Repeater Contract' — I have a clause in my First Contract that the scales of prices must be at cut rates—Local managers all say it cheapens my production, my company and myself—that's all nonsense—Local theatregoers are not familiar with me or my play—so I have to show them—Empty seats don't talk—So those who come at the cut rate will be my boosters for my 'Repeater Engagement'—It takes years for a star to become a popular local favorite—I do so by my plan on one visit—I take the public into my confidence and truthfulness and confidence wins—I have proved that the world over by my box office records in Australia, New Zealand, England and Ireland and the United States of America—I don't take year after year, but I do so on my first visit by my special cut rate plan—so that I have hundreds of boosters for my 'Repeater Engagement.' Just think, a real live comedy with music—a great cast—and, well—you say the rest about me—at prices you pay for a movie!

But these prices are only this time—Once—On my next visit you'll be standing in line to pay for seats at a premium—that's my experience the world over, and I am girdling the globe for the fifth time—going back to be greeted by the same faces that once saw me and my company at cut rate prices, and I will be greeted by capacity houses everywhere. I know from experience I have a great play—a great cast. My motto of success has been take the public into your confidence. I will return for my 'Repeater Engagement' at regular prices. I must have all I claim I have and confidence in it, otherwise I could not or would not dare give my first introductory performance at these cut rates.

IN MEMORIAM

CAMPBELL—In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Alex. Campbell, who departed this life Nov. 23rd 1921.
In loving memory of days gone by,
And a sigh for a face unseen,
A constant feeling that God alone
Knows best what might have been
What would we give to clasp her hand,
Her cheery face to see,
To hear her voice to see her smile,
That meant so much to us.
Inserted by Husband and Daughter.

NESBITT —In loving memory of our dear little daughter Margaret, who passed away Nov. 22nd 1921.
Beside her grave we often stand,
With hearts both crushed and sore;
But in the gloom the sweet words come
"Not lost, but gone before."
—Sadly missed by Father, Mother and Family.

NISBETT—In loving memory of our dear little grand-daughter, Margaret, who passed away, Nov. 22nd, 1921.
In our home you are ever remembered,
Fond memories cling to your name,
We who loved you in life very dearly,
Still love you in death the same.
Inserted by her Grandparents and Aunts and uncles Nisbett.

JACKSON—In affectionate remembrance of Pte. Ernest Jackson, who died November 23, 1918, Middlesex, Eng.
We hoped to welcome him back
To the homeland he fought to save,
But our hopes and our fears have vanished,
For he lies in a hero's grave.
—Inserted by friends, Mr. and Mrs Arthur Lonsberry.

Society

Rev. Dr. Murray, of Chicago, is visiting his uncle, J. L. McCarthy, 305 Reid Street.

Mr. Joseph Maher, Aylmer street, returned from Toronto last night.

The tea held under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League, at the home of Mrs. F. A. Hodgson, Rubidge street, yesterday afternoon, was a very successful and well-attended event. A large crowd of ladies dropped in from the hours of four to six o'clock. Mrs. Hodgson was assisted in receiving by the members of the executive of the League. The president, Mrs. C. J. Snider, was ill, and unable to be present. Ladies assisting in the tea and reception rooms were Mesdames H. Owen, E. H. Hickey, B. Law, F. J. McFadden and E. G. Hiland. Tea was poured by Mrs. N. E. Phelan and Mrs. R. W. Carson, assisted by Mrs. W. Hayes, and the Misses Archambault, Shevlin, Delaire, R. Maher and L. Simons. The tea-table was effectively arranged with maple leaves and candles in the yellow and white of the league's colors. During the afternoon a pleasant musical programme was rendered, with vocal solos by Mrs. Ida Lynn Clark, Mrs. J. Dwyer and Miss Ernestine McManus, and instrumental selections by the Misses Eleanor Grisdale and Margaret Doris.

BIBLE STUDY CLASS.

First Meeting Under the Leadership of Rev. Harold Young.

The first meeting of the Y.W.C.A. Bible Study Class under the leadership of Rev. W. H. Young met last night. There was a good attendance, members coming, in spite of the rain, from north, south, east and west. Each member of last night's class expressed appreciation and felt that the course would be of great help, and would enable those taking it to answer to others the questions which are being taken up each night. Last night Mr. Young answered the question, "Why do we believe in God?" under the following three points.

1. A belief in God is the best explanation of the problems and questions of life. The stars stay in their course, the seasons come and go, bringing growth and food. These provisions don't just happen, there must be a kind and controlling force somewhere who knows and cares.

2. For every instinct there is an answer. The fish was made to live in the water and water was provided for it to live in. There is a spiritual nature in man which calls for something higher, a longing for God. As Augustine said: "Thou hast made us for Thyself and our souls are restless until we find ourselves in Thee."

3. Men have found God themselves. Some of us have been to Venice but others have not. Why do those who have not been there believe there is a Venice? Because we have been told by people we know and trust. In the same way we know there is a God and we can know Him too, if our hearts are in tune.

Our nearst conception of God is through Jesus Christ. If we read the life of Christ we can see God on every page.

Next Friday night at 7.30 Mr. Young will take up the question, "Who was Jesus Christ?" Everyone is invited to come and reap the benefit of these lectures and discussions. The other four topics in the course are, What happened on Calvary? Is it any use to pray? Is the Bible out of date? Is there life beyond?

OBITUARY

EMIL ARMSTRONG.

The death took place suddenly in Butte, Montana, of Emil Armstrong, son of the late John Armstrong, at the age of 23 years. The funeral private from Comstock's Undertaking Parlors to Little Lake Cemetery, service conducted by Rev. De Blagrave of St. John's Anglican Church.

HENRY WILLIAM TIMS.

(Contributed)

Friend after friend departs:
Who hath not lost a friend?
There is no union here of hearts
That finds not here and end.

This fact was demonstrated with startling suddenness on Monday, 17th inst., when Mr. Henry Wm. Tims, of Lifford, fell forward, dying instantly in his wood-working factory. He literally died in the harness. He had passed the allotted span, however, and during the last two years had been living on borrowed time. He was born 72 years ago at almost the identical spot on which his death occurred.

In profession he was a carpenter and builder, and there are few buildings within a radius of five miles that he did not construct or superintend. One man was heard to remark: "He built our house 49 years ago, and his father built our barn."

In politics, while he leaned toward the Conservative party, he believed in voting for the man rather than for the party.

In religion, he was brought up and remained an Anglican, his father being one of the earliest superintendants of St. Mary's Sunday School.

Fair dealing and honest work were his watch words. He detested cant and seeming, and scarcely knew the meaning of deception. He was very fond of good reading and loved to hear pure and noble thoughts expressed. It was only last week the family heard him quote that beautiful poem by Aileen Ward, entitled "A Vision," the first stanza of which is:

"I wonder when the pillared gates of gold
Shall swing apart and I shall enter in;
And with the Lord enjoy the Blessed Fold
Of Peace eternal, far from care and sin."

The high esteem in which he was held by the whole community and by all who knew him was well attested by the unusually large crowd who gathered to pay their tribute of respect on Wednesday, the 19th inst. Very many there were who could not gain admission to the home nor hear the beautiful Anglican burial service conducted by Rev. Mr. Fierhellfer of Bethany. When the long funeral cortege had wended its way to Old St. Mary's Cemetery, six of his lifelong friends bore the casket to its last resting-place in the family plot.

DISTANT SEAS' SALMON FOUND IN LAKE ONTARIO

OTTAWA, Nov. 22.—(Associated Press).—Salmon from the seaboards of America live and grow fat in the waters of Lake Ontario and the streams of British Columbia, according to a bulletin issued by the Canadian Department of Marine and Fisheries announcing success of a six-year experiment. Fully matured sockeyes, native to the Pacific Coast, have been taken from Lake Ontario this year and two-year-old Atlantic salmon have been caught in the Pacific coming down the Cawichan River of Vancouver Island.

An average of 200,000 young sockeye have been released in Lake Ontario each year since 1918, and 500,000 Atlantic salmon have been planted in the rivers of British Columbia in the same period.

Last year's Canadian fisheries production was estimated at $42,565,545, with British Columbia, having the most extensive salmon resources on the Continent, accounting for 50 per cent. of the business. Salmon, halibut, lobster and codfish constitute 69 per cent. of the Dominion production.

Pimples, Blotches, Boils and Other Skin Eruptions are very discomforting to the individual, and when appearing upon the neck or face are especially annoying. Of course, these symptoms indicate that the blood is impure.
One of the most common causes for impure blood is the retention of bodily waste and poisons in the system, a condition often termed auto-toxication. Now, if the organs of elimination were working normally the poisons would be carried away in a natural manner. But if the kidneys, liver or bowels fail to do their respective duties, the skin takes up the work of eliminating the excess poisons in the form of eruption of various kinds.
A most important thing to do in promoting natural activity of the liver, kidneys and bowels is to release any pressure from the spinal nerves supplying these organs. This can be done by Chiropractic Spinal Adjustments. They have been effective in overcoming skin eruptions and restoring that glow of health which we all desire.
IF YOUR SKIN IS NOT CLEAR AND HEALTHY YOU SHOULD LEARN WHAT CHIROPRACTIC CAN DO FOR YOU.

EGYPT AGREES TO PAY INDEMNITY OF $2,500,000; GREAT BRITAIN WILL APPLY OTHER PENALTIES

Assassination of Governor-General Stack in Cairo Calls Forth Stern, Punitive Demands From London.

EGYPTIANS' REPLY CONSIDERED WEAK

Deny Responsibility for the Murder of Major-General Stack and Object to Military Measures.

ZAGLOUL SPEAKS

Egyptian Premier Warns People Against Demonstrations and Rash Action.

Cairo Egypt, Nov. 24.—The Egyptian Cabinet, headed by Zaghloul Pasha, tendered its resignation to King Fuad, who accepted it. King summoned Ziwar Pasha, president of the Senate, who agreed to form a cabinet. Before his resignation Zaghloul Pasha was informed by Lord Allenby, British High Commisioner, that instructions had been given for British forces to occupy Alexandria Customs. This, he said, was the first measure to be taken in consequence of Egypt's non-acceptance of all the British demands following the assassination of Sir Lee Stack. Indemnity of five hundred thousand pounds demanded by the British for Sirdar's death was paid shortly before noon. It was accompanied by a note protesting against the British demands for evacuation of the Sudan by Egyptian troops and for the withdrawal of all opposition to wishes of British government concerning the protection of foreign interests in Egypt which demands the note characterizes as unjustifiable.

The Egyptian Government's reply to the British note in connection with the assassination of Major-General Sir Lee Oliver Stack, Governor General of the Sudan and Sirdar of the Egyptian Army, agrees to Great Britain's demand for an apology, punishment of the assassins, and an indemnity of £500,000. It also promises to prevent any disturbance of the peace by demonstrations.

The reply says the British demand regarding the Sudan breaks the status quo and is contrary to the constitution under which King Fuad is commander-in-chief of the Egyptian army. It considers the demand regarding the Gezira irrigation project premature.

The communication further says the position of foreign officials is regulated by diplomatic agreement and cannot be modified without the consent of Parliament.

Allenby's Answer.

Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, the British High Commissioner, promptly replied to the Egyptian note, which was signed by Zaghloul Pasha, the Egyptian Premier. General Allenby said that in view of the refusal of the Egyptians of the British requirements Nos. 5 and 6, instructions were being sent to the Sudan Government to effect the withdrawal from the Sudan of Egyptian officers and units with the specified changes resulting from these measures and that the Sudan Government was at liberty to increase the area of irrigation in the Gezira district to an unlimited extent.

General Allenby's reply to Zaghloul requests the payment of the indemnity of £500,000 by noon to-day, and adds:

"Your Excellency will learn in due course what action is being taken in view of your refusal of requirement No. 7 regarding the protection of foreign interests."

Zaghloul Supported.

Zaghloul Pasha read his reply at an open session of Parliament Sunday, after which the House adopted a vote of confidence in the Government with only one dissenting vote.

The reply again expressed sorrow and horror at the excrable murder of Major-General Stack, but said the Egyptian Government could not admit that it was in any way responsible; neither could it admit that the crime was the natural result of the political campaign. Nevertheless, the Government agreed to the payment of the indemnity demanded.

Continuing, the note quoted Article 46 of the constitution in reference to the Sudan, by which the King is commander-in-chief of the army. It said the Gezira irrigation demand was, to say the least, premature, and remarked that Great Britain always had promised that an increased cotton area would be arranged under an accord taking cognizance of Egypt's agricultural interests.

The Egyptian Government further maintained that Law No. 28, which is a diplomatic agreement, regulated matters concerning foreign officials and said that, in any case, it could not reply in detail on this point since the British note did not specify what modifications were desired.

Parliament Tense.

Parliament was charged with tense emotion when the Premier read his reply, prefacing it with a statement in which he exhorted his hearers to show the greatest patience and prudence, for, he warned, the slightest rashness might bring about the most terrible consequences.

He then read the formal note of the Egyptian Government amid complete silence. At its conclusion one opposition deputy arose and characterized the document as ridiculous acquiescence in wounds inflicted on the country. He declared that the Premier had betrayed the confidence reposed in him.

Zagloul, in reply, said: "I have done my duty and have not betrayed the confidence of the country. I am prepared to give up my place to anyone better qualified to see the country through its difficulties."

At this remark the Zagloulist deputies, rising in their places, gave the Premier a great ovation. Two hours later the secretary of the residency handed to Premier Zagloul, Viscount Allenby's reply.

The talk among the opposition deputies later was that the Egyptian reply was weak and that the British conditions would ultimately be accepted.

WARNINGS AGAINST EGYPTIAN CAMPAIGN OF HOSTILITY TO BRITISH WERE IGNORED

Britain Presents Seven Demands to Government of Egypt and Threatens Appropriate Action If They Are Not Promptly Fulfilled—Held Directly Responsible for Murder of Stack.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The British Government's note to the Egyptian Government on the assassination of Major General Sir Lee Olive, Stack, Governor General of the Sudan and Sirdar of the Egyptian army, is even sterner than at first indicated, inasmuch as the Egyptian Government is held directly responsible for the assassination because it failed to take into account previous warnings from the British Government. "Appropriate action' is threatened, failing immediate compliance with the demands.

The Foreign Office Saturday night issued the text of the communication which was in the form of two notes. The first note, referring to the brutal murder of General Stack, says: "His Majesty's Government consider this murder, which holds up Egypt as at present governed to the contempt of civilized peoples, is the natural outcome of a campaign of hostility to British rights and British subjects in Egypt and Sudan, founded upon a heedless ingratitude for nbeefits conferred by Great Britain, not discouraged by your excellency's Government and fomented by organizations in close contact with that Government.

"Your Excellency was warned by His Majesty's Government a little more than a month ago of the consequences of failing to stop this campaign, more particularly as it concerned the Sudan. It has not been stopped. The Egyptian Government have now allowed the Governor General of Sudan to be murdered and have proved they are incapable or unwilling to protect foreign lives.

British Penalties

"His Majesty's Government, therefore, require that the Egyptian Government shall,—

Firstly, present an ample apology for the crime;

Secondly, prosecute an inquiry into the authorship of the crime with the utmost energy and without respect of persons, and bring the criminals, who ever they are and whatever their age, to condign punishment;

Thirdly, henceforth forbid and vigorously suppress all popular political demonstrations;

Fourthly, pay forthwith to His Majesty's Government a fine of £500,000;

Fifthly, order within twenty-fours hours the withdrawal from Sudan of all Egyptian officers and purely Egyptian units of the Egyptian army, with such resulting changes as shall hereafter be specified;

Sixthly, notify the competent department that the Sudan Government will increase the area to be irrigated at Gezira from 300,000 feddans (a feddan approximately is an acre) to an unlimited figure as the need may arise;

Seventhly, withdraw all opposition in respects hereafter specified to the wishes of His Majesty's Government concerning protection of foreign interests in Egypt.

"Failing immediate compliance with these demands, His Majesty's Government will at once take appropriate action to safeguard their interest in Egypt and Sudan."

The second note details the specific requirements respecting the army in Sudan and the protection of foreign interests in Egypt.

FURNACE DEATH SOLUTION NEAR

Pastor's Wife Was Dead Before Cremation, Columbus, Chemist Contends.

NO MONOXIDE GAS

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 23. — Hands other than her own contrived the gruesome cremation of Mrs. Addie Sheatsley last Monday afternoon, it is now declared. The middle-aged wife of the Rev. C. V. Sheatsley must have been dead when her body entered the furance that almost consumed it in the parsonage of Christ Lutheran Church in the suburb of Berley, the authorities contend. They base their contentions on the report of C. H. Long, a chemical expert, who examined vital parts of the body.

It was understood that the scientific tests show the woman never breathed after her body entered the furnace and that therefore she must have died outside the fire box and her body been placed on the coals after she was dead.

Had Mrs. Sheatsley breathed inside the furnace in which the remains of her body was found, traces of carbon monoxide gas would have been detected on the tissues of the lungs. But it is understood that the report of Chemist Long says that no traces were found.

The police feel that with the establishment of this fact they have penetrated the mystery. The County Attorney believes other disclosures will follow. He is said to have stated over the telephone to assistants that the way toward clearing up the mystery is now seen.

Saw Victim Just before Death.

Lieutenant W. G. Sheltenberger, who has been directing the police investigation, said two witnesses have been found outside of members of the family who saw Mrs. Sheatsley alive probably within less than two hours before her death. The officers did not make public the names

CROOKS OFFER FACTS OF PLOT

Shady Characters Know About London Blackmail Scandal and Seek Money.

DETAILS HIDDEN

LONDON, Nov. 24.—It is a perennial truth that one big dominating scandal will startle into activity all the crooks and wastrels who hang about the fringes of high society. They know things and they want to tell them—at a price.

This fact has been startlingly demonstrated in the monster Hari Singh blackmailing case. Months ago, foreseeing the inevitability of the present disclosures, numerous shady men who live by their wits began peddling hints about this most amazing of law suits. But nobody trusted them.

Many Facts Hidden.

The present suit, brought by Charles Ernest Robinson, former "bookie," against the Midland Bank to recover $750,000 blackmail paid by Sir Hari because of his relations with Robinson's wife, probably will not bring out many facts, because they are not material to the issue. For instance, what Lord Halsbury called the "wicked brain of Montague Newton," who evolved the conspiracy to rob Sir Hari, although as a matter of fact he was not really the first man to think of the plan.

Captain Arthur in the first instance went to the dissolute son of a high army official who had died of morphine poisoning. The son also developed into a morphinomaniac, and when Newton heard of his interest in the conspiracy he had him sidetracked, saying:

"You can never depend on what a man like that will do."

Newton Sought More.

After he had grabbed his share of the $750,000 he sailed with another, notorious crook, whose name as yet has not been brought into the suit, for India with the object of dunning Sir Hari some more.

Newton always played for big game, and once co-operated with another man who owned a yacht. Prior to the Hari Singh coup he won the confidence of a young man who had inherited several million dollars from his father, a great London banker.

Finally, at the game of "put-and-take" at the young man's country house Newton and his friend "won" $600,000, of which the victim paid $100,000 in cash and the rest in installments.

These are some of the stories being told in the London clubs, whither they are borne from the purlieus of the law courts. One of the many unprecedented features of the whole case is the way Sir Hari Singh's cheque for £150,000 was handled. He made it payable to Appleton & Company, and it was crossed "for payment to C. Robinson." It was endorsed "C. Robinson" and sent to a branch of the Midland Bank with a covering letter which read:

"Please open an account for Mr. Charles Robinson. We enclose a specimen signature."

Amazing Transaction.

This was on January 6, 1920, within a fortnight of the Rajah's now famous Paris party. The cheque was immediately honored and the next day Mr. Hobbs, managing clerk for Appleton's, called at the bank with a cheque signed "Charles Robinson" for £130,000. He asked that it be cashed across the counter.

The bank manager was not satisfied and asked Hobbs to call the next day, when £130,000 in bank notes was handed to him. Business men here are amazed that a cash transaction of such magnitude could be put through so easily by any one unknown in the financial world.

Of this great sum £130,000 was paid to Hobbs's account in the Anglo-South American Bank in Paris and subsequently was shared by Newton, Hobbs and Arthur.

What Hobbs, who has been subpoenaed, and appears in court every day, will have to say concerning these statements made by Robinson's counsel is not yet known.

RUSSIA IN RUIN

Emma Goldman Begins Series of Articles in London Weekly.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Emma Goldman began an exposure of the Soviet Government of Russia in an article in The Illustrated London News, published Saturday. She tells what she found on her arrival in Russia:

"I found labor conscripted and driven to work like chattel slaves, arrested for the slightest infringement, and even shot for 'industrial desertion.' I found the peasants the helpless prey of punitive expeditions and forcible food collections — the proceeding of which devastated hundreds of villages and destroyed thousands of human lives.

"I found the prison concentration camps overcrowded with men, women and even children, not because they offered any resistance, but for their opinions. I found Russia in wreck and ruin, incompetent and inefficient to reconstruct the country and help the people restore their huge hopes and great morals. It would be a betrayal of all I stood for in my life, a breach of faith with the Russion people, as well as humanity everywhere, were I to keep silent after all I saw in Russia, all these harrowing things which continue to the present day."

SCHWAB SEES BOOM

Believes United States Due for Greatest Period of Prosperity.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 24. — "Business is going ahead on the firmest foundation I ever have known," declared Charles M. Schwab at the William Penn Hotel, prior to making a speech at the Carnegie Day exercises at the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

"Business men generally have been imbued with confidence and are making their plans accordingly," he added. "I believe the United States is due for its greatest period of prosperity."

The record-breaking sales in the stock market were only of general interest to Mr. Schwab, he said.

"I'm only interested in our own stock. The other fellows can make their millions," he declared.

The Dawes plan was working wonders for Germany and the general condition of Europe, and would make business better the world over, Mr. Schwab said.

SCHOONER LEFT TO SINK AFTER SEA COLLISION

Virtually Cut in Two By Another Ship That Faded Into the Fog.

CAPTAIN KILLED.

Crew Took to Rigging And Were Rescued Twelve Hours Later.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Captain A. J. Wilson, of Fairhaven, Mass., master of the schooner Perry Setzer, was instantly killed at 2 a.m. Saturday when his vessel was rammed and virtually cut in two by an unidentified steamer in a fog 30 miles south of Cape Hatteras, according to information brought here Sunday night by the United Fruit liner Calamares from Cuba.

The eight members of the crew of the Perry Setzer, after hanging to the rigging of the almost submerged schooner, were rescued by the oil tanker Solona, 15 miles north of Cape Hatteras, at 2 p.m. Saturday, 12 hours after the collision, it was reported.

Traced By Radio.

According to radio messages picked up by Captain Harry Spencer of the Calamares, it is believed the City of Montgomery, of the Ocean Steamship Line, may have been the vessel in collision with the Perry Setzer. The City of Montgomery sent out a radio message late Saturday night that she was returning to Savannah after being in collision with a schooner 30 miles south of Cape Hattesas. Her damage was not given.

The master of the Solano reported to Captain Spencer by radio announcing the death of Captain Wilson.

Captain Boyd also said in his radio that according to several members of the rescued crew, their schooner, which was of 1,268 tons, was bound from Jacksonville, Fla., for New York with a load of lumber. While proceeding slowly through a dense fog early Saturday morning an unknown steamer crashed into the starboard side of the vessel, just forward of amidships, it was reported. The steamer then backed away and was seen no more in the fog.

Swept By Swells.

The stricken schooner filled immediately with water and the crew were forced to take to the rigging, the radio message from Captain Boyd said. The crew said there was a heavy sea running and even though they were hanging from the rigging, owing to the angle of the ship's list, they were frequently submerged by heavy swells.

RIGHT OF INSANE MAN TO PROPERTY UPHELD

OTTAWA, Nov. 24. — (Canadian Press).—The question of whether an insane person has the right to his or her estate was answered in the weekly court of the Supreme Court of Ontario here Saturday when Mr. Justice Fisher ruled that $14,000 left to George St. Cyr, prospector and surveyor, murderer and insane, should be left in the hands of the public trustee, instead of distributed among his relatives.

The ruling by the court was in effect that the insane murderer might some day sufficiently recover his memory to such an extent that he might be capable of administering his estate.

The story as sketched to the court was that George St. Cyr, prospector and surveyor, murdered a man in the Yukon in 1901, in which year he was convicted and sentenced to hang. The sentence was later commuted to one of life imprisonment, during the serving of which George St Cyr became a lunatic.

In May, 1923, Arthur St. Cyr, a brother, died in Mexico City, leaving an estate of many thousand dollars, but without a will. Through the process of administration by John Sylvain of Ottawa, $14,000 was allocated to the insane brother George, who is now an inmate of a Provincial asylum at Guelph, Ont.

FINE OF $500 LEVIED

Bootlegger Gets Option of Five Months' Detention.

FORT WILLIAM, Nov. 24. — Loaded down with two suit cases and a pack sack containing nine gallons of hard liquor, Tony Muda was arrested by the provincial police as he got off the train here Friday night and was charged Saturday morning with violation of the Ontario Temperance Act and was sentenced to a fine of $500 or five months in the prison farm. It is believed that Muda is connected with a gang that is bootlegging between Manitoba and Ontario, as he bought the liquor at Winnipeg.

WOMAN CHARGED WITH TRYING TO DERAIL TRAINS

Farmer's Wife Arrested Near Sudbury as Result of Year's Investigation by C.P.R.

LOGS ON TRACK

Detectives Disguised as Bush Workmen Watch Farm House Three Months.

SUDBURY, Nov. 24.— With the arrest Sunday evening by the Provincial Police of Mrs. Thomas Tate, a young farmer's wife residing near Hagar, station midway between Sudbury and North Bay, the authorities believe they are on the eve of clearing up a mystery which has baffled the police for more than a year.

Four times this summer railway ties and other obstructions have been placed on the tracks near Hagar by some one unknown. Three times, main line trains struck these obstructions, derailments being almost miraculously averted. Two weeks ago an attempt was made to burn down the C.P.R. station at Hagar.

Strangely enough, these and other crimes are to be laid at the feet of the 22-year old farmer's wife, Mrs. Tate, when she is arraigned in police court at Sudbury to-day, when a week's adjournment will likely be taken.

Detectives Disguised

For three months the C.P.R. has had detectives camping in the bush, disguised as workmen, near the Tate homestead. They have kept a constant vigil, watching every movement of every member of the Tate household, Mrs. Tate's arrest has been the result.

The "Hagar Mystery," as it is familiarly known in C.P.R. circles has engaged the attention of the highest officers in the service, and to-day they breathe much easier, More than $5,000 has been spent, company officials state, in the effort to fix the blame on the culprit who made repeated efforts to wreck C.P.R. trains, and who may actually have succeeded, for this summer a harvesters' train, was derailed and eight injured at the very spot. Still further a freight derailment occurred a few hundred yards away, tieing up traffic for the best part of a day.

In June Imperial Limited No. 1 from Montreal tore into a railway tie which had been placed across the tracks, it being ground to pulp in the wheels of the big locomotive and had to be cut away by the train crew with axes before the train could proceed.

SEEKING UNIFORM AUTO LICENSE LAW

Examination Into Fitness Is a Great Safeguard For Life and Property.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 24 (United Press).—Adoption of a uniform licensing law for automobile drivers in the near future by all states of the union was predicted here today by Robbins B. Stoeckel, motor vehicle commissioner of Connecticut, in a statement issued through the National Safety Council.

"The time is not far distant, when for the protection of careful motorists and pedestrians," Stoeckel said, "all states will license the drivers of motor vehicles upon examination as to their fitness and will revoke licenses upon violation of any of the rules by which it is held."

The National Safety Council is co-operating with various conferences of state and motor vehicle commissioners in a national movement for the adoption of such laws in an effort to minimize automobile accidents.

"The greatest factor in the problem of safe operation of motor vehicles is the ego, personality, individualism of the operator," Stoeckel said. "A standard to measure this cannot be set. But, at least, tests of mentality and of proper driving experience can and should be efficiently applied before an operator is licensed and these tests kept applicable through his or her whole driving period.

"The license system provides for examination of all operators and for the discipline and education of all operators while licensed.

"The examination into fitness is a great safeguard for life and property. Its proper administration makes it possible for a competent examiner to immediately discover any obvious defect which the applicant may have, to inquire into his mental processes, his general intelligence, his ability to read and write and his actual ability to run a motor vehicle with safety to himself and others.

WILL PARDON GENERAL.

German Convicted Last Week to be Pardoned This Week.

PARIS, Nov. 24. — (Canadian Press).—The French Government has decided to pardon General Von Nathusiue, aged German officer, convicted at Lille last week and sentenced to one year's imprisonment for the confiscation of private property in French territory during the war.

The Government, it is stated, is waiting only to find a formula for the announcement of the pardon that will cover the case from both French and German viewpoints.

SWEDES INVADE AMERICA.

Soccer Team From Sweden May Do Battle on U. S. Grounds.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 24 (Associated Press).—A visit to America by a picked team of Sweden's leading soccer players is one of the plans resulting from the almost unprecedented activity and the rising nation-wide interest in athletics now manifested in Sweden, which has gained impetus following the success of the Swedish team during the Olympic Games.

During the past summer the Swedish soccer team won 11 out of 12 international federation matches played. In November the Swedish team will make a southern tour, and expects to meet strong opponents in Austria, Italy and other countries.

The trip to America next summer will be made, providing suitable financial arrangements can be arranged to cover the expenses of the players. The Swedes have already had the honor of meeting three different American teams on their own grounds and now hope to carry the game into the enemy's country.

AFTER ANOTHER WIFE.

Charlie Chaplin and Lita Grey Latest Matrimonial Venture.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press). — Charles Chaplin, moving picture comedian, reported in Mexico City despatches as expected at Guaymas, Mexican west coast seaport, to marry Lita Grey, his young leading woman, passed through Yuma, Arizona, bound for Guaymas, late last night. Chaplin refused to discuss the reports that he was to marry Miss Grey, but admitted he was going to Mexico. Miss Grey has been in the Mexican city "on location." W. E. Curry, Miss Grey's grandfather, accompanied Chaplin in the train. He declined to state whether Lita and Charlie were engaged, though "she has been out with him a lot."

THE GUMPS—THE PANTRY HOUND

COULD YOU BICYCLE 1,300 MILES IN 19 DAYS?

Have you ever ridden ten miles, straight away, on a bicycle? Then you know it was a real effort. But what would you think of riding 1,300 miles in 19 days, in the cold month of May, 1924, sleeping out, almost always wet to the skin? Such is the accomplishment of Robt. G. Jackon, M.D., of Toronto, who achieved this remarkable feat at 65 in contest with C. J. Gregory, 35, a life-long bicyclist and an ex-bicycle racer.

Mr. Gregory is the red-headed, gray-eyed, lithe, hard-muscled, sinewy tireless type. He lived upon meat, white bread, etc., the usual diet of civilization. Dr. Jackson lived largely upon Roman Meal and milk. He did not taste meat. Although 30 years older and 30 pounds heavier, Dr. Jackson ran away from his contestant. But mark, at 55, Dr. Jackson was a physical wreck, when he invented Roman Meal for rebuilding his bodily vigor and health. So effective was it that he could now tire out nine out of ten men of any age. It is a wonderful food. Try it and find out the delicousness and the great health and stength value of Roman Meal. It prevents indigestion and positively relieves constipation. At all grocers.

Kidnapping the Falls of Niagara.

The Great West is stealing the Great Lakes and kidnapping the Falls of Niagara and an agitation is impending to prevent further depredations. Water in rapidly increasing amount is beig diverted from Lake Michigan and directed into the Mississippi River and finally finding its way into the Gulf of Mexico, instead of the Atlantic Ocean, through the St. Lawrence River. The Canadian government already lodged a protest at Washington and it is likely that something will be done about it one about the matter. All the country along the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River should be interested in this project directly and the country at large indirectly, for the menace the partial extinction of the Niagara Falls. An effort has been made recently to interest the State of New York on account of the threatened flying up of Niagara and this may appeal to the State government sufficiently to join in some movement to stop the diversion of water.

An unfortunate feature of the pilfering of the water is that it is practically wasted. The elevation is so low in the contour of the country that the water which is stolen is enabled to perform a very small service as compared with its possibilities if allowed to follow the usual course.

U. S. SENDS LETTER ON SOCCER JUMPING

American Association to Cooperate With Scotch in Restraining Players.

Concern in Scotland over the alleged jumping of contracts by soccer football players there in order that they might come to the United States to play for more money has been alleviated by the prompt action of the United States Football Association in writing to the Scottish Foot ball Association, asking for details as to what players have jumped their contracts to come to this country and offering to cooperate with the Scottish body in regulating the movements of players to and from America.

"Here is evidence of good fellowship in football and healthy control of the game across the Atlantic," says The Atletic News, in commenting on the matter. "As the result of a letter which has been sent by the Honorary Secretary of the United States Football Association to the Scottish F.A., there is good ground for hoping that the movements of players to and from America may be regulated before long.

"The receipt of the letter was a pleasant surprise to the officials of the Scottish body, who had hesitated to look for such a quick, and broadminded response from the American side, where, very naturally, it was assumed that people would find difficulty in seeing the matter from a Scottish angle."

The letter sent by the United States F.A. and signed by A. M. Brown as Honorary Secretary, follows:

"Our attention has been directed to various articles quoted from newspapers of established reputation in Scotland dealing with the question of professional football players whose services are sought by clubs operating in this country under the jurisdiction of the United Statec Football Association.

"We are not aware of any irregularities, and in addressing your association it is to express our deep concern lest any steps have been taken to persuade any player to violate the terms of an existing agreement.

"May we ask you if there is any record in the files of your association supporting the charges made and referred to, namely, that professional football players under contract with clubs in the Scottish Foot ball Association have been approached on behalf of clubs in the Scottish Football Association have been approached on behalf of clubs in the United States F.A. to depart from the contract originally agreed upon during the life of such contract and to negotiate with clubs in this country?

"If it should appear that the charges are well founded we would be glad to hear from you regarding a proposed remedy, and we are prepared to entertain suggestions along the following lines:

"(1) Approach of players still under contract in either country.

"(2) Notification by the football association in either country regarding the 'jumping' of contracts with penalties imposed.

"(3) Uniformity of laws covering movement of professional players.

"(4) Complications arising from possible violations of the immigration laws of the United States of America."

TIDE OF EMIGRANTS FROM JAPAN TURNS

There Are Now About 6,000 Japanese Residents In Lima.

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 22.—The economic future of Peru being largely dependant on immigration, because the native population is small, the country to-day takes an especial interest in the foreigners who journey from their own lands to settle within the boundaries of the Peruvian republic.

The question of the coming of Japanese has attracted attention, particularly as the Japanese quotas have lately increased. Also it is reported here that a company has been formed in Japan to encourage emigration to both Peru and Brazil. There is a feeling locally that the moment has come to regulate immigration from Japan; that within Peruvian borders Peru should safeguard her own interests. The ability of the Japanese successfully to engage in various enterprises, and in some cases to undersell native merchants, coupled with the fact that they are clannish and slow in assimilating the customs of the country, has not made them popular here. Nevertheless a treaty of friendship, commerce and navigation between Peru and Japan, signed in Washington in 1895 and subsequently revoked, recently has been renewed.

Peru has, in the past, tried to stimulate immigration from Italy and Germany, whose people have been found especially adaptable to the needs of the country and who make good Peruvian citizens. A continuation of these efforts would, it is believed, find popular support.

There are to-day no restrictions upon the entry of Japanese into Peru, yet remarkably few have so far come here. Reliable estimates place the present number at 10,000. Peru has a total population of 4,500,000. Lima counts about 6,000 Japanese residents, the others living in the provinces.

Unlike the Chinese, whose entrance into the country is restricted and who, in many cases, are employed on the various ranches as coolie laborers, the Japanese are both progressive and enterprising. Many of them are engaged in lucrative business ventuces, principall, grocery and wine stores, furniture and woodworking establishments, coffee shops, restaurants, barber shops, shirt-makers bakery establishments and general trade merchants. In very rare instances do the Japanese in Peru engage in menial forms of labor. In the city of Lima, grocery stores especially are controlled by them, and they also control the only rubber manufacturing plant in the republic.

Regarding recent reports that the recall of the Peruvian minister at Tokio was connected with the immigration of Japanese to Peru, information obtained in reliable quarters indicates such was not the case. The minister asked for leave of absence and transfer to another post.

HOT WATER AND CALOMEL

Cleans and Tones Up the Whole System.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Sisters of St. Joseph's Convent Gave a Recital—Social Events in Town.

CAMPBELLFORD, November 24.—The Sisters of St. Joseph's convent invited the parents of their pupils to be present at a recital given by the Convent pupils, on Friday night last, November 21st, in the Convent.

The large room was filled and the programme given was good, and the pupils did their parts well. After the recital was over, Father Phelan, Major Bygott and Dr. H. O. Richardson, each spoke a few words and congratulated the Sisters on the success of their work with the pupils. A vote of thanks was tendered the Sisters for the splendid programme and for the privilege the parents had of hearing their boys and girls take their parts in the programme.

The following was the programme:
Chorus, The Fairy Pipers, class.
Piano solo, A. Linton.
Piano solo, T. Hollings.
Trio, violins, E. Bonnycastle, E. Blute, and F. Linton.
Piano duet, H. R. and M. Kerr.
Piano solo, M. Haig.
Piano solo, M. Clarke.
Violin solo, K. Collison.
Piano solo, R. Wilson.
Violin solo, F. Linton.
Violin solo, A. McNamara.
Recitation, H. Ruth Kerr.
Piano solo, B. Dewey.
Vocal duet, I. Bygott and E. Blute.
Piano duet, M. Blute and B. Farrell.
Piano solo, G. Caddy.
Piano solo, I. Bygott
Piano solo, Mr. Keating.
1st and 2nd violin duet, Ronald and Billie Richardson, accompanied by Enid Richardson.

At the close of the programme the diplomas were distributed and prizes given. Two prizes were given for proficiency in Junior Piano; Isabel Bygott received the first prize, and Bernice Farrell the second prize, for which they received congratulations.

A Box Social.

The box social held at the English Line School-house on Friday night was a great success. The school-room was filled. The programme was given mostly by the pupils of the school, the teacher, Miss Lillian Locke, training them. Some of the items given at the beginning of the programme were a splendid drill. The farmers' drill, given by boys in costume; another, some of the old nursery rhymes given by the girls, and each one dressed to suit the rhyme she represented. A humorous dialogue with a good moral, "Taking Offences," was given by Ruth Tinney (the lady of the house), Donald Peake (the one who was always taking offence), and Douglas Haig, Teddy Peake and Gerald Mitchell (the children). There were also several recitations by Jack Stephens, Jean Peake, D. McGuigg, and Miss Agnes Thompson. Another item on the program which caused much enjoyment and also some solid thoughts, was a debate, "Resolved that a good-natured, untidy housewife is preferred to a tidy, ill-natured one." The affirmative was taken by Mr. Ernest Craighead and Mrs. E. Mitchell, and the negative by Mr. Herbert Tinney and Mrs. Sam. Diamond. The affirmative won by a few points. Mr. S. A. Maguire, Miss Edna Connor of Campbellford and Miss Agnes Thomson of Seymour were the judges. Dr. G. A. Hay of Campbellford was the auctioneer for selling the boxes, which were prettily decorated. The one who paid the highest price for a box was to receive a five-pound box of chocolates. Dr. Hay won the chocolates. His box cost him five dollars. The contents of the boxes were enjoyed by the one who purchased, and the one who prepared. The proceeds amounted to sixty-five dollars, which will be used to help buy a phonograph for the school. There were quite a number from Campbellford and Zion church present to enjoy the evening.

A vote of thanks was given to those who helped in any way and also to Miss Locke, the teacher, for the splendid programme given.

Funeral Yesterday.

The funeral of the late E. E. Stephens, held on Sunday afternoon, was largely attended. The procession, which left the house at two o'clock, drove to the Tabernacle Church on the English Line, where Rev. W. Elliott, pastor of Campbellford Methodist Church (where the deceased attended church) and Rev. C. D. Daniel, of Seymour Circuit, of which the English Line Church is a part.

he bearers were six cousins of the late Mr. Stephens—as follows:—Richard Stephens of Seymour, Wm. N. Stephens, of Campbellford, Thos. W Stephens of Seymour, Wm. M. Stephens of Seymour, Peter Stephens of Seymour and Wesley Stephens of Campbellford. Mr. Elliott gave a very earnest address on the Words from Jab 7th. chapter and 16th verse:—"I would not live always" even though Job had seemingly lost faith he believed God's way was the wise way.

Those from out of town, who attended the funeral were:—Mr. John Stephens and daughter Myrtle, Peterboro, Mrs. Wrigley, Bancroft, Mr. and Mrs. Geo Thompson, Springbrook, Mrs. Clarence Sutherland and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sutherland, Stirling, Mr. and Mrs. Uzelle Waterman, Peterboro; Mr. Helferty, and Mr. John McAlpine Gananogue, Mr. Fred Spence, Brockville; Mrs. Fred Thompson, Whitby; Mrs. Smith and Son Egbert, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Brady Seeley's Bay; Mrs. Jas. Moore, Mrs Geo. Moore, and Mrs. Roy Summers, Lansdowne, Mr. Ed. Hendricks and his mother, Mrs. Jno' Hendricks, Burlington.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Ninety-first Anniversary of Grace Presbyterian Church —Special Services.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 24.—The ninety-first anniversary of Grace Presbyterian Church was fittigly observed on Sunday, Noveember 23rd, when Rev. W. A. Bremner, of Cobourg, preached morning and evening, the congregation at night taxing the capacity of the church to the utmost.

Such anniversary occasions serve to recall, possibly to rescue from oblivion, the deeds of those who served the community along religious lines in times and circumstances different from our own, and remind us that local churches have a history worth studying. Presbyterianism in Cavan, South Monaghan, and Millbrook, has had a long and eventful record of growth and development, the first missionaries coming into the district in 1833, unfortunately no account has been kept of their labors.

Dr. A Jemison gave a brief outline of the church history at both morning and evening services on Sunday, stating that he had obtained the information from three sources—a booklet published in 1908 on the "Diamond Jubilee" of Centreeville Presbyterian church, from Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Armstrong, and from the session records which are complete from 1834 to 1924.

Centreelalevi --Lt..I uMidirolin u Centreville and Milubrook were joined under one pastorate until 1890, during the ministry of the Rev. James Cameron, when separation took place. Mr. Gordon and Mr. McAlpine are mentioned as the earliest missionaries and during their ministry the first elders were ordained by Rev. Mr. Jenkins, their names being: David Armstrong, David Huggins, Joseph Sharpe, and James Holmes.

Rev. James Douglas, who was licensed to preach o February 29th, 1822, by the Presbytery of Down, Ireland, and later became a member of the Presbytery of Washington, was the first minister, his pastoral charge including South Monaghan, Millbrook, Port Hope, and Cobourg. He was inducted into this pastorate in 1834 by Rev. James Rogers, of Hallowell.

At that time the congregation here worshipped in a frame church which stood in the cemetery at the top of Dawson's Hill. In 1868 Rev Mr. Douglas, then in his seventy-eighth year, resigned, passing away the following year after thirty-four years' labor on this charge. His wife predeceased him by twenty-three years. Their remains were interred in Centreville cemetery. During his pastorate three churches were built, and he established Prebyterianism on so strong a footing that it has always been a powerful factor in the higher life of the people of this vicinity.

A copy of the original call extended to Rev. Mr. Douglas, which is still in a good state of preservation, was read by Dr. Jamieson, as follows:

"We, the Elders and members of the Presbyterian church of Cavan and South Monaghan being destitute of a fixed pastor, and being assured by good information and our own experience of the ministerial abilities, piety, liaerature, and prudence of you, Rev. J Douglas, have agreed to invite, call, and entreat, as we by these presents do invite, call and entreat you to undertake the office of pastor among us, and the charge of our souls, and upon acceptance of this our call, promise you the just and lawful sum of fifty-five pounds, with all due respect, encouragement, and obedience in the Lord. In witness whereof we have hereunto subscribed our names this 26th day of March, 1834".

David Armstrong, Wm. Stewart, Joseph Sharpe, Wm. D. Armstrong, Adam Wilson, Wm. Hall, Robert Turnbull, Thos. Hutchison, Robert Waddell, Alex. Grant, John Donaldson, John Stewart, Wm. Dunwoody, L. Dermant John Armstrong, Samuel Todd, John Deyell, John O'Brien Alex. Anderson, Andrew Holmes, Wm. Ritchey, Wm. Gray, Daniel Kerr, Samuel Boyd, A. Glenny, James Watson, R. Crawford, Wm. Galloway.

The descendants of several of several of these men still reside in this neigborhood, as do also those of the first elders.

Mr. Douglas was succeeded by Rev. Wm. Mitchell who was inducted in 1860 and gave six years to the work of the church in this district, being followed by Rev. James Cameron, his induction taking place on February 29th, 1876. The red brick church, which stood north of Tupper street, has been built in the meantime though the exact date of its erection is uncertain, but Mr. Cameron preached within its walls for at least fourteen years, and the records state that on February 11th 1860, the session "met in the brick church."

This church was burned in the summer of 1896, and the present Grace church was opened the following January, Miss O'Brien donating the site upon which it stands. The late Mrs. Hugh Waddell of Peterborough, laid the corner stone, and Rev. Mr. Paterson of Cooke's church and Rev. Mr. Hossack, both of Toronto, preached on the two opening Sundays.

Rev. A. R. Linton served the church a short time after Rev. Mr. Cameron's resignation in 1890, and he was succeeded by Rev. James Bloodsworth for two years. In July 1894 the late Rev. William Johnston was inducted, ministering to the congregations here and at Garden Hill for exactly twenty years. Rev. Dr. W. Lee, now of Thorold, Ont., was his successor for six years, coming to the charge in 1913 and in September 1921, the present pastor, Rev. G. S. Gervan, became the minister.

Mr. W. Taylor, an early resident of Millbrook, was precentor in the first church, and Josiah Ball, a brother of Mr. Reid Ball, followed at a later date. The strong controversy which arose over the purchase of the first organ, in Josiah Ball's time, may possibly be still recalled by those of older years. The pipe-organ, in use in the church to-day, is a far call from the tuning-fork, and even the reed organ, purchase of which caused such a disturbance during Rev. Mr. Cameron's pastorate.

The number of members in the Millbrook church was but sixteen in 1834, and in 1924 it has increased to 166.

The special music provided by the choir on Sunday evening included an anthem, "Soldiers of Christ arise", a trio, "O Lord, in mercy hear us," by Mrs. (Rev.) G. S. Gervan, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston, and a second anthem following the offering "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace," with solo by Miss Kathleen Lancashire, and duet by Miss Lancashire and Mrs. Gervan. Miss Gussie Clarry presided at the organ for the day.

Associated with the pastor upon the platform were Rev. F. W. Howard, who read the Scripture lesson, Rev. A. H. McConachie, of Centreville, who led in the opening prayer, and Rev. W. A. Bremer of Cobourg the speaker at both services.

In the morning Mr. Bremner addressed the congregation on "Man's Relationship to God", basing his remarks on the simile of clay in the hands of the potter; Isaiah 64:8, "O Lord, Thou are our Father; we are the clay, and Thou our potter; and we all are the work of Thy hand."

In the evening the other side was pictured, "Man's Relationship to his Fellowmen," First Corinthians 8:13; "Wherefore, if meat maketh my brother to offend, I will eat no meat while the world standeth, lest I make my brother to offend."

From both Old and New Testaments examples were cited showing God's teaching and conception of the solidarity of the race, and how Jesus taught this great underlying principle summing up the truth in the parable of the Good Samaritan. "Whereever this principle of the responsibility of men for their fellows' welfare had been violated nothing but harm, heartbreak, and neglect has come. Where it has been observed loads have been lifted, homes made happier, men have been helped, and the only social culture worth while has been gained."

In the last Great Assize, when all nations are before the Throne, what is the message?

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of one of these my brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

"Come, ye blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

NEWS BAILIEBORO

Water Situation Causes Concern Among the Farmers —Ice Disappears.

BAILIEBORO, November 24.—The farmers of this district are getting worked into a panic over the water situation this fall. The springs are exceptionally low, while in most cases the cisterns and wells are either dry or very low. There is very little moisture in the ground and if the ground freezes up without getting an abundance of rain first, there will be a water famine throughout this part of the country during the entire winter.

Farmers claim that it is hard on the fall wheat and fresh seeds if the ground freezes up when it is very dry, as the roots are much more apt to heave out of the ground and become exposed to the frosts and the cold winds.

Although the frost has not as yet gone out of the ground there is still hopes of plenty of rain. The first ice has completely disappeared from Rice Lake, and the atmosphere is turning milder.

The young people of Centreville, Bowmanville and district are planning to hold an agricultural short course in either of the two villages during the month of January. Mr. J. O. Patterson, Agricultural District Representative of Port Hope, will have charge of the classes, and hopes to have classes of 24 girls and 24 boys.

This is a splendid opportunity for lots of young people to make up these classes and there is no reason why there should not be full classes of both sexes.

These short courses have proven in the past to be time well spent. They go a long way towards making better farmers of the young men, and teaching them in many different ways, better and more scientific ways of farming, while the young ladies are taught sewing, domestic science, etc.

Mr. John Heaslip has recently purchased the residence owned by David Jewison and occupied by Thos White. Mr. Heaslip has been for some time foreman of the Provincial Highway between Bewdley and Fraserville.

Thomas White and family have moved to their farm two miles west of the village, which they recently purchased from James Eagleson.

Stewart McGill left for Belleville on Monday to attend Albert College.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hibbard and Mr. and Mrs. F. Patten, motored to Westwood on Sunday last and were the guests of Mr. Hibbard's sister, Mrs. James Douglas.

The U.F.O. shipping board are planning to erect a new set of scales at the stock yards at Fraserville.

Beatty Bros.' big trucks are still employed hauling grain away from the different barns throughout the district, the grain being hauled to the elevators at Fraserville.

SUDBURY MYSTERY HAS BEEN SOLVED

Mrs. Thomas Tate Arrested On Charges of Attempting to Wreck C.P.R. Trains.

SUDBURY, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—With the arrest Saturday night by provincial police of Mrs. Thomas Tate, a young farmer's wife, residing near Hager station, midway between Sudbury and North Bay, authorities believe they are on the eve of clearing up a mystery which has baffled the police for over a year.

Four times this summer railway ties and other obstructions have been placed on the tracks near Hagar by some one unknown. Three times main line trains struck these obstructions, derailments being almost miraculously averted and the safety of hundreds of passengers endangered. Two weeks ago an attemtp was made to burn down the C.P.R. station at Hagar. These and other crimes are to be charged against the 22 year old farmer's wife, Mrs. Tate, when she is arraigned in police court at Sudbury this morning. For three months the C.P.R. has had detectives camping in the bush, disguised as workmen, near the Tate homestead. They have kept constant vigil, watching every movement of every member of the Tate household. Mrs. Tate's arrest has been the result.

PRIZE.

You cannot know our relation to the past or the extent of our generations' accomplishment, without a knowledge of economic history. Schools give only a smattering, their histories being too busy with the records of wars and politics.

In 1831 the B. & O. offered a $4000 prize for a railroad engine capable of hauling 15 tons 15 miles an hour over level tracks. Compare, next time you see a 1924 freight train whiz by. We should teach more of this, less of the history of destruction.

Children love Instant Postum made with milk!

YOUR children like a hot drink as well as you do. Here is one you can give them with perfect confidence. Instant Postum is healthful, satisfying and absolutely harmless for all. An ideal family beverage for those who realize the dangers of taking into the system the poisons Caffeine and Tannin—found in tea and coffee.

You'll welcome as well the ease with which Instant Postum is made. Simply put a teaspoonful in each cup, pour on boiling water or hot milk and stir and sweeten to taste. It makes a delicious hot drink — fragrant, full-bodied. Costs half-a-cent a cup. For those who prefer it, there is Postum Cereal, made by boiling for twenty minutes. Ask for Instant Postum at your restaurant, your club and on the train. Take advantage of Carrie Blanchard's offer. Send the coupon.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1924.

HIS EXCELLENCY HAS TO WAIT.

Down in Belleville they seem to be taking the West Hastings by-election very seriously, so seriously in fact that even the Governor-General has to change his plans because Bellevillians are so engrossed with the political situation.

Lord Byng had intended to visit Belleville today, and the city authorities were informed of the fact in the usual way.

This, however, happens to be the day before the electors of the riding will be asked to decide whether they want Gus Porter or Charlie Hanna to complete Mr. Porter's term at Ottawa, so the city fathers dropped a line to Rideau Hall, pointing out that everybody in Belleville would be very busy on November 24th, saying how delighted they all were to hear that he was coming, but would His Excellency mind very much if his visit was postponed until after the election, or words to that effect.

His Excellency graciously consented to defer his Belleville call until the first week in December, so that the Quinte City has today free to prepare for the battle of the ballots tomorrow.

The incident throws a sharp light upon the unusual interest that is being taken in the by-election.

THE KIWANIS FAIR.

The Kiwanis Fair, which opens tonight, deserves liberal patronage from the citizens of Peterborough, not only on its own merits as an interesting attraction but also because of the record of community service established by Kiwanis since the organization was launched here.

"We Build," the Kiwanis motto, is a modest but accurate description of the Kiwanian ideal.

It is an association of good fellows, representatives of many different professions and trades, banded together to learn something about each other and to do something for the common good.

Of necessity there must be something in such organizations above the mere gathering together each week for luncheon.

No movement would thrive long on such meagre fare as mere socialibility.

It is in the opportunity that is afforded of doing something to make the world a little happier for somebody else that Kiwanis finds its soul.

That is the link that holds the organization today, and without any fulsome flattery it may be said of Peterborough's Kiwanis Club that in its comparaitvely brief existence no opportunity to be of community service has been missed.

The citizens generally who realize what Kiwanis has accomplished will be glad to patronize the fair this week and make it the success the record of the organization merits.

U. S. METHODS NOT WANTED HERE.

London voters should make short shift of the move to have a semi-elected Police Commission, says the London Advertiser. They will have a ballot placed in their hands when they vote on December 1, and it will ask if they are in favor of increasing the Police Commission to five members, two of them to be elected by the people.

The argument has already been heard that electing a Police Commission is simply putting into effect the idea of allowing the people to run their own business.

That is exactly what is said of the American system of municipal government, where a straight political vote each year elects a city treasurer, clerk, chief of police, etc., and it is a system so inferior to British practice that we want none of it in this country.

If there were abuses under the present system there might be some cause for the vote being polled and the point carried. It is one of Mayor Wenige's ballots, and he has advanced no reason why there should be a change. He tried in the first place to bring pressure to bear on the Provincial Government, but he failed to impress that body through the joint action of a few municipalities.

His present move to elect two members and add them to the three already composing the commission cannot be justified on the evidence he has produced, or on the evidence he can produce.

The move to introduce American methods of civic government into London's municipal affairs should be turned down flat on December 1.

LORD BYNG'S VISIT.

The citizens of Peterborough are asked to co-operate with the civic authorities in extending a cordial welcome on Friday to His Excellency the Governor-General.

The visit of the King's representative, in this case a more than usually interesting event in view of Lord Byng's connection with the Canadian army in France, should be marked by manifestations in keeping with the loyal spirit of Peterborough.

Lord Byng, in announcing his coming to Peterborough, particularly stressed the fact that he desired to meet as many as possible of the citizens.

In his term of office he has consistently adopted the policy of seeing as much of Canada and of coming into contact with as many Canadians as it has been possible for him to do, and his visit to Peterborough and to other Eastern Ontario centres just now is in accordance with that conception of his duties.

Lord Byng of Vimy, whose very name should endear him to all Canadians because his title has been taken from a height of land in France that will always be known in Canada—Vimy Ridge—was one of the ablest of Britain's war generals, and he has also proved himself one of the most popular and tactful representatives of the King that this country has known.

There will, therefore, be no mere lip loyalty about the welcome he will receive in Peterborough.

Citizens, especially those whose homes or places of business are on the route of the vice-regal drive, can do much to add to the outward evidence of the city's pleasure in Lord Byng's visit by seeing that their buildings are decorated and that the Union Jack is flying everywhere.

NOT SUCH A BAD WORLD.

The annual report of the Ontario Mothers' Allowance Commission gives the lie to the pessimistic theory advanced by some that the world is steadily growing more selfish.

When we find an official document of this kind replete with references to the good work of service clubs, such as the Rotary, Kiwanis and Gyros, and the kindness of Canadian Clubs, Women's Institutes, Daughters of the Empire and Local Councils of Women, the conclusion cannot be avoided that there still must be a lot of men and women who do care something about how the other half of the world lives and who are not slow in extending a helping hand.

And this conception of the situation is strengthened by the emphasis placed by the report upon the fact that five hundred Ontario men and women are serving voluntarily on the local Mothers' Commissions, now numbering nearly one hundred throughout the Province.

The members of the commissions give their time and services without remuneration, and so well is the work being done that the expenses of administering mothers' allowances works out at only $24.50 for each local board.

In fact, the cost of paying out $1,612,000 to the widowed mothers of Ontario has been reduced from 5.42 per cent. to 4.58 per cent., in spite of the fact that the number of adult beneficiaries was increased during the year by 311.

The report shows that at the time it was compiled there were 3,870 mothers with 11,791 children in receipt of allowances, and indicates that already remarkable improvement has been affected in the homes of the beneficiaries.

IF GOOD TIMES COME.

Men might be roughly divided into two classes—those who look ahead, and those who merely drift. The prizes go to the former. They win success in at least some degree. The drifter, who spends as he goes, pays for his folly. Worse than that, his dependents also pay. There are many thousands of people in this land of opportunity who are poor in old age, simply because they had not been disposed to plan and sacrifice during their years of earning power.

There are at this moment very stimulating and positive signs of returning prosperity. It has been authoritatively computed that securities on the New York market alone have appreciated by three billions of dollars during the past ten days. This has been in large part due to the confidence which has been engendered by improved political conditions in England and the United States. The fundamentals had been gaining in strength for some time; but while it was possible to have legislative interference with fiscal policies investors took an attitude of caution.

If this happy augury of good times, with restored purchasing power, should be fulfilled, we shall be able to see whether or not the discipline of depression bears fruit. During the war there was in America a prolonged period of unnatural and wholly artificial prosperity. Inflation on a rising scale enabled many men to gain riches. Employment was abundant at unparalleled wages. The flow of gold brought opportunity to nearly all classes. What ensued, however, was quite the opposite to thrift. There was an orgy of extravagance. Money was spent as though the stream of plenty would be continuous. It stopped, however, as suddenly as it had begun. Then followed six years of comparatively hard times.

Have the people learned their lesson? If good times should return, will they profit by the stern teachings of experience and demonstrate thrift? They ought to, for reasons which should be compelling. Hereare some facts which every earner of money should thoughtfully consider:

At 35 years of age, in a group of 100 average young men, 20 as well-to-do, 66 live on their earnings and 6 are not self-supporting. At 55, it will be found that 27 have died, 4 will be in good circumstances, 46 will be living on their earnings, and 23 will be dependent. At 65, a still greater change will have taken place. Forty-four will have died, 5 will be well-to-do, 5 will be living on their earnings, and 45 will not be self-supporting. At 75 there will be but 30 survivors, and of that 30 only 3 will be able to maintain themselves.

These figures are not conjectural. They are gathered from the investigations of insurance companies, covering millions of cases. They are authentic; and they sound an insistent call to thrift. Speaking broadly, no man who has had fair health and an elementary education need be in poverty at sixty. During his years of activity he has had ample opportunity to make at least modest provision for his old age. A sound plan, accompanied by the willingness to sacrifice, are the chief requisites. In a majority of instances, dependence at sixty-five means there has been improvidence, idleness or vice. The records to which allusion has just been made prove that to be so.

Prosperity is probably a severer test of men's fibre than is misfortune. It appeals to selfish instincts, to love of luxury, and often causes over-confidence in the persistence of good fortune. It is precisely at such a time that the call to prudence, with an eye on the future, should be heeded. The world is strewn with the wrecks of men who have wasted their opportunities. The time to save is when saving is possible, and that usually means between 20 and 50 years of age. Those are the productive years. Few men do much for themselves after they have passed the half century mark.

Between 1896 and the end of 1913 was the brightest and most universal period of prosperity the world has ever seen. During those seventeen years employment was general, and at rising wages. The upward movement, however, was gradual. There was little in the nature of inflation. The first check came at the very outset of 1914, and, of course, the outbreak of war in August of that year very quickly made vast changes in the economic structure. In America it interrupted the spread of depression, and, as has been said, brought about a feverish and unhealthy state of trade activity. We have now got over the shock and dislocating effect of those hectic years, and there are good reasons for confidence in the outlook. What will we do if the wheels of industry should revolve at full speed again? Will we practise thrift, or will we break out afresh into extravagance? It is up to each individual to give the answer.—Ottawa Journal.

CHRISTMAS RUM SCARCE.

Patrol Boats at Atlantic City Have Stopped Much Smuggling.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press).—The demand for Christmas rum will far exceed the supply at this resort, due to the activities of four patrol boats and two picket boats manned by seventy-one officers and men of the Federal "dry navy." The boats have already cut down considerably the smuggling of contraband liquors, and what the runners have been able to get through at great risk commands a very high price, it is said.

of the witnesses, but it was understood they were two men who were working across the street from the parsonage.

"They say positively they are sure they saw Mrs. Sheatsley," Lieutenant Sheltenberger said. "They say the upper window of the Sheatsley home was open, and that they saw Mrs. Sheatsley pass it several times. They remembered distinctly that she shook some bedclothes out of the window. They fix the time they saw her at about 1:45 in the afternoon. Soon after they saw Mrs. Sheatsley at the window, they saw Clarence, the 17-year-old boy, come out of the house."

The statement of these witnesses check with the time the boy Clarence said he left home. Taking their own statements of their movements, the time they left and returned to the house, the authorities have been checking the stories of the Rev. Dr. Sheatsley, his sons and even the young girls, Elizabeth, 14, and Alice, 10.

It is now set down that Dr. Sheatsley left the house at about 1 o'clock in the afternoon, that Milton and the two girls left fifteen minutes later, and that Clarence left at about 1:45. Clarence said another student's mother called on the telephone and asked him, when he answered, to go to the Capitol University and ask her son to come home. Clarence says he left the house about 1:45 and that his mother was then "upstairs."

Mrs. Sheatsley must have met death and been placed in the furnace between the time Clarence left and the time the boy says he returned at 3:15 o'clock. He smelled the peculiar odor of burning flesh when he reached home. The body was already in the furnace.

Milton returned home at 3.30, the girls having come in about ten minutes earlier. The Rev. Dr. Sheatsley came home about 4:30, went out with the girls to a grocery store and returned again at 4:45. Thee body was found by the minister at 4:55.

The authorities are considering many seeming inconsistencies in the statements of the preacher and his two boys.

The Rev. Dr. Sheatsley has clung tenaciously to the suicide theory and his attitude puzzles the authorities. He has suggested that his wife threw herself to her death by hanging by the arms from a small upper door and swinging herself after the fashion of an athlete through the fourteen inch square door of the furnace, thirty inches up from the floor.

Regarded As Impossible.

The detectives and the prosecutor say it would have been impossible for the woman to do this. But the preacher had submitted a note from Milton that the small upper door was open, and cites that as a fact that she must have contrived death after the manner he believes.

The preacher further develops a suicide motive, citing a pathological condition of Mrs. Sheatsley's age. He says she said to him on the morning of the tragedy:

"I have committed grievous sin. I wonder if I'll go to Heaven?"

Also the woman was said to have talked of her aims to her two daughters that morning, clasping them in her arms and weeping as she said:

"You poor children. Your mother will never be forgiven her sins."

Lieutenant Shellenbarger says he has found witnesses who saw her about her tasks early in the afternoon, seemingly undisturbed or sorrowful.

The minister says he saw his wife in the furnace bowl. He said he could "see the flames through her ribs"—about 5 o'clock; yet he did not put out the fire nor was it put out until the Coroner arrived and extinguished ti two hours later.

The boy, Clarence, saw the body in the furnace, thought it was his mother, he testified, about 3:30. He made no outcry, told no one, simply went "upstairs and laid on the bed for a while, and then got up and went out on the football field to pass the ball around."

"And you did all this knowing your mother was burning there in the furnace?" Clarence was asked by Prosecutor King. Clarence answered "Yes."

When Prosecutotr King asked Clarence why he did not tell someone his mother was there in the furnace, and Clarence replied:

"She was dead, then, anyway; what good could it do?"

The authorities assert that these are not the reactions of a normal boy.

FACING SECOND MURDER CHARGE

Lewis Bevis Charged With the Murder of Police Officer Charles Fulton.

HALIFAX, Nov. 22.—(Canadian Press).—The fate of Lewis Bevis, for the second time on trial for his life on a charge of murdering Police Officer Charles Fulton, who was shot during the sensational chase and capture of Bevis last July on the outskirts of this city, will again be placed in the hands of the jury to-day. The defence, conducted by J. W. Hadden, K.C., Sydney, rested its case yesterday afternoon and this morning a new witness was called by the Crown, after which the jury will be charged and sent out for a verdict. On the occasion of the previous trial a month ago, the jury disagreed.

Attorney-General O'Hearn, prosecuting, called for the first time yesterday the widow of the dead man, Mrs. Charles Fulton, whose presence in the court furnished the most dramatic touch of the two trials. Clad in deep mourning, the witness was able to keep her composure only with the greatest difficulty. Bevis was also on the stand yesterday and repeated his previous declaratioin, that he was trying to make his way to the police station, and feared that if he surrendered he would be shot by his pursuers.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

John McNeil Funeral Was Largely Attended— Among the Pioneers.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 22.—The late John McNeil, who passed away on Wednesday, November 19th, in his eightieth year, was a life-long resident of Cavan Township, his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. James McNeil, being among the sturdy pioneers who came to this country from Ireland nearly one hundred years ago, locating on what is now the 8th Concession Line, and clearing the land on the fine two-hundred acre farm where the family homestead now stands.

Deceased was one of a family of ten children: five daughters and five sons, only one of whom, Mrs. K. Fraser, of Whitewater, Manitoba, still survives. The four sons who predeceased their brother were: Robert of Bobcaygeon, David and James of Manvers, and Charles of Cavan, and the four sisters: Mrs. W. Mitchell of Cavan, Mr. J. Sutton of Manvers, Mrs. W. Swayne of Valentia, and Miss Isabella, whose death occurred at Peterboro.

Mr. McNeil's wife, whose maiden name was Margaret Fair, daughter of the late Mr. andd Mrs. James Fair, Cavan, passed away about seven years ago. The immediate surviving relatives are one son, Mr. J. Leonard McNeil, who succeeds his father upon the home farm, and three daughters, Mrs. Chas. McNeil, of Janetville, Mrs. L. W. Smith, Cavan, and Miss Bertha at home.

The late Mr. McNeil was a life-long and faithful member of St. John's church, Ida, and the entire countryside was represented at his funeral which took place from his late residence, lot 16, concession 8, Cavan, on Friday, November 21st, the rector of the parish, Rev. Canon Allen, and his assistant, Rev. M. G. B. Williams, having charge of the services at the house and graveside.

Canon Allen paid a warm tribute to the many sterling qualities of the deceased, emphasizing his fine, neighborly spirit, his unfailing kindness both of word and deed which had always been a marked characteristic, the industrious and useful life he had lived as long as health and strength permitted and laid special stress upon his faithful observance of the Lord's Day and the godly example he had set for his family and neighborhood.

No special malady had affected Mr. McNeil, the weakness incident to advancing years gradually sapping his vitality until the final call came. Many beautiful floral tributes, laid upon the casket, were an unspoken testimony to the love and respect of relatives and friends.

The pall-bearers included three nephews, Messrs. H. McNeil, of Janetville, James Swain of Valentia, R. McCamus of Cavan; and three brothers-in-law, Messrs. George Fair, Johnston Fair and Joseph Armstrong, of Cavan township.

Interment took place in the family burial plot at St. John's cemetery, North Cavan.

Social Evening.

Mrs. F. Smith entertained the "Golden Links" Mission Circle of the Methodist church this week in her home, the attendance, which is increasing each month, being most encouraging, and the programme helpful.

Some excellent radio selections were enjoyed as the members gathered for the business session, and a number remained afterward for further "listening in," as the different broadcasting stations were picked up.

The president, Mrs. J. McKnight, was in the chair, and the newly-elected secretary, Wilma Fallis, had charge of the roll-call and the minutes.

The topic for the evening was a synopsis of the pageant, "Fifty Years of Victory," given recently in Massey Hall, Toronto, at the Centenary Missionary celebration. Miss Estella Hetherington, who had attended the session during Centenary week, gave an interesting and instructive account of the pageant which was of an historical character, using hundreds of people, old and young, for the various parts, and taking about three hours for its presentation.

The singing of some missionary hymns helped to lighten the meeting, rousing enthusiasm and creating the right atmosphere for such a gathering.

Mrs. Smith and Mrs. McKnight provided a treat of home-made candy before the girls left for home.

The Circle will have a period in the annual Day of Prayer, which is to be observed next Thursday, November 27th, afternoon and evening sessions.

TO SIGN ARMISTICE.

Spanish Troops Have Retired Behind Lines Agreed Upon.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Following a consultation between the Spanish representative in Morocco and A. B. D. El-Krim, rebel leader, the arrangement has been reached by which the armistice will be signed between Spain and the rebellious tribesmen immediately Spanish troops have retired behind the lines agreed upon, according to information received by the Daily Mail from Spain.

The despatch adds that the armistice will end the disastrous war which has lasted since 1893.

A THOUGHT.

Country Homes In November.

City folk frequently feel sorry for the country people, especially when November comes — November, the supposedly lonely month in the country. City folk seem to think that November, out and away from the city, is as lonesome as a bell-buoy at sea.

Loneliness is not of the calendar. It is a mental condition. The lonesomest place on earth is in the midst of a population of millions of people.

I will admit that the country looks in November a little weather beaten and much like the forsaken cottages of a summer resort; but if you will take a trip down the cellar stairs of a country home, you will find plenty of potatoes, choice apples and all the bounties that tease the appetite. Sometimes it is necessary to go downstairs—to go down into the cellar of a thought—to find a real reason to be happy.

Perhaps it may be that the stillness in the country in November is what prompts the thought of loneliness. Sometimes it is so quiet that you can almost hear the "stillness"; but this very quiet time makes a man feel that he is intimately close to the Creator. November is an Infinite design.

True, the sharp air sends the frosted leaves and the flaky snow over the abandoned harvest fields, but where can you find a more kindred time than when the family gathers around the radiant fireplace in that personal privacy of sheltered, sociable happiness, best known in a country home in November?

To Merchants and Salesmen

The Order you lost— Who got it?

The opportunity was there. Did your competitor call up your customer by Long Distance, and sell him?

Opportunities used to come a-knocking at the door. Nowadays salesmen go out to meet them half-way — by Long Distance.

They tell us that about 40% of the sales opportunities they go after by telephone prove profitable. Such salesmen are said to have "telephone initiative."

A well-defined plan of sales by Long Distance, and salesmen with "telephone initiative" handling it, may be just what you need to increase sales.

Why not give it a thorough trial?

WOODSTOCK BOY GORED BY BULL

Charles Elsom Is Now In Hospital in a Critical Condition.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Charles Elsom, 17-year -old Salvation Army home boy is in the hospital suffering from injuries he received when a bull he was endeavoring to drive into the barn, turned on him and gored him in the stomach. Elsom is employed on the farm of Mrs. Kitching East Zorra township. He had been exercising the animal in the yard and was using a hay fork, it is said to help drive the bull into a stall, when it turned on him. He was backed into a corner of the fence and before assistance arrived, had received a terrible gash across his abdomen. Unless complications set in the injured boy has a chance for his life.

"At Home" Held in the High School on Friday Evening.

SOCIAL EVENTS

CAMPBELLFORD, ov. 24.—The "At Home" held in the High School on Friday night, November 21 was a great success, about three hundred and fifty being present. The rooms were decorated with the High School colors, black, red and yellow. The Stage, in the Assembly Hall, where the guests danced was decorated with cedar branches and beautiful floor lamps. Leonard's seven-piece orchestra furnished the music for dancing. There were card tables in the Art Room for any one who did not dance and wished to have a game of cards.

Lunch was served in the Domestic Science Room which was filled with small tables covered with lunch cloths and a fancy candle-stick and candle on each table.

The room accommodated sixty guests at a time. The guests were given numbers for the lunch room so that each would know when to go for lunch and have no confusion. The Students of the High School under the supervision of Miss Ferris, served the lunch. A number taking turns at this work. The members of the Staff had the arranging of the plans and each had his or her particular part to look after.

The proceeds of the evening will be used for supplies for the High School.

It is a pleasure to go through the new High School and see the lovely large rooms brightly lighted at night, and the many conveniences for the Students and Teachers. Every one present could not help but feel that everything was done that could be done by Principal and teachers to make the evening a success and have every one feel at home and enjoy the evening.

Th following is a partial list of the guests and other surrouding towns. The staff—Mr. E. H. Greig, Principal, E. Stephens, Miss Ferris, Miss M. Smith Miss O. Shaunessey. Miss Dafoe and Miss Gourlay.

MAGISTRATE LET OUT

Manitoba Official Said Temperance Act of Province Was No Good.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 23.— J. W. Smaill, police magistrate at Killarney, Man., has been dismissed from office by the attorney general because, in the hearing of a liquor case, he was reported to have said that the Manitoba Temperance Act was "no good" and that the sooner it was burned the better. It was announced that Mr. Smaill's commission has been cancelled.

JANE ADDAMS FOR LEAGUE OF NATIONS

JANE ADDAMS.

Jane Addams who has been frequently called America's most famous woman believes the United States should enter the League of Nations.

"Some day, I am sure it will," she said in a recent interview.

"Peace is the greatest thing the world needs today.

"The League of Nations is a means to peace. It is a splendid, practical device.

"The League stands for more than just ending of war. It means accomplishment."

ANDERSON HAD BEER

Vancouver Lawyer Declared He Did Not Smuggle Into San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Nov. 24.—F. R. Anderson, Vancouver attorney, had a quantity of beer among his personal effects and "admitted having smuggled beer in," when he was arrested here without warrant charged with violating the Voistead Act, according to a government affidavit filed in United States district court Saturday when Anderson appeared with a number of others to answer liquor smuggling indictments. Anderson pleaded not guilty.

Answering the affidavit, Mr. Anderson admitted possession of the beer, but said he had not smuggled it in and was given little or no opportunity to explain its presence.

Coincidently, the other defendants, the crew of the steamer Quadra, suspected rum-runners, and others pleaded not guilty to the indictments and their case was continued for a week.

REUNITED AFTER 25 YEARS.

Couple, 74 and 70 Years Old, Resume Housekeeping in Danbury.

DANBURY, Conn., Nov. 24. — Mr. and Mrs. Stephen O'Dell, 74 and 70, respectively, have resumed housekeeping here after a separation of twenty-five years. School -day chums, they married thirty-five years ago in New Milford, where they lived happily together for ten years, when O'Dell suddenly disappeared without explanation or apparent cause.

Going to Bridgeport, O'Dell now says he assumed the name of Jack Hussey, obtained employment at the Crane Company plant, where he remained until recently, concealing his identity. Becoming homesick, O'Dell says, he revisited his old haunts in New Milford. Through the medium of friends he and his wife were reunited and decided to take up once more the broken threads of their relations.

BURNBRAE NEWS.

BURNBRAE, Nov. 21.—The St. Andrew's Young People's Guild met on Monday evening last with Miss Irene Thompson as leader. The programme was composed of Scotch readings and music. Miss Borland gave a splendid reading on Scott's "Lady of the Lake," as the feature of the evening. Readings were also given by Mrs. Frank Little and Miss Eva Milne, Scotch solos by Mrs. C. Milne and Mrs. John Rannie, and a piano solo by Miss L. Hay. A number of old Scotch songs were also sung by the audience, who, being mainly of Scotch extraction, thoroughly enjoyed the programme.

The Burnbrae W.M.S. journeyed to Rylstone on Wednesday evening of last week and were the guests of the Rylstone W.M.S. at the home of Mrs. Herbert Spencer. The Burnbrae ladies provided the programme, and refreshments were served at the close by the Rylstone ladies.

Mr. Frank Little has been hunting in the north woods and, although failing to bag a deer, has obtained a splendid fox.

A number of radiators seemed to feel the recent cold snap in no uncertain manner.

The Rev. Mr. McKenzie has been visiting in the united congregations these last few weeks, and has pretty well covered his pastorate.

Mr. Will Hume is in Toronto this week with the Humeshaugh show herd of Ayrshires attending the Royal Winter Fair. He is accompanied by Mr. Alex. Sinn of Menie. Mr. Wm. Stewart has also sent a few head, as well as some of the other breeders of the district, who are endeavoring to hold up the reputation gained at the fall exhibition for the best county herd.

Fall plowing is held up by the recent frost, but all hope that there will still be open weather, as a large amount of plowing yet remains to be done. The continued dry weather has slowed up operations considerably.

Most of the cheese factories will close within the next week, although Menie factory may run into December.

Mrs. G. Grant and Evylene are visiting at Mrs. W. L. Ketcheson's and calling on friends here.

The men are back from hunting, Mr. Downey and Mr. Kennedy getting a deer each.

LIFE CONVICT'S WIFE CAN'T GET A DIVORCE

Mrs. Mary Kolus Loses Suit at Trenton on Ruling Desertion Was Involuntary.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 22.—In denying a divorce to Mrs. Mary Kolus of Carteret, N. J., from Paul Kolus, now serving a life sentence in the State prison here for murder, Vice Chancellor Buchanan declared today than an unwilling separation of the couple by the imprisonment of the husband could not be construed under New Jersey law as desertion. An additional charge of infidelity brought against Kolus by his wife was not sufficiently proved, the Court held.

The defendant in the divorce case was sentenced to life imprisonment Oct. 24, 1921, by the late Supreme Court Justice Bergen for the alleged murder of Fred Kunsman, husband of Mrs. Margaret Kunsman, named in the divorce action as the co-respondent. Kolus was taken from the prison to the State House to day to testify and immediately afterward was sent back to the institution.

It was alleged by the wife that her husband, who delivered orders for a grocery concern, became unduly familiar with Mrs. Kunsman during the Summer of 1921. The killing occurred in August, 1921, when Kolus left the home of Mrs. Kunsman after calling on her and her mother and was confronted by Kunsman. There was a scene between the two men and a shot was fired which pierced Kunsman's shoulder. Kunsman died later.

On the stand today Kolus denied doing the shooting, declaring that Kunsman was facing him, whereas he said the dead man was shot from behind. He asserted that as soon as he heard the shot he ran away.

WOMEN 5,000 YEARS AGO ENJOYED RIGHTS

Discoveries Made at Ancient City of Kish Also Show That They Rouged.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Women of the world's "first civilization" possessed equal rights. They used rouge elaborately, beaded their eyelashes and started many of the other frills and foibles that survive to worry reformers of the present day.

These, and other remarkable disclosures regarding the domestic life, culture and first of feminine vanity among the Sumerians who ruled the earliest known empire have been found at Kish, oldest city of importance in the world, by the Field Museum-Oxford University Mesopotamian expedition.

Records and relics are responsible for the deductions were excavated in the 5,000-to-7,000-year-old burial grounds and palaces of the prehistoric city, and a report of them was received recently by D. C. Davies, director of the museum, from Prof. S. Langdon, Assyriologist, who is heading the expedition.

Recognize Equality of Women.

The fact that Sumerian laws recognized the equality of women and men was first established by discovery of cylinder seals, used for legal and property transactions, in the tombs of women. Other excavated articles, such as figured pottery, pictorials, etc., show women mingling with and respected by men.

All the graves of women uncovered yielded, among the other personal property buried with the dead by the Sumerians, artistically worked cardium shells containing red, black and green pigments. The colors were excellently preserved. The red is a grease composition for the lips and cheeks, evidently included in the tomb so the lady might make herself presentable when entering the next world. The black paint, according to Langdon, is probably hokl, sulphite of antimony.

Two cone-shaped copper vanity cases of 3,000 B.C. were found in two female graves. They were inlaid with silver, square at the top and tapered to a rounded point at the bottom. They contained a slender blade, evidently for manicuring the hands, and two copper pencils, either for use on the nails or as eyebrow pencils.

The green pigment, suggesting malachite in color, very probably, like similar colors found in Egypt, was used to protect the eyes from the bright sun.

Didn't Bob Their Hair.

Debutantes didn't bob their hair. Elaborate coiffures, ornamented with jeweled hair pins, silver fillets and ostrich feathers seem to have been the mode. Each woman's grave yielded three or four elaborate hair pins, made mostly of pure copper and sometimes plated with silver. The pins were mounted with lapis lazuli or carnelian, and often the metal at the head was designed to form a flower or the head of an animal or human.

Silver band rings, remarkably preserved, and not unlike present-day wedding rings, were found on the third and fourth fingers in two graves of women.

Sumerian women, as depictd by the personal property in their tombs, were skilled in household arts. That they possessed the knowledge of making cloth is shown by the excavation of several spindles and whorls, the latter made of a white glazed substance and Persian shells and inlaid with lapis lazuli.

Beads of lapis lazuli, carnelian, serpentine, jasper, a peculiarly glazed limestone, silver and two gems not yet identified were found in the graves of both men and women. The deep red color and exquisite polish on the carnelian indicated that the Sumerians possessed the ancient Indian (Asiatic) secret of roasting the stone. One lapis lazuli bead was cut in the form of a frog and another of serpentine had a running antelope engraved on it. Many of the carnelian beads were engraved with designs and contained white inlay.

Earrings of silver and copper and sea shells were found at the heads in graves of both sexes. Sometimes two were worn in one ear. Bracelets of silver and copper were disclosed in three instances during the cemetery excavation. Bracelets of carnelian beads were also indicated by the profusion of the gems near the wrists.

The mode of clothing worn by the women is yet to be revealed in detail. Men, however, are shown by pictographs to have worn a pretty thoroughly standardized costume not unlike a combination of kilts and Irishman's breeks, with a shawl draped over the right shoulder and about the upper part of the body.

TRIPP DISCUSSES UNREST.

Westinghouse Chairman Lays it to High Distribution Costs.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 24. — The high cost of distribution was blamed for much of the current unrest in an address by General Guy E. Tripp, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, before the Electrical Jobbers' Association. He emphasized the importance of the increase in the volume of business as compared with increased discounts as a basis for business success.

"When the farmer discovers that the milk for which he received 3 cents is being retailed at 16 cents he feels cheated," General Tripp said. "When the consumer learns that the first cost of milk for which he pays 16 cents was 3 cents he feels cheated. The upshot is that all hands go hunting for the man who got the money."

As a solution General Tripp suggested that sales methods be revised.

GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER.

Killed His Neighbor in a Dispute Over a Cow.

SOMERVILLE, N.J., Nov. 24.—August Aquelone, on trial before Judge Charles W. Parker and a jury in the Somerset County Court here on a charge of murder in the first degree in connection with the stabbing of James Spirley on June 17 last at Flagtown, was found guilty of manslaughter. Their dispute originally started over a cow owned by Aquelone.

Judge Parker sentenced Aquelone to from four to ten years in the State prison.

DEBATES ON UNIONS

Queen's University Ladies Lose to McGill and Varsity.

KINGSTON, Ont., November 24.—"Resolved that unions among employed workers are beneficial to society" was the subject of a debate at Queen's University, on Saturday afternoon between members of the women's debating societies of Queen's and Varsity, the debate resulting in the narrow defeat of the Queen's debaters.

Miss Henriette Anderson, leader, and Miss Ruby Hilliker upheld the affirmative for Queen's while Miss Elizabeth Hiltz, leader, and Miss Lorna Cotto, defended the negative side of the debate for Varsity.

The judges were Miss Elizabeth Rattee of Queen's, Rev. R. H. Bell of Sydenham street Methodist church, Kingston, and Prof. W. P. Bridger, of the department of English at the R.M.C.

LOST TO McGILL.

MONTREAL, November 23. — McGill University, represented by Miss Esther England and Miss Isabelle Scriver, was declared the victor over Queen's University, represented by Miss M. Moffatt and Miss Hazel Argue, in a keenly contested debate on the subject, "Resolved, that unions of employed workmen are beneficial to society," held here on Saturday evening. McGill supported the affirmative. The debate is the first intercollegiate debate of its kind to be held at the college.

GET IN DEBT! AND WHEN YOU PAY OUT PLUNGE IN AGAIN

"Let Other Men's Money Work for You." is Unusual Advice of Financier.

HIS EXPERIENCE

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—"Get in debt! When you pay out, plunge in again! Stay in debt for all you can carry. That is the only way to succeed in business. Let other men's money work for you."

A grey-haired prosperous real estate dealer gave this advice nearly 30 years ago to a young client, Francis G. Sisson, back in his home town of Galesburg, Ill.

Sisson followed it to his present position as vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York and one of the best known men in the banking field. And when this interviewer visited him expecting the conventional, cautious counsel about thrift and "pay as you go," Sisson quoted his old friend's words and illustrated with his own story.

"I became a newspaper owner when I was 27 and without money," he says.

"I had a lot of fun out of it and made some money, by the magic assistance of debt. After I got out of college I had some experience on Chicago papers and then went back to Galesburg. Somehow a bank trusted me and by its aid I bought a third interest in the paper. Then it was necessary to buy presses and other new equipment. Then opportunity came to take over a building cheap, and we did it.

"Next a turn of circumstances forced me to get entire control of the paper if I was to survive. A bank promised to honor my checks for that purpose. I got on my bicycle and in one day I bought up enough shares to assure it.

"All this before I had paid a cent toward lifting the debt! But I paid out with a profit and learned a lesson of the real value of credit."

Philosophy on Debt.

Sisson's philosophy on debt can be summed up in some such aphoristic phrases as these:

A young man's greatest assets may be his liabilities.

Debt is not merely a burden; it is a spur.

Debt enlarges a young man's working capital to equal his ability.

Thrift and debt may be the bases of fortune.

It pays to be a "bull" on the United States and buy in faith in the country's business progress.

Of course, there are all sorts of debts. Applicants for work in the Guaranty Trust Co., as in other banks, must answer an extensive questionnaire which includes inquiries as to their debts. If a young bookkeeper has gone into debt for an automobile, it doesn't appear as a recommendation. If he is buying good securities or a home, it may increase the bank's respect for him.

"I believe a well-organized, soundly based indebtedness is an advantage to any man," says Sisson.

To Be Used Wisely.

"It is a definite objective toward which he can work. He should not fear it any more than he should assume it frivolously. It is to be respected and used wisely. Credit at your local bank and debt incurred under the advice of your banker may be invaluable aids.

"Last spring some business men I know who were carrying bank loans secured by good stocks decided to clean up their debts. They sold enough so they could pay these off. The banks would have carried them, but they were restless under the obligations. If they had had a little more faith and had held on until the present, they would have profited greatly.

"Most of the successful men in the financial district of New York are in debt most of the time. It is a natural phase of their business operations."
